Farhad Lohoni, a local tribal leader, had previously claimed that the American hikers had been snatched from Iraq in a cross-border raid by Iranian agents, as reported in the Daily Telegraph in August 2009. Lohoni said that his relatives had seen a group of men cross the border into Iraq, and he told the Telegraph that the hikers "were targeted and captured by a group that came over from Iran, ignoring Iraq's sovereignty. We know this and it means that Iran must have wanted to take Americans hostage at this sensitive time."

A State Department spokesman said that he had been unaware of evidence that the three were arrested in Iraqi territory but would not comment further.

Once captured, Bauer, Fattal and Shourd were sped by car to the local headquarters of the Iranian Revolutionary Guards in Marivan, a town close to the border in the province of Kurdistan. When they arrived, according to two sources, the Americans were remanded into the custody of Lt. Col. Heyva Taab, then head of the Revolutionary Guards' intelligence unit in the region. According to these sources — a former member of the Revolutionary Guards and an official who serves in the provincial government at Sanandaj — only Taab would have had the authority to order the Americans' detention and eventual transfer to Tehran. A branch of the Iranian military with at least 125,000 personnel, the Revolutionary Guards are responsible for maintaining national security throughout the Islamic Republic.

"When I heard the news that they had arrested American hikers, I immediately thought, This is the work of the intelligence arm of the Revolutionary Guards, because they have people in this region," says Idris Ahmedi, an Iranian Kurdish exile and a regional expert who is a visiting scholar at Georgetown University. "I thought they were most likely lured into Iranian Kurdistan, where they could arrest them. It is consistent with Iran's past actions."

Less than a month later, in late August 2009, Taab himself was arrested and charged with the July 6 murder of the son of Mostafa Shirzadi, the Imam Joma (Friday prayer leader) of Marivan, an influential cleric in the region. Shirzadi's nephew was also allegedly killed by Taab. Since his arrest Taab has been implicated in a vast criminal enterprise encompassing a profitable smuggling operation and dozens of murders, rapes and kidnappings. According to the Sanandaj official, numerous lawsuits, perhaps hundreds, have been filed against Taab in Kurdistan, alleging libel, theft, rape, kidnapping and murder. Taab's case has twice been before a judge, and he awaits execution in a Tehran prison.

Although the state-run Iranian press has not reported on Taab's crimes, they were made public in a series of articles in January and February by a Kurdish news site, Kurdistan Va Kurdnews, run by the Kurdistan Democratic Party. A February 17 article describes Taab as the head of a "criminal band" and reports that Taab and seven accomplices were under arrest by the Revolutionary Guards for their role in a vast number of illegal killings.

Several sources describe Taab as the central power in Kurdistan province. According to locals and experts, control of the border lies in the hands of the Revolutionary Guards, in particular their intelligence unit, Etelaat Sepah, whose local division had been commanded by Taab for about five years. "At this point it's really the Sepah, the Revolutionary Guards, that are in charge, especially in the western provinces, especially because the Americans are on the other side, in Iraq," says Kaveh Ehsani, an assistant professor of international studies at DePaul University and an Iran expert who serves as a contributing editor to the journal Middle East Report. "On the surface the security force [NAJA] is in charge, but it really is the Revolutionary Guards that control the borders."

It is a region where, according to several Iran experts, smuggling and cross-border traffic are routine. The Iraq-Iran border is "relatively porous because it's mountainous," says Faraz Sanei, an Iran researcher at Human Rights Watch, which issued a report last year on political freedom in Iranian Kurdistan. Sanei describes the border as a common escape route for dissidents — journalists, human rights advocates and Iranian Kurds—as well as a commonly used trade route for goods. "Smuggling is something that has taken place and continues to take place there, whether it be of goods or of humans across the border. It's something that happens quite often."

Soon after Taab took charge of the Sepah in the northwestern quadrant of Kurdistan, he began to enrich himself off the black-market border economy. According to the Sanandaj official and the former Revolutionary Guards officer, who had firsthand knowledge of Taab's activities, Taab's first scheme involved selling merchandise confiscated from petty smugglers, known as koolbars, who traffic consumer goods across the border (a trade depicted in the Iranian film A Time for Drunken Horses, which won the Caméra d'Or at Cannes in 2000).

The region is also home to a variety of Kurdish nationalist groups that have been demanding autonomy from the central Tehran government. One of these, the Party for Free Life in Kurdistan (PJAK), is affiliated with the Kurdistan Workers' Party, a Kurdish separatist organization that engages in armed conflict within Turkey and has been labeled a terrorist organization by the United States and other governments. Since 2005 PJAK, based in the mountains in Kurdish Iraq, has been in open conflict with Tehran and has claimed responsibility for killing dozens of Revolutionary Guards soldiers in cross-border raids on Iranian military bases, as well as for the February 2007 downing of an Iranian military helicopter by a shoulder-launched missile in Khoy, in Western Azerbaijan province, which killed thirteen Iranian soldiers.

It has been speculated that some of these Kurdish militants enjoy US support. In April 2006, Representative Dennis Kucinich wrote a letter to President Bush questioning whether the US government was "fomenting opposition and supporting military operations in Iran among insurgent groups and Iranian ethnic minority groups, some of whom are operating from Iraq." Kucinich named two groups, including PJAK. In November of that year, Seymour Hersh reported in The New Yorker that "Israel and the United States have also been working together in support of a Kurdish resistance group known as the Party for Free Life in Kurdistan," and that a government consultant told him that the Israeli government had provided "equipment and training" to PJAK.

The United States and Israel have denied any involvement with PJAK. Still, these allegations of support have gained substantial traction inside Iran and may have undergirded Taab's decision to detain Bauer, Fattal and Shourd as well as the repeated public charges of espionage against the three. In early April, for instance, Iranian Intelligence Minister Heydar Moslehi told Iran's Press TV that "it is quite obvious to us that the three Americans arrested in Iran last year had links with Western and Israeli intelligence services."

The Iranian government has retaliated against rising Kurdish militancy by launching a counteroffensive on PJAK, inside Iran and across the border in Iraq. In August 2007, for example, Iranian soldiers crossed into Iraq and attacked several villages, McClatchy reported. Most recently, on June 4, officials in Iraq's semiautonomous Kurdish region alleged that "a small unit of Iranian soldiers," including a tank and several other vehicles, had penetrated more than a mile into Iraqi Kurdistan's Arbil province in search of Kurdish rebels. Until his arrest, Taab was a key player in Iran's counter-offensive. The former Revolutionary Guards officer says that several current members of the Guards told him that Taab's stated goal was to "completely wipe out PJAK" in his jurisdiction. According to Ahmedi, the scholar at Georgetown, Taab was involved in recent cross-border assassinations of Iranian Kurds in Iraqi Kurdistan. The Kurdish weekly Awena reported that Taab and his unit assassinated two Kurds on December 15, 2008.

According to the former officer and the Sanandaj official, Taab's criminal enterprise grew beyond smuggling in 2007, when he made his first forays into murder. Koolbars, the petty border smugglers, are often killed by land mines or fatally shot by border police. So Taab concocted a scheme to kidnap koolbars as well as ordinary unemployed Iranian Kurdish civilians, dress them in the uniforms of PJAK insurgents and then kill them—claiming they'd died in a military clash—in order to collect a bounty, as high as $40,000 a head, from his superiors in the Revolutionary Guards. He was assisted in this plot by at least nine others, seven of whom have been apprehended. The article in Kurdistan Va Kurdnews named all seven, including Haji Majid Muqimiyan of Kermansha, identified as a ringleader.

PJAK has officially denied involvement in these border clashes, including in a May 3, 2009, post to the Iranian website Tabnak, which is published by Mohsen Rezai, a former head of the Revolutionary Guards. Many of the PJAK clashes may, in fact, have been "bogus," said the Sanandaj official. "More or less no clashes with PJAK have been reported in the area since Heyva Taab and his gang were busted."

A mother of one koolbar tearfully described her son's disappearance. She said he went missing the same day in early 2009 that the government later claimed a clash with PJAK had taken place. The woman, a resident of a border town in Iranian Kurdistan, is a plaintiff in one of the lawsuits against Taab; she asked that her name and location not be mentioned, for fear that it would harm her case in court.

Taab's scheme was wildly successful, according to the Sanandaj official, who said one bank account under Taab's name has had nearly $6 million deposited in it since 2008. This macabre scheme ended only in the spring of 2009, when Taab killed a local official's brother who was seeking work in the area and, more decisively, last July when he killed the cleric's son.

On June 11 Mohammad Javad Larijani, secretary general of Iran's High Council for Human Rights, said that the government's investigation was nearly complete and a trial for Bauer, Fattal and Shourd "should not be very far from now." In a statement issued on June 17, the mothers of the hikers called on Iran either to prosecute or release their children. "Iran has no legitimate reason at this stage not to release them or move forward with a fair trial in which our children can openly answer any allegations against them."

"These new revelations, if indeed true, show the hikers have been victims of political machinations and manipulation," said Hadi Ghaemi, executive director of the International Campaign for Human Rights in Iran. "The fact that they have been held for so long without prosecution strongly supports this trend. Under Iranian laws, they have committed no crime and should be released immediately. Their Iranian lawyer, who has studied the judicial files against them, has consistently maintained the only charge against them is illegal entry, which is subject to a fine and not arbitrary detention for so long. With this new information, even that charge appears fabricated, and there is no basis for holding them."
As of the press date, Shane Bauer, Josh Fattal and Sarah Shourd have been detained by Iran for ten months and twenty-three days.
This article was reported in collaboration with the Investigative Fund at The Nation Institute. Naseh Afrani, a pseudonym, contributed reporting from Kurdistan province, and Nicholas Jahr contributed reporting from New York.

© 2010 The Investigative Fund. All rights reserved.
View this story online at:
http://www.theinvestigativefund.org/investigations/international/1338/

http://www.nytimes.com/2010/10/23/world/middleeast/23hikers.html?_r=1&pagewanted=print

October 22, 2010

Iran Seized U.S. Hikers in Iraq, U.S. Report Asserts

By MICHAEL R. GORDON and ANDREW W. LEHREN

Iran has accused three American hikers of illegally crossing into Iranian territory in July 2009 and is still holding two of them in prison. But a classified American military report made public by WikiLeaks, which describes the chaotic day when the hikers were detained, asserts that the hikers were on the Iraqi side of the border when they were seized.
The initial reports of any incident are not always correct. But one American government official who served in Iraq said that the field report was generally consistent with what he had been told by Iraqi officials — namely, that the hikers were close to the border but on the Iraqi side.
The episode began when four Americans traveled from Syria to northern Iraq, planning to hike up the Ahmed Awa, a mountainous area with a dramatic waterfall. One American, Shon Meckfessel, became ill and stayed behind when his friends — Shane M. Bauer, Joshua F. Fattal and Sarah E. Shourd — set out on July 31.
A July 31 field report states that Mr. Meckfessel learned of the arrests when a "female called him saying they were being surrounded by armed men."

At first, the American military did not know who was holding the Americans. An intelligence officer at the American Army division based in northern Iraq, the report notes, initially described the event as a "kidnapping" and said the three American tourists "were being taken to the Iranian border."

The report lists a number of military grids where the Americans were believed to have been hiking or had been detained — all on the Iraqi side of the border.

As documented in the report, the frenetic effort to locate the American hikers and to interview Mr. Meckfessel appeared to support the claim that they were tourists and not American intelligence operatives, as Iran has alleged. A drone aircraft was sent to look for the missing Americans, and two F-16s jet fighters were alerted. American Special Operations forces were sent to pick up Mr. Meckfessel, so he could be taken to Baghdad for questioning.

As the day wore on, the Americans received a report from an officer with the pesh merga, the Kurdish military force in northern Iraq, that the Iranians had detained three American citizens "for being too close to the border." The July report reflects some frustration with the hikers for their "lack of coordination" in venturing to northern Iraq and offers some thoughts on the episode's broader implications.

"The leadership in Iran benefits as it focuses the Iranian population on a perceived external threat rather than internal dissension," it notes. Read the Document »

RELEASE IN PART
B6

B6

From: sbwhoeop
Sent: Saturday, September 25, 2010 11:53 AM
To: H
Subject: H: Labour Party leadership vote... Sid

David Miliband lost by less than 2 percent to his brother Ed. Ed is the new leader. David was marginally hurt by Tony's book but more by Mandelson's endorsement coupled with his harsh statements about the left. This is something of a regression.

Sid

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, February 21, 2010 9:40 AM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: We got an earlier start so I can talk now or call as planned at 10am

Bill wants to go to church at 10:15 so can we do btw 12 and 7 ?

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Feb 21 09:37:35 2010
Subject: We got an earlier start so I can talk now or call as planned at 10am

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 30, 2010 3:12 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Sudan withdraws from Darfur peace talks (AP)

From: OpsNewsTicker@state.gov <OpsNewsTicker@state.gov>
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_Shift-II; SES-O_OS
Sent: Thu Dec 30 14:07:44 2010
Subject: Sudan withdraws from Darfur peace talks (AP)

DOHA (AP) - A Sudanese official said his government has withdrawn from peace talks with Darfur rebel groups, but it is still committed to making peace. Sudan's President Omar al-Bashir threatened to call off the talks in Qatar and return negotiations to Sudan if agreement was not reached by December 30, and he carried out his threat. Chief government negotiator Ghazi Salaheddine said the Sudanese delegation will leave for Khartoum December 31. Ahmed Hussain Adam, a rebel spokesman, described the move as "a declaration of war" in remarks to Al-Jazeera TV.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

B6

From: sbwhoeop[redacted]
Sent: Saturday, September 25, 2010 12:04 PM
To: H
Subject: Ed Miliband...

Ed beat Davis by 1.3 percent. Ed's acceptance speech to Labour conference says that the party was betrayed on Iraq and that trust was lost as a result. "I get it," he said. He sets his goal to the party: "Win back your trust." Very clear repudiation of Tony. He ends: "Turns the page...the work of the new generation begins." Sid

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: sbwhoeop [redacted] B6
Sent: Saturday, September 25, 2010 12:15 PM
To: H
Subject: more...

Ed Miliband's victory was carried by an anti-Blair undercurrent. In the first round voting, David was ahead. But when the votes of Ed Balls was distributed to the second choice of voters, they put Ed over. Balls represents Gordon, but even more a distancing from New Labour. Ed's use of Iraq as an issue is symbolic of the repudiation of New Labour. Ed had more labor union votes for leader, which accounted for one-third of total. Ed's "new generation" rhetoric covers that regression and continuing reactive impulse. Now the shadow cabinet, due to a new decision, will be elected by the party. Ed is the former environment minister and good on green issues, of course, but has no foreign policy perspective yet instinctively to the left, which means anti-Afghanistan mission as currently conceived, it should go without saying. David lost precisely because he held responsible positions.
Sid

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, February 21, 2010 12:13 PM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: [redacted] B6
[redacted] Asked me to call back with details. Any direction?

We don't know about this and have no plans to do so, but Bill will call him later to return his call [redacted]

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Feb 21 10:51:08 2010
Subject: [redacted]
Asked me to call back with details. Any direction?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, February 21, 2010 12:15 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: call at 3:15pm? will that work?

Yes--and Bill wanted to talk w you too. Can he do that after we finish?

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Feb 21 11:53:12 2010
Subject: call at 3:15pm? will that work?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, September 25, 2010 12:09 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (AP) - Ed Miliband is new UK Labour Party leader

Wow

From: Withers, Anne M
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_Shift-II
Sent: Sat Sep 25 12:08:12 2010
Subject: (AP) - Ed Miliband is new UK Labour Party leader

LONDON (AP) - Britain's opposition Labour Party elected Ed Miliband as its new leader on September 25 after a brother-versus-brother battle to replace ex-prime minister Gordon Brown. Miliband, the 40-year-old ex-climate change secretary, narrowly defeated his elder brother David Miliband, the 45-year-old former foreign secretary, in a ballot of legislators, party activists and about 3.5 million labor union members. Three other candidates also competed in the contest to replace Brown, who stepped down in May after Labour came in second in a national election and was removed from office after 13 years by the Conservative Party-led coalition government.

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 12/31/2025

RELEASE IN PART
B1,1.4(B),1.4(D),B5

From: Verveer, Melanne S <VerveerMS@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, December 31, 2010 12:10 AM
To: H
Subject: FW: Dinner with MY and GR

Readout from the dinner tonight.

---

From: Moriarty, James F
Sent: Thursday, December 30, 2010 11:57 PM
To: Verveer, Melanne S
Cc: Blake, Robert O
Subject: Dinner with MY and GR

1.4(B)
1.4(D)
B1

[redacted]

Aloha,
Jim

---

From: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Thu 12/30/2010 9:49 PM
To: Moriarty, James F
Subject: RE: Things looking better

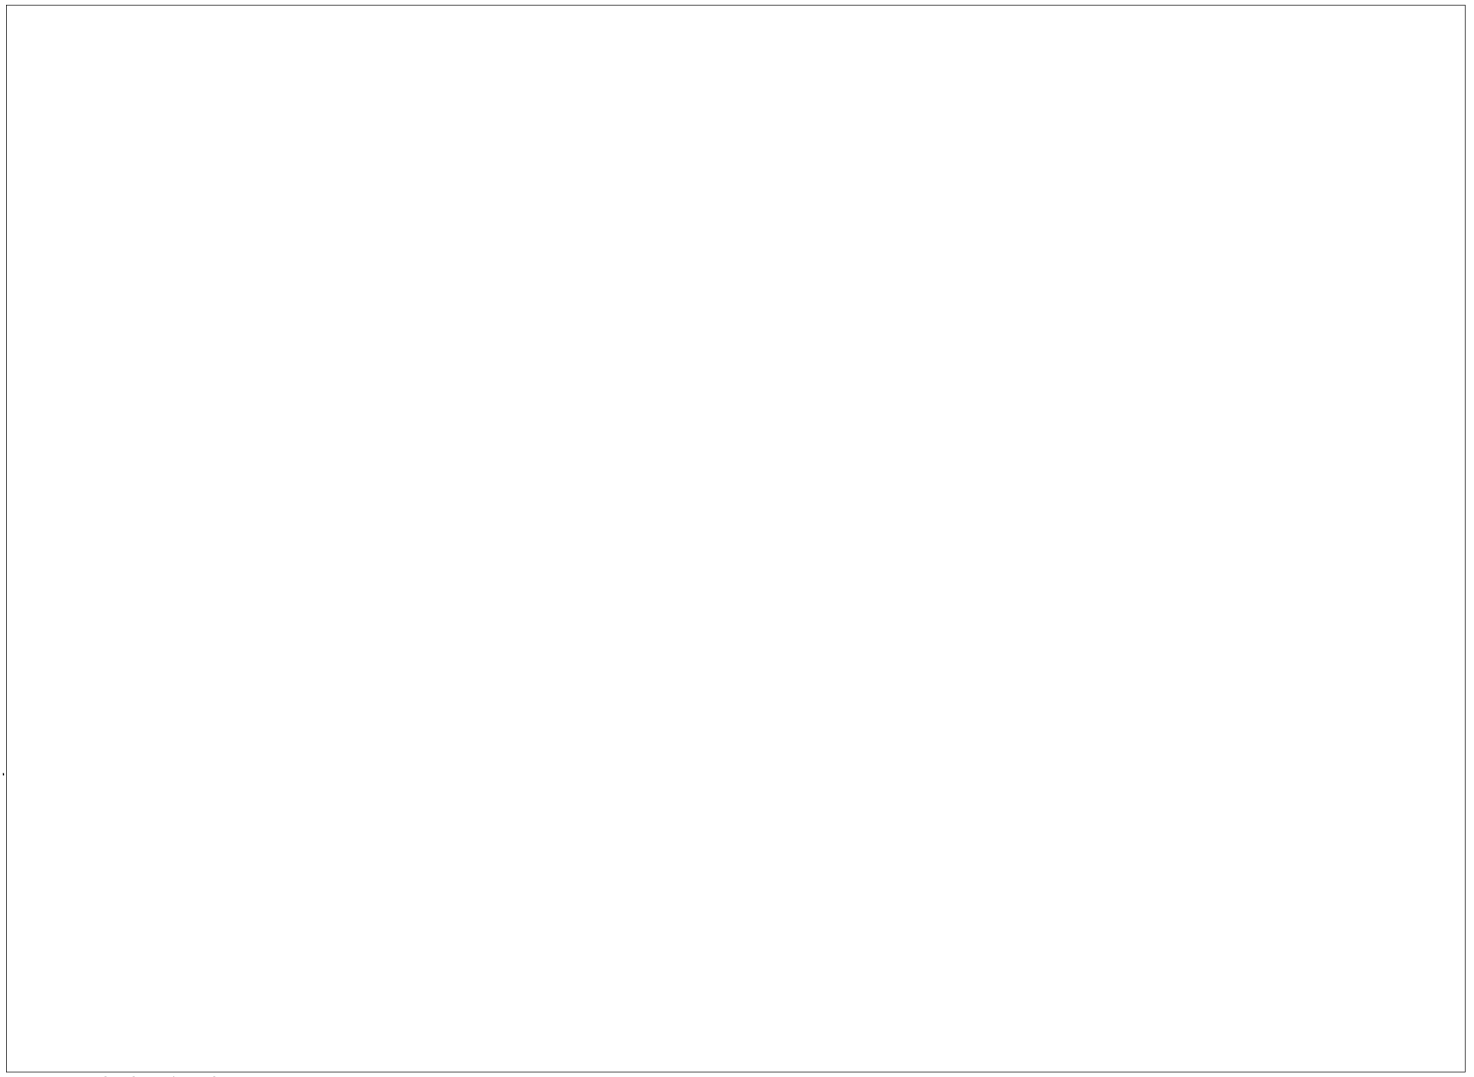
[redacted] This email is encouraging. I hope cooler heads will prevail. I do remember my conversation with MFA vividly and reading the cable brought it back. B5

-----Original Message-----
From: Moriarty, James F
Sent: Wednesday, December 29, 2010 9:27 AM
To: Verveer, Melanne S; Blake, Robert O
Subject: Things looking better

[redacted]

The three of us will have dinner tomorrow night, along with the finance advisor
I will let you know how that goes
Aloha
Jim
Sent from Blackberry



----- Original Message -----
From: Verveer, Melanne S
To: Blake, Robert O; Moriarty, James F
Sent: Wed Dec 29 01:03:52 2010
Subject: Fw: Meeting with the Finance Today

[redacted] I'm glad he's seeing you tomw, Jim. B5

----- Original Message -----
From: [redacted] 1.4(D) B1 B6
To: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Tue Dec 28 11:43:49 2010
Subject: Meeting with the Finance Today

Dear Melanne

[redacted] 1.4(D) B1

1.4(D)
B1

Sent wirelessly via BlackBerry

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, February 21, 2010 3:36 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Schedule

When I'm in NY at UN I'd like to have mtg w Margot Wallstrom, the new Special Rep on sexual violence. Melanne knows her.

I'd like to do a mtg early in week about message for Latin Am trip

I need to see Andrew this week w Jack Lew.

Am I scheduled to re-launch the NetFreedom Taskforce per a memo I rec'd from Hormats and Otero?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Rodriguez, Miguel E <RodriguezME@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, December 31, 2010 2:26 AM
To: H
Subject: Murkowski

After nearly two months of legal wrangling, Senator Murkowski was finally certified as the winner of the Alaska Senate race on Thursday. The Governor and Lt. Governor signed the paperwork certifying the result, in time for the Senator to be sworn in next Wednesday with the rest of her colleagues.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, February 21, 2010 3:40 PM
To: 'TillemannTS@state.gov'; 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: NATO speech

How does the collapse of the Dutch govt. affect our speech?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, October 22, 2010 6:47 PM
To: H
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: FW: Stanford University Speech
Attachments: 101020 Stanford Speech.docx; 101020 Stanford Speech.docx

FYI. Two people emailed me to say this speech was great. I haven't read it yet.

---

From: Pascual, Carlos (Mexico City)
Sent: Friday, October 22, 2010 6:38 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D; Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Stanford University Speech

Attached is a copy of the speech that I gave earlier this week at Stanford University. The focus of the speech was on reviewing where we are and where we are heading with Mexico. It involves new analysis of the nature of the drug trade and its impact on violence. Could you pass to the Secretary in case she has a moment to read it?

Carlos

This email is UNCLASSIFIED.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, February 21, 2010 3:44 PM
To: 'TillemannTS@state.gov'; 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: NATO speech redux

Foe example, the statement that the debate about out-of-area operations being over doesn't look so clear post Dutch decision.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, November 14, 2010 9:55 PM
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma; Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Draft of PPT
Attachments: 2010-11-14 Condensed QDDR 945pm-images.pptx

HRC

Attached is the ppt that AMS will give tomorrow at the A/S meeting. It likely will take most of the time to go thorough.

We are not handing out copies until others who are editing it have had the chance to go through it carefully.

If you have the chance, take a look through and make sure nothing is too problematic for flashing on the screen, recognizing the goal is by the end of the day, to have a version that can be handed out on Weds to the Hill and internally.

cdm <<2010-11-14 Condensed QDDR 945pm-images.pptx>>

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, February 21, 2010 4:52 PM
To: 'mchaleja@state.gov'
Subject: Re: TV Talk Shows' Summary - February 18, 2010

This new effort is very encouraging but will require boatloads of patience.

----- Original Message -----
From: McHale, Judith A <McHaleJA@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Reines, Philippe I <reinesp@state.gov>; Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Fri Feb 19 05:15:55 2010
Subject: FW: TV Talk Shows' Summary - February 18, 2010

I get these reports every morning. They are somewhat painful to read since, as you know, in Pakistan, the media can be particularly outrageous. However, we can't ignore the fact that these talk shows are the most watched programming in prime time.. The report below is fairly typical. The host sets up the discussion in fairly provocative way and the guests, who come from across the political spectrum, respond. As you can see, the first commentator is strongly anti US. However, what I have observed since our media offensive began last Fall is that there is usually a more moderate guest as well, who will argue along the lines that it is only natural for the US to protect its interests and GOP should do a better job of protecting Pakistan. Believe it or not there have even been instances where we get credit for some of the things we do. Also on occasion where there have been particularly egregious attacks on US policy, the host will read a statement from our Embassy in the following programming. We try to get airtime on these programs whenever possible but it is hard. It 's a hard slog getting this right but we are making progress.

jm

---

From: Baber, Suhail On Behalf Of Islamabad, Information Section
Sent: Friday, February 19, 2010 4:37 AM
To: Snelsire, Richard W
Cc: Schwartz, Larry; Gill, Muazzam; Wade, Joseph W (Peshawar)
Subject: TV Talk Shows' Summary - February 18, 2010

TV Talk Shows' Summary

February 18, 2010

Program: "Center Stage" Express TV (02/18)

Host: Fahad Hussain

Participants: Munawwar Hassan (Ameer Jamaat-i-Islami Pakistan); Shahid Amin (Analyst)

Topic: U.S. Agenda In The Region

Host: Pakistan has rendered countless sacrifices in the war against terrorism but it seems that the United States is not ready to trust us. Washington's policy towards Islamabad is ambiguous. On the one hand, the U.S. has assigned Pakistan the role of a frontline state in the war against terrorism while, on the other, it has signed nuclear deal with our worst enemy, India. What, in your opinion, is the real U.S. agenda in our region?

Munawwar Hassan: The U.S. wants to make India the mini-superpower in this region. This American policy prompted the Indian army chief to boast that his country can fight against China and Pakistan simultaneously. The U.S. needs our cooperation against Iran and China. It also wants our help to occupy the resources of the Central Asian states. The current wave of extremism in the region is the reaction of imperialistic policies of Washington. Despite our recognition of the Taliban government in Afghanistan, Pakistan treated their ambassador in Islamabad in a very humiliating manner. In fact, our rulers have becomes the slaves of the United States. But Pakistan will get nothing by befriending the U.S. and helping Americans in their conspiracies against our neighbors. The history tells us that Washington's enmity is dangerous, and its friendship is fatal.

Shahid Amin: Every country devises its policies to safeguard its national interests and same is true for the United States. However, it is the responsibility of our governments to protect Pakistan's interests while dealing with Americans. Today, the Taliban and Al-Qaeda constitute the biggest threat to the U.S. security. But these terrorist organizations also pose a potential threat to the security and integrity of Pakistan. Hence, like America, their elimination is also in our own national interest.

---

The following programs were monitored, but as they dealt with domestic issues, therefore, were not summarized:

Program: "Kal Tak" Express TV (02/18)

Host: Javed Chaudhry

Participants: Abid Sher Ali (PML-N); Asma Arbab Alamgir (PPP); Kashmala Tariq (PML-Q)

Topic: Government-Opposition Relationship

---

Program: "Aaj Kamran Khan Kay Saath" Geo TV (02/18)

Host: Kamran Khan

Participants: Dr. Ejaz Shafi (Chairman Gallop Pakistan); Muhammad Sohail (Economist); Rahimullah Yousufzai (Resident Editor The News)

Topic: Performance of PPP Government

---

Program: "Capital Talk" Geo TV (02/18)

Host: Hamid Mir

Participants: Hameedullah Jan Afridi (Minister for Environment); Dr Muhammad Omer (Health Expert); Senator Tariq Azeem

Topic: Lack Of Clean Drinking Water

---

Program: "Islamabad Tonight" Aaj TV (02/18)

Host: Nadeem Malik

Participants: Shazia Marri (PPP); Pervaiz Rasheed (PML-N); Aasia Riaz (PILDAT)

Topic: Democracy In Pakistan and Failure Of Political Leadership

---

Program: "Off The Record" ARY TV (02/18)

Host: Kashif Abbasi

Participants: Farzana Raja (PPP); Raza Hayat (PML-Q); Khawaja Saad Rafique (PML-N)

Topic: What Is Good Governance?

---

Program: "Late Edition" ARY TV (02/18)

Host: Asma Sherazi

Participants: Marvi Memon (PML-Q); Khurram Dastgir (PML-N); Asma Arbab Alamgir (PPP); Zahid Hussain (Analyst)

Topic: Two Years Of Democratic Setup

---

Program: "Dunya Today" Dunya TV (02/18)

Host: Moeed Pirzada

Participants: Fauzia Wahab (PPP); Ali Ahmed Kurd (Senior Lawyer); Abid Sher Ali (PML-N)

Topic: Consequences of Government's U-Turn On Judges Issue

---

Program: "Live With Talat" (02/18)

Host: Talat Hussain

Participants: Fauzia Wahab (PPP); Haroon Rasheed (Analyst); Ayaz Amir (PML-N)

Topic: Government's Failure To Honor Its Promises

---

Monitored by Info Office

Public Affairs Section

U.S. Embassy Islamabad

Pakistan

http://islamabad.usembassy.gov <http://islamabad.usembassy.gov/>

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, February 21, 2010 7:45 PM
To: 'sbwhoeop [redacted] B6
Subject: Re: Shaun

I'd like to do and probably better on Tuesday. I'll confirm tomorrow. Where do you want to go? I prefer quiet and private around 6:30-7 if that's ok for you both.

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop [redacted]
To: H
Sent: Sun Feb 21 19:41:39 2010
Subject: Shaun

H: Just talked to Shaun. He wants to know if, given your schedule, and in addition to your meeting with him, you can have dinner with the two of us either Tuesday or Wednesday. Sid

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, February 21, 2010 7:58 PM
To: 'sbwhoeop B6
Subject: Re: Shaun

That sounds good. Will you make reservations for us?

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop
To: H
Sent: Sun Feb 21 19:54:37 2010
Subject: Re: Shaun

Tues good. Fahrenheit restaurant at Ritz in Georgetown very quiet and fine. People don't know about it. so just let me know.
------Original Message------
From: Hillary Clinton
To: 'sbwhoeop
Sent: Feb 21, 2010 7:45 PM
Subject: Re: Shaun

I'd like to do and probably better on Tuesday. I'll confirm tomorrow. Where do you want to go? I prefer quiet and private around 6:30-7 if that's ok for you both.

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop
To: H
Sent: Sun Feb 21 19:41:39 2010
Subject: Shaun

H: Just talked to Shaun. He wants to know if, given your schedule, and in addition to your meeting with him, you can have dinner with the two of us either Tuesday or Wednesday. Sid

Sent via Cingular Xpress Mail with Blackberry

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, February 21, 2010 9:14 PM
To: 'sbwhoeop
Subject: Re: Shaun

B6

Ok w 7.

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop
To: H
Sent: Sun Feb 21 20:05:34 2010
Subject: Re: Shaun

Yes 7 pm ok or do you want another time?
------Original Message------
From: Hillary Clinton
To: 'sbwhoeop
Sent: Feb 21, 2010 7:57 PM
Subject: Re: Shaun

That sounds good. Will you make reservations for us?

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop
To: H
Sent: Sun Feb 21 19:54:37 2010
Subject: Re: Shaun

Tues good. Fahrenheit restaurant at Ritz in Georgetown very quiet and fine. People don't know about it. so just let me know.
------Original Message------
From: Hillary Clinton
To: 'sbwhoeop
Sent: Feb 21, 2010 7:45 PM
Subject: Re: Shaun

I'd like to do and probably better on Tuesday. I'll confirm tomorrow. Where do you want to go? I prefer quiet and private around 6:30-7 if that's ok for you both.

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop
To: H
Sent: Sun Feb 21 19:41:39 2010
Subject: Shaun

H: Just talked to Shaun. He wants to know if, given your schedule, and in addition to your meeting with him, you can have dinner with the two of us either Tuesday or Wednesday. Sid

Sent via Cingular Xpress Mail with Blackberry

Sent via Cingular Xpress Mail with Blackberry

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, September 25, 2010 1:12 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Reuters) Palestinian leader vows peace, urges settlement end

From: Withers, Anne M
To: NEWS-Mahogany; NEWS-NEA
Cc: SES-O_Shift-II
Sent: Sat Sep 25 13:03:26 2010
Subject: (Reuters) Palestinian leader vows peace, urges settlement end

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) - Palestinian President Abbas vowed on September 25 to do everything possible to make peace negotiations with Israel succeed and avoided any direct threats to break off the talks over settlements. In a speech to the United Nations General Assembly in New York, Abbas said the Palestinians would expend "every sincere effort" to reach a peace agreement with Israel within a year. He did not refer to the Sunday expiration of an Israeli freeze on new settlement construction in the West Bank. However, he made clear that Israel would have to cease all settlement activities if the direct negotiations with Israel are to succeed. "Israel must choose between peace and the continuation of settlements," he said. Abbas has repeatedly threatened to break off the fragile negotiations with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu over the settlements.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, February 21, 2010 10:10 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: START

Any updates?

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, February 21, 2010 10:12 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'; 'cheryl.mills [redacted] B6
Subject: Anything to discuss?

I just got back and will be up for awhile.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: McHale, Judith A <McHaleJA@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, December 31, 2010 9:36 AM
To: H
Subject: Re: New Start foreign media

B6

Thanks. Hope you are having a good break.

Happy New Year!

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: McHale, Judith A
Sent: Thu Dec 30 10:06:50 2010
Subject: Re: New Start foreign media

The McHale system is working thx to you! Hope your Christmas was the best and that you and your family will have the happiest of new years and that together we will knock down a few more bureaucratic walls in 2011!

----- Original Message -----
From: McHale, Judith A <McHaleJA@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Thu Dec 23 11:24:04 2010
Subject: FW: New Start foreign media

Thought you'd like to see this. Rose did a great job, especially with Russian media, and the new system seems to be working.

Sorry I didn't get to see you before you left. Hope you have a happy and peaceful holiday and actually manage to get a bit of down time --- is that even possible???

Cheers,

jm

-----Original Message-----
From: Smith, Dana S
Sent: Wednesday, December 22, 2010 7:39 PM
To: McHale, Judith A; DiMartino, Kitty; Schwartz, Larry R/PPR
Subject: Fw: New Start foreign media

Since I send you guys the complaints when principals don't come through, thought it would be nice to send a positive message when things go as they should. Rose is a champ and IME did great today.

----- Original Message -----

From: Korman, Samuel I. (Shai)
Sent: Wednesday, December 22, 2010 07:34 PM
To: Ratney, Michael A; Smith, Dana S
Subject: RE: New Start foreign media

I'll also add that when the dust settles this might warrant some kind of email to A/S Gottemoeller who was herself a driving force behind getting this done, getting out on the Russian media tonight to get into Russian media cycle to help advance policy. Sets a great example for her senior colleagues. Will send around the final round-up in a few.

-----Original Message-----
From: Ratney, Michael A
Sent: Wednesday, December 22, 2010 7:21 PM
To: Smith, Dana S
Cc: Korman, Samuel I. (Shai)
Subject: New Start foreign media

Dana -

IME staff kicked ass tonight on New START. We arranged a press call for Gottemoeller with five Russian journos at 6:00 pm - and it went perfectly. Then two TV interviews with Russian television from the mezzanine. BBC Russian radio to top it. Thursday we're setting up a conference call for DC-based press (foreign and domestic) supplemented by reporters from key countries in Europe such as Poland. (We're getting an assist on that from EUR and the Brussels Hub.)

We'll get Gottemoeller into the studio here tomorrow as well to do some clips that we'll push out on NewsMarket and America.gov.

All told, a very nice foreign media package on very short notice - and on a very big ticket issue. My hat is off to Shai, David, and Holly, and also to great collaboration from OBS and FPC.

Michael

This email is UNCLASSIFIED

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, February 22, 2010 8:28 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw:

Pls print.
------Original Message------
From: Hillary Clinton
To: Hillary Clinton
Subject:
Sent: Feb 18, 2010 7:53 AM

Rooster red--Deruta

Flora Danica--Royal Copenhagen

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, December 31, 2010 10:17 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Brazil's Lula decides against extraditing Italian (Reuters)

From: OpsNewsTicker@state.gov <OpsNewsTicker@state.gov>
To: SES-O_OS; NEWS-Mahogany; SES-O_Shift-II
Sent: Fri Dec 31 10:11:31 2010
Subject: Brazil's Lula decides against extraditing Italian (Reuters)

BRASILIA (Reuters) - Brazilian President Lula da Silva said he would not extradite former Italian guerrilla Cesare Battisti, a move that could damage relations with Italy. Brazil's Supreme Court had ruled last year that Battisti should be extradited on murder convictions from the 1970s in Italy, but it left the final decision to Lula. The move, announced in a statement released by the Brazilian government, was widely expected and comes a day after Italian Prime Minister Berlusconi warned that such a decision would be "incomprehensible and unacceptable." Brazilian media reported any decision still had to be verified by the Supreme Court but it was not immediately clear whether this was just a formality.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, February 22, 2010 9:29 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: (Reuters) Car bomb explodes outside Northern Irish court

Did anyone claim responsibility?

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Feb 22 19:35:37 2010
Subject: Fw: (Reuters) Car bomb explodes outside Northern Irish court

FYI. Seeking info.

---

From: Johnson, Andrew Kim
To: NEWS-EUR; NEWS-Mahogany
Sent: Mon Feb 22 19:28:48 2010
Subject: (Reuters) Car bomb explodes outside Northern Irish court

BELFAST (Reuters) - A car bomb exploded outside a courthouse in the Northern Ireland border town of Newry on Monday, police said, in the latest of increasingly frequent attacks in the province. Police were in the process of evacuating people from the area when there was a large explosion in a car which left the vehicle ablaze close to the courthouse gates, a spokeswoman for the Police Service of Northern Ireland (PSNI) said.

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, February 22, 2010 10:17 PM
To: 'markjpenn [redacted] B6
Cc: 'balderstonkm@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Shanghai Expo

Mark--thanks for the offer of help. I'd appreciate anything you can to do assist w the completion of the American Pavilion. I am copying Kris Balderston, who is working on the Expo project for me, and asking him to contact you to follow up. All the best.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mark J. Penn [redacted]
To: H
Sent: Mon Feb 22 17:21:09 2010
Subject: Shanghai Expo

Wondering why no one called me since I have probably 20 clients from Ford, Microsoft, Intel, HP, Dell all very interested in Shanghai Expo as well as 100 people in China.

Kind of late but happy to help if someone still needs anything.

RELEASE IN PART
B1,1.4(D)

From: Verveer, Melanne S <VerveerMS@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, December 31, 2010 12:23 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Dinner with Gowher

[redacted] Maybe more than you want to know. Obviously, TBD. 1.4(D)
Happy New Year to all the Clintons! B1

----- Original Message -----
From: [redacted]
To: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Fri Dec 31 11:14:19 2010
Subject: Dinner with Gowher

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 12/31/2025

Dear Melanne:

Here is the latest update:

[redacted]

HAPPY NEW YEAR!!!

[redacted]

1.4(D)
B1

End
Sent wirelessly via BlackBerry

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, February 22, 2010 10:02 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Codified Haiti takeaways and thoughts
Attachments: 2010-02-22 Haiti memo.docx; 2010-02-22 Haiti memo.docx

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: Diane Reynolds
To: Doug Band; H
Cc: cheryl.mills [redacted] Justin Cooper B6
Sent: Mon Feb 22 21:44:23 2010
Subject: Codified Haiti takeaways and thoughts

Please see attached.
Thanks,
Chelsea

RELEASE IN FULL

To: Dad, Mom
Cc: Cheryl, Doug, Justin

There is a context section at the bottom, which is longer than I would like, but I think it is important to articulate what I saw and whom I spoke with (and what I didn't see and whom I didn't meet) so that you understand my data set and its clear limitations. To say I was profoundly disturbed by what I saw – and didn't see – would be an understatement. The incompetence is mind numbing. Not incidentally, it rained twice while I was there. If we do not quickly change the organization, management, accountability and delivery paradigm on the ground, we could quite conceivably confront tens of thousands of children's deaths by diarrhea, dysentery, typhoid and other water-related diseases in the near future. Below are my major takeaways and a few nascent/early thoughts on what we (however we define we) could to do drive significant and incremental improvements on the ground in the near and longer term. As is often said, if I had more time – and less emotion – I would have written a shorter letter. I hope this mini-behemoth is not rife with grammatical errors or inadvertent gaps; I am sorry if either true.
Please do not forward this in whole or in part attributed to me without asking me first – happy to be an invisible soldier. Mainly hope this is even marginally helpful.

Thanks,
Chelsea

Takeaways are below, with illustrative examples, in a logical flow, not order of importance. Bolded what I think most important.:

- Haitians want to help themselves and want the international community to help them help themselves – this sounds obvious but wasn't to some of the UN and International NGO (INGO) folks I ran across. The UN people I encountered were frequently out of touch (e.g., would not have been off Logbase in days – or ever), anachronistic at best and arrogant and incompetent at worst (e.g., one woman from the UN – UNDP I think - told me she was waiting for the Haitians to "demand their political rights" – when they're asking for tents, latrines, soap, food and not getting that....)
- In fact, Haitians in the settlements are very much organizing themselves, in part to help define their needs and then articulate them to the UN/ INGO community. Fairly nuanced settlement governance structures have already developed. The largest settlement I visited in Parc Jean Marie Vincent (40k and counting) had an overall governing committee with a head of the governing committee (voted on by the governing committee); a women's committee; a security committee; a sanitation committee (with a soap subcommittee), etc. Women comprised 50% of each committee. One of the most illuminating anecdotes from my trip was talking with the head of the security committee and a few other settlement residents, including 2 women from the governing committee. The security committee wanted 100 tshirts – at least though I think they'll need at least 2-3x that – so that the security volunteers could wear them when patrolling so that people, particularly women, would feel safe when they saw them approach in groups of 2 or 3. They also ideally wanted flashlights to also use on night patrol. Finally, they wanted to be able to pay the security team (though this was less important than the first two 'asks'). IF that option were not feasible, their second choice was for the US Army to come into the settlement and patrol at night. Not the Haitian police (unreliable) and not the UN (dismissed). They wanted to help themselves, and they wanted reliability and accountability.

- The settlements' governing bodies – as they shared with me - are beginning to experience UN/ INGO fatigue given how often they articulate their needs, willingness to work – and how little is coming their way. Tents and latrines / sanitation remain the largest urgent needs – obvious to anyone with a minimum knowledge of public health and the settlement residents themselves
- The Haitian government appears to have an emergent, albeit still largely lacking in specifics, plan of action (detailed below), for both the near (to get through the next 6-12 months) and longer term (while rebuilding over next ~5 years)
- The Haitian government's inability to articulate its plan quickly enough or in sufficient terms to the UN/ INGO community has lead to a proliferation of ad hoc efforts by the UN and INGOs to 'help,' some of which have helped (e.g., we met no one who was worried about water supplies in camps even though it's a motley crue of French Red Cross, Oxfam, IMO/IOM, etc that have achieved that), some of which have hurt (e.g., the largest settlement we visited had 1 latrine to every 1,000 people or 40 for ~40k though given the settlements' growth rate its probably 40 for ~45k today; there should be 1 for every 50 people or 800+ latrines) and some which have not happened at all (e.g., the only settlements with lights at night are those in areas that had lights before that continue to work; settlement at the Petionville Golf Club, for instance, has some lights at night while most sit in darkness)
- This disorganization across the UN/ INGOs has had a variety of effects on the Haitian government, including that it it has now visibly distanced itself from the UN Cluster process (e.g., instead of going to a meeting a day the Haitian Minister of Health is now going once a week – because it was "such a waste of time" and he said that is representative of the government's current modus operandi); though we heard the cluster process was improving – when I asked for a concrete example of how, I was told meetings were "more efficient." This lack of efficiency – not to mention lack of visible consistent progress - has also lead to a further distrust of the UN/ INGOs by the Haitian government and Haitian people in the settlements. The former feels like it shows up to no effect – and the latter feels like very few actor(s) reliably show up
- Again, the UN seemed at best chaotic and at worst absent as I travelled around in an action-oriented sense – I saw few IOM/IMO tents in settlements or workers or evidence of work; no evidence of WHO; no evidence of OSHA; no evidence of... You get the picture. I did see lots of UN peacekeepers riding around however in their vans, humvees, etc. Though on the point of trucks, I asked how many trucks were in the country – including the non-Port Au Prince UN 'bases' – and no one could tell me. There appears to be NO accessible and usable UN inventory system or logistics operation. WFP, for instance, is largely piggy backing on the US Army/ SOUTHCOM but the "UN" / OSHA could not tell me how many trucks WFP had, much less how many the UN itself had. I counted – I kid you not – hundreds of trucks and cars at the UN logbase and other UN bases we drove by

- UNICEF was the only UN agency that seemed to be universally acknowledged to be doing a good job by settlements' residents, by Haitian doctors and by INGO partners, perhaps in part because of its narrowly defined agenda currently in Haiti (vaccinations) and that its reliable – i.e., it shows up when it says it will in the settlements and other central locations
- There is NO accountability in the UN system or international humanitarian system (including for/ among INGOs), this is not new news but it is one area that the Cluster approach had aimed to remedy – e.g., there is no feedback mechanism for when the British Red Cross dug the 34 of the 40 above latrines only 3 feet deep and didn't tell the residents when they would come and extract the latrines or properly train people to take care of the latrines, etc. – that malpractice continuum is appalling and the British Red Cross should know better—at the least, the British Red Cross subsequently should not be allowed to dig elsewhere/ 'do' latrines
- The cash-for-work program the UN heralds is not working optimally, to put it mildly. It currently focuses – perhaps solely - on debris cleaning – important no doubt – but it has not extended its work into the settlements or helped set standardized, and differentiated wages, for settlement work. For instance, the UN cash for work program should have already started to pay people in the more organized camps – to clean latrines; 'guard' latrines, including insuring kids use soap; be teachers; be on security patrol; be on evacuation duty; work with the WFP during the XYZ drop times, etc.... NONE of this is happening as far as I can tell. When we were there the cash for work program head was still focused only – it appeared – on rubble cleaning.
- Re: education in the settlements and beyond: This is theoretically the responsibility of UNICEF and Save the Children – I heard they're starting to work on this but that is all I know. Ad hoc schools have begun in some of the camps. We met a woman – our host in fact – who working with the Israeli Agency for International Development Cooperation – had started schools in 4 settlements for at least the next month.
- The World Food Program continues to NOT buy locally – which is probably now a moot point as it appears that the dairy, fruit, vegetable and grain stores have all spoiled. The WFP also seems to have been rather erratic in the early days but most people I spoke to said WFP is now more systematic and reliable in its food delivery. However, it had not yet started to deliver cooking and eating utensils though these are promised for next week.

- In contrast to the UN, there appears to be respect for the US Military on the ground – for the Army particularly as that is the branch people see guarding the hospital – and it is a negative comment on the UN forces given their effective absence. I saw no anti-US graffiti though the walls now are covered in parts of downtown with anti 'ONG' (NGO) and anti-UN graffiti. (Also, not only graffiti writers with the above sentiments; one of the Haitian doctors I met said, "We must be so poor we can't tell them [UN and INGOs] what to do – or kick them out and use the money ourselves."). There is also great fear – at least from the Haitian and ex-pat medical community– that the Army is leaving soon largely because of the security and total organization vacuum that would then be left around the hospital. The UN community, in contrast, did not seem to be perturbed by this prospect.
- On an unrelated note, the absence of the Catholic Church's efforts is notable, particularly given the high death toll among priests, nuns and seminarians. Catholic Relief Services is present.

Thoughts on what is needed – and what we could do below. (I know much of this is familiar.):

- The Office of Special Envoy – i.e., you Dad – needs authority over the UN and all its myriad parts – which I do believe would give you effective authority over much of then INGO sphere given how persistently the collective humanitarian community holding onto cluster approach. I know you know this and are working on it. OSHA clearly is failing on the ground, otherwise it could be "empowered" to do this but it ostensibly already is.
- However, regardless of the attachment to clusters, there needs to be a single point of authority either over UN / INGO efforts on the ground organized in one of two principle ways: either expertise areas (e.g., latrines, lights) or by settlements/ Port Au Prince regions with constituent settlements, with full structures – e.g., finance, procurement, project management etc., understanding certain functional areas would be cross-cutting (e.g., pay for work)
- There needs to be a coordinated logistics effort which should follow from the above with an urgency on procurement and deployment of latrines, tents and lights – and what is needed to support installment, servicing, maintenance, etc of each. In parallel, a new logistics center/ warehouse coordinating facility should be built; every non-UN logistics-focused person I talked to said a need exists for a new logistic center near the major seaport.
- A plan must be developed for the rainy season, which is already on us, particularly for the settlements and it should include answers to questions like where can people evacuate to when it rains? How will they access food and water and latrines, at a minimum, from those spaces? Also, could those places be multipurpose, e.g., also schools and clinic tents/semi permanent structures (one engineer talked to me about fiberglass?)?

- On pay for work, UN needs to expand its mandate and coordinate with relevant INGO partners to start employing people, at differential wages, in the settlements and coordinate with the groups above to ensure consistent wages until a 'market' could develop
- The UN – IMO/IOM – or someone needs to take a monthly census of the settlements at the minimum
- Speaking of censuses, the UN also needs a census of itself and its materials in country – including of the peacekeeper bases outside Port Au Prince. For example, we drove by 2 bases on the way to Cange and there were collectively, I would estimate, more than a hundred trucks and buses just sitting between the two, as well as at least 800 Napali soldiers (according to locals) laying effectively fallow – and I don't think anyone expects an outbreak of violence on the Central Plateau in the near future so even if they and their colleagues are deployed under UN Charter Chapter 6, surely preserving the peace could be interpreted to work with the settlements? At the least, their hardware could be used more effectively in Port Au Prince
- Special/ extraordinary management needed around areas that have received significant attention and offers of assistance, e.g., the general hospital in Port Au Prince which multiple actors, including Sarkozy, have now offered to rebuild
- Holistically, all of the above should support the Haitian government both actually and ostensibly to not undermine its authority and also to help augment and build local capacity and capabilities, where feasible
- The UN/ INGO should look to source locally or work with local partners whenever possible, post emergency phase at the least. For example, work with local solar light producers, buy from local t-shirt factories (if any survived outside Port Au Prince), mandate WFP first look to local producers, etc. Now bias I think has to be on quickest production but in medium term that should accommodate a local dimension
- Re: USNS Comfort: for as long as it is there, at a minimum, its mission should be expanded such that its military and civilian staff could work on the physical therapy of earthquake related victims and ideally care for non-earthquake related cases.
- Re: US Army: If its mission is largely coming to an end, I hope there is a succession plan for its current tasks, e.g., the hospital security, that the Haitian government is comfortable with; currently Haitian government/ at least Haitian government people on the proverbial ground have no idea what the transfer plan is
- Re: medical evacuations: think this will be improved given our collectively-experienced chaos on Sunday
- Re: mental health in settlements and beyond: clear people are thinking about this now – largely because Dad asked about it and made it prominent – but still unclear what the action plan is
- Re: Haitian plan: I am not sure it's the best plan, but it is a plan and we should work with the government to flush out the details so it is robust and actionable – not sure who the we is here probably most of all

- Re: Catholic church: Could we reach out to the Vatican – or even Catholic groups/ prominent Catholics domestically to raise money and the necessary expertise to rebuild the central cathedral and main seminary? It would be a powerful symbolic statement – and put lots of people to work
- Re: status, including mental health of workers there, both Haitian and ex-pat: I am consciously leaving this off as I just can't process right now

FYI: Emergent Haitian government plan of action, as I understand it:

- Near term/ for the next year
  - Buttress the settlements that currently exist that are not in the lowest lying flood plans, i.e., get tents and latrines in place, ensure sufficient amounts of clean water flowing in or being brought, ensure food supplies sufficient, ensure security and safety (though this seems to be people-focused only); ensure medical care accessible; start schools at least for the youngest children.
  - Move people who are in the settlements in the worst geographies for flooding or practical reasons/ other reasons (e.g., the one currently with 4000 people on the prime minister's lawn) to pre-constructed tent settlements elsewhere – they have built the first of these already with INGO Shelter Box though apparently the tents were put up too close to one another
  - Areas lacking in mention when I heard the above discussed: a solution to ensure people have somewhere to go when the heavy rains come; ensure continuity of key services once the rains come; a solution to ensure people are paid how to ensure sufficient light in the camps, clearly critical to security (rapes are skyrocketing and I know there were at least 2 murders in one camp on Saturday night); what the right spec of tent is for any of the above – housing, clinic, evacuation, school and what could be multipurpose; plan for older children/young adults who may be too old for initial school plan; how to best support / help create where needed settlement governance; how to census, on a semi-regular basis, who is in the settlements
  - Over next 6-12 months:
    - Assess which homes are sufficiently safe for families to return to and subsequently encourage them to do so; government estimates this will be ~30% of all homes/families (though this seems to be a guess, i.e., no evidence base)
    - Build semi-permanent settlements or augment pre-existing villages around Port Au Prince where feasible to enable the government to move people

out of settlements to those sites. End goal is to move 400-1000 families to each of these as needed

- Longer-term:
  - Rebuilt Port Au Prince though it is unclear how/if/why people would move back or what the government's post-rebuild vision looks like
  - Build more robust health, education etc systems than existed before the earthquake
  - *Clearly this is the less well-defined part of the "plan"

Context

I spent the last four days in Haiti. I was with Paul Farmer (Paul) and Partners in Health (PIH) the entire time – in Port Au Prince Thursday, Friday and Sunday afternoon and at PIH sites in Laconville and Cange, in the Central Plateau region Saturday and Sunday morning. I sat in on Paul's formal meetings in Port Au Prince with: the Haitian Minister of Health Alex Larsen and his team; the Haitian government official ostensibly overseeing the reconstruction efforts/ UN liaison Leslie Voltaire; a x-UN group preparing for the PDNA (post disaster needs assessment) conference in New York at the end of March working on giving 'voice to the voiceless,' i.e., the designated 15minutes at the conference to highlight the voices of those most affected (the 15 minutes I gather are happening at all only because of Cheryl and Paul), UNDP, UNHCR and others were represented; a group interested in building a logistics center for the reconstruction efforts, i.e., outside the UN ambit, including people from Royal Caribbean, McKinsey and the people we were traveling with, including Wes Edens, CEO of Fortress and a supporter of PIH – and the person who donated, and continues to donate the space at the Miami airport that PIH, Clinton Foundation, University of Miami Medical Center and others are using to move goods by air and sea, via transfer, to Haiti. Informally, I talked with: people in settlements and settlement committee heads, through a translator; local Haitian doctors; ex-pat PIH and other doctors in mobile clinics in settlements; doctors, nurses and US police officers I ran into on the street, at dinner, at their ad hoc residence in the abandoned Aristide Foundation; Maryse Kedar who hosted us our nights in Port Au Prince, a member of the local elite, and her ad hoc Israel volunteers (from the Israeli Agency for International Development Cooperation, ie their USAID, as mentioned above); a broad swath of people serving on the USNS Comfort, both on and off the ship; US Army enlisted and officers whenever I saw them; Louise Ivers, head of PIH in Haiti, and others we met or ran into along the way.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, February 22, 2010 10:18 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Barbara Haig - Alexander Haig's daughter

Have I written the family a condolence letter?

----- Original Message -----
From: Jiloty, Lauren C <JilotyLC@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Mon Feb 22 17:12:32 2010
Subject: Barbara Haig - Alexander Haig's daughter

Barbara haig – Alexander Haig's daughter / Called to say thank you for the statement that you made. Her father really respected you . He would been so happy and humbled about what you said. Barbara works for the Nat'l Endowment for Democracy and says she is grateful for what a help you have been to them, too.

###

RELEASE IN PART
1.4(B),B1,1.4(D)

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, February 22, 2010 10:57 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Rio Group-Haiti

Nope.

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 02/22/2020

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Feb 22 22:25:22 2010
Subject: FW: Rio Group-Haiti

Assume you know about this?

-----Original Message-----
From: Simons, Paul E (Santiago)
Sent: Monday, February 22, 2010 9:33 PM
To: Reynoso, Julissa; Mills, Cheryl D; Valenzuela, Arturo A; Curtis, Meghann A; Kelly, Craig A; Brigety, Reuben; Shannon, Thomas A
Cc: McMullen, Christopher J; De Pirro, Velia M
Subject: Re: Rio Group-Haiti

1.4(B)
1.4(D)
B1

Julissa/Cheryl -- Per Foreign Minister Fernandez,

----- Original Message -----
From: Reynoso, Julissa
To: Mills, Cheryl D; Valenzuela, Arturo A; Curtis, Meghann A; Kelly, Craig A; Brigety, Reuben; Shannon, Thomas A; Simons, Paul E (Santiago)
Cc: McMullen, Christopher J; De Pirro, Velia M
Sent: Mon Feb 22 23:03:06 2010
Subject: Re: Rio Group-Haiti

Including Tom Shannon and Paul Simons who know more.

The position is not clearly defined.

B1
1.4(D)

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D
To: Reynoso, Julissa; Valenzuela, Arturo A; Curtis, Meghann A; Kelly, Craig A; Brigety, Reuben
Sent: Mon Feb 22 20:40:54 2010

Subject: RE: Rio Group-Haiti

What is the position? To whom does it report? What is the function?

cdm

-----Original Message-----
From: Reynoso, Julissa
Sent: Monday, February 22, 2010 7:57 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D; Valenzuela, Arturo A; Curtis, Meghann A; Kelly, Craig A; Brigety, Reuben
Subject: Rio Group-Haiti

[redacted] 1.4(D) B1

Julissa

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, February 23, 2010 7:26 AM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Today

Is the UAE FM is meeting w Bill Burns before my lunch w him? If so when and where?

What happened to the idea of my going by dinner at WH? Any other way I could see the CEOs who will be here?

RELEASE IN PART B6

---

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, February 23, 2010 6:39 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw:
Attachments: 2010-02-22v2 Haiti memo.docx; 2010-02-22v2 Haiti memo.docx

Print this, not the first version.

----- Original Message -----
From: Diane Reynolds
To: H
Sent: Mon Feb 22 23:10:14 2010
Subject:

caught a few errors - was sending to dad in haste. here's a slightly edited version

[redacted]chelsea B6

RELEASE IN FULL

To: Dad, Mom
Cc: Cheryl, Doug, Justin

There is a context section at the bottom, which is longer than I would like, but I think it is important to articulate what I saw and whom I spoke with (and what I didn't see and whom I didn't meet) so that you understand my data set and its clear limitations. To say I was profoundly disturbed by what I saw – and didn't see – would be an understatement. The incompetence is mind numbing. Not incidentally, it rained twice while I was there. If we do not quickly change the organization, management, accountability and delivery paradigm on the ground, we could quite conceivably confront tens of thousands of children's deaths by diarrhea, dysentery, typhoid and other water-related diseases in the near future. Below are my major takeaways and a few nascent/early thoughts on what we (however we define we) could do to drive significant and incremental improvements on the ground in the near and longer term. As is often said, if I had more time – and less emotion – I would have written a shorter letter. I hope this mini-behemoth is not rife with grammatical errors or inadvertent gaps; I am sorry if either true.
Please do not forward this in whole or in part attributed to me without asking me first – happy to be an invisible soldier. Mainly hope this is even marginally helpful.

Thanks,
Chelsea

Takeaways are below, with illustrative examples, in a logical flow, not order of importance. Bolded what I think most important.:

- Haitians want to help themselves and want the international community to help them help themselves – this sounds obvious but wasn't to some of the UN and International NGO (INGO) folks I ran across. The UN people I encountered were frequently out of touch (e.g., would not have been off Logbase in days – or ever), anachronistic in their thinking at best and arrogant and incompetent at worst (e.g., one woman from the UN – UNDP I think - told me she was waiting for the Haitians to "demand their political rights" – when they're asking for tents, latrines, soap, food and not getting that....)
- In fact, Haitians in the settlements are very much organizing themselves, in part to help define their needs and then articulate them to the UN/ INGO community. Fairly nuanced settlement governance structures have already developed. The largest settlement I visited in Parc Jean Marie Vincent (40k and counting) had an overall governing committee with a head of the governing committee (voted on by the governing committee); a women's committee; a security committee; a sanitation committee (with a soap subcommittee), etc. Women comprised 50% of each committee. One of the most illuminating anecdotes from my trip was talking with the head of the security committee and a few other settlement residents, including 2 women from the governing committee. The security committee wanted 100 tshirts –though I think they'll need at least 2-3x that – so that the security volunteers could wear them when patrolling so that people, particularly women, would feel safe when they saw them approach in groups of 2 or 3. They also ideally wanted flashlights to also use on night patrol. Finally, they wanted to be able to pay the security team (though this was less important than the first two 'asks'). IF that option were not feasible, their second choice was for the US Army to come into the settlement and patrol at night. Not the Haitian police (unreliable) and not the UN (dismissed). They wanted to help themselves, and they wanted reliability and accountability from their partners.

- The settlements' governing bodies – as they shared with me - are beginning to experience UN/ INGO fatigue given how often they articulate their needs, willingness to work – and how little is coming their way. Tents and latrines / sanitation remain the largest urgent needs – obvious to anyone with a minimum knowledge of public health and the settlement residents themselves
- The Haitian government appears to have an emergent, albeit still largely lacking in specifics, plan of action (detailed below), for both the near (to get through the next 6-12 months) and longer term (while rebuilding over next ~5 years)
- The Haitian government's inability to articulate its plan quickly enough or in sufficient terms to the UN/ INGO community has lead to a proliferation of ad hoc efforts by the UN and INGOs to 'help,' some of which have helped (e.g., we met no one who was worried about water supplies in camps even though it's a motley crue of French Red Cross, Oxfam, IMO/IOM, etc that have achieved that), some of which have hurt (e.g., the largest settlement we visited had 1 latrine to every 1,000 people or 40 for ~40k though given the settlements' growth rate its probably 40 for ~45k today; there should be 1 for every 50 people or 800+ latrines) and some which have not happened at all (e.g., the only settlements with lights at night are those in areas that had lights before that continue to work; settlement at the Petionville Golf Club, for instance, has some lights at night while most sit in darkness)
- This disorganization across the UN/ INGOs has had a variety of effects on the Haitian government, including that it has now visibly distanced itself from the UN Cluster process (e.g., instead of going to a meeting a day the Haitian Minister of Health is now going once a week – because it was "such a waste of time" and he said that is representative of the government's current modus operandi); though we heard the cluster process was improving – when I asked for a concrete example of how, I was told meetings were "more efficient." This lack of efficiency – not to mention lack of visible consistent progress - has also lead to a further distrust of the UN/ INGOs by the Haitian government and Haitian people in the settlements. The former feels like it shows up to no effect – and the latter feels like very few actor(s) reliably show up
- Again, the UN seemed at best chaotic and at worst absent as I travelled around in an action-oriented sense – I saw few IOM/IMO tents in settlements or workers or evidence of work; no evidence of WHO; no evidence of OSHA; no evidence of... You get the picture. I did see lots of UN peacekeepers riding around however in their vans, humvees, etc. Though on the point of trucks, I asked how many trucks were in the country – including the non-Port Au Prince UN 'bases' – and no one could tell me. There appears to be NO accessible and usable UN inventory system or logistics operation. WFP, for instance, is largely piggy backing on the US Army/ SOUTHCOM but the "UN" / OSHA could not tell me how many trucks WFP had, much less how many the UN itself had. I counted – I kid you not – hundreds of trucks and cars at the UN logbase and other UN bases we drove by

- UNICEF was the only UN agency that seemed to be universally acknowledged to be doing a good job by settlements' residents, by Haitian doctors and by INGO partners, perhaps in part because of its narrowly defined agenda currently in Haiti (vaccinations) and that its reliable – i.e., it shows up when it says it will in the settlements and other central locations
- There is NO accountability in the UN system or international humanitarian system (including for/ among INGOs), this is not new news but it is one area that the Cluster approach had aimed to remedy – e.g., there is no feedback mechanism for when the British Red Cross dug the 34 of the 40 above latrines only 3 feet deep and didn't tell the residents when they would come and extract the latrines or properly train people to take care of the latrines, etc. – that malpractice continuum is appalling and the British Red Cross should know better—at the least, the British Red Cross subsequently should not be allowed to dig elsewhere/ 'do' latrines
- The cash-for-work program the UN heralds is not working optimally, to put it mildly. It currently focuses – perhaps solely - on debris cleaning – important no doubt – but it has not extended its work into the settlements or helped set standardized, and differentiated wages, for settlement work. For instance, the UN cash for work program should have already started to pay people in the more organized camps – to clean latrines; 'guard' latrines, including insuring kids use soap; be teachers; be on security patrol; be on evacuation duty; work with the WFP during the XYZ drop times, etc.... NONE of this is happening as far as I can tell. When we were there the cash for work program head was still focused only – it appeared – on rubble cleaning.
- Re: education in the settlements and beyond: This is theoretically the responsibility of UNICEF and Save the Children – I heard they're starting to work on this but that is all I know. Ad hoc schools have begun in some of the camps. We met a woman – our host in fact – who working with the Israeli Agency for International Development Cooperation – had started schools in 4 settlements for at least the next month.
- The World Food Program continues to NOT buy locally – which is probably now a moot point as it appears that the dairy, fruit, vegetable and grain stores have all spoiled. The WFP also seems to have been rather erratic in the early days but most people I spoke to said WFP is now more systematic and reliable in its food delivery. However, it had not yet started to deliver cooking and eating utensils though these are promised for next week.

- In contrast to the UN, there appears to be respect for the US Military on the ground – for the Army particularly as that is the branch people see guarding the hospital – and it is a negative comment on the UN forces given their effective absence. I saw no anti-US graffiti though the walls now are covered in parts of downtown with anti 'ONG' (NGO) and anti-UN graffiti. (Also, not only graffiti writers with the above sentiments; one of the Haitian doctors I met said, "We must be so poor we can't tell them [UN and INGOs] what to do – or kick them out and use the money ourselves."). There is also great fear – at least from the Haitian and ex-pat medical community– that the Army is leaving soon largely because of the security and total organization vacuum that would then be left around the hospital. The UN community, in contrast, did not seem to be perturbed by this prospect.
- On an unrelated note, the absence of the Catholic Church's efforts is notable, particularly given the high death toll among priests, nuns and seminarians. Catholic Relief Services is present.

Thoughts on what is needed – and what we could do below. (I know much of this is familiar.):

- The Office of Special Envoy – i.e., you Dad – needs authority over the UN and all its myriad parts – which I do believe would give you effective authority over much of then INGO sphere given how persistently the collective humanitarian community holding onto cluster approach. I know you know this and are working on it. OSHA clearly is failing on the ground, otherwise it could be "empowered" to do this but it ostensibly already is.
- However, regardless of the attachment to clusters, there needs to be a single point of authority either over UN / INGO efforts on the ground organized in one of two principle ways: either expertise areas (e.g., latrines, lights) or by settlements/ Port Au Prince regions with constituent settlements, with full structures – e.g., finance, procurement, project management etc., understanding certain functional areas would be cross-cutting (e.g., pay for work)
- There needs to be a coordinated logistics effort which should follow from the above with an urgency on procurement and deployment of latrines, tents and lights – and what is needed to support installment, servicing, maintenance, etc of each. In parallel, a new logistics center/ warehouse coordinating facility should be built; every non-UN logistics-focused person I talked to said a need exists for a new logistic center near the major seaport.
- A plan must be developed for the rainy season, which is already on us, particularly for the settlements and it should include answers to questions like where can people evacuate to when it rains? How will they access food and water and latrines, at a minimum, from those spaces? Also, could those places be multipurpose, e.g., also schools and clinic tents/semi permanent structures (one engineer talked to me about fiberglass?)?

- On pay for work, UN needs to expand its mandate and coordinate with relevant INGO partners to start employing people, at differential wages, in the settlements and coordinate with the groups above to ensure consistent wages until a 'market' could develop
- The UN – IMO/IOM – or someone needs to take a monthly census of the settlements at the minimum
- Speaking of censuses, the UN also needs a census of itself and its materials in country – including of the peacekeeper bases outside Port Au Prince. For example, we drove by 2 bases on the way to Cange and there were collectively, I would estimate, more than a hundred trucks and buses just sitting between the two, as well as at least 800 Napali soldiers (according to locals) laying effectively fallow – and I don't think anyone expects an outbreak of violence on the Central Plateau in the near future so even if they and their colleagues are deployed under UN Charter Chapter 6, surely preserving the peace could be interpreted to work with the settlements? At the least, their hardware could be used more effectively in Port Au Prince
- Special/ extraordinary management needed around areas that have received significant attention and offers of assistance, e.g., the general hospital in Port Au Prince which multiple actors, including Sarkozy, have now offered to rebuild
- Holistically, all of the above should support the Haitian government both actually and ostensibly to not undermine its authority and also to help augment and build local capacity and capabilities, where feasible
- The UN/ INGO should look to source locally or work with local partners whenever possible, post emergency phase at the least. For example, work with local solar light producers, buy from local t-shirt factories (if any survived outside Port Au Prince), mandate WFP first look to local producers, etc. Now bias I think has to be on quickest production but in medium term that should accommodate a local dimension
- Re: USNS Comfort: for as long as it is there, at a minimum, its mission should be expanded such that its military and civilian staff could work on the physical therapy of earthquake related victims and ideally care for non-earthquake related cases.
- Re: US Army: If its mission is largely coming to an end, I hope there is a succession plan for its current tasks, e.g., the hospital security, that the Haitian government is comfortable with; currently Haitian government/ at least Haitian government people on the proverbial ground have no idea what the transfer plan is
- Re: medical evacuations: think this will be improved given our collectively-experienced chaos on Sunday
- Re: mental health in settlements and beyond: clear people are thinking about this now – largely because Dad asked about it and made it prominent – but still unclear what the action plan is
- Re: Haitian plan: I am not sure it's the best plan, but it is a plan and we should work with the government to flush out the details so it is robust and actionable – not sure who the we is here probably most of all

- Re: Catholic church: Could we reach out to the Vatican – or even Catholic groups/ prominent Catholics domestically to raise money and the necessary expertise to rebuild the central cathedral and main seminary? It would be a powerful symbolic statement – and put lots of people to work
- Re: status, including mental health of workers there, both Haitian and ex-pat: I am consciously leaving this off as I just can't process right now

FYI: Emergent Haitian government plan of action, as I understand it:

- Near term/ for the next year
  - Buttress the settlements that currently exist that are not in the lowest lying flood plans, i.e., get tents and latrines in place, ensure sufficient amounts of clean water flowing in or being brought, ensure food supplies sufficient, ensure security and safety (though this seems to be people-focused only); ensure medical care accessible; start schools at least for the youngest children.
  - Move people who are in the settlements in the worst geographies for flooding or practical reasons/ other reasons (e.g., the one currently with 4000 people on the prime minister's lawn) to pre-constructed tent settlements elsewhere – they have built the first of these already with INGO Shelter Box though apparently the tents were put up too close to one another
  - Areas lacking in mention when I heard the above discussed: a solution to ensure people have somewhere to go when the heavy rains come; ensure continuity of key services once the rains come; a solution to ensure people are paid how to ensure sufficient light in the camps, clearly critical to security (rapes are skyrocketing and I know there were at least 2 murders in one camp on Saturday night); what the right spec of tent is for any of the above – housing, clinic, evacuation, school and what could be multipurpose; plan for older children/young adults who may be too old for initial school plan; how to best support / help create where needed settlement governance; how to census, on a semi-regular basis, who is in the settlements
  - Over next 6-12 months:
    - Assess which homes are sufficiently safe for families to return to and subsequently encourage them to do so; government estimates this will be ~30% of all homes/families (though this seems to be a guess, i.e., no evidence base)
    - Build semi-permanent settlements or augment pre-existing villages around Port Au Prince where feasible to enable the government to move people

out of settlements to those sites. End goal is to move 400-1000 families to each of these as needed

- Longer-term:
  - Rebuilt Port Au Prince though it is unclear how/if/why people would move back or what the government's post-rebuild vision looks like
  - Build more robust health, education etc systems than existed before the earthquake
  - *Clearly this is the less well-defined part of the "plan"

Context

I spent the last four days in Haiti. I was with Paul Farmer (Paul) and Partners in Health (PIH) the entire time – in Port Au Prince Thursday, Friday and Sunday afternoon and at PIH sites in Laconville and Cange, in the Central Plateau region Saturday and Sunday morning. I sat in on Paul's formal meetings in Port Au Prince with: the Haitian Minister of Health Alex Larsen and his team; the Haitian government official ostensibly overseeing the reconstruction efforts/ UN liaison Leslie Voltaire; a x-UN group preparing for the PDNA (post disaster needs assessment) conference in New York at the end of March working on giving 'voice to the voiceless,' i.e., the designated 15minutes at the conference to highlight the voices of those most affected (the 15 minutes I gather are happening at all only because of Cheryl and Paul), UNDP, UNHCR and others were represented; a group interested in building a logistics center for the reconstruction efforts, i.e., outside the UN ambit, including people from Royal Caribbean, McKinsey and the people we were traveling with, including Wes Edens, CEO of Fortress and a supporter of PIH – and the person who donated, and continues to donate the space at the Miami airport that PIH, Clinton Foundation, University of Miami Medical Center and others are using to move goods by air and sea, via transfer, to Haiti. Informally, I talked with: people in settlements and settlement committee heads, through a translator; local Haitian doctors; ex-pat PIH and other doctors in mobile clinics in settlements; doctors, nurses and US police officers I ran into on the street, at dinner, at their ad hoc residence in the abandoned Aristide Foundation; Maryse Kedar who hosted us our nights in Port Au Prince, a member of the local elite, and her ad hoc Israel volunteers (from the Israeli Agency for International Development Cooperation, ie their USAID, as mentioned above); a broad swath of people serving on the USNS Comfort, both on and off the ship; US Army enlisted and officers whenever I saw them; Louise Ivers, head of PIH in Haiti, and others we met or ran into along the way.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, February 23, 2010 8:34 PM
To: 'slaughtera@state.gov'
Subject: Re: call w/ Carl Bildt tomorrow

I spoke w Bildt about internet freedom and thanked him for the op-ed. He wants to have a "brainstorming" seesion 0

----- Original Message -----
From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>; Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sun Feb 21 19:07:02 2010
Subject: call w/ Carl Bildt tomorrow

w/o presuming on the content of the call, you might want to remember that Bildt wrote a very good op-ed after your internet freedom speech suggesting U.S.-EU cooperation in that area; the Swedish ambassador came to see me last week to follow up and to say that the Bildt would like to host a meeting in Stockholm on the subject that Alec would presumably go to. If you need a sweetener of any kind, emphasizing our enthusiasm for following up on this would be good. AM

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, February 23, 2010 8:37 PM
To: 'slaughtera@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: call w/ Carl Bildt tomorrow

(I didn't finish!) And so would you pls contact the Swedes to discuss such a mtg? Thx.

----- Original Message -----
From: H
To: 'slaughtera@state.gov' <slaughtera@state.gov>
Sent: Tue Feb 23 20:34:24 2010
Subject: Re: call w/ Carl Bildt tomorrow

I spoke w Bildt about internet freedom and thanked him for the op-ed. He wants to have a "brainstorming" seesion 0

----- Original Message -----
From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>; Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sun Feb 21 19:07:02 2010
Subject: call w/ Carl Bildt tomorrow

w/o presuming on the content of the call, you might want to remember that Bildt wrote a very good op-ed after your internet freedom speech suggesting U.S.-EU cooperation in that area; the Swedish ambassador came to see me last week to follow up and to say that the Bildt would like to host a meeting in Stockholm on the subject that Alec would presumably go to. If you need a sweetener of any kind, emphasizing our enthusiasm for following up on this would be good. AM

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, February 24, 2010 6:37 AM
To: 'vermarr@state.gov'; 'lewjj@state.gov'; 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Testimony

Could we do conf call at 7am to go over some questions?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, February 24, 2010 6:50 AM
To: 'vermarr@state.gov'; 'lewjj@state.gov'; 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Testimony

I will call all--around 7:10.

----- Original Message -----
From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
To: H; Lew, Jacob J <LewJJ@state.gov>; Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Wed Feb 24 06:47:55 2010
Subject: Re: Testimony

Sure. I am available.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Verma, Richard R; Lew, Jacob J; Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Wed Feb 24 06:36:35 2010
Subject: Testimony

Could we do conf call at 7am to go over some questions?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, February 25, 2010 7:41 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Fw:

I assume he's avoiding the call. I hope Ellen is going anyway and that she will chase Antonov to Moscow if necessary. What more can we do?

----- Original Message -----
From: Huma Abedin
To: H
Sent: Thu Feb 25 07:23:13 2010
Subject:

Lavrov cannot do call this morning.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, February 25, 2010 9:01 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re:

I talked w Ellen so up to date.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Thu Feb 25 08:20:08 2010
Subject: Re:

Sorry -- just seeing. Ryabkov called for Ellen this morning and they are set to talk at 1030. Plan is for her to deliver same message and go to Geneva this evening.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Thu Feb 25 07:40:47 2010
Subject: Fw:

I assume he's avoiding the call. I hope Ellen is going anyway and that she will chase Antonov to Moscow if necessary. What more can we do?

----- Original Message -----
From: Huma Abedin
To: H
Sent: Thu Feb 25 07:23:13 2010
Subject:

Lavrov cannot do call this morning.

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, February 25, 2010 12:36 PM
To: 'reinesp@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Greetings

----- Original Message -----
From: Barnett, Robert [redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Thu Feb 25 10:00:33 2010
Subject: Greetings

A favor.

David Montgomery, a reporter for the WP, is (God help me) doing a profile of me.

Would you be willing to speak with him for 5 minutes? His numbers are [redacted] Campaigns, books, friendship, etc.

I would be very grateful.

P.S. Remind me when we next speak to tell you about some Palin comments about you.

P.P.S. Also, about [redacted] social life.

Miss you. Thank you.

---

NOTICE:

This message is intended for the use of the individual or entity to which it is addressed and may contain information that is privileged, confidential and exempt from disclosure under applicable law. If the reader of this message is not the intended recipient or the employee or agent responsible for delivering this message to the intended recipient, you are hereby notified that any dissemination, distribution or copying of this communication is strictly prohibited. If you have received this communication in error, please notify us immediately by reply or by telephone (call us collect at (202) 434-5000) and immediately delete this message and all its attachments.

==========

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, February 25, 2010 11:20 PM
To: 'balderstonkm@state.gov'
Subject: Any update since yesterday?

Have we made progress on the Expo?

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, February 26, 2010 7:31 AM
To: 'cheryl.mills[redacted]' 'millscd@state.gov' B6
Subject: Have you left yet?

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, February 26, 2010 8:04 AM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Have you left yet?

Mike.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri Feb 26 07:55:22 2010
Subject: Re: Have you left yet?

What is mullen's first name?

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: 'cheryl.mills [redacted] Mills, Cheryl D B6
Sent: Fri Feb 26 07:30:39 2010
Subject: Have you left yet?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, February 27, 2010 6:13 PM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: E-mail test

Do you know what this is?

----- Original Message -----
From: Butzgy, Christopher H <ButzgyCH2@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Feb 27 17:59:37 2010
Subject: E-mail test

Good Afternoon,

I work as a Help Desk Analyst and it has come to my attention that one of our customers has been receiving permanent fatal errors from this address, can you please confirm if you receive this message.

Thank you for your assistance,

Christopher

Christopher Butzgy

S/ES-IRM (POEMS)

202-647-8700

This e-mail is Unclassified based on the criteria of E.O. 12958

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, February 27, 2010 6:31 PM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: E-mail test

I've gotten some messages from yesterday--how about you?

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Feb 27 18:29:50 2010
Subject: Re: E-mail test

Ur email must be back up!!
What happened is judith sent you an email. It bounced back. She called the email help desk at state (I guess assuming u had state email) and told them that. They had no idea it was YOU, just some random address so they emailed. Sorry about that. But regardless, means ur email must be back! R u getting other messages?

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Sat Feb 27 18:13:28 2010
Subject: Fw: E-mail test

Do you know what this is?

----- Original Message -----
From: Butzgy, Christopher H <ButzgyCH2@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Feb 27 17:59:37 2010
Subject: E-mail test

Good Afternoon,

I work as a Help Desk Analyst and it has come to my attention that one of our customers has been receiving permanent fatal errors from this address, can you please confirm if you receive this message.

Thank you for your assistance,

Christopher

Christopher Butzgy

S/ES-IRM (POEMS)

202-647-8700

This e-mail is Unclassified based on the criteria of E.O. 12958

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, February 27, 2010 7:55 PM
To: 'preines [redacted] B6
Subject: Re: Dallas

It is such a sad situation.

----- Original Message -----
From: PIR [redacted]
To: H
Cc: CDM [redacted]; Huma Abedin
Sent: Sat Feb 27 08:20:01 2010
Subject: Dallas

Today's Dallas Morning News editorial page condemns attorney David Schiller for including you in the wrongful death suit that he filed on behalf of the Lozado family. It ends with ". . . citing Clinton is enough to give even ambulance-chasing lawyers a bad name."

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, February 27, 2010 7:58 PM
To: 'cheryl.mills millscd@state.gov' B6
Subject: Can you talk--

Either now (Bill wants to catch up w you too) or early tomorrow am?

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, February 28, 2010 12:14 AM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Can you talk--

Ok. Pls call me then.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H; cheryl.mills [redacted] B6
Sent: Sun Feb 28 00:13:19 2010
Subject: Re: Can you talk--

I can at 8am

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: 'cheryl.mills [redacted] Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Sat Feb 27 19:58:13 2010
Subject: Can you talk--

Either now [redacted] (Bill wants to catch up w you too) or early tomorrow am?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, October 22, 2010 8:16 PM
To: H
Subject: What time can we offer karzai for tomorrow?

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, February 27, 2010 8:03 PM
To: 'stalbott [redacted] B6
Subject: Re: Our mutual friend

Could you talk now or tomorrow early morning?

----- Original Message -----
From: Strobe Talbott [redacted]
To: H
Sent: Fri Feb 26 18:20:13 2010
Subject: Our mutual friend

Have had 2 sessions since u & I talked, having another Sat afternoon. No particular need for further guidance from u, but glad to connect at any time. Tks for terrific event in the 4-letter-word fishinf village.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, February 28, 2010 12:21 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Isabelle tomorrow--ok?

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, October 22, 2010 10:07 PM
To: H

Thank you so much for meeting with my parents today. [redacted] B6

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Hanley, Monica R <HanleyMR@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, November 15, 2010 2:26 PM
To: H
Subject: RE: [START and CTBT Lobbying] Graham: Two START 'stumblingblocks'stand in way of his vote - The Hill done

-----Original Message-----
From: H [mailto:HDR22@clintonemail.com]
Sent: Monday, November 15, 2010 2:23 PM
To: Hanley, Monica R
Subject: Fw: [START and CTBT Lobbying] Graham: Two START 'stumblingblocks'stand in way of his vote - The Hill

Pls print for me.

----- Original Message -----
From: Burns Strider [redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Mon Nov 15 14:20:34 2010
Subject: Fw: [START and CTBT Lobbying] Graham: Two START 'stumblingblocks'stand in way of his vote - The Hill

I attended the Foreign Policy Initiative meeting this morning with Senator McCain as a speaker and he reiterated these two stumbling blocks for New STARR 1. Modernization and 2. Missile defense. Sounded very much like talking points.

With missile defense he stated that "he was very disturbed by the signing agreement with Russia" that linked New START with missile defense. He said he wanted to see a very strong statement that makes a clear distinction between New START and missile defense. In terms of modernization he's taking his cues from Sen. Kyl who he thinks is making good strides in agreements with the Administration. He said that he thinks both these issues can be resolved and the Senate can vote on New START – he said that he thinks some Republicans are going to push that the senate only consider and CR and the extension of the tax cuts.

He also said that he thinks it's a good idea to reduce nuclear weapons, but anyone who says that it will affect other nation's (i.e. Iran and North Korea) nuclear ambitions are ridiculous. Someone asked if he supports President Obama's vision of a nuclear weapons free world – he stated "I hope that we have a world without nuclear weapons one day, but I also hope pigs fly – and I think neither will happen very soon."

He did mention that he is worried about the rise of the isolationist wing of the Republicans Party and the decline of the internationalist wing. He stated that "he was worried about the erosion of support within the Republican Party for the Afghanistan War."

Anu Joshi

Manager of Outreach and Membership

Citizens for Global Solutions (www.globalsolutions.org)

202.546.3950 X102

202.546.3749 (Fax)

B6

P.S. The 2011 Annual Meeting will be March 17th and 18th in Washington, D.C. Registration is only $5 for members and $40 for non members. Click here to register NOW!
<https://org2.democracyinaction.org/o/5550/p/salsa/event/common/public/?event_KEY=25296>

From: ctbt-bounces@lists101.his.com [mailto:ctbt-bounces@lists101.his.com] On Behalf Of David Culp
Sent: Sunday, November 14, 2010 8:07 PM
To: START and CTBT Lobbying
Subject: [START and CTBT Lobbying] Graham: Two START 'stumbling blocks'stand in way of his vote - The Hill

<http://thehill.com/>

<http://thehill.com/blogs/blog-briefing-room>

Graham: Two START 'stumbling blocks' stand in way of his vote

By Bridget Johnson - 11/14/10 12:19 PM ET

Sen. Lindsey Graham (R-S.C.) said if Jon Kyl takes care of those issues, he would vote for the arms treaty.

Sen. Lindsey Graham (R-S.C.) said Sunday that he didn't know if the START treaty would come up for a vote in the lame-duck session, but said two "stumbling blocks" had to be removed in order to get his vote.

Appearing on ABC's "This Week," Graham said he was "very open-minded about the treaty," which needs 67 votes for ratification in the Senate and would face an even greater hurdle with six fewer Democrats in the new Congress.

"You've got two impediments," Graham said. "Modernization. Not only do we need a START Treaty; we need to modernize our nuclear force, the weapons that are left, to make sure they continue to be a deterrent. And we need to make sure that we can employ -- deploy missile defense systems that are apart from START.

"So you've got two stumbling blocks," he said.

Graham said those two issues would have to be dealt with, and in its current state he would not vote for the U.S.-Russia arms reduction treaty.

"(Sen.) Jon Kyl is working with the administration to get better modernization to make sure that missile defense is not connected to START," he said. "If you could get those two things together, I would vote for the treaty."

On CNN's "State of the Union" Sunday, Sen. John Cornyn said that he didn't think there would even be time to address the treaty in the lame-duck session because the continuing resolution to keep the government operating and the extension of the Bush-era tax cuts were more pressing.

"I don't think there's a lot of time," Cornyn said when asked whether there would be time for a "Don't ask, don't tell" vote. "And I don't think there's a lot of appetite to try to jam stuff through. The president said he wants to pass a new START treaty in a lame duck session. I just don't see that happening."

President Obama assured Russian President Dmitry Medvedev on Sunday that the lame-duck session will be used to ratify the START nuclear-arms treaty.

"I reiterated my commitment to getting the START treaty done during the lame-duck session," Obama said at a photo op, calling passage of the treaty a "top priority" of his administration.

Former Secretary of State Madeleine Albright, who served under President Clinton, said on "This Week" that it was "very important" that the treaty be ratified.

"First of all, it's a good treaty," Albright said. "But part of the problem is we remember President Reagan said trust, but verify. And what has happened is that the verification procedures have now not been in place for almost a year, so we need that treaty for that."

Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman John Kerry (D-Mass.) said last week that he expects START to come up for a vote in December.

Source:
http://thehill.com/blogs/blog-briefing-room/news/129077-graham-two-start-stumbling-blocks-stand-in-way-of-his-vote

The contents of this site are © 2010 Capitol Hill Publishing Corp., a subsidiary of News Communications, Inc.

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, March 2, 2010 8:04 PM
To: 'preines[redacted] B6
Subject: Travel records

Were you able to correct the record on our travel?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, March 2, 2010 9:09 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: AfPak weekly

Ok to go.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, March 3, 2010 5:23 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Cc: Huma Abedin
Subject: WSJ Per Diem article

Pls read the article so we can discuss whether we need to take any action.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, November 15, 2010 9:09 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Qddr/thanks

----- Original Message -----
From: Goldwyn, David L
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Cc: Slaughter, Anne-Marie
Sent: Mon Nov 15 20:45:03 2010
Subject: Qddr/thanks

Cheryl/anne-marie:

Thanks for including my ideas about balancing energy and environment, and an energy bureau, in the qddr.

Bold move to move oes to the E tier, and no doubt a controversial one, but a great move.

Look forward to the chapter.
Best,

David

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, March 4, 2010 1:11 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Human rights reports

I have not looked at it (if I have it which I'm not sure about). So want Mike's advice. We should talk about it this afternoon--pls set a time w Huma to do so.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Thu Mar 04 13:07:48 2010
Subject: Human rights reports

I understand from Joe that you are reviewing the key material for the human rights reports. You might talk to Mike Fuchs, who I asked to go thru the key reports with a fine-toothed comb.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, March 4, 2010 1:21 PM
To: 'tauschereo@state.gov'; 'Burnswj@state.gov'
Cc: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Lavrov call

Lavrov thanked me for sending Ellen to Geneva and was delighted to hear she would be back on the 9th and would stay until we reached agreement. You can read the memcon for more details.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, March 5, 2010 6:26 AM
To: 'balderstonkm@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Expo Update

Good work. Let me know if I need to do anything else.

----- Original Message -----
From: Balderston, Kris M <BalderstonKM@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Thu Mar 04 19:08:52 2010
Subject: Expo Update

Just a quick note to tell you that we are moving forward on the Expo funding. ATT came in at $500k, McGraw Hill at $200k, Intel at $250k more, Delos Living (a Mantz client) $250k, and CITI at a minimum of $2M brings us down to $3.7M.

The following are on deck and likely to come in soon - Boeing (more), Carlyle, Blackstone, Alcoa, and AECOM. EB and I chatting with many others.

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, April 1, 2010 6:25 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Mack called back

How did you like the man you, Doug and Justin met w last night? Are you coming out here today?

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Wed Mar 31 21:58:12 2010
Subject: Mack called back

He landed and is home [redacted] He will also be in the office for the entire day tomorrow. [redacted] B6

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, April 1, 2010 11:29 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Helsinki

I would stop on way to Tallin but have to get back after. Would that work?

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Thu Apr 01 10:35:55 2010
Subject: Fw: Helsinki

I'm going to call today to get more info and only way to make this work is to do on front end of talinn so u get back for engagement party. But do u have any immediate reaction to the suggestion?

---

From: Gordon, Philip H
To: Abedin, Huma; Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Tue Mar 30 20:20:47 2010
Subject: Helsinki

What do you guys think of stopping in Helsinki after Tallinn ministerial and having S give a speech on 35th anniversary of Helsinki Final Act – emphasizing the human dimension of security that complements what she will just have done at NATO? [redacted] B5

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, March 5, 2010 7:11 AM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: DR Haiti conference on June 2

The Dominican minister here in Costa Rica said the DR would host a "World Conf on Haiti" on June 2 in the DR (of course). First I'd heard of it, and, I assume, first for you too. Are you or someone in our world or Bill's in contact w them? Pres Fernandez is a force to be reckoned w since he spans the Latin Am political spectrum fro Chavez to us. I will see him later in Guatemala. We are handicapped by our lack of an Ambassador there--what is latest on Raul? Will he ever be nominated?

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, April 1, 2010 3:20 PM
To: 'preines [redacted] B6
Subject: Re: Time 100: Pelosi

Ok.

----- Original Message -----
From: PIR <preines [redacted]
To: H
Cc: Huma Abedin
Sent: Thu Apr 01 15:19:20 2010
Subject: Time 100: Pelosi

Time Magazine is including Nancy Pelosi in their 100 Issue, and as you know from writing for others and being written about, they ask other notables to write the accompanying text. They are inviting you to write the text that accompanies Pelosi's

We all think you should do, the timing allows you to write a bit about the importance of health care.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, October 23, 2010 8:56 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (AP) Barbados prime minister dies at 48

From: Simmons, Krista M
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_OS
Sent: Sat Oct 23 08:19:09 2010
Subject: (AP) Barbados prime minister dies at 48

BRIDGETOWN (AP) - The Barbados government announced the death of Prime Minister David Thompson at the age of 48.

It says Thompson died early October 23. It was announced last month that he was being treated for pancreatic cancer.

Thompson, who has been prime minister of Barbados since January 2008, first became ill in March and took a leave of absence from his post in July. Deputy Prime Minister Freundel Stuart has been running the government in Thompson's absence.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, April 1, 2010 3:43 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: THANKS to Team Pledge Data

This is so way cool. How can we give and get public credit? Let's be sure we get team Haiti upstairs next week for a big Thank you!

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Thu Apr 01 15:37:05 2010
Subject: Fw: THANKS to Team Pledge Data

See bottom of message re the firsts.

These were innovations we pushed (particularly use of web for real time display of pledges and what initially was described by those who did not like my idea as pay to play (or in this instance as I argued - it was pay to have a priority speaking slot as those who did not have a pledge would get to speak, just not until the end).

Nice addition to our innovation and tech storyline.

Cdm

---

From: DeMarcellus, Roland F
To: 'Danila Boneva' Katherine Gilbert ; Siemer, Marguerite E; Bruno Lemarquis < >; Elizabeth Fong < >; Gianluca Rampolla < >; Dasa Silovic < >; Jehane Sedky < >; Elisabeth Diaz < >; Eric Overvest < >; Nick Rene Hartmann < >; Annie Demirjian Arshak.hovanesian_synisys.com ; Leatham, Rachel M;
Cc: 'Garry Conille' Jordan Ryan Mills, Cheryl D; Klevorick, Caitlin B; Curtis, Meghann A
Sent: Thu Apr 01 14:35:11 2010
Subject: THANKS to Team Pledge Data

B6

Dear members of Team Pledge Data,

I wanted to thank all of you for your excellent work leading up and at the Conference in establishing the system for gathering, scrubbing, presenting, projecting, and posting the pledge data from all the donors. And to thank you for accommodating so quickly my inchoate and sleep-deprived requests yesterday morning for the changes to the format of what was projected.

But I wanted to make sure you realized that you accomplished something rather historic yesterday. You have massively raised the bar for future donors' conference on how pledge data should be tracked and shared.

Here are some of the "firsts" that you should be proud of (based at least on my experience in 8 major donors' conferences so far):

- First to gather written pledges from all donors
- First to project individual pledges in real time at the conference
- First to release individual pledges to the world public and media on the same day as the conference

In addition to these, the work that you put into scrubbing the pledges – with the rigor and integrity of development professionals – ensured that the pledge figures were more meaningful and accurate than for most other pledging conferences (another possible first).

All of these achievements are great in themselves, but they will be most important in their impact on ensuring that the pledged assistance actually makes in to the people of Haiti. This is really just the beginning of that important effort, and you will be playing a critical role in it – but you have set us off with the best possible starting point for that effort.

Thank you again. It has been and will remain for me a pleasure for me to work with you. Best regards, Roland

Please pass this on to others on the team that I have missed in this email.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, March 5, 2010 9:56 AM
To: 'vermarr@state.gov'; 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Gefilte fish

Where are we on this?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, April 1, 2010 5:51 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Jim

Pls call me at home thru Ops.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Thu Apr 01 17:50:14 2010
Subject: Jim

Jim is very agitated by some maneuverings related to the NPR. I should bring you up to speed on it when you have a moment.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, March 6, 2010 7:45 AM
To: 'vermarr@state.gov'
Subject: Re:

Thx, Rich, but I don't think H should prepare a paper since it's not part of your official job. I'm seeing her this week so if you can give me info to use, I will share w her. Appreciate the help.

----- Original Message -----
From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Mar 06 06:12:24 2010
Subject:

Did some research on Saving Americas Treasures. Looks like it is funded thru interior approps. Feinstein is Senate chair and Norm Dicks is house chair. Moran will likely take over for Dicks, as he moves to take over defense subcommittee. Happy to weigh in with both staffs, but you are also seeing Senator Feinstein this week for dinner. We can prepare a short paper for her staff.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, March 6, 2010 8:36 AM
To: 'bealeca@state.gov'
Subject: Email address

Courtney--Please share this w Zia and use for scheduling matters. Thanks so much, HRC

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, March 6, 2010 8:52 AM
To: 'bealeca@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Email address

Ok.

----- Original Message -----
From: Beale, Courtney A Kramer <BealeCA@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Mar 06 08:42:23 2010
Subject: Re: Email address

Yes, we will. Thank you, Courtney

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Beale, Courtney A Kramer
Sent: Sat Mar 06 08:36:07 2010
Subject: Email address

Courtney--Please share this w Zia and use for scheduling matters. Thanks so much, HRC

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, October 23, 2010 8:56 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Reuters) Afghans say two students killed by NATO troops

From: Simmons, Krista M
To: NEWS-Afghanistan; NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_Shift-II
Sent: Sat Oct 23 08:26:57 2010
Subject: (Reuters) Afghans say two students killed by NATO troops

KABUL (Reuters) - Afghan officials accused NATO-led troops of killing two school boys in central Afghanistan on October 23 after a patrol came under fire by Taliban insurgents, but foreign troops said the circumstances were unclear.

A statement released by the NATO-led International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) said two civilians had possibly been killed in the Maidan Shahr district of Wardak province, west of Kabul, when insurgents attacked the patrol.

"During the attack, three Afghan citizens on a motorcycle entered the engagement area. Two of them fell off the vehicle and were taken away by local villagers," ISAF said.

It said their condition could not be determined before they were taken away. The incident was under investigation, ISAF said.

However, a spokesman for the Wardak governor said ISAF troops had fired indiscriminately and killed two students about 30 miles west of Kabul when a rocket was fired at their convoy. He said the rocket was apparently fired by the Taliban.

Wardak police chief Nawas Haqyar said ISAF troops were returning fire and mistakenly killed the students. The attack prompted a brief demonstration by angry villagers, demanding an explanation from NATO forces over the killing.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, March 6, 2010 9:45 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Latest call list for today

I'd prefer to get all calls done by 2 if possible.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Oscar Flores
Sent: Sat Mar 06 09:43:14 2010
Subject: Latest call list for today

German FM Westerwelle 930am
Sir Reg Empey 1030 am
Peter Robinson 1230pm
Martin McGuinness after 1230. His staff says he wants to talk today.
Catherine Ashton potentially today.
Condi Rice pushed to next week

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, March 6, 2010 9:58 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Latest call list for today

When can she talk?

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Mar 06 09:57:39 2010
Subject: Re: Latest call list for today

Ok we may miss ashton which wouldn't be end of world. Her staff has been emailing saying she's anxious to talk but they haven't locked a time. I did tell her staff we weren't going to push russians to cancel quartet dinner.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Sat Mar 06 09:45:27 2010
Subject: Re: Latest call list for today

I'd prefer to get all calls done by 2 if possible.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Oscar Flores
Sent: Sat Mar 06 09:43:14 2010
Subject: Latest call list for today

German FM Westerwelle 930am
Sir Reg Empey 1030 am
Peter Robinson 1230pm
Martin McGuinness after 1230. His staff says he wants to talk today.
Catherine Ashton potentially today.
Condi Rice pushed to next week

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, March 6, 2010 10:11 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Latest call list for today

Let me know what time she offers.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Mar 06 10:00:43 2010
Subject: Re: Latest call list for today

No windows at all yet from her team.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Sat Mar 06 09:57:58 2010
Subject: Re: Latest call list for today

When can she talk?

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Mar 06 09:57:39 2010
Subject: Re: Latest call list for today

Ok we may miss ashton which wouldn't be end of world. Her staff has been emailing saying she's anxious to talk but they haven't locked a time. I did tell her staff we weren't going to push russians to cancel quartet dinner.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Sat Mar 06 09:45:27 2010
Subject: Re: Latest call list for today

I'd prefer to get all calls done by 2 if possible.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Oscar Flores
Sent: Sat Mar 06 09:43:14 2010
Subject: Latest call list for today

German FM Westerwelle 930am
Sir Reg Empey 1030 am

Peter Robinson 1230pm
Martin McGuinness after 1230. His staff says he wants to talk today.
Catherine Ashton potentially today.
Condi Rice pushed to next week

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, March 6, 2010 10:16 AM
To: 'bealeca@state.gov'
Subject: Re: UK First Minister Robinson has confirmed his availability for 1230 EST

Ok

----- Original Message -----
From: Beale, Courtney A Kramer <BealeCA@state.gov>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>; Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>; H
Cc: S_SpecialAssistants <S_SpecialAssistants@state.gov>
Sent: Sat Mar 06 10:15:25 2010
Subject: FW: UK First Minister Robinson has confirmed his availability for 1230 EST

Madam Secretary,

In addition to moving back Sir Reg Empey's call to 10:30, Ops has confirmed your call with UK First Minister Robinson at 12:30.

Regards,

Courtney

From: McNeil, Matthew C
Sent: Saturday, March 06, 2010 9:16 AM
To: SES-O_S-Calls
Subject: UK First Minister Robinson has confirmed his availability for 1230 EST

Colleagues,

UK First Minister Robinson has confirmed his availability for 1230 EST.

Also Sir Reg Empey's call has been moved back to 1030.

Regards,

Matthew McNeil

Watch Officer

State Department Operations Center

202.647.1512

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, April 1, 2010 6:26 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Israel meeting

Do they know Ellen Tauscher has been working on this?

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Thu Apr 01 18:24:00 2010
Subject: Israel meeting

There was a garble on the middle east meeting. It's not chiefly on Mitchell travel or related issues. It's chiefly on how to deal with the nuclear issue in the context of the upcoming summit. Though with the players at the table...

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, October 23, 2010 10:15 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Yo-Yo Ma

----- Original Message -----
From: Stock, Ann
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Cc: Toiv, Nora F
Sent: Sat Oct 23 08:31:31 2010
Subject: Yo-Yo Ma

FYI only--I saw Yo Yo Ma this week and we spoke about his Silk Road Project. Three members of his company are Iranian and he is very interested in touring in and furthering cultural engagement with Iran once the country opens up. He asked that I pass on this message to the Secretary, explaining that if and when this kind of engagement becomes possible, he and the Silk Road Project are ready to embrace the opportunity. Ann

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, April 2, 2010 7:52 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Algerian PM call

Prefer 9.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri Apr 02 07:36:43 2010
Subject: Algerian PM call

He is willing to take your call anytime between 9am and 4pm. What time would u like to do? Points below

The Secretary's Call Sheet for Algerian Prime Minister Ahmed Ouyahia (AH-med ooh-YA-hee-ah)

B5

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, April 2, 2010 1:14 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re:

Anything to add to this.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Fri Apr 02 12:56:32 2010
Subject:

B5

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, November 16, 2010 11:04 AM
To: H
Subject: Breakfast list

Howard Berman: yes
Ileana Ros-Lehtinen: yes
Nita Lowey: yes
Ike Skelton: yes
John Spratt: yes
Richard Durbin: yes
John Kerry: yes
Richard Lugar: yes
Thad Cochran: yes
Judd Gregg: no
Nancy Pelosi: no
Steny Hoyer: no
John Boehner: no
Eric Cantor: no
Kay Granger: no
Howard McKeon: no
Paul Ryan: no
Harry Reid: no
Mitch McConnell: no
Jon Kyl: tbd
David Obey: tbd
Jerry Lewis: tbd
Daniel K. Inouye: tbd
Patrick Leahy: tbd
Carl Levin: tbd
John McCain: tbd
Kent Conrad: tbd

RELEASE IN PART
1.4(B),B1,1.4(D),B6

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, October 23, 2010 10:16 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: [redacted] Guidance on today's call B1 1.4(D)

Fyi - spoke with RCH a little bit ago. He wanted you to have the below.

---

From: Holbrooke, Richard
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sat Oct 23 09:56:16 2010
Subject: Fw: [redacted] Guidance on today's call

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 10/22/2025

Jake--just talked to H about the call. Rina's email then arrived. Think it might helpful to her for her call. Pls forward.

---

From: Rina Amiri [redacted] B6
To: Holbrooke, Richard; Ruggiero, Frank J; Feldman, Daniel F; Singh, Vikram J
Sent: Sat Oct 23 08:56:44 2010
Subject [redacted] Guidance on today's call 1.4(B) 1.4(D) B1 1.4(D)

[redacted]

Best,

Rina

RELEASE IN PART
B5,B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, March 6, 2010 11:00 AM
To: 'preines [redacted] B6
Subject: Re: Reminder: WaPo Call re Bob Barnett

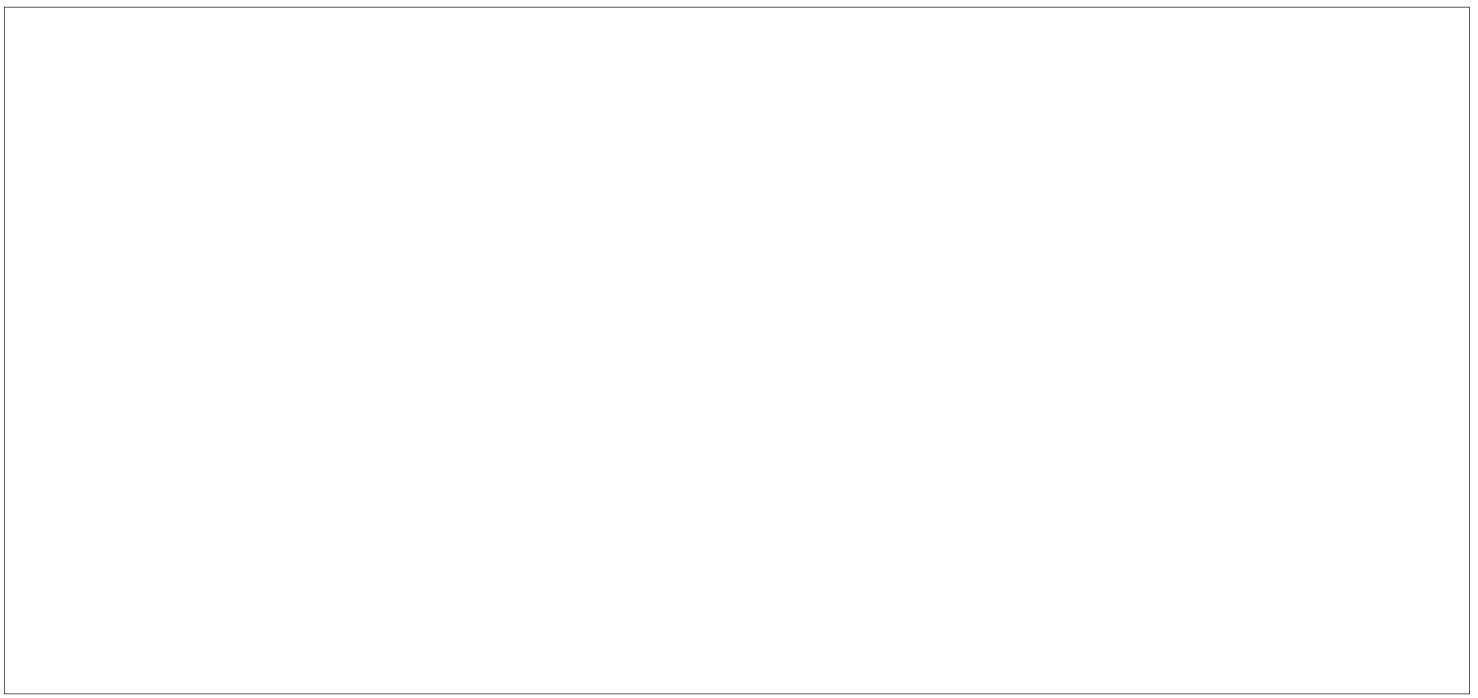
Was that ok? Can you give transcript to Bob?

----- Original Message -----
From: PIR <preines [redacted]
To: H
Cc: Huma Abedin
Sent: Sat Mar 06 10:50:03 2010
Subject: Reminder: WaPo Call re Bob Barnett

Gentle reminder about the Bob Barnett profile he emailed you about. Story is being written by David Montgomery of the Washington Post, and is slated to run tomorrow - so we need to do this today, the earlier the better.



All you have to do is call into Ops when you're ready, they will connect you to the reporter (and add me in)

Here's the reporters description on the piece: "...a large profile of Bob Barnett for the Style section. I know Barnett has been a friend and counselor and campaign supporter over the years. I would like to ask Secretary Clinton her estimation of what makes Barnett good at what he does, what he has meant to her in the various ways he has worked for her over the years. And I would like to ask what she makes of how such a committed Democrat as Barnett is able to work so well in his professional life for noted Republicans on book projects and other work. (A theme of the piece is how some say Barnett harkens to a mythic time in Washington when players supposedly could more readily have relationships with other side, even while sticking to principles in their political work)"

You have talked about Bob many times, but general points:

[redacted] B5

B5

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, April 2, 2010 1:53 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Our proposed readout

Ok w me.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri Apr 02 13:45:02 2010
Subject: Our proposed readout

Here is what I'm proposing:

B5

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, March 6, 2010 12:58 PM
To: 'sbwhoeop[redacted] B6
Cc: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: NI vote

I've just talked w Empey, Robinson and McG and, as of today, the vote will be fine on the 9th and it's up to the UUP to decide if they want to remain relevant or not. Both Peter and Martin were positive so, unless a crisis erupts, all is well.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Shapiro, Andrew J <ShapiroA@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, November 16, 2010 11:44 AM
To: H
Subject: Thank you

Madam Secretary,

Thank you so much for making the time to address the reception celebrating the passage of the Defense Trade Cooperation Treaties with the UK and Australia. Everyone in the room put forward tremendous effort towards achieving the treaties passage and they appreciated the recognition of their efforts that you provided.

I'm working on a memo to you that will summarize PM's achievements during the first 18 months of my tenure as well as the Bureau's priorities going forward. Once I send it up to you, I'll work with Eric, Jake, Cheryl, etc. on setting up a time with you to discuss to ensure that we are capturing your priorities.

Thanks again.

Best, Andrew

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, April 2, 2010 6:31 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Anything to report?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 3, 2010 12:28 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Anything to report?

Have you talked w Mitchell and Feltmann yet?

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri Apr 02 19:00:52 2010
Subject: Re: Anything to report?

One thing I missed:

Currency deferral decision likely tonight.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Fri Apr 02 18:30:59 2010
Subject: Anything to report?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, October 23, 2010 10:37 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (AP) Iraqi PM on the defense in WikiLeaks release

From: Simmons, Krista M
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_OS
Sent: Sat Oct 23 09:49:31 2010
Subject: (AP) Iraqi PM on the defense in WikiLeaks release

BAGHDAD (AP) - Iraq's prime minister is accusing WikiLeaks of releasing documents that detail prisoner abuse by Iraqi security forces to sabotage his re-election hopes.

A statement released October 23 by Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki's office said the timing of the documents' release raises questions about whether it was motivated by politics.

The statement said the documents show no proof of any improper treatment of detainees while al-Maliki has been at the helm of the Iraqi government.

It said he has taken a tough stance against terrorists but offered no details.

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 3, 2010 4:50 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Strategic Dialogue Press Coverage (3/22 - 3/31)
Attachments: Strategic Dialogue Press Clips 03-22-2010.doc; Strategic Dialogue Press Clips 03-23-2010.doc; Strategic Dialogue Press Clips March 24, 2010.doc; Strategic Dialogue Press Clips 03-25-2010.doc; Strategic Dialogue Press Clips 03-26-2010.doc; Strategic Dialogue Press Clips 03-27-2010.doc; Strategic Dialogue Press Clips 03-28-2010.doc; Strategic Dialogue Press Clips 03-29-2010.doc; Strategic Dialogue Press Clips 03-30-2010.doc; Strategic Dialogue Press Clips 03-31-2010.doc; Strategic Dialogue Press Clips 03-22-2010.doc; Strategic Dialogue Press Clips 03-23-2010.doc; Strategic Dialogue Press Clips March 24, 2010.doc; Strategic Dialogue Press Clips 03-25-2010.doc; Strategic Dialogue Press Clips 03-26-2010.doc; Strategic Dialogue Press Clips 03-27-2010.doc; Strategic Dialogue Press Clips 03-28-2010.doc; Strategic Dialogue Press Clips 03-29-2010.doc; Strategic Dialogue Press Clips 03-30-2010.doc; Strategic Dialogue Press Clips 03-31-2010.doc

Pls print for me and HAPPY EASTER!

----- Original Message -----
From: McHale, Judith A <McHaleJA@state.gov>
To: H; Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>; Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Cc: Macmanus, Joseph E <MacmanusJE@state.gov>
Sent: Sat Apr 03 08:17:36 2010
Subject: FW: Strategic Dialogue Press Coverage (3/22 - 3/31)

FYI, generally positive coverage. B5

jm

From: Schwartz, Larry
Sent: Saturday, April 03, 2010 5:37 AM
To: McHale, Judith A
Subject: FW: Strategic Dialogue Press Coverage (3/22 - 3/31)

Judith,

Can't remember whether I forwarded this stuff to you.

As you can see, our staff feel that the Dialogue went pretty well in the press – and it continues to do well. The Foreign Minister -- now claiming credit for changing our TSA airport screening policy -- is promising to "take Parliament into confidence" on the dialogue in the near future. I'm going to be out talking at a think tank on Weds; Holbrooke will be here next week.

L

From: Howard, Ariel
Sent: Wednesday, March 31, 2010 4:11 PM
To: Schwartz, Larry
Subject: Strategic Dialogue Press Coverage (3/22 - 3/31)

U.S.-Pakistan Strategic Dialogue Media Summary

The U.S.-Pakistan Strategic Dialogue dominated Pakistani media on March 24 and March 25. All major English and Urdu language networks carried live the Secretary and Foreign Minister Qureshi's remarks at the opening session. On Thursday morning, nearly all television networks led with coverage of the joint press availability. All major English and Urdu language dailies featured the talks on their front pages, highlighting the Secretary's announcement of $125 million in aid to Pakistan's energy sector. Reporting was straight-forward with favorable headlines: Dawn—"U.S, Pakistan pledge to boost and broaden ties" and "U.S. to provide $125m for energy, power plants"; The News—"US vows to boost energy, defence, trade ties"; Nawa-i-Waqt—"U.S. will neither abandon nor dictate to Pakistan"; The Nation—"'New day' for US, Pakistan: Hillary." Media highlighted the positive shift in U.S.-Pakistan relations, echoing Secretary Clinton's statement that the talks are the beginning of a new chapter. Reports also focused on the question of nuclear cooperation and U.S. engagement in the Kashmir dispute; however the U.S. position on these issues had been widely reported by the media prior to the Dialogue. The Nation published an editorial, entitled "Negative starting note," criticizing the talks before they began. The daily stated that "promises will be made on some issues, including on nuclear cooperation, which will not see fruition." Other editorials stressed the need for a sustained commitment on both sides, beyond March 24, to produce results: Dawn – "Prospects for Pak-US ties," and Daily Times—"Pak-US Strategic Dialogue." End Summary.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: sbwhoeop [redacted] B6
Sent: Saturday, October 23, 2010 3:34 PM
To: H
Subject: can you call me now? eureka idea for midterms!! want to run by you, think it can work.
Sid

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 3, 2010 4:52 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw:

Pls add to my call list. He's in New York City working for the Methodist Church.

----- Original Message -----
From: Diane Reynolds
To: H
Sent: Fri Apr 02 20:55:10 2010
Subject:

Bill Shillady
United Methodist City Society

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 7, 2010 8:09 AM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Am catching train

Anytime before 11.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Mar 07 07:59:59 2010
Subject: Am catching train

To dc from ny at 9am so will call later - what works?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 7, 2010 8:14 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Human Rights Report

Pls call me when you can to discuss w me.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 7, 2010 2:27 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Iraq

That's fine. I did not hear about the arrest yet.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Mar 07 14:20:13 2010
Subject: Iraq

Below is a proposed statement to go out in an hour or so. Also, did you see the Pakistanis arrested Adam Gadhan, the American al Qaeda spokesman?

STATEMENT BY SECRETARY CLINTON

IRAQI NATIONAL ELECTIONS

I congratulate all the people of Iraq who participated in national elections today and over the past three days. There is no better rebuke to the violent extremists who seek to derail Iraq's progress. Our thoughts and prayers are with the families who lost friends and loved ones, and we salute the determination of the Iraqi people to reaffirm their commitment to democracy and to charting their own future free of fear and intimidation.

Thanks to the efforts of the Iraq High Electoral Commission and the Iraqi Security Forces, which organized the voting and ensured security at thousands of polling sites throughout the country, Iraqi men and women from all parts of the country were able to go to the polls and choose their leaders freely.

I also would like to commend Ambassador Hill, General Odierno and all the U.S. civilian and military personnel who supported this historic effort.

Iraqis have chosen a new government to lead their country at a critical time. In the coming months, we will work together with Iraqi leaders as our partnership continues its transition to a primarily civilian focus, with the goal of building a long-term, multidimensional relationship between our two nations - a relationship that will contribute to stability in the Middle East and growing peace and prosperity in Iraq.

###

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, February 28, 2010 9:35 AM
To: Huma Abedin; 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: Any chance I can take the 2pm shuttle today?

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, February 28, 2010 12:00 PM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Isabelle tomorrow--ok?

I thought she wasn't available but that Alex was coming--or is that old berry info?

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H; Huma Abedin
Sent: Sun Feb 28 01:12:59 2010
Subject: Re: Isabelle tomorrow--ok?

I did email her yesterday to see availability. Will confirm her

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma; Huma Abedin [redacted] B6
Sent: Sun Feb 28 00:21:05 2010
Subject: Isabelle tomorrow--ok?

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, February 28, 2010 3:13 PM
To: 'stalbott [redacted] B6
Subject: Re: The matter I raised on my end of the converation last night.....

Message received--thx.

----- Original Message -----
From: Strobe Talbott [redacted]
To: H
Sent: Sun Feb 28 14:27:47 2010
Subject: The matter I raised on my end of the converation last night.....

Just reached Tom about it. Alerted him to the version as it came to me, including potential of its breaking. He seemed a) aware of the basis for what I'd heard, b) to share my assessment/concern (though asked me to elaborate, which I did vividly), and c) prepared to make sure that whatever ready to be is said publicly - and whatever happens diplomatically - put the kibosh on the version as it came to me.

Incidentally, unbidden by me on both points-i.e., volunteering-he went out of his way to says upbeat things about you and downbeat things about OMF. Said he wanted to discuss that with me in person. I said nothing of substance, except always glad to talk.

Over and out, tho would appreciate you're confirming receipt, since I'm not cc'ing anyone on this.

Cha-cha-cha (even though you're not going to Argentina-and rightly so).

-----Original Message-----
From: H [mailto:HDR22@clintonemail.com]
Sent: Saturday, February 27, 2010 8:03 PM
To: Strobe Talbott
Subject: Re: Our mutual friend

Could you talk now or tomorrow early morning?

----- Original Message -----
From: Strobe Talbott [redacted]
To: H
Sent: Fri Feb 26 18:20:13 2010
Subject: Our mutual friend

Have had 2 sessions since u & I talked, having another Sat afternoon. No particular need for further guidance from u, but glad to connect at any time. Tks for terrific event in the 4-letter-word fishinf village.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

B6

From: PIR <preines[redacted]
Sent: Saturday, October 23, 2010 6:17 PM
To: H; PIR
Subject: Re: (AP) Barbados prime minister dies at 48

Yes

------Original Message------
From: Evergreen
To: PIR
To: PIR
Subject: Fw: (AP) Barbados prime minister dies at 48
Sent: Oct 23, 2010 6:16 PM

Did we put out a statement?

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Oct 23 08:55:52 2010
Subject: Fw: (AP) Barbados prime minister dies at 48

---

From: Simmons, Krista M
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_OS
Sent: Sat Oct 23 08:19:09 2010
Subject: (AP) Barbados prime minister dies at 48

BRIDGETOWN (AP) - The Barbados government announced the death of Prime Minister David Thompson at the age of 48.

It says Thompson died early October 23. It was announced last month that he was being treated for pancreatic cancer.

Thompson, who has been prime minister of Barbados since January 2008, first became ill in March and took a leave of absence from his post in July. Deputy Prime Minister Freundel Stuart has been running the government in Thompson's absence.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 7, 2010 9:38 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: touching base

I just landed from NY. The ppt looks good to me. I have a few questions I will discuss w you tomorrow.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Mar 07 21:30:43 2010
Subject: touching base

I am likely going to go to bed early and be up early.

Hope you had a chance to go through ppt.

B6

cdm

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, February 28, 2010 4:55 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Schedule

March 9--I may need to host a small dinner for Pres. Preval, maybe at my house.
Zach Iscol's movie was accepted for the Tribeca Film Festival and will be shown btw dates in late April and early May. Can we find out when?

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, February 28, 2010 4:58 PM
To: 'pverveer [redacted] B6
Subject: Marjorie MM

FYI--MMM told me she will lead a delegation to Malawi for the marriage on May 1of one of the leading women activists and the President and asked if we knew anyone who'd like to go. Pls let he know. Thx. April 24 engagement party in Philly

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, February 28, 2010 4:59 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Schedule

Thx. Also pls put as option: [redacted] B6

----- Original Message -----
From: Valmoro, Lona J <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>
To: H; Huma Abedin
Sent: Sun Feb 28 16:56:41 2010
Subject: RE: Schedule

Will follow up on both. Safe travels!

-----Original Message-----
From: H [mailto:HDR22@clintonemail.com]
Sent: Sunday, February 28, 2010 4:55 PM
To: Valmoro, Lona J; Huma Abedin
Subject: Schedule

March 9--I may need to host a small dinner for Pres. Preval, maybe at my house.
Zach Iscol's movie was accepted for the Tribeca Film Festival and will be shown btw dates in late April and early May. Can we find out when?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, March 8, 2010 10:28 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: From the FT: U.S. civilians battle to help Afghanistan
Attachments: image001.jpg; image002.jpg; image003.jpg; image004.jpg; image005.jpg; image006.jpg; image007.jpg; image001.jpg; image002.jpg; image003.jpg; image004.jpg; image005.jpg; image006.jpg; image007.jpg

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Mar 08 10:05:39 2010
Subject: FW: From the FT: U.S. civilians battle to help Afghanistan

FYI

From: Jones, Paul W
Sent: Monday, March 08, 2010 6:11 AM
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Fw: From the FT: U.S. civilians battle to help Afghanistan

Jake
Very worthwhile article from a couple of days ago. If S hasn't already seen, she might appreciate it. Karl and folks in Kabul are quite pleased with it. Paul

---

From: Simon, Jessica L
To: SSRAP_Expanded; Philadelphia, Carlton A; Campbell, Piper; Crowley, Philip J; Chitre, Nanda S; (U) Toner, Mark C; Duguid, Gordon K; USAID Press Officers
Sent: Sun Mar 07 21:55:50 2010
Subject: FW: From the FT: U.S. civilians battle to help Afghanistan

From Emb Kabul:

Hey, guys! Just wanted to flag this story that includes some good work by our civilians in the Arghandab. Thanks! -CH

---

http://www.ft.com/cms/s/2/894535f4-272c-11df-b84e-00144feabdc0.html

US civilians battle to help Afghanistan

By Matthew Green

Published: March 5 2010 22:43 | Last updated: March 5 2010 22:43

US State Department representative Christopher Harich (top left) and Kevin Melton flank Haji Abdul Jabar as they discuss the restoration of a religious monument

Each morning this winter, Haji Abdul Jabar has packed a flask of home-brewed green tea for work. It's not frugality; he's trying to avoid being poisoned. You can't be too careful: before leaving the house, he also straps a Smith & Wesson 9mm handgun into a holster secreted in the depths of his robes. Seized with occasional fits of passion, Jabar has been known to whip out the gun during meetings. He may be jumpy, but tactics like this are not entirely out of place in his line of work: as district governor, the 65-year-old has an unenviable task – of wresting the Arghandab River Valley, one of the most dangerous places in Afghanistan <http://www.ft.com/world/asiapacific/afghanistan> , from the Taliban.

Viewed from the roof of Jabar's district headquarters, the sweep of the valley is at once beautiful – bleakly majestic – and charged with menace. A distant range of low, dun-coloured hills defines the valley's opposite flank. Orchards of pomegranate trees, their branches stripped bare by the cold, line the banks of a river meandering across the valley floor, dividing the east side of Arghandab from the west.

The district governor's office

The east is where Jabar's office is perched, and where US troops feel safer – it's the west side they call "bad juju land". Insurgents use a strip of desert there to infiltrate Kandahar, the birthplace of the Taliban in the mid-1990s, and the pivot on which previous Afghan wars have turned. Roadside bombs hidden in the lush vineyards last year turned Arghandab into a killing field. A battalion of the 82nd Airborne Division deployed here in mid-December is hoping for better luck, but a new showdown is coming. Stanley McChrystal <http://www.ft.com/cms/s/0/30b0c4d8-091f-11df-ba88-00144feabdc0.html> , the Nato commander in Afghanistan, has vowed to secure Kandahar. The Taliban want it back.

One night, one of the insurgents called the governor's mobile. "He said, 'I'm going to kill you, you're working for the Americans,'" says Jabar, sitting on the carpet in his office. "I said, 'Do whatever you can do.' Then I abused him and hung up." Jabar normally cuts a rather solemn figure. At this recollection, he laughed.

Jabar is not alone in his mission. Aside from the 2-508 battalion of the 82nd Airborne, two Americans have arrived <http://www.ft.com/cms/s/0/6f824828-183b-11df-9256-00144feab49a.html> in Arghandab to help out: 27-year-old Kevin Melton and 35-year-old Christopher Harich. They're part of the Obama administration's "civilian surge <http://www.ft.com/cms/s/0/ee3ee108-d60f-11de-b80f-00144feabdc0.html> ", announced alongside a fresh build-up of US troops.

Working out of the whitewashed, two-storey district office, this unlikely trio aims to turn the tide of opinion in the district. They must do it before spring, when the valley will come into leaf and the Taliban fighters return from Pakistan in time for the fighting season.

"Arghandab is the gate to Kandahar city," Jabar says. "If Arghandab is lost, Kandahar is also lost. It's the most important valley in Afghanistan."

Haji Abdul Jabar and Kevin Melton of US Aid above the Arghandab Valley

Jabar, Harich and Melton have little in common but their beards. Melton, who grew up in the suburbs of Washington, is working for USAid, the US government's development agency <http://www.usaid.gov/> . Hard-driving and -anxious to get results, Melton juggles a raft of plans for projects from solar-powered lamps for villages, to schemes for hydroelectricity and renovating a shrine clinging to a nearby mountainside. His past experience includes work in Sudan, but the challenge in Arghandab trumps anything he has previously attempted. "It feels like there's no end to the day," he said. "It's physically, mentally, emotionally and intellectually exhausting."

Harich is a lawyer and a former marine from Louisiana who until recently worked as a policy adviser to the governor of West Virginia. He now represents the US State Department in Arghandab. "I've no doubt in my mind that we're going to have a fight this summer," he says. "When the Taliban come back in May, are they welcomed with open arms?"

Strapping on their khaki-coloured helmets and flak jackets and donning wraparound protective sunglasses whenever they leave the base, Melton and Harich bear a distinct resemblance to the US soldiers who protect them.

Jabar, meanwhile, sports neck and wrist pouches containing Koranic charms to ward off the health risks caused by his high blood pressure. (He takes advantage of the medic in the US military base adjacent to his office for regular check-ups.)

Both the Americans were lured by the challenge of participating in the US adventure in Afghanistan for a year. Sleeping in vacant rooms in the district office and equipped with a V-Sat internet link to keep in touch with superiors in Kandahar city – but no shower – they must figure out how to work with Jabar to build local government more or less from scratch. Harich aims to act as a "mentor", helping Jabar as he works with the -provincial government in Kandahar to assemble an administrative team to govern the district of more than 55,000 people.

There are few tougher places than Arghandab, a valley where a procession of armies have been bloodied. First came the British in the 19th -century, then the Russians in the 1980s, and then last year, the 1-17 -battalion of the 5th Stryker Brigade lost 21 soldiers in five months of -fighting – one of the highest casualty rates any US unit has suffered in Afghanistan since 2001.

Conscious of the rapid approach of the fighting season, Melton is drawing up plans for projects – such as rehabilitating schools and clinics – that could quickly demonstrate to the locals the benefits of siding with the government of Hamid

Karzai, Afghanistan's president. He works closely with army officers to ensure the military's own plans to implement projects fit in with the wider, albeit still embryonic, attempts to bolster Jabar.

The trio's schemes can seem like pin-pricks set against the implacable valley below. So far, progress has been largely confined to Jabar's office. Since arriving late last year, Melton and Harris have renovated the district centre, installing air conditioners, curtains and carpets.

Jabar, who rarely ventured to his office from his home in Kandahar before these changes, now turns up almost every day, driving the 30-minute commute in his battered white Toyota Corolla saloon with three police bodyguards, -constantly wary of the risk of ambush. "Getting the building is easy," says Harich. "Getting a governor to come in and do some work is a little harder."

A trickle of men with beards and turbans arrive each morning and sit along the wall of the building waiting for Jabar to arrive, shielding their eyes from the sun as it crests the crags. They come to apply for government identity cards or attend a weekly council – or shura – to discuss projects planned by Melton. "The fact that they're even discussing this stuff is mind-boggling," he says. "They're saying, 'I can come to somebody to do something. This is what government is about: I can air my grievances to somebody other than the Taliban.'"

And yet Jabar is the first to admit that his writ does not run much -further than the building. "I don't trust the people, so I don't go out much," he says. "They may try to shoot me."

Vehicles out on night patrol

It can be tempting to measure progress in the west's war in Afghanistan in terms of damage to the Taliban – whether in capturing the movement's leaders or driving back their fighters on the battlefield. Last month, headlines were dominated by the arrest of Mullah Abdul Ghani Baradar <http://www.ft.com/cms/s/0/f4f14de4-1b09-11df-88fa-00144feab49a.html> , the Taliban's second-in-command, and by the big Nato offensive in the town of Marjah <http://www.ft.com/cms/s/0/c8d82998-1411-11df-8847-00144feab49a.html> . But even if more Mullah Baradars are arrested, more military pushes launched, the Taliban may simply bide their time before once more exploiting alienation from the corrupt or absent government. The only way to stop that is to undertake the painstaking work of stitching together a government capable of providing more security and services than the "shadow governments" set up by the insurgents.

Western countries have been talking for years, of course, about building governance in Afghanistan, but men such as Melton and Harich represent a renewed commitment. US officials say more than 900 US civilian officers are active in Afghanistan, compared with just 300 at the start of 2009, with more than 50 destined for Kandahar province. The hope is that this team can deliver a one-two punch that long seemed elusive by exploiting military victories to nurture functioning local government. "We have to fix governance in some nominal way or this victory won't stick," says a senior US official. But the sheer scale of the task in Arghandab alone reveals the enormity of the challenge.

One afternoon, Harich sat with the governor on the office carpet for a lunch of stone-baked bread and spinach. As they talked, Jabar raised repeated requests: for bars of Dove soap, for boots for his bodyguards. The demands seemed reasonable enough but Harich did not immediately acquiesce. Part of his job is using the Americans' ability to open and close the aid taps to get Jabar to live up to their vision of an impartial, honest governor. But Jabar, like Afghan leaders at all levels of government, relies on a patronage system in which his friends expect to be rewarded and where the barrier between public and private money is porous.

Like much of Afghanistan's political class, Jabar's "legitimacy" comes from his role as a Mujahideen fighter in the 1980s, battling Soviet -invaders. (Arghandab witnessed heavy fighting: the Russians mounted a month-long siege but never took the valley.) Although governors in Afghanistan's 34 provinces have the power – in theory – to nominate district governors, US intelligence officers say Jabar owes his pre-eminence to the backing of Karimullah, the young leader of the Alakozai, an ethnic Pashtun sub-tribe dominant in the valley.

Said Amir Mohammad Agha, whose refusal to recognise Jabar's authority keeps the valley divided Divisions between clans mean that Jabar is by no means a consensus candidate. In particular, Said Amir Mohammad Agha <http://www.ft.com/cms/s/0/54cf9eca-10e5-11df-9a9e-00144feab49a.html> , the single-most influential man on the west side of the river, resents him. US officers say Agha was once detained in Guantánamo Bay as a suspected Taliban commander. As long as Agha refuses to recognise Jabar's authority, the valley will remain divided.

Even on the east side, to the frustration of Melton and Harich, Jabar has yet to prove he can garner much legitimacy. Locals milling around his office mutter accusations that he skims off salaries for the few district officials who turn up to work and steers US reconstruction contracts towards his friends. "He's not a good man, he wants money and bribes," said one, reflecting comments from several visitors.

Jabar vigorously denies such allegations – indeed, they were linked to one pistol-waving incident in a meeting with the Americans. Yet such behaviour would not be unusual in Afghanistan, where bribery lubricates the patronage-based system that Karzai and past leaders have used to hold the ethnically diverse country together. The dilemma runs through the entire project in Afghanistan. Western officials want to impose a template of efficient administration, but to do this they have little choice but to work with leaders who rely on the traditional system to survive.

In Kandahar, the dilemma is acute. Afghanistan's centralised system means that Jabar is dependent on the provincial government based in the city to send officers to fill his largely empty building, but only a few have materialised. Indeed, Alakozai elders believe rivals from Karzai's Popalzai tribe are exploiting official positions in Kandahar to accumulate political and economic influence at their expense.

There is a deeper tension. US officials often speak of putting an "Afghan face" on their work. They want to make it seem as if local leaders are behind improvements to bolster their standing in the eyes of their people. Yet the talk of appearances is a tacit recognition that the enterprise is, to some extent, founded on creating an illusion of an Afghan government at work, in the hope that a real administration will rapidly follow. Can such an approach succeed? Assessing this is hard when even venturing into the valley is a potentially life-threatening undertaking.

. . .

The risk of attack in Arghandab is so high that during a recent week in January, Melton and Harich barely ventured from the base – apart from a brief trip in an armoured convoy to catch up with superiors in Kandahar city. Soldiers of the 82nd Airborne tend to get closer to the locals. Even a short trip out into the east side of the valley shows how close at hand the Taliban are, and how hard it will be to persuade people that they are safe enough to side with Jabar.

The soldiers leave the base in high-wheeled armoured vehicles called Cougar M-Raps – designed to resist roadside bombs. Lieutenant Ryan Christmas, a reassuringly experienced veteran of the 82nd, gives a briefing on where the convoy should go if it gets hit by an IED. "Call out what you see, gunners stay vigilant in what you're doing," he yells at his men, -clustered around him before departure. "If it looks wrong and smells wrong, it -probably is wrong."

From the bullet-proof window, a procession of mud homes that seem to grow organically from the valley floor rolled past. A few weeks before, a man had pulled out a pistol and shot and wounded two Afghan policemen near the road. These days, insurgents are targeting foot patrols to make it more dangerous to try to build up a rapport with locals.

Sgt Donny Kuehner takes tea with Haji Jhapour

At a US outpost at a village called Sakari Bagh, Sergeant Donny -Kuehner, a 23-year-old from southern California, led a patrol through a bazaar of ramshackle stalls selling blotchy bunches of bananas dangling from strings and stacked cans of Power Stag – "World's Finest Quality Motor Oil". Removing his helmet, Kuehner entered a petrol station owned by Haji Jhapour – the unofficial king of the bazaar – whose assistant served green tea. An Afghan policeman wearing mascara and a yellow bandana round his neck joined the circle as the two men talked, via an interpreter.

"How do people in the bazaar feel about us being here?" Kuehner asked.

"The people in the bazaar are good people, they're busy doing business," Jhapour replied.

"You heard anything lately about any kind of Taliban anywhere, or anything?" Kuehner asked.

"I'm so busy with my business, I don't have time to follow the Taliban – this is the job of the police," Jhapour said, gesturing to the man with the mascara. "When people come here and buy petrol I sometimes hear news. If I hear anything, I'll let you know."

As he walked back into the base, Kuehner confessed it was hard to know where local loyalties lay. Some of the labourers busy filling barriers with earth to build up the outpost's defences had been beaten by Taliban fighters. "The locals are the key to all this," Kuehner said. "Getting them on our side – if we could do that – it would be leaps and bounds from where we are now."

Such ambiguous encounters are the stuff of the daily grind of counter-insurgency, where building relationships is critical. After gradually -adopting such an approach to fight the insurgency in Iraq, the US military is honing its skills in Afghanistan. But it is clear that soldiers can only do so much: unless a viable government emerges, their presence will have scant lasting impact. As the US faces the risk of increasingly messy conflicts in parts of Asia, Africa and the Middle East, building governance just after the fighting will be increasingly decisive.

Critics of the approach believe the US is being sucked into an open-ended "nation-building" exercise in Afghanistan. Barack Obama has been careful to downplay such suggestions <http://www.ft.com/cms/s/0/5f6ce026-df6d-11de-98ca-00144feab49a.html> , though in Arghandab, the -distinction is blurry.

Locals at work on a US combat outpost

On the mountainside near the governor's office, women climb winding steps to a shrine set high above the valley. They whisper wishes into stones, wrap them in shimmering cloth and hang them from a pole planted in the tomb of the saint.

The site feels forlorn. Fountains cascading down the rocks have run dry. A restaurant with a panoramic view, film-set staircases and ornamental trees lies abandoned. Turquoise tiles on the mausoleum dome are cracked.

Clad in their body armour, Melton and Harich take a tour with the -governor one afternoon. Melton wants to see the restaurant reopen – if a new owner can be found. There is talk of installing a pump to make the fountains flow. In the valley, a pair of US helicopters pirouette, scanning for insurgents. As the trio ambles about, an explosion sounds far off on the valley floor. It sends up a puff of grey smoke. Talk of renovation jars with the reality that the fighting season will soon resume – and the window to get anything done is closing fast.

There is one surprise. One morning, Agha, the retired Taliban commander from the west side, decided to pay a visit. An enigmatic figure, he clutched prayer beads and produced a certificate from US forces saying he had been imprisoned for four months in 2004 but no longer posed a threat. He seemed to want Jabar and his crowd to know this. Should he decide to work with them, US officers hope for an easier year.

Perhaps the influx of troops and resources committed by Washington may encourage men like Agha to reconsider their loyalties. But after 30 years of war, building institutions will be harder. Both the US civilians and military in Arghandab were doing their best to help Jabar establish a -government. But all participants seemed conscious that even their best efforts might not be enough. When Melton and Harich leave, there are no guarantees that Jabar will prosper.

In his waistcoat pocket, the governor keeps a tin of green chewing tobacco, a medallion for "excellence" given to him by the soldiers of the ill-fated 1-17, and a hand-written letter from Afghanistan's intelligence service warning of a Taliban death threat. "Every day they are killing someone," he said. Then he climbed once more into his Toyota to brave the road back to -Kandahar once more, taking his empty tea flask and his gun.

Matthew Green covers Afghanistan and Pakistan for the FT. His last story for the magazine was about the governor of Lagos State. Read it at ft.com/lagos <http://www.ft.com/cms/s/2/3d3209aa-8225-11de-9c5e-00144feabdc0.html>

Copyright <http://www.ft.com/servicestools/help/copyright> The Financial Times Limited 2010. Print a single copy of this article for personal use. Contact us <http://ftcorporate.ft.com/contact-us.html> if you wish to print more to distribute to others.

"FT" and "Financial Times" are trademarks of the Financial Times. Privacy policy <http://www.ft.com/servicestools/help/privacy> | Terms <http://www.ft.com/servicestools/help/terms>
© Copyright The Financial Times <http://www.ft.com/servicestools/help/copyright> Ltd 2010.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 3, 2010 5:12 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'; 'Russorv@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Congrats!

Pls add Kris to may call list and draft note to him.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri Mar 26 17:13:11 2010
Subject: Fw: Congrats!

---

From: kris.durmer [redacted] B6
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Fri Mar 26 16:54:53 2010
Subject: Congrats!

Dear Cheryl - -

My name is Kris Durmer, and I am the recently appointed (9/21/09) General Counsel of GSA. I am also from NH and a long-time supporter and acquaintance of Secretary Clinton and the former President. Please convey my best wishes and congratulations to the Secretary for the recent US-Russia nuclear agreement and her work generally over the last year. She has been terrific!

My best,

Kris

Kris E. Durmer
General Counsel
U.S. General Services Administration
1800 F Street NW, Suite 4140
Washington, DC 20405
Tel: 202-501-2200
Fax: 202-501-2509
[redacted]

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE:
This email message and any attachments to this email message may contain confidential information belonging to the sender which is legally privileged. The information is intended for the use of the individual or entity to whom it is addressed. Please do not forward this message without permission. If you are not the intended recipient or the employee or agent responsible for delivering it to the intended recipient, you are hereby notified that any disclosure, copying, distribution or the taking of any action in reliance on the contents of this transmission is strictly prohibited. If you have received this transmission in error, please notify us immediately by telephone or return email and destroy the original email message, any attachments thereto and all copies thereof.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 3, 2010 5:14 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: S-Ashton Update

I did not mention this because not sure how I felt about it, but if all agree it would help, I will call her.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Tue Mar 30 12:53:19 2010
Subject: Fw: S-Ashton Update

Fyi

---

From: Mull, Stephen D
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Cc: Montgomery, Molly C; Baxter, Shawn; Lang, Alan; Waller, Robert P; P-NEA Duty; Waser, Tamir G
Sent: Tue Mar 30 12:45:10 2010
Subject: S-Ashton Update

Hi Jake,

You'll see that the Secretary's points for Ashton mention the idea of our sending an inter-agency expert team to Brussels for the next few months to improve US-EU coordination on Iran sanctions prep. EU officials had been receptive, but now the bureaucrats are saying this would be "counter-productive", and instead prefer more regular videoconferences. Which is probably OK. Anyway, I just wanted you to know the background, in case it comes up in the Ashton meeting.

Steve

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, May 1, 2010 6:23 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: START

We also need to brief Rice.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat May 01 18:00:12 2010
Subject: START

We've got a plan [redacted] Ellen will pass on details early next week. B5

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 3, 2010 6:32 PM
To: 'Russorv@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Congrats!

Same to you--Happy Easter!

----- Original Message -----
From: Russo, Robert V <RussoRV@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Apr 03 17:22:58 2010
Subject: Re: Congrats!

I will prepare for Tuesday. Happy Easter!

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Jiloty, Lauren C; Russo, Robert V
Sent: Sat Apr 03 17:12:15 2010
Subject: Fw: Congrats!

Pls add Kris to may call list and draft note to him.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri Mar 26 17:13:11 2010
Subject: Fw: Congrats!

---

From: kris.durmer [redacted] B6
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Fri Mar 26 16:54:53 2010
Subject: Congrats!

Dear Cheryl - -

My name is Kris Durmer, and I am the recently appointed (9/21/09) General Counsel of GSA. I am also from NH and a long-time supporter and acquaintance of Secretary Clinton and the former President. Please convey my best wishes and congratulations to the Secretary for the recent US-Russia nuclear agreement and her work generally over the last year. She has been terrific!

My best,

Kris

Kris E. Durmer
General Counsel
U.S. General Services Administration
1800 F Street NW, Suite 4140
Washington, DC 20405
Tel: 202-501-2200
Fax: 202-501-2509

B6

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE:
This email message and any attachments to this email message may contain confidential information belonging to the sender which is legally privileged. The information is intended for the use of the individual or entity to whom it is addressed. Please do not forward this message without permission. If you are not the intended recipient or the employee or agent responsible for delivering it to the intended recipient, you are hereby notified that any disclosure, copying, distribution or the taking of any action in reliance on the contents of this transmission is strictly prohibited. If you have received this transmission in error, please notify us immediately by telephone or return email and destroy the original email message, any attachments thereto and all copies thereof.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, May 2, 2010 7:36 AM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Am up if you are

Can you call now?

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun May 02 07:27:30 2010
Subject: Re: Am up if you are Going running at 8am

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D
To: 'hdr22@clintonemail.com' <hdr22@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sun May 02 07:11:54 2010
Subject: Am up if you are

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, May 2, 2010 1:22 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Call list

Pls add:

Alan Bersin over at DHS.
John Kerry and note subjects--Asad, Karzai,

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, May 2, 2010 1:22 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Scheduling

Here are a few odds and ends:

Since I'm going to the Bahrain Manama Conf in December, I want to decide where else I might go. The. climate conf in Mexico will be held Nov 29-Dec 10. There is also a Dec 10 conf on trafficking in Luxor sponsored by Mrs. Mubarak that Melanne hopes I could attend.

Add to list of meetings the following--

Ron Kirk
Hilda Solis
Walter Isaacson--high priority
Sandy Levin
Loretta Sanchez
Max Baucus
Eliot Engel

Ben Cardin wants me to come give a speech about the 35th anniversary of the Helsinki Accords on the Hill so I thought If I'm going back to Helsinki for a speech about the Helinski Accords in July maybe I should do the Hill speech around that time.

Also, Cheryl wants a staff retreat/meeting so what about May 14 or 28?

Did you get info about the Vietnam symposium the State historian, Carland, invited me to open on 9/29?

I want to plan to go to the Arctic Council in Greenland next April.

Did you find out when Cong Reyes's conf on border security was in August?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, May 2, 2010 5:16 PM
To: 'balderstonkm@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Expo Update

Yeah!! Can we get some good statistics and anecdotes to share w our sponsors, the press and the administration to tell the story?

----- Original Message -----
From: Balderston, Kris M <BalderstonKM@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun May 02 13:55:52 2010
Subject: Re: Expo Update

I have asked Jose to get you a more detailed report but I must tell you the opening of the USA Pavilion has been a great success so far - at least among the expo-goers. A few vignettes.

- while we don't want to brag to our Chinese hosts, our Pavilion has become the most popular. During the trial runs last week, the Chinese expo-goers rushed directly from the gates to the USAP (and even broke some of our turn-styles). Needless to say, the Chinese have improved security. On EACH of the first two days, 30,000 pple visited. Lines are long and pple are loving the show. We are also getting many foreign officials to visit.

- the 100 US college student ambassadors (who act as guides and speak Mandarin) are the biggest hits of the pavilion. Fair-goers stand in line to have their photo's taken w them. They explain the show and send a great message.

- the story line that we thght was simplistic is quite popular (the overture where Americans try to say hello in mandarin is met w howls of laughter and Act II called the Garden is doing well). During the thunderstorm scene a mist comes from the ceiling and some pple put up their umbrellas. Act I is a bit too commercial but the audience claps and take photo's when you and President come on the screen.

- we are selling tons of USA merchandise - the two most popular items - mini-basketballs with the USAP seal on it and the bison stuffed animals - who knew?

Anyway, thght u'd enjoy the quick report. I cannot imagine us not being here! We will keep you posted.

Smart power works!

----- Original Message -----
From: Balderston, Kris M
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sun Apr 25 18:14:14 2010
Subject: Re: Followup

Thnx on GPF. A lot of ideas out there.

Kurt and Hormats were looking into it. Will bug them in the am.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>

To: Balderston, Kris M
Sent: Sun Apr 25 17:07:54 2010
Subject: Followup

I heard you did a great job at the Global Philanthropy Forum. Thx.

Also, where are we w Corning? Can you consult w EAP and E to find out what we can do?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, May 2, 2010 5:17 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Expo Update

Pls print. Thx.

----- Original Message -----
From: Balderston, Kris M <BalderstonKM@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun May 02 13:55:52 2010
Subject: Re: Expo Update

I have asked Jose to get you a more detailed report but I must tell you the opening of the USA Pavilion has been a great success so far - at least among the expo-goers. A few vignettes.

- while we don't want to brag to our Chinese hosts, our Pavilion has become the most popular. During the trial runs last week, the Chinese expo-goers rushed directly from the gates to the USAP (and even broke some of our turn-styles). Needless to say, the Chinese have improved security. On EACH of the first two days, 30,000 pple visited. Lines are long and pple are loving the show. We are also getting many foreign officials to visit.

- the 100 US college student ambassadors (who act as guides and speak Mandarin) are the biggest hits of the pavilion. Fair-goers stand in line to have their photo's taken w them. They explain the show and send a great message.

- the story line that we thght was simplistic is quite popular (the overture where Americans try to say hello in mandarin is met w howls of laughter and Act II called the Garden is doing well). During the thunderstorm scene a mist comes from the ceiling and some pple put up their umbrellas. Act I is a bit too commercial but the audience claps and take photo's when you and President come on the screen.

- we are selling tons of USA merchandise - the two most popular items - mini-basketballs with the USAP seal on it and the bison stuffed animals - who knew?

Anyway, thght u'd enjoy the quick report. I cannot imagine us not being here! We will keep you posted.

Smart power works!

----- Original Message -----
From: Balderston, Kris M
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sun Apr 25 18:14:14 2010
Subject: Re: Followup

Thnx on GPF. A lot of ideas out there.

Kurt and Hormats were looking into it. Will bug them in the am.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Balderston, Kris M

Sent: Sun Apr 25 17:07:54 2010
Subject: Followup

I heard you did a great job at the Global Philanthropy Forum. Thx.

Also, where are we w Corning? Can you consult w EAP and E to find out what we can do?

RELEASE IN PART
1.4(B),B1,1.4(D)

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, May 2, 2010 10:26 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: AU/Iran

[redacted] 1.4(D) B1

Also, I just saw on the schedule I was expected to speak for only 12 minutes. I think the speech as written is longer but I haven't seen the final draft. Is there a teleprompter?

I also don't yet have any briefing materials. Will I get them tonight or tomorrow morning?

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun May 02 21:21:08 2010
Subject: AU/Iran

From Johnnie, [redacted] 1.4(B) 1.4(D) B1

[redacted]

[redacted] Regards, Johnnie

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 05/02/2020

RELEASE IN PART
1.4(B),B1,B5,1.4(D),B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, May 2, 2010 10:42 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: AU/Iran

Ok.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun May 02 22:33:46 2010
Subject: Re: AU/Iran

[redacted] B5

On the speech, it might be 15 but not much more. Dan K-P has taken over drafting [redacted] B6
[redacted] He has been incorporating fine-tuning edits today. I will email you a draft shortly, which will be tweaked in the am. [redacted] Unfortunately, there is no teleprompter at the UN. B5

On your book, I understand that Huma will bring it out in the morning.

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 05/02/2020

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sun May 02 22:26:00 2010
Subject: Re: AU/Iran

[redacted] 1.4(D) B1

Also, I just saw on the schedule I was expected to speak for only 12 minutes. I think the speech as written is longer but I haven't seen the final draft. Is there a teleprompter?

I also don't yet have any briefing materials. Will I get them tonight or tomorrow morning?

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun May 02 21:21:08 2010
Subject: AU/Iran

From Johnnie [redacted] 1.4(B) 1.4(D) B1

[redacted]

[redacted]

Regards, Johnnie

1.4(B)
1.4(D)
B1

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, May 3, 2010 5:47 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: 6:00 PSD call

Will you be on it?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, March 9, 2010 6:51 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Libya

Explain again why we shouldn't have PJ apologize?

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, May 4, 2010 10:40 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: S stop in Ecuador

I would like to discuss.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Tue May 04 10:38:04 2010
Subject: Fw: S stop in Ecuador

Fyi - Arturo making a renewed pitch for ecuador. We haven't discussed further yet [redacted] B5

[redacted]

----- Original Message -----
From: Valenzuela, Arturo A
To: Kelly, Craig A; Jacobson, Roberta S; Reynoso, Julissa; Drucker, Milton K; Sullivan, Jacob J; Abedin, Huma; Fuchs, Michael H; Bennett, Virginia L
Cc: Gonzalez, Juan S
Sent: Mon May 03 10:36:36 2010
Subject: S stop in Ecuador

Would like to make a renewed pitch for stop in Ecuador. [redacted]

[redacted]

Best, Arturo

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, October 23, 2010 10:50 PM
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma
Subject: Fw:

I thought you would like to see this. AM

---

From: Odeh Aburdene [redacted] B6
To: Slaughter, Anne-Marie
Sent: Sat Oct 23 21:16:05 2010
Subject:

Anne-Marie

Hillary Clinton gave a speech at the American Task Force on Palestine on October 20th. Her speech was the best speech that any US Secretary of State has given on the Palestine question. What made her speech different was her emphasis on two concepts that resonate with Arabs and Moslems mirroring justice and dignity. Her speech was well received and several Arab commentators wrote positively about what she said.

Regards, Odeh

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, May 4, 2010 12:12 PM
To: 'hanleymr@state.gov'
Subject: May Esquire

Can you pick up a few copies of the magazine for me?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, May 4, 2010 5:37 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: E3+Ashton

Ok w me.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Tue May 04 14:42:36 2010
Subject: E3+Ashton

Steve Mull is proposing that you do a conference call with the E3 FMs and Ashton sometime this week. Here is the rationale and background:

The European Union Foreign Affairs Council, comprised of all 27 EU Foreign Ministers, will next meet on May 10. In a conversation April 26, Bill Burns persuaded the E3 and European Commission to support adding to the agenda of that meeting a discussion of preparations for the sanctions the EU will impose following passage of a UNSCR.

The European Council, comprised of the EU's heads of government, will meet on June 16-17 – a meeting which could direct the imposition of such sanctions if we succeed in passing an UNSCR by then.

The purpose of your teleconference would be to hear from the E3 and Ashton a status report on the EU's preparations to impose such sanctions, and to discuss how the U.S. could best support the EU's forward progress. It would supplement experts' level consultations we have been conducting for several weeks, including meetings on May 3 and May 6.

The measures the Europeans are considering include bans on new Iranian bank branches in the EU, correspondent banking relationships, new investment in the Iranian energy sector, and on access for Iranian ships to European ports.

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, March 9, 2010 7:56 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Libya

Talk w PJ and Jeff before staff mtg and work out appropriate language. B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Tue Mar 09 07:40:06 2010
Subject: Re: Libya

I was thinking the same thing after Jeff's latest missive last night.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Tue Mar 09 06:50:48 2010
Subject: Libya

Explain again why we shouldn't have PJ apologize?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, March 10, 2010 12:11 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Schedule

Can you send my mini?

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, May 5, 2010 10:40 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Note from Dick Gephardt

Ok.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Wed May 05 22:20:16 2010
Subject: FW: Note from Dick Gephardt

See below – you fine with this?

cdm

From: Gordon, Philip H
Sent: Wednesday, May 05, 2010 10:00 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D; Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Re: Note from Dick Gephardt

Recommend she do it. In fact we had arranged for a meeting in March but Ms. Boyner's trip was cancelled. We can send up a new meeting request.

---

From: Mills, Cheryl D
To: Sullivan, Jacob J; Gordon, Philip H
Sent: Wed May 05 21:18:07 2010
Subject: FW: Note from Dick Gephardt

Thoughts on this?

From: Dick Gephardt [mailto:[redacted]] B6
Sent: Wednesday, May 05, 2010 4:05 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: Note from Dick Gephardt

Dear Cheryl:

I have been asked by the Turkish Embassy, who I represent, to request a meeting with Secretary Clinton for Mrs. Umit Boyner, a prominent Turkish business woman. Such a meeting could be whenever and wherever you determine most convenient for the Secretary -- either in Washington, DC or Turkey.

As you will see from the biographical information below, Mrs. Boyner has had a distinguished career as a businesswoman, and she has also devoted time to philanthropy as well. Mrs. Boyner was recently selected to be the chair person of the board of one of the most prominent Turkish business organizations, the Turkish Industrialists' and Businessmen's Association (TUSIAD) – an organization comparable to the Business Roundtable. I have also attached a document providing additional background information on TUSIAD.

Mrs. Umit is a great admirer of Secretary Clinton's and would be extremely honored to be able to meet with her. I know the Secretary is extremely busy, but I hope she can find a window to meet with Mrs. Umit. Thanks for all you help and my personal regards to Secretary Clinton.

Best,

Dick

---

Brief Biography of Umit Boyner

Mrs. Umit Boyner, is currently the chair of the Turkish Industrialists' and Businessmen's Association (TUSIAD) Board of Directors and head of the Country Communication Fund. Mrs. Boyner was selected to chair TUSIAD's Board at the 40th General Assembly meeting held in Istanbul on January 21, 2010.

Born in 1963, Mrs. Boyner received a BA degree in Economics from the University of Rochester in the US. She began her professional career in 1985 at Chemical Mitsui Bank, followed by senior positions at the finance departments of several companies. In 1996 she became the Vice-President in charge of Finance at Boyner Group. In 2002 she became a board member overseeing the finances and investments of the group.

Mrs. Boyner has been serving on the Board of TUSIAD since 2005, initially as a board member in charge of the External Communication Commission, later as a vice-chair. Mrs. Boyner also devotes her time to various NGOs such as the Education Volunteers Foundation of Turkey (TEGV), Turkish Institute of Nautical Archaeology (TINA), and Tohum Autism Foundation. She was also the President of the Corporate Volunteer Association for two years, and a founding member and vice-president for four years of the Women Entrepreneurs Association (KAGIDER). Since 2008 she has been serving on the Middle East Advisory Board of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Mrs. Boyner is married and has two children.

TUSIAD's new Board of Directors consists of the following individuals:

Umit Boyner: Chairperson

Haluk Dincer: Vice-Chair

Tayfun Bayazit: Vice-Chair

Cansen Basaran Symes: Member

Lucien Arkas: Member

Mehmet Ali Aydinlar: Member

Erman Ilicak: Member

Ali Kibar: Member

Volkan Vural: Member

Muharrem Yilmaz: Member

Zafer Ali Yavan: Member, Secretary General

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, November 16, 2010 5:15 PM
To: H
Subject: FW: (AP) Fate of Mideast talks in hands of polarizing rabbi

Worth reading. B5

From: Larkins, Neal B
Sent: Tuesday, November 16, 2010 5:12 PM
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_Shift-III
Subject: (AP) Fate of Mideast talks in hands of polarizing rabbi

JERUSALEM (AP) - The future of the Mideast peace process could rest in the hands of one very undiplomatic man: an outspoken 90-year-old rabbi who recently sparked an uproar by saying the Palestinian president should "perish from the world." The ultra-Orthodox Shas Party is expected to hold the swing vote when Cabinet ministers decide on a U.S. proposal to resume Mideast peace talks. The two Shas ministers participating in the decision are waiting for instructions from the party's spiritual leader, Rabbi Ovadia Yosef. "All decisions go through the rabbi," said Roi Lachmanovitch, a spokesman for the Shas interior minister. The drama has once again turned the enigmatic rabbi, who has managed to offend Arabs, secular Jews, Holocaust survivors, women and gays with fiery comments over the years, into the familiar role of kingmaker. Politicians from outside his party, including Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, are now lobbying for his support. Officials in Netanyahu's office said his 15-member Security Cabinet - a group of senior government ministers - remains closely divided, with the outcome of the vote hinging on the two Shas members. Amid the uncertainty, Israeli officials said a planned vote for November 17 had been put on hold.

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, May 5, 2010 10:58 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: NY meeting

[redacted] B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Wed May 05 22:53:34 2010
Subject: NY meeting

Erica flagged for me, and Bill Burns just called to confirm, that Mottaki has asked the perm reps of the Security Council to have dinner tomorrow night.

Susan can't attend because she's here in DC, but proposes Alex Wolff attend in her place. [redacted] B5

[redacted]

You can discuss with Bill and Jim in the am, but wanted to flag.

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, May 5, 2010 11:02 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: NY meeting

Ok

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Wed May 05 22:59:57 2010
Subject: Re: NY meeting

B5

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Wed May 05 22:57:33 2010
Subject: Re: NY meeting

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Wed May 05 22:53:34 2010
Subject: NY meeting

Erica flagged for me, and Bill Burns just called to confirm, that Mottaki has asked the perm reps of the Security Council to have dinner tomorrow night.

Susan can't attend because she's here in DC, but proposes Alex Wolff attend in her place.

You can discuss with Bill and Jim in the am, but wanted to flag.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, May 6, 2010 7:38 AM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: Maggie

I'd like to see her next week. Does Thursday night work?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, March 11, 2010 7:04 AM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Administration should include education assistance in supplemental funding request for Haiti, Lugar says

Let's discuss today.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Wed Mar 10 21:05:36 2010
Subject: FW: Administration should include education assistance in supplemental funding request for Haiti, Lugar says

FYI

From: Curtis, Meghann A
Sent: Wednesday, March 10, 2010 6:34 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D; Warnholz, Jean-Louis
Subject: FW: Administration should include education assistance in supplemental funding request for Haiti, Lugar says

Not good. The Hills is trying to tie our hands all over the place.

From: Bulgrin, Julie K
Sent: Wednesday, March 10, 2010 6:30 PM
To: Curtis, Meghann A; Reynoso, Julissa; Brigety, Reuben; De Pirro, Velia M; Chartrand, Jennifer; Rademacher, Paul R; Stout, Jennifer P
Cc: Rayburn, Dorothy J; Gonzalez, Juan S; Pressfield, Justin C
Subject: FW: Administration should include education assistance in supplemental funding request for Haiti, Lugar says

Dick Lugar

U.S. Senator for Indiana

Date: 3/10/2010 • http://lugar.senate.gov <http://lugar.senate.gov/>

Andy Fisher • 202-224-2079 • andy_fisher@lugar.senate.gov

Administration should include education assistance in supplemental funding request for Haiti, Lugar says

Getting Haitian children back in classrooms should be a priority in U.S. assistance to Haiti, U.S. Sen. Dick Lugar said today after attending the White House Rose Garden ceremony with President Barack Obama hosting Haitian President René Préval. Earlier in the day, former President Bill Clinton also told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that this should be a priority.

"As the Administration prepares to present its supplemental appropriations request for Haiti, a top priority for recovery and long term reconstruction efforts in Haiti should include significant assistance to get Haitian children quickly back into the classroom," Lugar said. "Assistance for infrastructure, technical assistance for instruction and curriculum development especially should be included. Only with a strong education initiative will Haiti have a chance at a better future."

Lugar directed two staff members to accompany a Congressional Delegation to Haiti on Friday, March 5. During the visit, staff saw firsthand the devastation experienced by Haitians and reported to Lugar that thousands of schools in and around Port au Prince could remain closed for months or never reopen. As a result, Haitian children could be left languishing in refugee camps. Before the January 12 earthquake approximately one-half of Haiti <http://topics.nytimes.com/top/news/international/countriesandterritories/haiti/index.html?inline=nyt-geo> 's school-age children were enrolled in classes. Children make up about 45 percent of Haiti's population.

"The relationship between the United States and the Haitian government should be a consensual, cooperative arrangement that preserves Haitian participation in decisions, while ensuring that the resources and expertise of the United States Government and international community are brought to bear on the daily problems of Haiti. Education of the Haiti's youth is an appropriate starting point," Lugar said.

###

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, April 4, 2010 8:40 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Will call you at 10pm

Can we talk at 7:30 am?

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Apr 04 18:16:04 2010
Subject: Will call you at 10pm

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, May 6, 2010 6:07 PM
To: 'sbwhoeop[redacted]
Subject: Re: H: IMPORTANT. Memo on UK election, am in London, Sid

Thx. What's happening?

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop[redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Wed May 05 13:51:30 2010
Subject: H: IMPORTANT. Memo on UK election, am in London, Sid

CONFIDENTIAL

May 5, 2010

For: Hillary
From: Sid
Re: British election

First and most important: Do NOT, repeat, NOT, call any prospective winner on either Election Night, May 6, or on the next day, Friday, May 7. The result will be unclear. It will not be clear, even perhaps by Friday afternoon. Today, the combined polls show Cameron and the Conservatives ahead but not winning an outright majority. The latest Guardian poll, out tomorrow, shown me by Alan Rusbridger today, has the Tories falling short of a majority of seats. Even if Cameron were to win an outright majority, Brown and Labour will attempt to make a deal with Clegg and the Liberal Democrats. Brown remains as Prime Minister unless the Tories win outright, which take a long time to determine. Labour and the Lib-Dems will almost certainly gain about 60 percent of the vote, more or less. Brown will reach out to Clegg to stay in power. The deal will be that Brown will approve a referendum on proportional representation giving the LDs much greater representationin future elections. That will spell the end forever of the Tories ever coming to power. The Tories see the election in apocalyptic terms—and they are not wrong. Brown's weakness heralds the sort of grand progressive coalition/alliance that Tony imagined but was never able to attempt between Labour and the LDs. Brown offering the referendum would be the first step toward that. In the case of the Tories falling short of an outright majority in seats, they will respond as though Brown is acting illegitimately, which he would not be by remaining as PM and dealing with Clegg. Informed people are already talking of what might begin to unfold on Friday as "Florida." The Tories, backed by the Murdoch press, will attempt to push Labour aside by force majeure—something that will not succeed under those circumstances. The Murdochs are almost literally going crazy. James Murdoch and hiw wife stormed into the offices of The Independent, not a Murdoch paper, when the paper endorsed the LDs and confronted the publisher, screaming in the middle of the newsroom. Murdoch would be a big, big loser if Cameron loses. Another possibile outcome is that the Conservatives come up just short and attempt their own deal with the DUP to cover the gap in seats. Shaun is on to this potential, has been talking to Peter Robinson.

No matter what, keep your powder dry until the result is crystal clear. Wait.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, May 7, 2010 8:19 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: DPRK

I thought prox talks started.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri May 07 08:11:18 2010
Subject: DPRK

Wanted to make sure you saw this item:

Traces of gunpowder found in the wreckage of a sunken Republic of Korea naval ship have been identified as those generated by the explosion of a torpedo, an anonymous ROK government official said. (yonhapnews.co.kr)

Also, we're still in a bit of a holding pattern on prox talks, though looking very good.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, May 7, 2010 4:25 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: Re: S video on Mother's Day

This is sooo sweet. Thank you.

----- Original Message -----
From: Valmoro, Lona J <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri May 07 15:36:56 2010
Subject: FW: S video on Mother's Day

MS -- A wonderful note!

From: Kane, Kristin M
Sent: Friday, May 07, 2010 3:34 PM
To: Valmoro, Lona J
Subject: S video on Mother's Day

Hi Lona, I just saw the S video for Mother's Day: After nearly 10 years of working for the Department, this ranks as one of my proudest, most fulfilling moments of serving as a Foreign Service Officer.

B6

Clearly I'm not the only one who has made these sacrifices or who has these frustrations; Secretary Clinton has heard our struggles (indeed has gone through her own struggles as a professional mom!), and she truly gets it.

I just wanted to tell somebody, and I remembered your name from the women's conference in December. Forgive this long message. Happy Mother's Day, and congratulations on working with such an incredible person.

Regards,

Kristin

Kristin M. Kane

Office of Public Affairs and Outreach

Bureau of International Organization Affairs

U.S. Department of State

Washington, DC

Tel: (202) 647-7994

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, May 7, 2010 5:25 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Maggie

I can't remember but don't I have some Karzai event? If not, what is he doing then?

----- Original Message -----
From: Valmoro, Lona J <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>
To: H; Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Fri May 07 17:06:01 2010
Subject: Maggie

MS -- I just spoke to Maggie and she can meet with you/do dinner on Tuesday night around 7pm. That works well on your schedule but of course wanted to double check before locking in with her.

Lona Valmoro
Special Assistant to the Secretary of State

B6

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, May 7, 2010 5:44 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Maggie

Ok--lets do Maggie. Maybe I could take her out to dinner.

----- Original Message -----
From: Valmoro, Lona J <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Fri May 07 17:39:40 2010
Subject: Re: Maggie

On Tuesday night, after our reception, he has nothing planned, "rest" time at the hotel. The VP dinner is Wednesday night.

Lona Valmoro
Special Assistant to the Secretary of State
[redacted]

B6

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Valmoro, Lona J
Sent: Fri May 07 17:24:58 2010
Subject: Re: Maggie

I can't remember but don't I have some Karzai event? If not, what is he doing then?

----- Original Message -----
From: Valmoro, Lona J <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>
To: H; Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Fri May 07 17:06:01 2010
Subject: Maggie

MS -- I just spoke to Maggie and she can meet with you/do dinner on Tuesday night around 7pm. That works well on your schedule but of course wanted to double check before locking in with her.

Lona Valmoro
Special Assistant to the Secretary of State
[redacted]

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, May 8, 2010 6:57 AM
To: 'slaughtera@state.gov'
Subject: Re: The political ramifications of the Greek/European debt crisis

Pls share w me whatever S/P prepares. B5
Thx.

----- Original Message -----
From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Thu May 06 19:18:12 2010
Subject: The political ramifications of the Greek/European debt crisis

As you know, the EU-IMF-USG consensus hope motivating the Greek bailout is that it will buy time for Spain, Portugal, etc. From widening credit spreads to falling stock prices, most relevant market indicators are responding with doubt. Former IMF Chief Economist and NYT Columnist (and influential blogger for bond traders) Simon Johnson has an important rejoinder to this consensus hope in today's NYT, full text pasted below.

As the EU has no playbook for most of the pressing questions it faces, my staff is working to brainstorm as to the least bad of what are only sobering options.

This is long but worth it.

May 6, 2010, 6:11 amIt's Not About Greece AnymoreBy PETER BOONE AND SIMON JOHNSONLouisa Gouliamaki/Agence France-Presse — Getty Images Protesters waved flags from the Acropolis archaeological site behind banners in English and Greek hung in front of the Parthenon temple in Athens.Peter Boone is chairman of the charity Effective Intervention and a research associate at the Center for Economic Performance at the London School of Economics. He is also a principal in Salute Capital Management Ltd. Simon Johnson, the former chief economist at the International Monetary Fund, is the co-author of "13 Bankers."The Greek "rescue" package announced last weekend is dramatic, unprecedented and far from enough to stabilize the euro zone.The Greek government and the European Union leadership, prodded by the International Monetary Fund, are finally becoming realistic about the dire economic situation in Greece. They have abandoned previous rounds of optimistic forecasts and have now admitted to a profoundly worse situation. This new program calls for "fiscal adjustments" — cuts to the fiscal deficit, mostly through spending cuts — totaling 11 percent of gross domestic product in 2010, 4.3 percent in 2011, and 2 percent in 2012 and 2013. The total debt-to-G.D.P. ratio peaks at 149 percent in 2012-13 before starting a gentle glide path back down to sanity.This new program is honest enough to show why it is unlikely to succeed.Daniel Gros, an eminent economist on euro zone issues based in Brussels, has argued that for each 1 percent of G.D.P. decline in Greek government spending, total demand in the country falls by 2.5 percent of G.D.P. If the government reduces spending by 15 percent of G.D.P. — the initial shock to demand could be well over 30 percent of G.D.P.Obviously this simple rule does not work with such large numbers, but it illustrates that Greece is likely to experience a very sharp recession — and there is substantial uncertainty around how bad the economy will get. The program announced last weekend assumes Greek G.D.P. falls by 4 percent this year, then by another 2.6 percent in 2011, before recovering to positive growth in 2012 and beyond.Such figures seem extremely optimistic, particularly in the face of the civil unrest now sweeping Greece and the deep hostility expressed toward

Greece in some northern European policy circles.The pattern of growth is critical because, under this program, Greece needs to grow out of its debt problem soon. Greece's debt-to-G.D.P. ratio will be a debilitating 145 percent at the end of 2011.Now consider putting more realistic growth figures into the I.M.F. forecast for Greece's economy — e.g., with G.D.P. declining 12 percent in 2011, then the debt-to-G.D.P. ratio may reach 155 percent. At these levels, with a 5 percent real interest rate and no growth, the country needs a primary surplus at 8 percent of G.D.P. to keep the debt-to-G.D.P. ratio stable. It will be nowhere near that level. The I.M.F. program has Greece running a primary budget deficit of around 1 percent of G.D.P. in that year, and that assumes a path for Greek growth that can be regarded only as an "upside scenario."The politics of these implied budget surpluses remains brutal. Since most Greek debt is held abroad, roughly 80 percent of the budget savings the Greek government makes go straight to Germans, French and other foreign debt holders (mostly banks). If growth turns out poorly, will the Greeks be prepared for ever-tougher austerity to pay the Germans? Even if everything goes well, Greek citizens seem unlikely to welcome this version of their "new normal."

Last week the European leadership panicked — very late in the day — when it realized that the euro zone itself was at risk of a meltdown. If the euro zone proves unwilling to protect a member like Greece from default, then bond investors will run from Portugal and Spain also — if you doubt this, study carefully the interlocking debt picture published recently in The New York Times. Higher yields on government debt would have caused concerns about potential bank runs in these nations, and then spread to more nations in Europe.When there is such a "run," it is not clear where it stops. In the hazy distance, Belgium, France, Austria and many others were potentially at risk.

Even the Germans cannot afford to bail out those nations.Slapped in the face by this ugly scenario, the Europeans decided to throw everything they and the I.M.F. had at bailing out Greece. The program as announced has only a small chance of preventing eventual Greek bankruptcy, but it may still slow or avert a dangerous spiral downward — and enormous collateral damage — in the rest of Europe.The I.M.F. floated in some fashion an alternative scenario with a debt restructuring, but this was rejected by both the European Union and the Greek authorities. This is not a surprise; leading European policy makers are completely unprepared for broader problems that would follow a Greek "restructuring," because markets would immediately mark down the debt (i.e., increase the yields) for Portugal, Spain, Ireland and even Italy.The fear and panic in the face of this would be unparalleled in modern times: When the Greeks pay only 50 percent on the face value of their debt, what should investors expect from the Portuguese and Spanish? It all becomes arbitrary, including which countries are dragged down.Someone has to decide who should be defended and at what cost, and the European structures are completely unsuited to this kind of tough decision-making under pressure.In the extreme downside scenario, Germany is the only obvious safe haven within the euro zone, so its government bond yields would collapse while other governments face sharply rising yields. The euro zone would likely not hold together.There is still a narrow escape path, without immediate debt default and the chaos that that would produce:·

Talk down the euro — moving toward parity with the American dollar would help lift growth across the euroz one.·

As the euro falls, bond yields will rise on the euro zone periphery. This will create episodes of panic. Enough short-term financing must be in place to support the rollover of government debt.·

Once the euro has fallen a great deal, announce the European Central Bank will support the euro at those levels (i.e., prevent appreciation, with G-20 tacit agreement), and also support the peripheral euro zone nations viewed as solvent by buying their bonds whenever markets are chaotic.·

At that stage, but not before, the euro zone leadership needs to push weaker governments to restructure. That will include Greece and perhaps also Portugal. Hopefully, in this scenario Spain can muddle through.·

European banks should be recapitalized as necessary and have most of their management replaced. This is a massive failure of euro groupthink — including most notably at the political level — but there is no question that bank executives have not behaved responsibly in a long while and should be replaced en masse.To the extent possible, some of the ensuing losses should be shared with bank creditors. But be careful what you wish for. The bankers are powerful for a reason; they have built vital yet fragile structures at the heart of our economies. Dismantle with care.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, May 8, 2010 4:17 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: MEPP

Sounds right to me.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat May 08 16:09:19 2010
Subject: MEPP

Sen Mitchell proposes putting out the following statement tomorrow. We would respond on specific commitments on Ramat Shlomo if asked.

Special Envoy Mitchell left the Middle East on Sunday, where he completed the first round of proximity talks with Israeli and Palestinian leaders. The talks were serious and wide-ranging.

Special Envoy Mitchell emphasized the importance of making progress in the proximity talks and of moving to direct negotiations as soon as possible. We have received commitments from both sides, and we have made assurances to both sides, that are enabling us to move forward. The full scope of these discussions will remain private.

As both parties know, if either side takes significant actions during the proximity talks that we judge would seriously undermine trust, we will respond to hold them accountable and ensure that negotiations continue.

Special Envoy Mitchell will return to the region next week to continue indirect negotiations with the parties.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, May 8, 2010 5:54 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Mitchell statement

Good.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat May 08 17:52:28 2010
Subject: Mitchell statement

After further back and forth, we've come up with a way to mention Ramat Shlomo and incitement to violence that should be acceptable to both sides. The additional paragraph would read:

We have urged the parties to help create an atmosphere that is conducive to successful talks, and they are responding, including President Abbas' statement that he will work against incitement of any sort and Prime Minister Netanyahu's statement that there will be no construction at the Ramat Shlomo project for two years. They are both trying to move forward in difficult circumstances and we commend them for that.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, May 8, 2010 9:43 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Shuttle

I need to take the 8 since Bill is not going to DC tomorrow.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, May 9, 2010 6:47 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Tomorrow

Can I see Mitchell at 12 instead of 12:30? Also, what happened to McCrystal mtg?

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, April 6, 2010 9:10 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Fw: RADM Dave Stone

Pls add as option.

----- Original Message -----
From: Steve Abbot <[redacted]>
To: Steve Abbot <[redacted]>
Sent: Tue Apr 06 10:26:14 2010
Subject: RADM Dave Stone

B6

There will be an interment service at Arlington National Cemetery for RADM Dave Stone at 12:45 pm, July 14, 2010. This is a change from the originally planned date of May 26. Details to follow

ADM Charles S. Abbot, USN (Ret)

President, Navy-Marine Corps Relief Society

[redacted]

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, May 9, 2010 7:22 PM
To: 'sbwhoeop
Subject: Re: H: Sunday am report UK. I return later today to DC. Sid

I shared your emails w Bill who thought they were "brilliant"! Keep 'em coming when you can.

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop
To: H
Sent: Sun May 09 03:08:22 2010
Subject: H: Sunday am report UK. I return later today to DC. Sid

B6

CONFIDENTIAL

May 9, 2010

For: Hillary
From: Sid
Re: Sunday, State of Play

Clegg is still in talks with Cameron. About 1,500 Liberal Democrats spontaneously protested at Lib-Dem headquarters against a deal with the Tories given their policies, especially on Europe. But Clegg remains in negotiations. He seems quite intent on working it out with Cameron, it appears. His inner Tory magnetically draws him to his heritage. Clegg has also misplayed almost every turn, presented with big chances and blowing them through a combination of inexperience (derived partly from heading a party out of power for nearly 100 years) and inbred arrogance (from no less a privileged background than Cameron, though seeming less snobbish because he went to Westminster instead of Eton and has a less pronounced upper-class accent, more neutral, because of his more cosmopolitan roots through his family).

What about Labour? Shaun and a couple of others have rounded up about 29 votes from other parties (Scottish National Party, NI parties, Welsh party) that could be part of a grand progressive once-in-a-lifetime coalition that required the LDs. Gordon has said he will allow Clegg-Cameron discussions to play out and a general offer to Clegg is on the table, its terms giving far more on a referendum and policy than the Tories. Behind the scenes, Labour is putting whatever harsh pressure it can on LD leaders. Peter is playing a cynical double game. He is a sectarian in a sect of one. Yet Gordon for strange psychological reasons rooted in his triangle with Tony and Peter relies on Peter. Peter, according to Shaun, has wrung a pledge from Borwn that if Brown emerges from this crisis he, Peter, will replace David as Foreign Secretary. Meanwhile, Peter has advised David to sideline himself. David has done so instead of being forward as a strong party man behind Brown in dire straits. Standing back only makes David look ambitious, waiting for Brown to lose and aiming to a leadership contest afterward, when Peter, as he has promised, would guide David to the prize. The plot thickens: Ed

Miliband, David's younger brother, the environment secretary, will run for leader against his brother if Brown loses. Ed has more of a common touch. The outcome of that contest would be more than uncertain. But before that eventuality Gordon's team reaches out to the LDs in private. Yet Shaun's attitude, as I read it, leans toward pessmism. A London Times polls just out says 62 percent want Gordon out. Where were the fickle voters in the election? The poll shows more than discontent with Gordon, but also how people are being whipped by the Murdoch media.

What about the Tories? A secret memo from William Hague to Cameron written before the election was leaked this morning to The Observer (the Sunday paper of The Guardian), proposes an anti-Europe line of the new government. (I've enclosed the article below.) The atmosphere inside the Conservatives is acrid and anxious. But Lord Ashcroft, the Tory moneyman, who spent five million pounds alone in marginal districts, is furious that Cameron failed to win outright, failed in his campaign, made a foolish decision to include Clegg in the debates, etc. Many agree with the evil Ashcroft. But the finger pointing won't matter if a deal works with Clegg. The Conservative strategy would be to coopt Clegg now, do whatever deal can be done, maintain a more or less center-right but moderated government for about a year, call a new election, win outright on the momentum of the recovery engineered by Brown but claimed by Tories as proof that the change was responsible, jettison Clegg and the LDs, and govern from the radical right as the children of Thatcher for five years. The Tories would then move on their electoral reforms: cutting the number of seats in Parliament, redistricting in Conservative favor, and trying to outlaw union contributions to the Labour Party.

What about the LDs? Clegg's deal with the Tories would of course thwart any Lib-Lab coalition, probably the only chance for a grand progressive alliance that would keep the Tories out of power forever. Clegg's personal instincts obviously lean toward the Tories, having little to do with policy. The party's leaders may be opposed, but they are also likely to be feckless and weak as they always have been.

So, whatever the case, I would doubt you'll see David again as Foreign Secretary. Prepare for hauge, who is deeply anti-European and will be disingenuous with you. Tory budget cuts in NI, already announced, would cause havoc with peace and economic recovery. I'd send a private message asap on that score the second a new government is announced, if it is. Tilt publicly to Merkel on Europe for this reason among others.

Article below:
Tory-Lib Dem coalition threatened by secret hardline memo on Europe • Draft letter by William Hague sets out tough stance on EU • Leak follows leaders' 'constructive, amicable' meeting Toby Helm
<http://www.guardian.co.uk/profile/tobyhelm> and Anushka Asthana
<http://www.guardian.co.uk/profile/anushkaasthana>

* The Observer <http://observer.guardian.co.uk> , Sunday 9 May 2010

David Cameron <http://www.guardian.co.uk/politics/davidcameron> 's hopes of forming a coalition with the Liberal Democrats <http://www.guardian.co.uk/politics/liberaldemocrats> were dramatically undermined last night by the leaking of a top-secret letter outlining the hardline Eurosceptic stance he and William Hague <http://www.guardian.co.uk/politics/williamhague> planned to adopt in government.
The document, obtained by the Observer, is headed "draft letter from Foreign Secretary to Prime Minister" and was written last week. It assumed an outright Tory victory and spelt out how Hague intended to adopt a tough approach to Europe at a meeting of EU foreign ministers in Brussels tomorrow.
In the letter, compiled by civil servants but written in the first person, Hague tells Cameron how his message would be that "the British relationship with the EU has changed with our election" to one firmly against any further integration. Exposing the massive gulf between Liberal Democrat leader Nick Clegg <http://www.guardian.co.uk/politics/nickclegg> and the Conservative leadership on Europe, Hague says he would demand the right to repatriate powers over criminal justice as well as social and employment policy during the first term of a Tory government – demands many EU leaders say they would resist.
Hague planned to tell his EU counterparts: "Rest assured that we seek engagement, not confrontation. But our aim is to achieve these commitments during this parliament." He would also tell his first foreign ministers' meeting "we will never join the euro" and conclude: "You will find us firm but fair, playing a leading role, fighting our corner, practical and straight-talking."

Last night the Tories said they had no knowledge of the letter. But the Observer understands it was drawn up on the basis of detailed briefings between senior civil servants and Hague. The document came to light as Clegg, a strong pro-European, yesterday met his MPs and senior party figures to discuss a possible coalition with the Tories, who emerged from Thursday's general election with the largest number of seats but short of an overall majority.

Cameron and Clegg held face-to-face talks late yesterday as they continued their attempts to thrash out a power-sharing deal. A senior Conservative party spokeswoman said the talks were "constructive and amicable". The 70-minute meeting took place at Admiralty House in Whitehall. A Lib Dem spokesman also described the discussions as "constructive and amicable".

Tory and Lib Dem sources said last night that discussions would not conclude until the beginning of the coming week at the earliest. An emergency meeting of the 1922 committee of Tory backbenchers will be held tomorrow to discuss the possible coalition. Today, Hague, Oliver Letwin <http://www.guardian.co.uk/politics/oliverletwin> and George Osborne <http://www.guardian.co.uk/politics/georgeosborne> will resume talks with the Lib Dems' Vince Cable, Chris Huhne and David Laws.

But the stark language used in the letter is bound to alarm Clegg, who has been savage in his criticism of the Conservatives <http://www.guardian.co.uk/politics/conservatives> ' attitude to Europe which he believes is rooted in the past and will limit Britain's ability to fight cross-border crime and meet the environmental challenges of the 21st century.

The document will also be seen by Lib Dem MPs and the party's rank and file as evidence that their pro-Europeanism would be compromised by linking up with the Tories. A Lib Dem spokesman said the party was strongly pro-European, but would not be drawn on the document.

Yesterday Cameron came under pressure from senior figures in his own party not to give in to Clegg's demands by watering down Conservative manifesto commitments. Shadow defence secretary Liam Fox warned that a Tory government could not be "held to ransom" by Lib Dems demanding proportional representation.

Clegg may also face opposition from within his party to any attempt to form a coalition with the Tories, particularly on economic issues.

Yesterday the Social Liberal Forum, which represents left-leaning Lib Dems and includes a third of the party's MPs, issued a set of "red lines" which it said the party must not cross, including any measure that would increase the gap between the rich and poor – ruling out supporting the Tory pledge to cut inheritance tax. Three other red lines were any suggestion of cuts to frontline services in the current financial year, any worsening treatment of asylum seekers and any watering-down of the human rights act.

Meanwhile, Gordon Brown and his closest advisers were working on how to expand their counter-offer to the Lib Dems, including a referendum on changes to the voting system. Senior officials said Labour was planning to draw up a formal "coalition contract" – as happens in Germany – that would bind the Lib Dems and other smaller parties into a deal if the Tory discussions with the Lib Dems were to fail.

Most Labour ministers now believe Brown would have to step down before Clegg would consider a pact, though senior government insiders insisted this was not being discussed as an option.

One re-elected Labour MP, John Mann, of Bassetlaw, called on Brown to step down as Labour leader, claiming that the party would have influence on the outcome of the current negotiations only if Brown agreed to give up the leadership. "Brown should not lead Labour into any future election and he should stand down before the next Labour party conference," he said. "Gordon Brown's continuation as leader rules out the credibility of a Lib-Lab pact that has to prioritise the modernisation and reform of the antiquated UK political systems."

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, April 6, 2010 9:12 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Call list

Pls add Henry Kissinger

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, April 6, 2010 9:15 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Economist: The limits of freedom and faith

Pls print. T

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri Apr 02 12:34:19 2010
Subject: FW: Economist: The limits of freedom and faith

See the piece below on defamation of religion. Not bad.

http://www.economist.com/world/international/displaystory.cfm?story_id=15833005

Religion and human rights

The limits of freedom and faith

Mar 31st 2010
From The Economist print edition

Opponents of a bid by Muslim states to "protect religion" claim a small success

How dare you call us blasphemers?

IT DOES not happen often: Christian lobbyists, the sort who favour prayer in American classrooms and crucifixes in Italian ones, lining up on the same side as secularists who battle to curb religion's role in the public square. But in both those camps there has been some quiet satisfaction after a recent vote at the United Nations. Not over the outcome, but over the slim margin of defeat.

On March 25th the Human Rights Council (HRC), a Geneva-based UN agency which often exasperates its Western members, voted by 20 votes to 17, with eight abstentions, for a text that lists the "defamation of religion" as an infringement of liberty. Nothing amazing there: the Organisation of the Islamic Conference (OIC), which groups 56 mainly Muslim states (plus Palestine), has been working to push resolutions of that kind through the General Assembly and other UN bodies since 2005. But the margin was the smallest ever, and opponents think there could be a good chance of defeating a "defamation" motion next time one comes around.

The OIC's idea is to establish the principle that faiths need protection, just as individuals do. It denies any sinister intention (see article <http://www.economist.com/world/international/displaystory.cfm?story_id=15833035> ). And to some ears, the OIC's effort sounds like harmless UN-speak, but nothing more. (The United States Commission on International Religious Freedom, a congressionally mandated body, has noted a logical flaw: defamation means harming the reputation of a living person or entity: that implies that one can't defame an idea or a religious founder who is no longer, at least physically, alive on earth.)

But critics of the OIC campaign, who include atheists, Christians and indeed some Muslims, say the "defamation" idea is worse than hot air: far from protecting human rights, it emboldens countries that use blasphemy laws to criminalise dissent. What encourages these critics is that more countries seem to be coming around to their view. Mexico, Uruguay, Argentina, Zambia and South Korea voted against the latest resolution. Brazil criticised the text but abstained.

Deeper still inside the UN's bureaucracy, another battle over religion rages—and the stakes could be even higher. An "ad hoc committee" is mulling ways to amend or extend the UN convention on racial discrimination. Certain states want language that would fuse the categories of race and faith; some want a new convention, or a protocol to the existing one.

For secularists (in the broad sense of people, including believers, who oppose the idea of faith having privileged access to power), all this is alarming. Non-binding resolutions against defamation are bad enough; a UN treaty on race-plus-religion would have legal force, at least for its signatories, and give heart to theocrats.

At the HRC's latest discussion of this effort in March, the Algerian who oversees the project was keen to plough ahead. But countries like Switzerland, Japan, Mexico, Argentina and France retorted that it would be better to enforce the existing UN norms than dream up new ones. Efforts to widen the racism accord will resume, with a new chairman, late this year—but critics are relieved to have stalled it. Still, would-be theocrats may now focus harder on adding to the racism charter, because they face a real risk of being defeated over defamation, in the view of Roy Brown, Geneva spokesman for the International Humanist and Ethical Union.

Meanwhile a Christian-inspired NGO, the European Centre for Law and Justice, has been denouncing the abuse of blasphemy laws in many OIC member states. How fair is their point? It is an easy case to make, for example, over Pakistan.

Some 41 complaints of blasphemy were registered by police in Pakistan last year, says that country's independent Human Rights Commission. In theory, blasphemy is punishable by death—a penalty that has been handed down but never carried out. Worst-hit by the law are minorities like Christians and Ahmadis, a group whose claim to be Muslim is rejected by the Pakistani state. Although abuse of the law is less rife now than in the 1980s, when an Islamist general tightened up the rules, the law is still invoked in disputes (over property, say) that have nothing to do with faith.

"The most vulnerable people, that is religious minorities, continue to be charged with blasphemy," said Ali Dayan Hasan, a researcher at Human Rights Watch, a campaign group. "But are people convicted? No. Rarely. It is used as an instrument of political and social coercion."

When convictions occur, they lead to long jail terms; and pre-trial detention can last for years. Pakistan's parliament is revising the constitution but it has left intact the religious bits, despite a vow by the ruling party to review the blasphemy laws. (Indonesia too has stepped back from a move to liberalise its blasphemy regime.)

On Pakistani streets, the law has dire effects. In January 2009, in a village in Punjab province, five Ahmadis, a labourer and four children, were charged with blasphemy. They had supposedly written "Prophet Muhammad" on the wall of a mosque toilet. The children were behind bars for nearly six months till the charge was quashed.

And last September a young Pakistani Christian was accused of throwing part of the Koran down a drain. It seems that his real crime, however, was affection for a Muslim woman. A mob torched a church, and many Christians had to flee.

He was taken to jail, where he died a few days later. His family alleged torture; the authorities claimed suicide. There was mayhem at the funeral and the country's Christians (see picture) were appalled. In some places, it is not the "defamation" of faith that threatens rights but measures that supposedly defend it.

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: Campbell, Kurt M <CampbellKM@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, November 16, 2010 9:14 PM
To: H; Steinberg, James B; Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Korea FTA

B5

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, November 16, 2010 9:41 PM
To: H

For the breakfast tomorrow, we provided two options for your remarks. The first is longer and gives an around the world + qddr update. Might take 12 to 15 minutes. The second is short (less than 2 pages) and makes a qddr and start pitch, but leaves the around the world part for q and a. Either approach would work, but wanted to ensure you had both options in your book so you could decide.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, April 7, 2010 8:02 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Ignatius

Ok. Can you pls call me thru ops?

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Wed Apr 07 07:49:13 2010
Subject: Ignatius

You should definitely read Ignatius this morning.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, November 17, 2010 6:00 AM
To: H
Subject: No further word yet

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, April 8, 2010 9:57 PM
To: 'mchaleja@state.gov'
Subject: Re: recognition of USG assistance/contributions.

I agree this needs to be addressed. Just let me know how you decide to do so. Thx.

----- Original Message -----
From: McHale, Judith A <McHaleJA@state.gov>
To: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
Cc: H; Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>; Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>; DiMartino, Kitty <DiMartinoK@state.gov>; Douglas, Walter T <DouglasWT@state.gov>; Verveer, Melanne S <VerveerMS@state.gov>
Sent: Thu Apr 08 16:23:19 2010
Subject: recognition of USG assistance/contributions.

We all agree that there is a need to dramatically increase the awareness level of USG assistance efforts around the world. Following up on conversations with Melanne and others, I would like to suggest that we begin the effort by bringing together a small group of people from inside and outside government to help us think this through. USAID participation will be crucial. I'd be happy to organize this and/or co-host the event with you . Let me know what you think.

jm

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, May 9, 2010 7:28 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: More on Lieberman's bill

Pls give me hard copy of his memo tomorrow. Thx.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri May 07 16:30:14 2010
Subject: FW: More on Lieberman's bill

See the highlighted specifically.

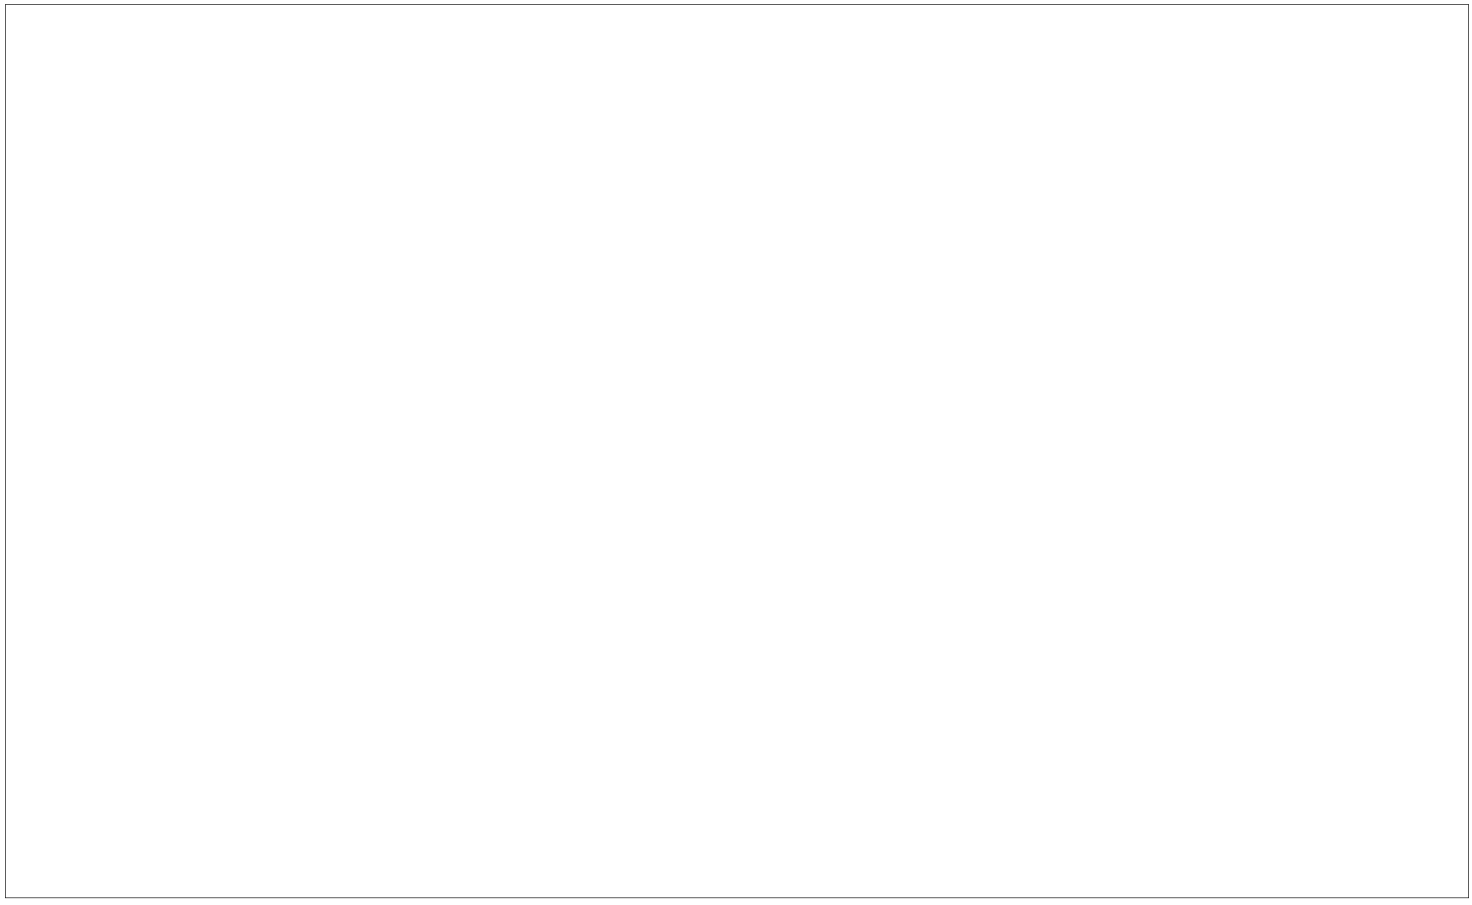
cdm

From: Koh, Harold Hongju
Sent: Friday, May 07, 2010 7:42 AM
To: Crowley, Philip J; Sullivan, Jacob J; Jake Sullivan; Mills, Cheryl D; Verma, Richard R
Cc: Koh, Harold Hongju
Subject: More on Lieberman's bill

Senator Lieberman's bill would strip American citizenship from anyone who has "provid[ed] material support or resources to a foreign terrorist organization" or "engaged in, or purposefully and materially support[ed], hostilities against the United States" or any of its allies. [redacted] B5

[redacted]

A. Constitutional Rules:



[redacted]

B. Statute

B5

C. Administrative Policy:

D. Lieberman bill

B5

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, May 9, 2010 7:30 PM
To: 'muscatinel@state.gov'
Subject: Re: doctrine of no surprises

Love the "doctrine" and I agree we need a health speech. I'd like to look for a venue before UNGA. And Happy Mother's Day!

----- Original Message -----
From: Muscatine, Lissa <MuscatineL@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri May 07 15:51:43 2010
Subject: doctrine of no surprises

I just wanted to make sure you know that the CARE speech is now going to focus on nutrition/health/early childhood, rather than being a major health speech. I still feel that you need to do a health speech as a bookend to food and water – perhaps before UNGA. You could focus on health in the context of the larger Millennium Dev Goals. You have not given a speech yet about maternal and child health. We have a great story to tell with our investment in GHI, and there will be an opportunity to tell it with the ramp-up to UNGA (with the Summit focusing on MDGs). There is a tremendous amount of activity going on elsewhere in the world. And this is a legacy issue for you. (I have already relayed this idea to CDM and Jake).

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, May 9, 2010 7:34 PM
To: 'shapiroa@state.gov'
Subject: Nathan Diament

Andrew--how was your conversation? Any ideas I should follow up on?

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, May 10, 2010 5:13 PM
To: 'cheryl.mills [redacted] 'millscd@state.gov' B6
Subject: Lois Romano

Did right by you today---as well she or anyone should.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, May 10, 2010 10:38 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Tomorrow

Pls be sure I say something about women in my remarks as a set up to Karzai's comments about opportunities for women.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, May 10, 2010 10:42 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'; 'Russorv@state.gov'
Cc: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: S video on Mother's Day
Attachments: image001.jpg; image001.jpg

Pls do note to Kristin Kane and give me back copy of her email.

----- Original Message -----
From: Valmoro, Lona J <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri May 07 15:36:56 2010
Subject: FW: S video on Mother's Day

MS -- A wonderful note!

From: Kane, Kristin M
Sent: Friday, May 07, 2010 3:34 PM
To: Valmoro, Lona J
Subject: S video on Mother's Day

Hi Lona, I just saw the S video for Mother's Day: After nearly 10 years of working for the Department, this ranks as one of my proudest, most fulfilling moments of serving as a Foreign Service Officer.

B6

Clearly I'm not the only one who has made these sacrifices or who has these frustrations; Secretary Clinton has heard our struggles (indeed has gone through her own struggles as a professional mom!), and she truly gets it.

I just wanted to tell somebody, and I remembered your name from the women's conference in December. Forgive this long message. Happy Mother's Day, and congratulations on working with such an incredible person.

Regards,

Kristin

Kristin M. Kane

Office of Public Affairs and Outreach

Bureau of International Organization Affairs

U.S. Department of State

Washington, DC

Tel: (202) 647-7994

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, May 10, 2010 10:43 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Tomorrow

Also the briefing is unclear about the order of speakers so pls be sure that is set in script.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon May 10 22:40:14 2010
Subject: Re: Tomorrow

Roger - it's in there.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Mon May 10 22:38:25 2010
Subject: Tomorrow

Pls be sure I say something about women in my remarks as a set up to Karzai's comments about opportunities for women.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, May 11, 2010 6:47 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Remarks

Will I get them before I deliver them?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, May 11, 2010 7:03 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Cc: Huma Abedin
Subject: Call list

Pls add Barbara Walters, she's having heart surgery.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, May 11, 2010 7:14 AM
To: 'rooneym@state.gov'
Subject: Re: nutrition speech

Thx for the changes you made. A few questions:

Is the Vitamin A research on p. 8 accurate given recent research that raised doubts about it efficacy?

Will you print out a copy of the MDGs for me to have for speech?

Is there a teleprompter?

Didn't Jim Grant also pioneer the widespread use of oral rehydration therapy? If so, we should include too.

It is so much better--thank you.

----- Original Message -----
From: Rooney, Megan <RooneyM@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon May 10 12:24:43 2010
Subject: nutrition speech

To more fully answer your question, the CARE speech is important because it focuses on a chronically overlooked issue (nutrition) that sits at the intersection of two of your signature issues. It gives us an opportunity to sharpen our development message. It also tees up the health care speech you might give before UNGA. This is a speech that only you could give and a number of constituencies will be delighted by it.

Hope this helps. I'm going through it now to make sure it more clearly answers your question.

Thank you!

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, May 11, 2010 12:22 PM
To: 'sbwhoeop [redacted] B6
Subject: Re: H: Hours, if not sooner, Cameron will be PM. Sid

In a minority govt or coalition?

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop [redacted] <sbwhoeop [redacted]
To: H
Sent: Tue May 11 12:20:15 2010
Subject: H: Hours, if not sooner, Cameron will be PM. Sid

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, May 11, 2010 8:43 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Steinberg on Dai

I agree w him and am on the call now.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Tue May 11 20:12:20 2010
Subject: Steinberg on Dai

Jim just called to weigh in on the Dai call sheet. [redacted] B5

More generally, he thinks it should be an upbeat call – [redacted]

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, May 11, 2010 9:21 PM
To: 'bstrider 'mmoore B6
Cc: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: http://www.myfoxdc.com/dpp/news/local/from-foster-care-to-law-school-graduate,-howard-university-student-beats-the-odds-050710

Burns, what were you doing watching Titanic again?

----- Original Message -----
From: Burns Strider <
To: 'Minyon Moore' <>
Cc: H; 'Abedin, Huma' <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Mon May 10 13:03:29 2010
Subject: RE: http://www.myfoxdc.com/dpp/news/local/from-foster-care-to-law-school-graduate,-howard-university-student-beats-the-odds-050710

So cool... and I agree, Minnie... while I was watching Titanic last night (you can't hear Celine Dion enough, you know) several emailed me to say they were watching the Bosslady on 60 Minutes and how they were so glad and thankful she was one of our leaders during this time... amen to that!! And hello Sister Abedin!

Burns Strider

Founding Partner

The Eleison Group

Join Me on Facebook <http://www.facebook.com/profile.php?id=1279552305&ref=name>

Follow Me on Twitter <http://twitter.com/BStrider>

Visit The Eleison Group Website <http://www.eleisongroup.com/>

Visit Pea Ridge Confidential, My Personal Blog <http://pearidgeconfidential.blogspot.com/>

From: Minyon Moore [mailto: ] B6
Sent: Monday, May 10, 2010 12:33 PM
To: Burns Strider
Cc: H; Abedin, Huma
Subject: http://www.myfoxdc.com/dpp/news/local/from-foster-care-to-law-school-graduate,-howard-university-student-beats-the-odds-050710
Importance: High

This is why we love Madam Secretary...to start your week off! Nice interview as well.

From Foster Care To Law School Graduate, Howard University Student Beats The Odds

Jelani Freeman lived in 6 foster homes in 10 years

Updated: Friday, 07 May 2010, 8:25 PM EDT Published : Friday, 07 May 2010, 7:55 PM EDT

By BETH PARKER/myfoxdc

WASHINGTON - Jelani Freeman has gone through a lot to wear this robe. This weekend, he will graduate from Howard University Law School.

He remembers the shaky foundation of his young life. A mother who could not take care of him. He lived in six foster homes in ten years.

"Moving to these different homes. The kids were like 'you weren't here yesterday.' Where's your mom at?" said Freeman.

At 18 years old, he left the system and went to college in search of room and board. He knew what people expected of kids in the foster care system - not much.

"All I would hear is that they were in jail or homeless or weren't doing too well," said Freeman.

He beat the odds and graduated, but he felt ... alone.

"I can distinctly remember walking across the stage in undergrad. You know at graduation everyone has their cheer section that yells as you walk across the stage and there was almost silence as I walked across," said Freeman.

It will be different this time. When Freeman gets his diploma Saturday at the convention center, there will be 26 people - friends and supporters from as far away as California - in D.C. to show their support.

Freeman also got a boost from an internship program for kids who have spent time in foster care. He was placed in the office of then Senator Hillary Clinton. Clinton even mentions him in the updated version of her book "It Takes A Village."

Now, he may use his law degree to work on public policy - especially children's issues. He wants all kids to know: "There's a bright future out there for you if you stay focused and work hard."

And to the adults who hear his story, Freeman said help a child. He is living proof of the difference it can make.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, November 17, 2010 11:36 AM
To: H
Subject: FW: (Reuters) White House believes START treaty will pass Senate

---

From: Simmons, Krista M
Sent: Wednesday, November 17, 2010 11:35 AM
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_OS
Subject: (Reuters) White House believes START treaty will pass Senate

WASHINGTON (Reuters) - White House spokesman Robert Gibbs said on November 17 he believes a new START treaty with Russia will gain enough votes in the U.S. Senate to pass before the end of the year.

Gibbs said he believes an end-of-year session of the Senate will take up the arms control treaty and will be voted on and "we'll have the votes to pass it."

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, May 11, 2010 9:28 PM
To: 'slaughtera@state.gov'
Subject: Re: 60 minutes

Pls thank your mother for me!

----- Original Message -----
From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun May 09 22:07:35 2010
Subject: 60 minutes

My mom just wrote me an email about the interview that captured exactly what I thought watching the interview - you have been through so much and would have been perfectly entitled just to pack it in after the election but instead, in my mom's words, "instead of feeling sorry for herself she takes the ball and runs with all the energy that she can summon in the service of her country to the limit of her body ....and she dishes it out frankly without pussy footing around whether to heads of State or media or major international conferences." I felt VERY proud to be on your team. AM

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, May 11, 2010 9:31 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Happy Mother's Day on Sunday

Pls print for me.

----- Original Message -----
From: dphelf [redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Sun May 09 19:32:25 2010
Subject: Re: Happy Mother's Day on Sunday

Thank you so much. Have a safe flight back - I'm on the train. We had fun with [redacted]

See you soon,
D
------Original Message------
From: H
To: 'dphelf [redacted] B6
Subject: Re: Happy Mother's Day on Sunday
Sent: May 9, 2010 7:27 PM

Thanks for thinking of me and pls tell your Mom I'm sending best wishes her way too.

----- Original Message -----
From: David Helfenbein [redacted]
To: H
Sent: Fri May 07 17:04:21 2010
Subject: Happy Mother's Day on Sunday

Madam Secretary,

I know I saw you today but didn't get to say hello. I just want to wish you a Happy Mother's Day on Sunday - to someone who I know behind the scenes is a great mom.

Wishing you the best, always.

D

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, May 11, 2010 9:33 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: For our records

Here is the best spelling I've seen of our Qatari friend's name:

Sheikha Mozah Bint Nasser al-Missned

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Ebeling, Betsy [redacted] B6
Sent: Wednesday, November 17, 2010 12:34 PM
To: H; Abedin, Huma

Senate Republicans Filibuster Fair Pay For Women

Matt Finkelstein

The first bill President Obama signed after taking office was the Lilly Ledbetter Fair Pay Act, which made it easier for women to seek justice for pay discrimination. At the time, Sens. Susan Collins (R-ME), Kay Bailey Hutchison (R-TX) and Olympia Snowe (R-ME) joined with Democrats to overcome strong Republican opposition to the bill.

But today, all three Republican senators voted against a motion to proceed on the Paycheck Fairness Act, a bill that "would further strengthen current laws against gender-based wage discrimination." The motion was defeated by a vote of 58-41, falling two votes short of the 60 needed for the bill to be considered on the Senate floor.

This is not the first time the Paycheck Fairness Act has stalled in the Senate. In 2008, the upper chamber failed to vote on the bill after it was approved by the House, which passed the legislation again in 2009 with the support of 10 Republicans.

Women earn barely three-quarters of what their male counterparts make for the same work, but conservatives have invented a number of ludicrous reasons for opposing equal pay legislation. For example, the Heritage Foundation has suggested that equal pay laws actually hurt women because businesses simply won't hire them if they are required to pay them fair wages. And Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) has claimed that women would receive better compensation if they just had more "education and training."

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, May 12, 2010 7:27 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: The Secretary's call with Hungarian Prime Minister Gordon Bajnai confirmed for 7:30 am today

Ok. But I saw in briefing that I was supposed to take questions at this Council of Americas--where did that come from? And am I committed?

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: Beale, Courtney A Kramer <BealeCA@state.gov>; H
Cc: S_SpecialAssistants <S_SpecialAssistants@state.gov>
Sent: Wed May 12 07:21:34 2010
Subject: Re: The Secretary's call with Hungarian Prime Minister Gordon Bajnai confirmed for 7:30 am today

Hrc, sorry but this is back on.
Time was offered yesterday and they didn't confirm.

---

From: Beale, Courtney A Kramer
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: Abedin, Huma; S_SpecialAssistants
Sent: Wed May 12 07:13:55 2010
Subject: The Secretary's call with Hungarian Prime Minister Gordon Bajnai confirmed for 7:30 am today

Madam Secretary,

Ops has confirmed your call with Hungarian Prime Minister Bajnai at 7:30 a.m. this morning.

Regards,

Courtney

From: Wykle, Chadwick J
Sent: Wednesday, May 12, 2010 3:00 AM
To: Coleman, Claire L; SES-O_S-Calls
Subject: RE: The Secretary requests to speak with Hungarian Prime Minister Gordon Bajnai

Claire:

The Secretary's call with Prime Minister Bajnai call is confirmed for today at 0730 EDT / 1330 Budapest. We will put the call through to the Secretary at her residence.

Chadwick J. Wykle

Watch Officer

State Operations Center, S/ES-O

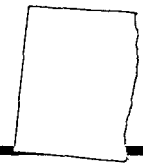
202-647-1512

From: Coleman, Claire L
Sent: Tuesday, May 11, 2010 3:00 PM
To: SES-O_S-Calls
Subject: The Secretary requests to speak with Hungarian Prime Minister Gordon Bajnai
Importance: High

Colleagues,

The Secretary is available to do the call tomorrow morning – Wednesday, May 12 at 0730 EDT. Please reach out to the Hungarian MFA.

The Secretary will be at her residence tomorrow morning for the call.



Claire L. Coleman

Office Manager to the Secretary of State

U.S. Department of State

Tel: 202-647-7098

E-Mail: ColemanCL@state.gov

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, May 12, 2010 7:28 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: 2 good articles on the effects of sleep and women's health

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: Carper Margo < [redacted] > B6
To: H
Sent: Wed May 12 07:25:39 2010
Subject: 2 good articles on the effects of sleep and women's health

Sleep and Weight Loss-Sleep and Losing Weight <http://thyroid.about.com/od/loseweightsuccessfully/a/sleepdiet.htm>

This is the largest study to track the effects of sleep habits on weight gain over time; it included nearly 70000 middle-aged women. ... thyroid.about.com/od/loseweightsuccessfully/a/sleepdiet.htm - Cached
<http://webcache.googleusercontent.com/search?q=cache:Ulimdhhah_UJ:thyroid.about.com/od/loseweightsuccessfully/a/sleepdiet.htm+sleep+deprivation+weight+gain+in+women&cd=2&hl=en&ct=clnk&gl=us&client=firefox-a> - Similar
<http://www.google.com/search?hl=en&client=firefox-a&hs=0sp&rls=org.mozilla:en-US:official&channel=s&q=related:thyroid.about.com/od/loseweightsuccessfully/a/sleepdiet.htm+sleep+deprivation+weight+gain+in+women&tbo=p&sa=X&ei=LY7qS_yLKoT78Aa4oYzjDg&ved=0CBgQHzAB>

Importance of Sleep : Six Reasons Not to Scrimp on Sleep - Harvard ...
<http://www.health.harvard.edu/press_releases/importance_of_sleep_and_health>

The Harvard Women's Health Watch suggests six reasons to get enough sleep: ... Metabolism and weight: Chronic sleep deprivation may cause weight gain by ... www.health.harvard.edu/.../importance_of_sleep_and_health - Cached
<http://webcache.googleusercontent.com/search?q=cache:fbv8MU1hbCoJ:www.health.harvard.edu/press_releases/importance_of_sleep_and_health+sleep+deprivation+weight+gain+in+women&cd=4&hl=en&ct=clnk&gl=us&client=firefox-a> - Similar <http://www.google.com/search?hl=en&client=firefox-a&hs=0sp&rls=org.mozilla:en-US:official&channel=s&q=related:www.health.harvard.edu/press_releases/importance_of_sleep_and_health+sleep+deprivation+weight+gain+in+women&tbo=p&sa=X&ei=LY7qS_yLKoT78Aa4oYzjDg&ved=0CCIQHzAD>

Margo Carper

[redacted]

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, May 12, 2010 7:35 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: The Secretary's call with Hungarian Prime Minister Gordon Bajnai confirmed for 7:30 am today

Why does this keep happening?

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Wed May 12 07:31:18 2010
Subject: Re: The Secretary's call with Hungarian Prime Minister Gordon Bajnai confirmed for 7:30 am today

No u r not. That's old and wrong.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Wed May 12 07:27:09 2010
Subject: Re: The Secretary's call with Hungarian Prime Minister Gordon Bajnai confirmed for 7:30 am today

Ok. But I saw in briefing that I was supposed to take questions at this Council of Americas--where did that come from? And am I committed?

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: Beale, Courtney A Kramer <BealeCA@state.gov>; H
Cc: S_SpecialAssistants <S_SpecialAssistants@state.gov>
Sent: Wed May 12 07:21:34 2010
Subject: Re: The Secretary's call with Hungarian Prime Minister Gordon Bajnai confirmed for 7:30 am today

Hrc, sorry but this is back on.
Time was offered yesterday and they didn't confirm.

---

From: Beale, Courtney A Kramer
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: Abedin, Huma; S_SpecialAssistants
Sent: Wed May 12 07:13:55 2010
Subject: The Secretary's call with Hungarian Prime Minister Gordon Bajnai confirmed for 7:30 am today

Madam Secretary,

Ops has confirmed your call with Hungarian Prime Minister Bajnai at 7:30 a.m. this morning.

Regards,

Courtney

From: Wykle, Chadwick J
Sent: Wednesday, May 12, 2010 3:00 AM
To: Coleman, Claire L; SES-O_S-Calls
Subject: RE: The Secretary requests to speak with Hungarian Prime Minister Gordon Bajnai

Claire:

The Secretary's call with Prime Minister Bajnai call is confirmed for today at 0730 EDT / 1330 Budapest. We will put the call through to the Secretary at her residence.

Chadwick J. Wykle

Watch Officer

State Operations Center, S/ES-O

202-647-1512

From: Coleman, Claire L
Sent: Tuesday, May 11, 2010 3:00 PM
To: SES-O_S-Calls
Subject: The Secretary requests to speak with Hungarian Prime Minister Gordon Bajnai
Importance: High

Colleagues,

The Secretary is available to do the call tomorrow morning – Wednesday, May 12 at 0730 EDT. Please reach out to the Hungarian MFA.

The Secretary will be at her residence tomorrow morning for the call.

Claire L. Coleman

Office Manager to the Secretary of State

U.S. Department of State

Tel: 202-647-7098

E-Mail: ColemanCL@state.gov

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, April 9, 2010 7:36 AM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Assuming this crossed ur radar but just in case-- [redacted] B6

Who was it?

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>; Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Thu Apr 08 08:13:02 2010
Subject: FW: Assuming this crossed ur radar but just in case-- [redacted]

FYI

---

From: Barnum, Forrest SL. <BarnumFSL@state.gov>
To: PA PRS Group
Sent: Thu Apr 08 07:58:02 2010
Subject: Sad News and a Question

Hello,

I'm in the Historian's Office, [redacted] We were wondering what we should do if we receive media inquiries, we need to direct them elsewhere, as we don't want to speak for the department. Thanks for your assistance.

Regards,

Forrest Barnum

Student Historian

U.S. Department of State
Bureau of Public Affairs
Office of the Historian
Phone: (202) 663-1123

barnumfsl@state.gov

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, May 12, 2010 9:54 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Foreign Policy Magazine-Betrayed: They said we were there to save Afghan women. How Come we havent?
Attachments: image001.jpg; image002.gif; image003.jpg; image001.jpg; image002.gif; image003.jpg

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: Verveer, Melanne S <VerveerMS@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Wed May 12 09:23:52 2010
Subject: FW: Foreign Policy Magazine-Betrayed: They said we were there to save Afghan women. How Come we havent?

This is what we are up against.

Betrayed

They said we were there to save Afghanistan's women. So how come we haven't?

BY VALERIE M. HUDSON, PATRICIA LEIDL | MAY 10, 2010

One day in November 2009, in Helmand province's capital of Lashkar Gah, a group of Afghan widows and divorcees met with Patricia, who had been commissioned to write a series of success stories for the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID). All the women were in their 20s, 30s, and 40s but looked to be in their 60s. Until very recently, none of them could work because they possessed no marketable skills, could neither read nor write, and were at risk of being killed if they left their homes. A number of women said that, before the program -- which focused on tailoring and basic literacy -- their children used to weep at night from hunger.

COMMENTS (22) SHARE:

Twitter <http://www.addthis.com/bookmark.php?pub=fpstaff&v=250&source=tbx-250&tt=0&s=twitter&url=http%3A%2F%2Fwww.foreignpolicy.com%2Farticles%2F2010%2F05%2F07%2Fthe_us_is_abandoning_afghanistan_s_women%3Fprint%3Dyes%26hidecomments%3Dyes%26page%3Dfull&title=The%20U.S.%20Is%20Abandoning%20Afghanistan%E2%80%99s%20Women%20%E2%80%93%20By%20Valerie%20M.%20Hudson%20and%20Patricia%20Leidl%20%7C%20Foreign%20Policy&content=&sms_ss=1&lng=en>

Reddit <http://www.addthis.com/bookmark.php?pub=fpstaff&v=250&source=tbx-250&tt=0&s=reddit&url=http%3A%2F%2Fwww.foreignpolicy.com%2Farticles%2F2010%2F05%2F07%2Fthe_us_is_abandoning_afghanistan_s_women%3Fprint%3Dyes%26hidecomments%3Dyes%26page%3Dfull&title=The%20U.S.%20Is%20Abandoning%20Afghanistan%E2%80%99s%20Women%20%E2%80%93%20By%20Valerie%20M.%20Hudson%20and%20Patricia%20Leidl%20%7C%20Foreign%20Policy&content=&sms_ss=1&lng=en>

Buzz <http://www.addthis.com/bookmark.php?pub=fpstaff&v=250&source=tbx-250&tt=0&s=googlebuzz&url=http%3A%2F%2Fwww.foreignpolicy.com%2Farticles%2F2010%2F05%2F07%2Fthe_us_is_abandoning_afghanistan_s_women%3Fprint%3Dyes%26hidecomments%3Dyes%26page%3Dfull&title=The%20U.S.%20Is%20Abandoning%20Afghanistan%E2%80%99s%20Women%20%E2%80%93%20By%20Valerie%20M.%20Hudson%20and%20Patricia%20Leidl%20%7C%20Foreign%20Policy&content=&sms_ss=1&lng=en>

More... <http://www.addthis.com/bookmark.php?v=20>

As Patricia prepared to leave, the women fluttered around her like moths, touching her sleeves and speaking all at once. "What are they saying?" Pat asked the young Pashto-speaking interpreter. "They are telling you to go back to your country and to ask your people not to abandon them. The women of Afghanistan don't want you to leave. They will quite literally die if the Taliban return," she said.

In a recent question-and-answer period at one of our universities, Brigham Young, a student asked Gen. David Petraeus whether anyone thought to ask the women of Afghanistan how they felt about U.S. hopes to incorporate "reformed" Taliban into governance structures as the Americans leave.

Carefully avoiding the word "women," the general assured the questioning student that only "moderate" Taliban would be eligible for such rehabilitation. Left unaddressed was the definition of "moderate," which clearly depends on where you sit: If you sit in a burqa, there is no such thing as a "moderate" Taliban.

Petraeus might find it easy now to sidestep the question of what will happen to Afghanistan's women once the "moderate" Taliban come back, but it's likely to haunt him for a long time. Without the security of women there is no security -- and until we've done more to protect it, we have a moral and practical obligation to stay in Afghanistan.

In 2001, George W. Bush's administration interpreted the first post-invasion photos of Afghan girls heading to school and of Afghan women unveiling their faces as tangible evidence that conditions were improving in that benighted land. A few months after the invasion, in his 2002 State of the Union address, Bush announced <http://archives.cnn.com/2002/ALLPOLITICS/01/29/bush.speech.txt/>, "The last time we met in this chamber, the mothers and daughters of Afghanistan were captives in their own homes, forbidden from working or going to school. Today women are free and are part of Afghanistan's new government."

The Americans strong-armed a handful of women into the loya jirga that then drafted the Afghan Constitution. They strong-armed a quota for women in the Afghan national legislature -- something that even American women are not treated to. U.S. troops built schools for girls and pushed for women to be included in the local shuras, and USAID ripped a page from Greg Mortenson's Three Cups of Tea <http://www.amazon.com/gp/product/0143038257?ie=UTF8&tag=fopo-20&linkCode=as2&camp=1789&creative=390957&creativeASIN=0143038257> and facilitated new training and educational opportunities for women.

But the current administration, despite its female secretary of State and its new Office of Global Women's Issues, appears to be ditching the women of Afghanistan like a blind date gone bad. You have to go back 10 months to find any sustained rhetoric from President Barack Obama about the importance of assuring the security of women in Afghanistan. Since then, and especially since last year's Afghan election, those fine words from a sitting president have all but disappeared. Many of the fine actions are gone, too. Push local shuras into including women in 2002? Yes. Push local shuras into including women in 2010? Forget it.

It's not difficult to understand why. Afghanistan is in crisis. The cynical policies that characterized the early to mid-stages of the occupation have come home to roost. President Hamid Karzai and his rogue's gallery of kleptocrats, human rights abusers, and drug lords are hanging onto power even as Karzai declares open season on the United Nations by accusing senior bureaucrats of organizing the widespread voter fraud that consolidated his own hold on power.

In the meantime, women have taken a back seat to realpolitik and the exigencies of a coalition exit strategy. But their suffering is real, as Afghanistan's poverty and chaos affect women possibly most of all. Maternal mortality in Afghanistan still makes the world's top three list, nine years after the U.S. invasion, resulting in a life expectancy for women of 46. In the countryside, Taliban zealots spray acid into girls' faces for going to school -- and only 27 percent of them do so in the first place. According to a recent survey by the U.N. Development Fund for Women, 87 percent of Afghan women report being beaten on a regular basis.

In July of last year, the U.N. Assistance Mission in Afghanistan (UNAMA) issued a report <http://unama.unmissions.org/Portals/UNAMA/vaw-english.pdf> that represents the most stinging official condemnation of the Karzai administration's abysmal track record on women to date. The report concluded, "The current reality is that ... women are denied their most fundamental human rights and risk further violence in the course of seeking justice for crimes perpetrated against them." Last year Karzai pardoned well-connected political thugs who -- before witnesses -- gang-raped a woman with a bayonet. Her husband, who had battled for redress, was assassinated soon thereafter. Women who dare to speak out against the widespread trampling of their rights face almost certain death <http://www.hrw.org/en/reports/2009/12/03/we-have-promises-world-0> while their murderers face 100 percent impunity.

For the warlords and mujahideen that make up the upper echelons of the Karzai government, the issue of gender equality was always an unwanted appendage to U.S. involvement -- but one that could easily be dispensed with through the deployment of flowery speeches and the token appointment of a lone female minister to the Ministry of Women's Affairs. Indeed, just before his recent "election," Karzai felt secure enough to sign into law a series of repressive measures designed to repeal what minimal gains women have made since the Taliban ouster.

Although eventually forced to back down over legislation that allows Shiite husbands to rape their wives, Karzai successfully signed into law other legislation that denies or severely limits women's rights to inherit, divorce, or have guardianship of their own children. The Shiite Personal Status Law <http://www.hrw.org/en/news/2009/04/14/afghanistan-new-law-threatens-women-s-freedom> also legalizes forced marriage and the rape of minors. It allows men to exert almost total control over female relatives and offers them the power to prohibit women's access to work, education, and health care by denying them the right to leave their homes except for "legitimate" purposes. Even Karzai's own wife -- a doctor whose skills are desperately needed -- is strictly sequestered. And if this sounds bad, just wait until the Americans leave.

This is not just about women. Gender inequality not only affects girls and women, but boys and men. In Afghanistan, because women are rarely able to leave the house, very young boys are often forced to carry an unwarranted amount of financial responsibility, something that limits their prospects as well.

Nor is it even just about Afghanistan. As Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said <http://www.state.gov/secretary/rm/2010/03/138320.htm> in March, "The subjugation of women is a threat to the national security of the United States." On a geopolitical level, Valerie's research has found that states with higher levels of violence against women are also less peaceful internationally. Indeed, violence against women is a better predictor of bellicosity than level of democracy, level of wealth, or presence of Islamic civilization. In a 2010 study, Valerie, along with Brad Thayer, also found high levels of gender inequality to be a strong aggravating factor in the development of Islamic suicide terrorism.

So, given the desperate need of Afghanistan's women and the serious consequences worldwide, why aren't we doing more to help? One reason is the fallacious notion, common among coalition members, that Afghan "culture" does not allow for gender equality and that forcing the issue will undermine Western interests. Pat heard this openly from one coalition representative, who prefers to remain anonymous: "There is no point in pushing gender equality. It will only alienate them [Afghans]." Of course, "them" here refers only to men.

But decision-makers forget that culture is not fixed, but is highly mutable and dynamic. More than 30 years ago, Afghan women were attending universities, teaching, working as doctors, nurses, and professors. Far from being a black hole of gender apartheid, Afghanistan, though impoverished, was more progressive than many of its Muslim neighbors. Furthermore, many young Afghans are open to new ways of doing things. In 2009, hundreds of Afghan men and women bravely stood together in Kabul to protest Karzai's support for a new and oppressive Shiite family law. If Americans assume that all Afghan men are Neanderthals incapable of sympathizing with the plight of their sisters, they are wrong.

Another, more unmentionable reason may be the chauvinism that permeates Western military culture. U.S. military life, despite increasing female recruitment and even "female engagement teams," remains a bastion of masculinity, with little sensitivity toward questions of female rights. For military leadership and recruits alike, immured as they are in an almost exclusively male world, the complete absence of women from Afghanistan's streets and villages elicited no comment from the Marines who surrounded Pat, though she as a woman noticed it immediately.

And the ready availability of pornography on U.S. bases, coupled with seamier depictions of life in the West, not only damages prospects for gender equality but by extension, Western interests. As one young, well-educated 24-year-old Afghan male pointed out, "Your culture has no respect for women at all. Look at your pornography and the way you exploit women in ways that we can't even imagine. Do you call that progress?" Added another Afghan USAID programmer working in Gardez, a man in his 50s who is the father of three girls, "It would be better for the coalition if they could figure out a way to limit this kind of material."

We can do better -- much better.

The Obama administration must instill in all military personnel and senior diplomats the necessity of fully protecting women's rights. Key to that is educating them about how gender equality furthers Western interests and security.

The military should spend less time courting "moderate" Taliban and more time showing Afghan community leaders how gender equality -- including female access to family planning methods -- will result in healthier families, lower maternal and child death rates, poverty alleviation, and greater self-determination. Gender should be included as a component in all governance training and should be placed front and center in the upcoming "peace jirga" that will include the Taliban. Indeed, let half of the negotiating team representing the government and the coalition be female: yes, a full 50 percent.

Women must also be represented in the government. As Melanne Verveer, U.S. ambassador at large for global women's issues, noted <http://www.state.gov/s/gwi/rls/rem/2009/125512.htm> last summer, speaking of female politicians in Afghanistan, "There is only one minister in the cabinet, and she is powerless. There is a low percentage of women in the civil service. There is only one female governor, in Bamiyan." Obama must insist on important changes for women before we leave and make subsequent aid contingent upon maintenance of a strong presence for women in the Afghan government.

Better yet, the coalition needs to support "regime change" through the building of democratic institutions that will groom a moderate, educated middle class of young women and men to eventually take over. Over two-thirds of the Afghan population is under the age of 25, which is either a real opportunity for social change -- if they are educated and given a chance to shape their society in a progressive way -- or a major obstacle, if they find themselves without jobs, unable to marry, and burdened with retrograde attitudes of what it means to be male and female.

We must hold Afghanistan responsible for its treaty obligations under the U.N. Convention on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW) and U.N. Security Council Resolution 1325 on women, peace, and security.

Afghanistan signed CEDAW without reservations (the United States interestingly, has not), and that means that it has committed to passing whatever legislation is necessary to implement the wide-ranging principles of gender equality enshrined in that treaty. This includes taking measures to ensure that women enjoy the same basic human rights and fundamental freedoms as men, having in place legal and judicial procedures to protect the rights of women, taking measures to eliminate sexist discrimination, and lastly, submitting national reports every four years to a U.N. advisory group of international experts, the CEDAW Committee, to ensure transparency on what measures the country has taken to implement the treaty's provisions.

Unanimously adopted in 2000, UNSC 1325 marked the first time the Security Council recognized the disproportionate and unique impact of armed conflict on women and stressed the importance of their equal and full participation as active agents in peace and security.

Needless to say, women do not currently enjoy the same fundamental freedoms as men, and indeed, with the passing of the Shiite family law, many are worse off than they were before.

To change this, the coalition needs to stay in Afghanistan. Withdrawing at this critical juncture would doom Afghanistan and the entire region to instability and effectively consign one half of the population to premature death and an existence not fit for animals.

We are creating a shameful American tradition of leaving women no better off (Afghanistan) -- or even much worse off (Iraq) -- than before U.S. troops intervened. On the basis of America's track record, women around the world should have no faith that U.S. soldiers will improve their security. Despite Clinton's remarks on the link between gender equality and security, on the ground Americans act as if women's well-being, in the end, is not more than peripherally related to the issue of peace. As we have seen, this view could not be more wrong. Verveer's benchmarks <http://www.state.gov/s/gwi/rls/rem/2009/125512.htm> concerning Afghanistan are the right ones: "Progress in Afghanistan must be measured not just in military terms, but also in terms of social, political, and economic participation of women in rebuilding Afghanistan and in the safeguarding of their human rights."

American women are right to ask why we are sending their sons and daughters to fight and die so that Afghan women can continue to be treated like an inferior subspecies of humanity. When you break faith with Afghan women, you break faith with American women. You also break faith with your reasons for being there in the first place.

Save big when you subscribe to FP. <https://www.cambeywest.com/subscribe/?p=frp&f=paid>

Majid Saeedi/Getty Image

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, May 12, 2010 1:47 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: SRAP

I want to see and thank the entire SRAP team on Friday on the 8th floor.

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, May 12, 2010 3:20 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: The house where paint flows

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: Rosemarie Howe [redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Sun May 09 08:35:14 2010
Subject: The house where paint flows

This is the link to the paint article. I know you had plenty on your mind.

[redacted] B6

http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2010/05/04/AR2010050404599.html

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, April 9, 2010 7:40 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Sandy Weill

Pls add to call list.

----- Original Message -----
From: Caputo, Lisa <[redacted]> B6
To: H
Sent: Wed Apr 07 12:35:01 2010
Subject: Sandy Weill

Hillary,

Sandy Weill called me Monday. He is eager to speak with you and asked that you give him a call.

He has spent time in recent weeks in the Middle East and has feedback for you on how people there feel, where they want to go and how that affects the relationship between the US and countries in the Middle East. Sandy is not a newcomer to the region and very much wants to share with you what he's hearing. He's a fan and wants to be helpful.

I promised him I would pass the message. His number is [redacted]

Xo,
Lisa

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, May 12, 2010 8:16 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Spanta

Good idea.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Wed May 12 19:59:22 2010
Subject: Spanta

I remember what I was going to say earlier – you might check in with Steve Bosworth on the Spanta thing. Fletcher might work, or else he might have thoughts about other policy schools.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, May 13, 2010 6:55 AM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Cc: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: John Kerry

Am I scheduled to talk w him? If not, could you get a call/visit scheduled?

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, April 9, 2010 7:42 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Hi Sis. My name is Roy Spence and I love you and

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: Roy Spence < > B6
To: H
Sent: Tue Apr 06 20:25:39 2010
Subject: Hi Sis. My name is Roy Spence and I love you and

...I miss you a lot. And I have no idea how you keep on keeping on doing whatever it takes to lift people-everywhere up-championing your Core Purpose of Fighting and digging deep for the opportunity for each person to be able to live up to their God Given Potential. Here and Around the world.

The struggle for an Iran that is more concerned about its people than false power. The relentless quest to stabilize the un-stable. The never give up journey to inspire and empower women and young girls to have a seat at the table of full opportunity. The pursuit for opening doors of happiness for those who struggle with the unimaginable. The steady. The Steadfast. The unwavering commitment to the dream-not the hope-but the dream of a better USA and world for all. The tough and uncompromising "pretend leaders" whom you have negotiate with. The opinion rich and caring poor arrogance of the mean spirited. The stuff that is on the news but is not really the real news.

The love and respect you give freely to all whom love life and liberty and opportunity for all.

The raw respect that you have earned in the trenches of real fears, real love and real longing for a village that is Dedicated to raising a village and its children.

So I say to a beloved and dear love one-that be you-I love you. I respect you. I miss you. I cherish every moment of our remarkable journey together.

God Speed. Dear Sis. We shall cross paths soon. And until then. Onward in all things.

Love

RS

Ride at Dawn.

---

This e-mail is intended only for the named person or entity to which it is addressed and contains valuable business information that is proprietary, privileged, confidential and/or otherwise protected from disclosure. If you received this email in error, any review, use, dissemination, distribution or copying of this email is strictly prohibited. Please notify us immediately of the error via email to disclaimerinquiries@ideacity.com and please delete the email from your system, retaining no copies in any media. We appreciate your cooperation.
----------ideacity.legal.disclaimer.01112008

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, May 13, 2010 7:10 AM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Cc: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: John Kerry

A call may be more realistic but see what we can do.

----- Original Message -----
From: Valmoro, Lona J <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>
To: H; Huma Abedin
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Thu May 13 07:02:39 2010
Subject: Re: John Kerry

Yes, I will work on a visit if you don't have a call set up.

Lona Valmoro
Special Assistant to the Secretary of State
(202) 647-9071 (direct)

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Valmoro, Lona J; Huma Abedin <Huma@clintonemail.com>
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Thu May 13 06:54:34 2010
Subject: John Kerry

Am I scheduled to talk w him? If not, could you get a call/visit scheduled?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, May 13, 2010 7:35 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Mini Schedule 5/13/10 Thursday

Pls put Dean Ornish on my call list and call to ask him if I can call him tonight. Thx.

----- Original Message -----
From: Jiloty, Lauren C <JilotyLC@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Thu May 13 07:27:24 2010
Subject: Mini Schedule 5/13/10 Thursday

8:25 am ARRIVE State Department

8:25 am PRESIDENTIAL DAILY BRIEFING

8:30 am Secretary's Office

8:30 am DAILY SMALL STAFF MEETING

8:45 am Secretary's Office

8:45 am DAILY SENIOR STAFF MEETING

9:15 am Secretary's Conference Room

9:15 am WEEKLY MEETING w/REGIONAL BUREAU SECRETARIES

10:00 am Deputy Secretary's Conference Room

10:00 am PHONE CALL w/TURKISH FM DAVUTOGLU

10:20am Secretary's Office

10:30am SCHEDULING w/HUMA AND LONA

10:45am Secretary's Office

10:45 am OFFICE TIME

11:30 am Secretary's Office

11:30 am ANNUAL S/ES GROUP PHOTOS

11:45 am Treaty Room/East Hall/West Hall

11:50 am VIDEOS (8)

12:10 pm George Marshall Room, 7th Floor

12:10 pm GROUP PHOTO w/DELEGATION OF YEMENI DIPLOMATIC

12:15 pm AND MILITARY OFFICIALS Treaty Room

12:15 pm PRIVATE MEETING w/ LYNN DeROTHSCHILD

1:00 pm (t) Secretary's Office

1:15 pm MEETING w/AFGHAN WOMEN MINISTERS

1:30 pm Secretary's Conference Room *Official photo in East Hall preceding.

1:30 pm PRE-BRIEF FOR USIP EVENT

1:45 pm Secretary's Office

2:05 pm DEPART State Department *En route USIP

2:20 pm ARRIVE USIP

2:30 pm MODERATED "CONVERSATION" w/AFGHAN PRESIDENT KARZAI

3:30 pm Main Auditorium, U.S. Institute of Peace *Approx. 200 ppl expected.

3:35 pm DEPART USIP *En route OTR

3:50 pm ARRIVE OTR

4:00 pm PRIVATE MEETING

Tbd Location: Tbd

Tbd DEPART Tbd

En route State Department

Tbd ARRIVE State Department

Tbd OFFICE TIME *Secretary's Office

Tbd DEPART State Department *En route Private Residence

Tbd ARRIVE Private Residence

###

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, May 13, 2010 6:16 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Eikenberry

I'd like to set up a secure call sometime over the weekend or before I leave on Thursday.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Thu May 13 17:05:02 2010
Subject: Eikenberry

He is going to Ft Campbell tomorrow and then heading back with the Afghan delegation straight from there. So it does not look like there will be an opportunity to see him with Jack tomorrow.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, April 9, 2010 8:27 AM
To: 'hanleymr@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Kristy isn't here yet--is she coming?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, May 13, 2010 6:20 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Eikenberry

Not at first. I need to talk to him one on one and I can make Jack's points and mine. So please get Jack's concerns for me before the call.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Thu May 13 18:17:14 2010
Subject: RE: Eikenberry

Makes sense. We'll get it done. Presume you want Jack on.

-----Original Message-----
From: H [mailto:HDR22@clintonemail.com]
Sent: Thursday, May 13, 2010 6:16 PM
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Re: Eikenberry

I'd like to set up a secure call sometime over the weekend or before I leave on Thursday.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Thu May 13 17:05:02 2010
Subject: Eikenberry

He is going to Ft Campbell tomorrow and then heading back with the Afghan delegation straight from there. So it does not look like there will be an opportunity to see him with Jack tomorrow.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 10, 2010 7:23 AM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Poland Sitrep

I'm trying to call the FM now.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Apr 10 07:00:33 2010
Subject: Fw: Poland Sitrep

From Lee b/l

---

From: Rodriguez, Hugo F
To: SES_DutyDeputies; S; D(L); D(S); P_Officers; SES-O_Shift-II; SES-O_SWO-Only
Sent: Sat Apr 10 06:57:48 2010
Subject: FW: Poland Sitrep

Colleagues, the latest from Amb. Feinstein of Embassy Warsaw. In short, the crash took the lives of many of Poland's senior civilian and military leadership; succession/transition will be the first major test of Poland's constitution. The speaker of the lower house of parliament, Bronislaw Komorowski, will temporarily assume the presidency. The constitution requires he call for presidential elections within 14 days and that elections take place within 60 days. An unofficial manifest is included. Rgds, H.

From: Feinstein, Lee
Sent: Saturday, April 10, 2010 6:44 AM
To: Gordon, Philip H; 'Sherwood-Randall, Elizabeth D.'; Quanrud, Pamela G; 'Hovenier, Jeffrey M.'; Karagiannis, Alexander; Heidt, William A; Glantz, Mary E; Sainz, Francisco D; SES-O
Subject: Poland Sitrep

All,

This is going out as a cable momentarily. The main point is that the crash killed not only the President and his wife but a broad swath of Poland's top national security leadership. In this sense it is an unprecedented governmental tragedy, and a test of Poland's constitution. The sitrep follows.

Shortly before 1000 Warsaw time, a Polish government Tu-154 plane carrying a delegation headed by Polish President Lech Kaczynski crashed in heavy fog at the airport in Smolensk, Russia. Russian officials have told the press that there were no survivors; the foreign ministry spokesman said there were 88 passengers on board. The delegation was en route to ceremonies hosted by the Russian government to commemorate the 70th anniversary of the Katyn massacres. There is as yet not government confirmation of the deaths, but there is no expectation of survivors.

Speaker of the Polish Sejm (the lower house of parliament) Bronislaw Komorowski is en route to Warsaw to take over the powers of the presidency and those of the Commander in Chief, according to press reports. According to the Polish constitution, if the president dies in office, the Speaker temporarily assumes the presidency, and has 14 days to announce the date of special presidential elections. The elections must be held within 60 days of his announcement. This is the first major test of the Polish constitution, and the government is itself sorting out the details of the procedure in this unprecedented circumstance.

Prime Minister Tusk is returning from Gdansk to Warsaw, and will chair a meeting of the Council of Ministers at 1P local time. Tusk has received condolence telephone calls from Russian Prime Minister Putin, German Chancellor Angela Merkel, and other world leaders.

The magnitude of the loss is difficult to overstate including, in addition to the President and the First Lady, the top national security leadership of the Presidential Chancellery, the head of Poland's armed forces, all or nearly all of Poland's military chiefs, a deputy minister of defense, a deputy foreign minister, a presidential candidate, and members of Parliament. Crowds of people with candles and flowers have started to assemble in front of the presidential palace in downtown Warsaw. A mass in honor of those who died will be held later this afternoon. Poland is in shock and entering a period of deep national mourning.

Below is an unofficial and incomplete manifest of those who are on the plane. Among them are:

President Lech Kaczynski

First Lady Maria Kaczynska

Former President Ryszard Kaczorowski

Wladislaw Stasiak, Chief of the Chancellery of the President of the Republic of Poland

Aleksander Szczyglo, State Secretary, Chancellery of the President of the Republic of Poland and Chief of the Office of National Security

GEN Franciszek Gagor, Chief of National Defense

Jerzy Szmajdzinski, Vice Speaker of the Sejm and Democratic Left Alliance Presidential Candidate

Andrzej Kremer, Under Secretary of State, Ministry of Foreign Affairs

Stanislaw Komorwoski, Under Secretary of Defense, Ministry of Defense

Mariusz Handzlik, Under Secretary of State, Chancellery of the President of the Republic of Poland

Slawomir Skrzypek, Chairman of the National Bank of Poland

Lista osób na pokładzie Tupolewa

Tragiczne informacje napływają ze Smoleńska, gdzie rozbił się rządowy samolot z prezydentem Lechem Kaczyńskim na pokładzie.

Wraz z prezydentem na pokładzie samolotu było wiele najważniejszych osób w państwie polskim, między innymi: prezes NBP, wiceszef MSZ, wicemarszałek Sejmu Jerzy Szmajdziński <http://www.napisali.pl/osoba,jerzy_szmajdzinski,1278,5.html> , szef IPN, posłowie, biskupi, szef światowego związku AK.

Według programu Rady Ochrony Pamięci Walk i Męczeństwa, na liście pasażerów prezydenckiego samolotu TU-154 powinni znajdować się:

Lech Kaczyński <http://www.napisali.pl/osoba,lech_kaczynski,1516,5.html>

Maria Kaczyńska <http://www.napisali.pl/osoba,maria_kaczynska,396,5.html>

DELEGACJA OFICJALNA

1. Pan Ryszard KACZOROWSKI b. Prezydent RP na Uchodźctwie

2. Pan Krzysztof PUTRA Wicemarszałek Sejmu RP

3. Pan Jerzy SZMAJDZIŃSKI Wicemarszałek Sejmu RP

4. Pani Krystyna BOCHENEK Wicemarszałek Senatu RP

5. Pan Jerzy BAHR Ambasador RP w Federacji Rosyjskiej 6. Pan Władysław STASIAK Szef Kancelarii Prezydenta RP

7. Pan Aleksander SZCZYGŁO Szef Biura Bezpieczeństwa Narodowego

8. Pan Jacek SASIN Sekretarz Stanu, Zastępca Szefa Kancelarii Prezydenta RP 9. Pan Paweł WYPYCH Sekretarz Stanu w Kancelarii Prezydenta RP

10. Pan Mariusz HANDZLIK Podsekretarz Stanu w Kancelarii Prezydenta RP

11. Pan Andrzej KREMER Podsekretarz Stanu w Ministerstwie Spraw Zagranicznych

12. Pan Stanisław KOMOROWSKI Podsekretarz Stanu w MON

13. Pan Tomasz MERTA Podsekretarz Stanu w MKiDN

14. Gen. Franciszek GĄGOR Szef Sztabu Generalnego Wojska Polskiego

15. Pan Andrzej PRZEWOŹNIK Sekretarz ROPWiM

16. Pan Maciej PŁAŻYŃSKI Prezes Stowarzyszenia „Wspólnota Polska"

17. Pan Mariusz KAZANA Dyrektor Protokołu Dyplomatycznego MSZ

PRZEDSTAWICIELE PARLAMENTU RP

1. Pan Leszek DEPTUŁA Poseł na Sejm RP

2. Pan Grzegorz DOLNIAK Poseł na Sejm RP 3. Pani Grażyna GĘSICKA Poseł na Sejm RP

4. Pan Przemysław GOSIEWSKI Poseł na Sejm RP

5. Pan Sebastian KARPINIUK Poseł na Sejm RP

6. Pani Izabela JARUGA – NOWACKA Poseł na Sejm RP

7. Pan Zbigniew WASSERMANN Poseł na Sejm RP

8. Pani Aleksandra NATALLI – ŚWIAT Poseł na Sejm RP

10. Pan Arkadiusz RYBICKI Poseł na Sejm RP

11. Pani Jolanta SZYMANEK – DERESZ Poseł na Sejm RP

12. Pan Wiesław WODA Poseł na Sejm RP

13. Pan Edward WOJTAS Poseł na Sejm RP

14. Pani Janina FETLIŃSKA Senator RP

15. Pan Stanisław ZAJĄC Senator RP

OSOBY TOWARZYSZĄCE

1. Pan Janusz KOCHANOWSKI Rzecznik Praw Obywatelskich

2. Pan Sławomir SKRZYPEK Prezes Narodowego Banku Polskiego

3. Pan Janusz KURTYKA Prezes Instytutu Pamięci Narodowej

4. Pan Janusz KRUPSKI Kierownik Urzędu do Spraw Kombatantów i Osób Represjonowanych

PRZEDSTAWICIELE KOŚCIOŁÓW I WYZNAŃ RELIGIJNYCH

1. Ks. Bp. gen. dyw. Tadeusz PŁOSKI Ordynariusz Polowy Wojska Polskiego

2. Abp gen. bryg. Miron CHODAKOWSKI Prawosławny Ordynariusz Wojska Polskiego

3. Ks. płk Adam PILCH Ewangelickie Duszpasterstwo Polowe

4. Ks. ppłk Jan OSIŃSKI Ordynariat Polowy Wojska Polskiego

PRZEDSTAWICIELE RODZIN KATYŃSKICH I INNYCH STOWARZYSZEŃ

1. Pan Edward DUCHNOWSKI Sekretarz Generalny Związku Sybiraków

2. Ks. prałat Bronisław GOSTOMSKI

3. Ks. Józef JONIEC Prezes Stowarzyszenia Parafiada

4. Ks. Zdzisław KRÓL Kapelan Warszawskiej Rodziny Katyńskiej 1987-2007

5. Ks. Andrzej KWAŚNIK Kapelan Federacji Rodzin Katyńskich

6. Pan Tadeusz LUTOBORSKI

7. Pani Bożena ŁOJEK Prezes Polskiej Fundacji Katyńskiej

8. Pan Stefan MELAK Prezes Komitetu Katyńskiego

9. Pan Stanisław MIKKE Wiceprzewodniczący ROPWiM

10. Pani Bronisława ORAWIEC - LOFFLER

11. Pani Katarzyna PISKORSKA

12. Pan Andrzej SARIUSZ – SKĄPSKI Prezes Federacji Rodzin Katyńskich

13. Pan Wojciech SEWERYN

14. Pan Leszek SOLSKI

15. Pani Teresa WALEWSKA – PRZYJAŁKOWSKA Fundacja „Golgota Wschodu"

16. Pani Gabriela ZYCH

17. Pani Ewa BĄKOWSKA wnuczka Gen. bryg. Mieczysława Smorawińskiego

18. Pani Maria BOROWSKA

19. Pan Bartosz BOROWSKI

20. Pan Dariusz MALINOWSKI

PRZEDSTAWICIELE SIŁ ZBROJNYCH RP

1. Gen. broni Bronisław KWIATKOWSKI Dowódca Operacyjny Sił Zbrojnych RP

2. Gen. broni pil. Andrzej BŁASIK Dowódca Sił Powietrznych RP

3. Gen. dyw. Tadeusz BUK Dowódca Wojsk Lądowych RP

4. Gen. dyw. Włodzimierz POTASIŃSKI Dowódca Wojsk Specjalnych RP

5. Wiceadmirał Andrzej KARWETA Dowódca Marynarki Wojennej RP

6. Gen. bryg. Kazimierz GILARSKI Dowódca Garnizonu Warszawa

lee feinstein

ambassador to poland

+48 22 504-2900

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, May 13, 2010 7:08 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Elena Kagan

The cell # for her belongs to someone else according to the vm. Can you get the right cell #?

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 10, 2010 8:49 AM
To: 'cheryl.mills [redacted] 'millscd@state.gov' B6
Subject: Call time?

I can talk today before 10:45 and tomorrow early am, btw 7-9 or from noon to 1 or after 6. What works for you?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, May 13, 2010 10:14 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Tomorrow

Can we set up a photo for the SRAP team when I see them?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, June 1, 2010 5:05 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Fyi

Are you meeting me at shuttle?

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Tue Jun 01 05:01:58 2010
Subject: Fyi

SECURITY COUNCIL PRESIDENTIAL STATEMENT ON THE RECENT INCIDENT IN THE EASTERN MEDITERRANEAN

The Security Council deeply regrets the loss of life and injuries resulting from the use of force during the Israeli military operation in international waters against the convoy sailing to Gaza. The Council, in this context, condemns those acts which resulted in the loss of at least ten civilians and many wounded, and expresses its condolences to their families. The Security Council requests the immediate release of the ships as well as the civilians held by Israel. The Council urges Israel to permit full consular access, to allow the countries concerned to retrieve their deceased and wounded immediately, and to ensure the delivery of humanitarian assistance from the convoy to its destination. The Security Council takes note of the statement of the UN Secretary–General on the need to have a full investigation into the matter and it calls for a prompt, impartial, credible and transparent investigation conforming to international standards. The Security Council stresses that the situation in Gaza is not sustainable. The Council re-emphasizes the importance of the full implementation of Resolutions 1850 and 1860. In that context, it reiterates its grave concern at the humanitarian situation in Gaza and stresses the need for sustained and regular flow of goods and people to Gaza as well as unimpeded provision and distribution of humanitarian assistance throughout Gaza. The Security Council underscores that the only viable solution to Israeli-Palestinian conflict is an agreement negotiated between the parties and re-emphasizes that only a two-State solution, with an independent and viable Palestinian State living side by side in peace and security with Israel and its other neighbours, could bring peace to the region. The Security Council expresses support for the proximity talks and voices concern that this incident took place while the proximity talks are underway and urges the parties to act with restraint, avoiding any unilateral and provocative actions, and all international partners to promote an atmosphere of cooperation between the parties and throughout the region.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, May 13, 2010 10:36 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Jelani Freeman

I'd like to give him a law school graduation gift. Let's discuss tomorrow.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 10, 2010 10:09 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Sign off

Ok.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Apr 10 09:50:59 2010
Subject: Sign off

U ok with statement?

Statement by the Secretary

The Death of Polish President Kaczynski and His Delegation

I join President Obama in offering my deepest condolences to the people of Poland, to the Kaczynski family, and to the families of all those killed in this tragedy. Lost alongside President Kaczynski and his wife were Polish leaders from across the political spectrum, men and women who shaped and sped Poland's post-1989 democratic transformation and were leading Poland into its promising future. The tragedy of these lives cut short will be felt deeply across the world, but their legacy will live on in a free and flourishing Poland.

The United States stands with the Polish people in this difficult hour. Like the country he led, President Kaczynski was one of America's most valued and trusted allies. He was well known in the United States as a champion for democracy against an oppressive regime, a man whose journey took him from the Gdańsk Shipyards to the presidency of a free people. President Kaczynski was an unstinting advocate for freedom and human rights not just in Poland, but around the world. He will be long remembered and sorely missed.

The Polish people have endured more than their share of sorrow, but they have always shown resilience and resolve in the face of adversity -- and I know they will pull together in solidarity to grieve this loss.

My thoughts and prayers are with all the people of Poland today.

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, May 14, 2010 5:52 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: H: IMPORTANT. Memo for Hague meeting. Sid
Attachments: hrc memo hague meeting 102009.docx; hrc memo hague meeting 102009.docx

Pls print

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop <sbwhoeop
To: H
Sent: Thu May 13 23:37:21 2010
Subject: H: IMPORTANT. Memo for Hague meeting. Sid

B6

CONFIDENTIAL

May 13, 2010

For: Hillary
From: Sid
Re: Hague meeting

On your meeting on Friday, May 14, with new British Foreign Secretary William Hague you might explore a number of issues below. (I've discussed with Shaun.)

1. Northern Ireland. Cameron has pledged to reduce public sector spending in NI. But the impact of public sector spending there is not the same as in other parts of the UK because of 40 years of troubles. Political stability depends upon economic stability. Removing funding specifically threatens community policing, creating a vacuum that the Real IRA and other men of violence would rush into. Cutting the public sector would make it difficult to increase private sector investment. Does the new government understand the US interest in NI and appreciate the fragility of the situation?
2. Defense and Foreign Policy Cuts. The new government program is to slash the deficit, cutting deeply into government programs. This really cannot be done without defense and foreign policy reductions. Seek clafication on exactly whether and where these cuts be made. Will they affect Afghanistan policy and over what schedule? How will cuts in the foreign service affect British influence in other areas?
3. Trident and Nuclear Deterrent. The coalition agreement between the Conservative and Liberal Democrats allows the LDs to abstain in parliamentary votes on four issues that will apparently let the Tories have their way: marriage tax allowances; nuclear power; college tuition fees; and Trident and the nuclear deterrent. During the campaign, the LDs ran on eliminating the Trident and erasing the UK nuclear deterrent. How will this actually work in practice?

4. Political Changes. The new government, because the coalition is fundamentally at odds with itself, has proposed to pass a parliamentary bill that establishes a five year term for a government and furthermore establishes that a vote of no confidence can only be passed on a 55 percent vote. You might just seek Hague's view on how this will work.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 10, 2010 1:44 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: IN CONFIDENCE: Afghanistan: Analysis by [redacted] B6

Did RCH share this w Gen P?
I will be reachable on my berry for the next few hours.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Apr 10 13:31:15 2010
Subject: Fw: IN CONFIDENCE: Afghanistan: Analysis by [redacted]

See below. Meeting with embassy folks now -- will report on that and dinner later.

---

From: Holbrooke, Richard
To: Singh, Vikram J; Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sat Apr 10 08:59:21 2010
Subject: Fw: IN CONFIDENCE: Afghanistan: Analysis by [redacted]

---

From: [redacted]
To: Eikenberry, Karl W; Ricciardone, Francis J; Holbrooke, Richard
Sent: Fri Apr 09 09:02:14 2010
Subject: IN CONFIDENCE: Afghanistan: Analysis by [redacted]

Karl, Frank, Richard,

I hope in the next few days we can focus on some of the themes in the following:

1. On 9 April, I had lunch in Kabul with [redacted] expert on Afghanistan now based at [redacted] was on his way back to Washington via a meeting in Paris with the French Political Director. He had just spend three weeks in Kandahar and Gardez, his first visit since August last year. He came across as patriotic, but deeply worried, speaking in a monologue, mostly in French.

OVERALL SITUATION

2. [redacted] said that his assessment was that the overall situation had deteriorated sharply since his last visit. The Taliban were stronger, and more confident, than ever. ISAF was inflicting heavy losses on them, but the scale was as nothing compared with what the mujahideen had endured at the hands of the Russians. Moreover, the change in rules of engagement – to prevent civilian casualties, and fewer night raids – had been interpreted by the Taliban as signalling weakness on NATO's part. In [redacted] view, most of the East, and Kunduz, was effectively lost to the Taliban and their fellow travellers. US forces in the East controlled the ground they occupied or passed over, but little more: they were in a similar position to the Soviet Army. Moreover, the population did not want to back them, and was resisting US attempts to set up tribal militias or implant US Special Forces in the villages. [redacted] did, however, acknowledge that he had heard that the US Marines in Helmand were behaving much more sensitively towards the population than had been expected. But the situation in Marjah was not good. Of course, the Marines held the ground, but violence would continue for months or years. This did not offer the positive signal of momentum for which the Coalition had been hoping. B6

KANDAHAR

3. [redacted] said repeatedly that he did not understand the strategy in Kandahar. The Taliban had effectively penetrated, and largely controlled, a city of one million people. The ANP there were largely Barakzai, and working for either or both of the Taliban or Ahmed Wali Karzai's network. AWK was at the centre of a vast criminal enterprise: his brother-in-law was one of the largest drug traffickers in the south. When I said that surely ISAF could gradually occupy the city, squeezing the Taliban back and out, [redacted] said he was not certain of that: he thought that there might well be quite violent resistance from the Taliban. He was also dismissive of the ISAF strategy of "managing" AWK: if the latter really did abandon his criminal ways, he would be dead. He would lose the protection of his militias. In such situations, one could only move forward, or go into prison or exile: there was no going back. AWK had just too many enemies to survive in Kandahar without the protection of his own criminal networks. [redacted] guess was that AWK would promise to be good, but in reality stick to his old habits, and hope to profit from the action taken by ISAF against the Taliban. [redacted] was dismissive of efforts to empower Governor Weesa, who would not survive five minutes in Kandahar without Western support and protection. Although Weesa came from the area, he had no power base, and, with his Canadian nationality, was regarded by the Kandaharis as a foreigner.

4. [redacted] was also sceptical as to whether ISAF could "shura" its way to success in Kandahar. On the military side, he thought ISAF just couldn't generate the force densities necessary to control the city: for example, he thought the Argandab would require getting on for 15,000 troops to control it properly. The city of Kandahar would require some 10,000 fresh police, who were just not available.

NEXT STEPS

5. [redacted] said he was worried about where the coalition was heading. The best that could be expected was a messy stalemate in Kandahar, but the probability was, by the early autumn, an outcome that would not look at all like success.

[redacted] wondered whether ISAF really did need to go ahead with its plan to take Kandahar: in [redacted] view, he was riding for a fall. I said that I did not see how we could pull back now. The planners were well aware of the risks, but wanted to generate positive momentum to enable a political process to take hold.

MAKING PEACE

6. [redacted] said that, in his view, the only way out now was a negotiated peace with the Taliban and all the other parties to the conflict. He thought that Pakistan would need to help Karzai and the Americans open such a dialogue with the Taliban, but, sooner or later, both Pakistan and Karzai would need to be moved to one side, and there would need to be direct talks between the Americans and the Taliban. The Taliban would not make a final peace with Karzai, who had little credibility left. Similarly, the senior Taliban leaders would need to be brought across the border into Afghanistan, to get them out from under the control of the ISI. All this would need deception and trickery: for the first time in his career, [redacted] could see that diplomats were needed, in this case to finesse a delicate process, involving multiple negotiations. Karzai would have to eased out, but gently and with plenty of public respect. B6

7. [redacted] said that there would need to be a cease-fire, and wondered why ISAF couldn't occupy the high ground by being the first to offer such a move. There would also have to be frank discussions about the withdrawal of foreign forces.

8. [redacted] said that his main worry was that the Obama Administration would waste another year ploughing on with a military campaign which could deliver stalemate at best, and a serious reverse at worst. Then, with the 2011-12 Presidential election campaign getting going, the White House would panic, handing the problem to Pakistan, and pull US troops out more quickly than the situation merited. It was vital to get ahead of the curve, and start making preparations now for a messy political process that could last months or years.

9. [redacted] said that he had known from 2001 that the Western intervention in Afghanistan had been fraught with danger. He had suspected then, and knew even more strongly now, that the Taliban could not be defeated or even properly contained by military means. Once again, he was sick with worry at the way things were going. He had thought that the Obama Administration had understood that the solutions in Afghanistan were political, not military. He was trying to think how he and other concerned experts could shock the Administration in getting a political grip on the situation: he was considering a joint op-ed by a group of experts. The seriousness of the situation meant that such an article would have to concentrate on essentials: much of the talk about counter-insurgency (in what was an Afghan civil war) and development and governance was no more than "poetry".

10. I pointed out to [redacted] the political difficulties for the US and other Western governments in negotiating direct with the Taliban. Although the principle of a negotiated peace was accepted, more or less, in Washington and London, there was a long way to go before politicians fully addressed what that might involve. Hence the argument that we needed first to get on the front foot militarily. It would help if the Taliban could be pinned down on politically neuralgic issues, such as women's rights and social restrictions. [redacted] said that, in a serious negotiation, he thought such undertakings could be extracted from the Taliban: again, however, the sooner work started on that, the more chance of a satisfactory result.

11. I told [redacted] that much of this thinking coincided with the views expressed by the Foreign Secretary in his article in The New York Review of Books of 29 April 2010 ([redacted] had missed the MIT speech, as he had been in Kandahar). The UK election campaign meant that there was little that could be done over the next few weeks, apart from making sure that incoming or returning Ministers had the best possible advice. After the election, there was clearly a case for a good strategic discussion between the British Prime Minister and the American President: we all needed to raise our eyes from the urgent tactical preoccupations in the south to the really important strategic issues, of harvesting political success from military progress. B6

[redacted]

[redacted]

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 10, 2010 1:56 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Do you have mail address

For Asst. Sec. Bob Blake?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 10, 2010 2:03 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Do you have mail address

Thx

----- Original Message -----
From: Jiloty, Lauren C <JilotyLC@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Apr 10 14:02:30 2010
Subject: Re: Do you have mail address

BlakeR2@State.gov

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Jiloty, Lauren C
Sent: Sat Apr 10 13:56:21 2010
Subject: Do you have mail address

For Asst. Sec. Bob Blake?

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, April 9, 2010 7:34 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Human Trafficking Effort - Hope You'll Take A Moment

Pls print two copies for me.

----- Original Message -----
From: Marty Torrey
To: H
Sent: Thu Apr 08 09:36:00 2010
Subject: Human Trafficking Effort - Hope You'll Take A Moment

B6

HRC,
Researched a lot since Tuesday. After Rochester water security meeting Simon came to my house last evening to discuss subject issue, etc. Heck, greater good sometimes served in such small patio fashion. Re human trafficking, his software can apply and previously uninvolved resources / relationships available. You know all this, but we didn't: Seems 'acta non verba' needed. Despite increased pre-victimization education & awareness growing - and not-for-profits, TVP Act of 2008, your G/TIP office helping, appears same apps as tracking terror cells, interdiction of pirating and drug trafficking, removal of financial lure not fully brought to bear. Forgive oversimplification, but akin to cessation of 400 years of African / transatlantic slave trade. In addition to crushing backers' / sponsors' greed ( I guess so-called 'law' of economics )..... blocking trader access, interdicting in progress, punishing / eliminating traders (sponsors & backers) would appear to get it done. In addition to 21st century tech & resources, moral outrage should help eliminate / vastly reduce this scourge. No doubt many good & smart people already involved, but perhaps the more the merrier. Simon ( and Dave's former partner Jim Blom ) can bring nourishment to this table. Simon will get / remain in touch with Phil Goldberg - and both of us with Kris. Thinking same apps could apply to Mexico. Talk about a destabilizing scourge too close for comfort ! We want to help. Great to see you & thanks again.
Marty

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, April 13, 2010 9:14 PM
To: 'sbwhoeop[redacted] B6
Subject: Re: H: If this poll holds, Labour has a majority. 1st debate thu. Sid

Just had drinks w Miliband who is still very worried. I have crossed fingers!

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop[redacted]
To: H
Sent: Tue Apr 13 18:35:15 2010
Subject: H: If this poll holds, Labour has a majority. 1st debate thu. Sid

Times Online Logo 222 x 25 <http://www.timesonline.co.uk/tol/img/global/tol-logo-222x25.gif>

* Print this page
<http://www.timesonline.co.uk/tol/news/politics/article7096632.ece?print=yes&randnum=1271197986619#>

From Times Online
April 14, 2010

Tory lead narrows amid huge voter disenchantment, Times poll finds

Conservative party leader David Cameron launches his party's manifesto in Battersea Power Station, in London, England
<http://www.timesonline.co.uk/multimedia/archive/00707/cameron-_707420a.jpg>
<http://www.timesonline.co.uk/tol/news/politics/xxx> Image :1 of 2
<http://www.timesonline.co.uk/tol/news/politics/xxx>
Peter Riddell
The general election race is tightening, according to a Populus poll for The Times that reveals deep public disenchantment with the campaign so far.
The poll, undertaken yesterday and this morning, says that more voters are now hoping for a hung parliament than either a Tory or a Labour outright victory.
Conservative support has slipped by three points over the past week to 36 per cent, while Labour is a point up at 33 per cent. The Liberal Democrats are unchanged on 21 per cent.
The polls tend to fluctuate by a couple of points either way, and these shifts are within the margin of error of the average.
With other new polls pointing to a firming in Labour support, the party may have enjoyed a small boost from its manifesto launch. Tory strategists will hope to have achieved a boost from its manifesto launch today.
If the Populus figures were repeated in the general election in three weeks' time, and there is a uniform switch in votes, Labour would be the largest single party, with about 300 MPs, ahead of the Tories on 264 and the Lib Dems on 54. This would point to a Lab/Lib Dem coalition. But many analysts do not expect a uniform national swing.
The latest poll shows that 32 per cent of the public now hope for a hung parliament (as opposed to expecting one), against 28 per cent wanting a Tory majority and 22 per cent a Labour one. Lib Dem voters prefer a deal with Labour than the Tories in a hung parliament, by 44 to 31 per cent. The public is evenly split 40 to 42 per cent about whether they want Labour or the Tories in either a majority or a minority government.
The poll shows that the number expecting a Tory overall majority has risen by three points to 34 per cent over the past week. This only just exceeds the number expecting a hung parliament, at 33 per cent, down six points compared with a week ago. Overall, 57 per cent expect the Tories to be the largest party, against 29 per cent expecting Labour to be.

The public is deeply sceptical about the honesty of the parties. Only 4 per cent think that they are being completely honest about their tax plans, 61 per cent partly honest. Only 6 per cent say they are being completely honest about cutting the deficit and 61 per cent partly honest. Some 7 per cent say that they are being completely honest about the extent to which they can fund their policies by cutting waste and 58 per cent partly honest.

Voters were asked to say which party had proposed eight key manifesto pledges. They wrongly identified four: reducing the increase in national insurance contributions (naming Labour not the Tories); allowing unsuccessful schools, hospitals and the police (the Tories, not Labour); tightening up takeover rules (the Tories not Labour); and requiring foreign workers employed in public services to speak fluent English (the Tories not Labour).

In only one case, the £150-a-year tax break, did more than half of voters (60 per cent) correctly identify the party making the proposal.

In most cases, the pledge will make little difference to people's votes, apart from three made by Labour: the foreign workers language pledge, doubling paid paternity leave and allowing the takover of unsuccessful schools, hospitals etc.

More than two fifths (43 per cent), including 50 per cent of women, say "none of the parties", or "don't know", when asked which party is putting across a convincing cases to voters. This compares with 25 per cent naming the Tories and 18 per cent Labour.

Just over half the public (54 per cent) plan to watch the first televised leaders' debate on Thursday evening. Men and middle class professionals are more likely to say that they will view. More than two fifths (42 per cent) expect David Cameron to win the debate, against 22 per cent for Gordon Brown. More Tories (70 per cent) than Labour voters ( 57 per cent) expect their leader to win.

Two fifths of the public (42 per cent, up one point on a week ago) say it seems like a change from Labour, but are not sure that it is time for a change to the Conservatives. Some 33 per cent, down one point, think it is time for a change to the Tories.

Populus interviewed a random sample of 1,525 adult voters on April 12 to 13. Interviews were conducted across the country and have been weighted to be representative of all adults. For more details go to www.populus.co.uk.

Contact our advertising team <http://www.timesonline.co.uk/tol/tools_and_services/services/advertising/> for advertising and sponsorship in Times Online, The Times and The Sunday Times, or place your advertisement <https://diy.newsint.co.uk> .

Times Online Services: Dating <http://www.encounters.timesonline.co.uk/s/> | Jobs <http://jobs.timesonline.co.uk/> | Property Search <http://timesonline.globrix.com> | Used Cars <http://carlocator.timesonline.co.uk/> | Holidays <http://traveldirectory.timesonline.co.uk/> | Births, Marriages, Deaths <http://www.timesonline.co.uk/tol/life_and_style/court_and_social/announcements/> | Subscriptions <https://subscriptions.timesonline.co.uk/> | E-paper <http://timesonline.newspaperdirect.com/>

News International associated websites: Milkround <http://www.milkround.com> | Globrix <http://www.globrix.com>

Copyright 2010 Times Newspapers Ltd.

This service is provided on Times Newspapers' standard Terms and Conditions <http://www.timesonline.co.uk/tol/tools_and_services/services/terms_and_conditions/> . Please read our Privacy Policy <http://www.nidp.com> .To inquire about a licence to reproduce material from Times Online, The Times or The Sunday Times, click here <http://www.timesonline.co.uk/tol/tools_and_services/services/syndication/> .This website is published by a member of the News International Group. News International Limited, 1 Virginia St, London E98 1XY, is the holding company for the News International group and is registered in England No 81701. VAT number GB 243 8054 69.

<http://the-acap.org/acap-enabled.php>

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, May 15, 2010 1:44 PM
To: 'Burnswj@state.gov'
Cc: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Lavrov

B5

I assume you'll review the memcon.

As to Medvedev's Silicon Valley visit on June 23, we need to discuss and start planning asap. If you think it helpful, I will go out to meet him.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, March 11, 2010 12:33 PM
To: 'rooneym@state.gov'; 'sullivanjj@state.gov'; Huma Abedin; 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: UN speech

I like the draft. I have a few comments and ideas for the end. Pls talk to Lona about coming to see me later.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, April 15, 2010 12:54 PM
To: 'mtorrey [redacted] B6
Cc: 'balderstonkm@state.gov'
Subject: Re: 'Stone Harbour,LLC'

Marty--I'm copying Kris and asking that he connect you w Lou C de Baca whose in charge of the office responsible for trafficking in State so you can explore ways of helping. Thx.

----- Original Message -----
From: Marty Torrey [redacted]
To: H
Sent: Thu Apr 15 07:44:25 2010
Subject: 'Stone Harbour,LLC'

HRC,
As of April 21st Dave Stone's former business partner ( James F. Blom ), and I will establish 'Stone Harbour,LLC' (named for Dave) in Delaware. This will be a nice merger of Dave's and my contacts. Apart from the ongoing vetting of Simon Stringer's multi purpose software, at several levels, I am keen to help in the human trafficking effort. I have been in touch with Sharyn Magarian (keeping Kris B informed) in seeking the status of that effort, as I am quite sure the combo of Dave's former contacts and mine can help. Jim Blom has already spoken to several (Oracle Corp and his friends in Silicon Valley) and they too are motivated. Work is work, but the human trafficking issue seems like the right thing to do.
All the best, Marty

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 17, 2010 3:27 PM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Jim steinberg asking to talk secure today. Are you able to?

Sure--I'll call him now.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Apr 17 15:03:50 2010
Subject: Jim steinberg asking to talk secure today. Are you able to?

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D), B1 ~ Declassify on: 05/31/2035

RELEASE IN PART
1.4(B),B1,B5,1.4(D),B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, June 1, 2010 5:21 AM
To: 'slaughtera@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Ashton Teleconference w/ Israeli FM

I've worked on this non-stop since yesterday am. Let's discuss at meeting today.

----- Original Message -----
From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Mon May 31 19:43:04 2010
Subject: Ashton Teleconference w/ Israeli FM

See below for a summary of Cathy Ashton's conversation w/ Lieberman from her policy planner. [redacted] B5
[redacted] AM

---

From: Schmid Helga [redacted] B6
To: Slaughter, Anne-Marie
Sent: Mon May 31 07:19:32 2010
Subject: Teleconference HR Ashton/Israeli FM

Dear Anne Marie,
I am currently travelling with Cathy Ashton. She just spoke to Liberman [redacted] 1.4(B) 1.4(D) B1

Helga

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 17, 2010 4:28 PM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Jim steinberg asking to talk secure today. Are you able to?

Ok. How about 7? Does that work for him? Can I call on my white phone which is now working?

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Apr 17 15:59:39 2010
Subject: Re: Jim steinberg asking to talk secure today. Are you able to?

He's asking us to schedule it. He's on his way home now and said he can do in the next few hours.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Sat Apr 17 15:26:57 2010
Subject: Re: Jim steinberg asking to talk secure today. Are you able to?

Sure--I'll call him now.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Apr 17 15:03:50 2010
Subject: Jim steinberg asking to talk secure today. Are you able to?

RELEASE IN PART
B1,1.4(D),B5,B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 17, 2010 4:28 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Haiti

We have such a strong case. Can we try to get Sibelius and Vilsack on board?

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Apr 17 15:48:25 2010
Subject: FW: Haiti

See his last point.

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 04/17/2025

cdm

From: Goosby, Eric
Sent: Saturday, April 17, 2010 2:48 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Cc: Curtis, Meghann A
Subject: RE: Haiti

Cheryl: B5 B6

The National MSPP is just the Ministry of Health for Haiti at the National level (Minister Larsen's office). We spent a long time with him and

We plan to discuss the USG contributions next week and in the April 26th meeting with the MSPP. B5

In our TA strategy that ( attached in the original email), we outline the areas we can specifically support them in developing the capabilities needed to be a strong oversight National office of Health that can lead and support the Department ministries in carrying out the work.

Right now we have committed to talking further with the Cubans about reconstruction efforts and in further clarifying the role they would play with HUEH. There are many areas we could work together with the Cubans that would be beneficial to the Haitian medical system. You will still have the opportunity to call final package. We will make sure we are clear where our proposal overlaps with the final vision of the Haitians and other donors.

Whole of Government Approach:

B5

Eric

From: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Saturday, April 17, 2010 2:10 PM
To: Goosby, Eric
Cc: Curtis, Meghann A
Subject: RE: Haiti

1.4(D)
B1

Eric

Thank you for this and for coming – I am very grateful.

I have always understood that while GOH appreciated Cuban doctors and training, I understand that frame, and assuming they have physicians and managers, it makes complete sense.

What I still feel like is a bit of a mystery to me, though I know once Dalberg has the proposed final strategy, they will do a careful implementation plan at the direction of you and Judith, is what exactly this means for USG specific activities.

For example:

[redacted] B5

Thanks.

cdm

From: Goosby, Eric
Sent: Saturday, April 17, 2010 12:15 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Cc: Curtis, Meghann A
Subject: Haiti

Cheryl:

I hope you completed your trip and returned safely. I got back yesterday. I just wanted to close the loop on the discussions I completed with the Ministry of Health Haiti (MSPP) and a brief update on the discussion with the Cubans.

Cuban Delegation:

1. We agreed to talk further about the specifics of the collaboration with the Cuban-Haitian Government, to meet on April 22-23rd to discuss specifics and then again after the April 26th meeting.

2. Agreed to develop a National MSPP focused Technical Assistance Strategy

B5

After the Cuban discussion ended, we toured the HUEH hospital with Drs. Henry and Thimothe followed by a long dinner with Minister Larsen agreed to do the following:

1.4(D)
B1

2. Meet with the Cuban Delegation as discussed April 22-23 and post Donor Meeting

1.4(D)
B1

I hope to catch up with you soon, see you Monday. I am in the office most of the weekend if you want to talk.

Eric

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, June 1, 2010 6:59 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Ukraine

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: PVerveer [redacted] <PVervee [redacted]
To: H
Sent: Sun May 30 22:47:57 2010
Subject: Ukraine

This is from Fr. Borys Gudziak, the wonderful priest you met in Lviv. He gave you a tour of the Cathedral and you had a wonderful chat with him at the time. Since then, much progress has been made there. He became head of the new Ukrainian Catholic University and has really come in to his own as a respected leader and scholar.
Unfortunately, his situation and that of the Catholic community and academic freedom has come under siege since Yanokovich became president. I have a series of emails from the US Ukrainian community, in addition to this email directly from Gudziak, They are alarmed about developments. I've been in touch with John Tefft and sent him everything. He is aware of recent events.
I will make a folder of the correspondence for you since the community here and in Ukraine sees you as their champion. This is not a good turn of events.

---

From: gudziak [redacted]
To: pverveer [redacted]
Sent: 5/29/2010 3:09:23 A.M. Eastern Daylight Time
Subj: difficulties for UCU

B6

Dear Melanne,

It has been awhile since we have been in touch. As you now we are under special pressure at the Ukrainian Catholic University. It is a question of our welfare and future. But not only. Almost no educational institutions have taken a stand in defense of democracy and even western Ukrainian politicians are capitulating under pressure. So is business. The approach of the new authorities is quick and systematic. Top and middle positions in all spheres of government, administration, state security, police have been rapidly changed and are effectively moving in on the freedom of the press and discourse.

Our students are scared.

Some are active, but some fear for the university, that it may loose accreditation. A father and his daughter-student came to my office in a state of anxiety.

Some students are afraid to blog and post comments because they fear that they will be traced and that their parents will loose their jobs.

There is clear evidence from one of our banks that the authorities are beginning to dig into the question of our finances. Provocations, moral defamation, planting of drugs and weapons in student residences as happened in 2004 before the election could be next.

The most effective defense is speaking out.

I am grateful for your solicitude and wanted to ask for two things.

1 To ask the Secretary of State to bring this to the attention of the president and vice president and to do what she can in our defense.

2. to help us get the story to some of the main media outlets: New York Times, Washington Post, Wall Street Journal, CNN, etc. One story by any of these for us and for the people in Ukraine that have the courage to speak the truth is invaluable.

We have had some great support already. But I have a sense that this adventure is only beginning and we have to be ready for everything.

Please pass on my respect to Secretary Clinton.

May God bless you!

Fr. Borys

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, June 1, 2010 6:59 AM
To: 'sbwhoeop
Subject: Re: H: this report appeared in Maariv, major Israeli daily, on May 27, fyi, Sid

Are you up? Can I call?

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop B6
To: H
Sent: Mon May 31 12:49:21 2010
Subject: H: this report appeared in Maariv, major Israeli daily, on May 27, fyi, Sid

Netanyahu pleased: I didn't capitulate
Ben Caspit, Maariv, May 27 2010 [page 2 with front page lead; Hebrew original here <http://www.scribd.com/doc/32038200/Maariv-May27-10-Netanyahu-Says-He-Beat-Obama> and at bottom of post] In the course of intimate conversations over the past few weeks with top political officials and civil servants, Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu has said, according to his interlocutors, that he managed to defeat the US administration. Netanyahu is pleased by the fact that the Americans failed, so he said, to twist his arm and that ultimately, in the duel between him and the Obama administration, he was the one who emerged with the upper hand. We did not make concessions on our red lines and they failed to make us fold and to drag us to places we didn't want to go, said Netanyahu, according to people who heard him speak.
Netanyahu is convinced that he is not going to be forced to extend the settlement construction freeze, which is due to expire in September. According to senior officials in Jerusalem, an agreement has already been reached with the administration that the Israeli government will not announce an extension of the construction freeze in the territories, and the Americans will "make sure" that the Palestinians do not withdraw from the talks. Israel, however, will not take "aggressive" action and construction will be resumed only in areas that are clearly within the consensus inside the settlement blocs.
The Prime Minister's Bureau vigorously denied the above report. "The statements attributed to the prime minister are incorrect," said a spokesman in the Prime Minister's Bureau. "They were not said by Netanyahu in any forum. The reason is simple: the prime minister does not think that, Prime Minister Netanyahu holds in great esteem the commitment by President Obama and the administration to Israel's security and their efforts to renew the peace process in our region."
Eli Bardenstein adds: The formal invitation that Netanyahu received yesterday to meet with President Obama next week might attest to a radical change in the White House's attitude towards him. Political sources in Israel described the planned meeting as "the peak of the campaign for Israel and the Jews that has been pursued by the Obama administration in the past number of weeks." The sources said that the meeting was geared to put an end to the grave crisis that erupted some two months ago between the Obama administration and Netanyahu over the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and particularly over the continued construction in East Jerusalem, and to mend the mistaken impression that was received as if Israel was "no longer an absolute ally of the United States."
That crisis, which was initiated by the Americans, elicited fierce criticism in the United States, and sparked a desire among members of the Obama administration to rectify the situation. Another reason for the administration's desire to end the crisis is the fear of failure in the upcoming Congressional elections in November. "The Democratic Party's coffers are empty. Many Democrat members of Congress and Senators have complained that if the hazing of Israel were to continue, they would be unable to obtain donations from Jews and were liable to lose the elections," said one source in Washington.

The prevalent assessment is that Netanyahu will be received far more warmly in Washington next week than he was two months ago. This time the meeting will be covered by the media and the two leaders are expected to have their picture taken together and to give statements to the media.

That said, sources in Washington noted that "Netanyahu is leery of the meeting with Obama and of walking into a trap once again. He knows that the smiles notwithstanding, behind closed doors he is going to have to give answers to very difficult questions, like 'how do you envision the end of the negotiations with the Palestinians.'"

Netanyahu is to begin his political travels today in Paris, where he is to attend the ceremony in honor of Israel's acceptance into the OECD. The prime minister will be arriving in a city that is on strike, which is liable to impede his movement through the city streets to the center of Paris for his meetings.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 17, 2010 6:09 PM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Jim

Yes. [redacted] B6

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Apr 17 18:07:12 2010
Subject: Jim

He cannot do 7.
Asking if you can do 8pm?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, April 18, 2010 10:51 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Gates/Iran

I'm free and at home in DC if you want to call about the article, the Middle East and Bosnia.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Apr 17 21:06:53 2010
Subject: Gates/Iran

Have you seen this story? I look forward to discussing.

Gates Says U.S. Lacks Strategy to Curb Iran's Nuclear Drive

By DAVID E. SANGER and THOM SHANKER
Published: April 18, 2010

WASHINGTON - Defense Secretary Robert M. Gates has warned in a secret three-page memorandum to top White House officials that the United States does not have an effective long-range policy for dealing with Iran's steady progress toward nuclear capability, according to government officials familiar with the document.

Several officials said the highly classified analysis, written in January to President Obama's national security adviser, Gen. James L. Jones, touched off an intense effort inside the Pentagon, the White House and the intelligence agencies to develop new options for Mr. Obama. They include a revised set of military alternatives, still under development, to be considered should diplomacy and sanctions fail to force Iran to change course.

Officials familiar with the memo's contents would describe only portions dealing with strategy and policy, and not sections that apparently dealt with secret operations against Iran, or how to deal with Persian Gulf allies.

One senior official, who like others spoke on the condition of anonymity because of the sensitive nature of the memo, described the document as "a wake-up call." But White House officials dispute that view, insisting that for 15 months they had been conducting detailed planning for many possible outcomes regarding Iran's nuclear program.

In an interview on Friday, General Jones declined to speak about the memorandum. But he said: "On Iran, we are doing what we said we were going to do. The fact that we don't announce publicly our entire strategy for the world to see doesn't mean we don't have a strategy that anticipates the full range of contingencies - we do."

But in his memo, Mr. Gates wrote of a variety of concerns, including the absence of an effective strategy should Iran choose the course that many government and outside analysts consider likely: Iran could assemble all the major parts it needs for a nuclear weapon - fuel, designs and detonators - but stop just short of assembling a fully operational weapon.

In that case, Iran could remain a signatory of the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty while becoming what strategists call a "virtual" nuclear weapons state.

According to several officials, the memorandum also calls for new thinking about how the United States might contain Iran's power if it decided to produce a weapon, and how to deal with the possibility that fuel or weapons could be obtained by one of the terrorist groups Iran has supported, which officials said they considered to be a less-likely possibility.

Mr. Gates has never mentioned the memo in public. His spokesman, Geoff Morrell, declined comment on specifics in the document, but issued a statement on Saturday saying, "The secretary believes the president and his national security team have spent an extraordinary amount of time and effort considering and preparing for the full range of contingencies with respect to Iran."

Pressed on the administration's ambiguous phrases until now about how close the United States was willing to allow Iran's program to proceed, a senior administration official described last week in somewhat clearer terms that there was a line Iran would not be permitted to cross.

The official said that the United States would ensure that Iran would not "acquire a nuclear capability," a step Tehran could get to well before it developed a sophisticated weapon. "That includes the ability to have a breakout," he said, using the term nuclear specialists apply to a country that suddenly renounces the nonproliferation treaty and uses its technology to build a small arsenal.

Nearly two weeks ago, Mr. Obama, in an interview with The New York Times, was asked about whether he saw a difference between a nuclear-capable Iran and one that had a fully developed weapon. "I'm not going to parse that right now," he said. But he noted that North Korea was considered a nuclear-capable state until it threw out inspectors and, as he said, "became a self-professed nuclear state."

Mr. Gates has alluded to his concern that intelligence agencies might miss signals that Iran was taking the final steps toward producing a weapon. Last Sunday on the NBC News program "Meet the Press," he said: "If their policy is to go to the threshold but not assemble a nuclear weapon, how do you tell that they have not assembled? I don't actually know how you would verify that." But he cautioned that Iran had run into production difficulties, and he said, "It's going slow - slower than they anticipated, but they are moving in that direction."

Mr. Gates has taken a crucial role in formulating the administration's strategy, and he has been known over his career to issue stark warnings against the possibility of strategic surprise.

Some officials said his memo should be viewed in that light: as a warning to a relatively new president that the United States was not adequately prepared.

He wrote the memo after Iran had let pass a 2009 deadline set by Mr. Obama to respond to his offers of diplomatic engagement.

Both that process and efforts to bring new sanctions against Iran have struggled. Administration officials had hoped that the revelation by Mr. Obama in September that Iran was building a new uranium enrichment plant inside a mountain near Qum would galvanize other nations against Iran, but the reaction was muted. The next three months were spent in what proved to be fruitless diplomatic talks with Iran over a plan to swap much of its low-enriched uranium for fuel for a medical reactor in Tehran. By the time Mr. Gates wrote his memo, those negotiations had collapsed.

Mr. Gates's memo appears to reflect concerns in the upper echelons of the Pentagon and the military that the White House did not have a well-prepared series of alternatives in place in case all the diplomatic steps finally failed. In fact, just before Mr. Gates issued his warning, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Adm. Mike Mullen, wrote an official "chairman's guidance" to his staff saying that while any military option would have "limited results" against Iran's nuclear facilities, preparations needed to be stepped up.

"Should the president call for military options, we must have them ready," the admiral wrote.

Administration officials testifying before a Senate committee last week made it clear that those preparations were under way. So did General Jones. "The president has made it clear from the beginning of this administration that we need to be prepared for every possible contingency," he said in the interview. "That is what we have done from day one, while successfully building a coalition of nations to isolate Iran and pressure it to live up to its obligations."

At the same hearing before the Senate Armed Services Committee, Lt. Gen. Ronald L. Burgess Jr., director of the Defense Intelligence Agency, and Gen. James E. Cartwright, the vice chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and one of the military's most experienced officers on nuclear matters, said that Iran could produce bomb-grade fuel for at least one nuclear weapon within a year, but that it would probably need two to five years to manufacture a workable atomic bomb.

The administration has been stepping up efforts to contain the influence of Iran and counter its missiles, including placing Patriot anti-missile batteries, mostly

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, June 1, 2010 7:00 AM
To: 'pverveer[redacted] B6
Subject: Re: Ukraine

Very distressing report. If I go to Ukraine in early July, are you going w me? What could I do to address? Let's raise w Phil Gordon today.

----- Original Message -----
From: PVerveer[redacted]
To: H
Sent: Sun May 30 22:47:57 2010
Subject: Ukraine

This is from Fr. Borys Gudziak, the wonderful priest you met in Lviv. He gave you a tour of the Cathedral and you had a wonderful chat with him at the time. Since then, much progress has been made there. He became head of the new Ukrainian Catholic University and has really come in to his own as a respected leader and scholar.
Unfortunately, his situation and that of the Catholic community and academic freedom has come under siege since Yanokovich became president. I have a series of emails from the US Ukrainian community, in addition to this email directly from Gudziak, They are alarmed about developments. I've been in touch with John Tefft and sent him everything. He is aware of recent events.
I will make a folder of the correspondence for you since the community here and in Ukraine sees you as their champion. This is not a good turn of events.

---

From: gudziak[redacted]
To: pverveer[redacted]
Sent: 5/29/2010 3:09:23 A.M. Eastern Daylight Time
Subj: difficulties for UCU

Dear Melanne,

It has been awhile since we have been in touch. As you now we are under special pressure at the Ukrainian Catholic University. It is a question of our welfare and future. But not only. Almost no educational institutions have taken a stand in defense of democracy and even western Ukrainian politicians are capitulating under pressure. So is business. The approach of the new authorities is quick and systematic. Top and middle positions in all spheres of government, administration, state security, police have been rapidly changed and are effectively moving in on the freedom of the press and discourse.

Our students are scared.

Some are active, but some fear for the university, that it may loose accreditation. A father and his daughter-student came to my office in a state of anxiety.

Some students are afraid to blog and post comments because they fear that they will be traced and that their parents will loose their jobs.

There is clear evidence from one of our banks that the authorities are beginning to dig into the question of our finances. Provocations, moral defamation, planting of drugs and weapons in student residences as happened in 2004 before the election could be next.

The most effective defense is speaking out.

I am grateful for your solicitude and wanted to ask for two things.

1 To ask the Secretary of State to bring this to the attention of the president and vice president and to do what she can in our defense.

2. to help us get the story to some of the main media outlets: New York Times, Washington Post, Wall Street Journal, CNN, etc. One story by any of these for us and for the people in Ukraine that have the courage to speak the truth is invaluable.

We have had some great support already. But I have a sense that this adventure is only beginning and we have to be ready for everything.

Please pass on my respect to Secretary Clinton.

May God bless you!

Fr. Borys

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, April 18, 2010 10:58 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Gates/Iran

Also, did you talk w Feltmann?

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Apr 17 21:06:53 2010
Subject: Gates/Iran

Have you seen this story? I look forward to discussing.

Gates Says U.S. Lacks Strategy to Curb Iran's Nuclear Drive

By DAVID E. SANGER and THOM SHANKER
Published: April 18, 2010

WASHINGTON - Defense Secretary Robert M. Gates has warned in a secret three-page memorandum to top White House officials that the United States does not have an effective long-range policy for dealing with Iran's steady progress toward nuclear capability, according to government officials familiar with the document.

Several officials said the highly classified analysis, written in January to President Obama's national security adviser, Gen. James L. Jones, touched off an intense effort inside the Pentagon, the White House and the intelligence agencies to develop new options for Mr. Obama. They include a revised set of military alternatives, still under development, to be considered should diplomacy and sanctions fail to force Iran to change course.

Officials familiar with the memo's contents would describe only portions dealing with strategy and policy, and not sections that apparently dealt with secret operations against Iran, or how to deal with Persian Gulf allies.

One senior official, who like others spoke on the condition of anonymity because of the sensitive nature of the memo, described the document as "a wake-up call." But White House officials dispute that view, insisting that for 15 months they had been conducting detailed planning for many possible outcomes regarding Iran's nuclear program.

In an interview on Friday, General Jones declined to speak about the memorandum. But he said: "On Iran, we are doing what we said we were going to do. The fact that we don't announce publicly our entire strategy for the world to see doesn't mean we don't have a strategy that anticipates the full range of contingencies - we do."

But in his memo, Mr. Gates wrote of a variety of concerns, including the absence of an effective strategy should Iran choose the course that many government and outside analysts consider likely: Iran could assemble all the major parts it needs for a nuclear weapon - fuel, designs and detonators - but stop just short of assembling a fully operational weapon.

In that case, Iran could remain a signatory of the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty while becoming what strategists call a "virtual" nuclear weapons state.

According to several officials, the memorandum also calls for new thinking about how the United States might contain Iran's power if it decided to produce a weapon, and how to deal with the possibility that fuel or weapons could be obtained by one of the terrorist groups Iran has supported, which officials said they considered to be a less-likely possibility.

Mr. Gates has never mentioned the memo in public. His spokesman, Geoff Morrell, declined comment on specifics in the document, but issued a statement on Saturday saying, "The secretary believes the president and his national security team have spent an extraordinary amount of time and effort considering and preparing for the full range of contingencies with respect to Iran."

Pressed on the administration's ambiguous phrases until now about how close the United States was willing to allow Iran's program to proceed, a senior administration official described last week in somewhat clearer terms that there was a line Iran would not be permitted to cross.

The official said that the United States would ensure that Iran would not "acquire a nuclear capability," a step Tehran could get to well before it developed a sophisticated weapon. "That includes the ability to have a breakout," he said, using the term nuclear specialists apply to a country that suddenly renounces the nonproliferation treaty and uses its technology to build a small arsenal.

Nearly two weeks ago, Mr. Obama, in an interview with The New York Times, was asked about whether he saw a difference between a nuclear-capable Iran and one that had a fully developed weapon. "I'm not going to parse that right now," he said. But he noted that North Korea was considered a nuclear-capable state until it threw out inspectors and, as he said, "became a self-professed nuclear state."

Mr. Gates has alluded to his concern that intelligence agencies might miss signals that Iran was taking the final steps toward producing a weapon. Last Sunday on the NBC News program "Meet the Press," he said: "If their policy is to go to the threshold but not assemble a nuclear weapon, how do you tell that they have not assembled? I don't actually know how you would verify that." But he cautioned that Iran had run into production difficulties, and he said, "It's going slow - slower than they anticipated, but they are moving in that direction."

Mr. Gates has taken a crucial role in formulating the administration's strategy, and he has been known over his career to issue stark warnings against the possibility of strategic surprise.

Some officials said his memo should be viewed in that light: as a warning to a relatively new president that the United States was not adequately prepared.

He wrote the memo after Iran had let pass a 2009 deadline set by Mr. Obama to respond to his offers of diplomatic engagement.

Both that process and efforts to bring new sanctions against Iran have struggled. Administration officials had hoped that the revelation by Mr. Obama in September that Iran was building a new uranium enrichment plant inside a mountain near Qum would galvanize other nations against Iran, but the reaction was muted. The next three months were spent in what proved to be fruitless diplomatic talks with Iran over a plan to swap much of its low-enriched uranium for fuel for a medical reactor in Tehran. By the time Mr. Gates wrote his memo, those negotiations had collapsed.

Mr. Gates's memo appears to reflect concerns in the upper echelons of the Pentagon and the military that the White House did not have a well-prepared series of alternatives in place in case all the diplomatic steps finally failed. In fact, just before Mr. Gates issued his warning, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Adm. Mike Mullen, wrote an official "chairman's guidance" to his staff saying that while any military option would have "limited results" against Iran's nuclear facilities, preparations needed to be stepped up.

"Should the president call for military options, we must have them ready," the admiral wrote.

Administration officials testifying before a Senate committee last week made it clear that those preparations were under way. So did General Jones. "The president has made it clear from the beginning of this administration that we need to be prepared for every possible contingency," he said in the interview. "That is what we have done from day one, while successfully building a coalition of nations to isolate Iran and pressure it to live up to its obligations."

At the same hearing before the Senate Armed Services Committee, Lt. Gen. Ronald L. Burgess Jr., director of the Defense Intelligence Agency, and Gen. James E. Cartwright, the vice chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and one of the military's most experienced officers on nuclear matters, said that Iran could produce bomb-grade fuel for at least one nuclear weapon within a year, but that it would probably need two to five years to manufacture a workable atomic bomb.

The administration has been stepping up efforts to contain the influence of Iran and counter its missiles, including placing Patriot anti-missile batteries, mostly

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, June 1, 2010 7:03 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'; 'JilotyLC@state.gov'; 'Russorv@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Update on Fr. Beirne, S.J.

Pls add to call list and prepare a letter to Father B.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Thu May 27 21:56:26 2010
Subject: Fw: Update on Fr. Beirne, S.J.

---

From: Balderston, Kris M
To: Abedin, Huma; Jiloty, Lauren C
Sent: Thu May 27 19:28:46 2010
Subject: Fw: Update on Fr. Beirne, S.J.

Huma/Lauren

I am headed back from China and I do not have S' email but I wanted to pass on this info regarding Father Charlie Beirne, a friend to both of us and frmr Prez of LeMoyne College who is now at a hospice at Fordham University in the Bronx. He greatly admires S and they always had a special relationship. We had planned for him to come down and have lunch w us (incldg Mark Landler of the NYT who I have informed).

Charlie called me last night and he is stoic and brave but I think he would appreciate a call from S - who is simply admires

This is a Jesuit that showed his bravery by calling the Secy General of the Jesuits to ask to replace his Jesuit friend who had been massacred (along w others) by the military at a University in Central America.

---

From: abe [redacted] B6
To: Balderston, Kris M
Sent: Thu May 27 16:09:26 2010
Subject: Fw: Update on Fr. Beirne, S.J.

Kris

Hope all is well on your end. Just wanted to pass this sad update along. I know you and the Senator would want to know.

Abe

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

---

From: "Office Of The President" [redacted] B6
Date: Thu, 27 May 2010 10:13:39 -0400
To: Anne Endries< [redacted]; Mary Cotter< [redacted]; Daniel Crough< [redacted]
Donald LaCasse< [redacted] Jack Collins< [redacted] Jack Boorman< [redacted] Margaret Dwyer< [redacted] Robert Turner< [redacted] Vincent Spina< [redacted] Thomas
Wynne< [redacted] James Gaspo< [redacted] G. Edward Grant,
Jr. [redacted]; Michael Holland< [redacted]; Carol
Fletcher< [redacted] Susan Stratton [redacted] William
Barrett [redacted] Jeffrey von Arx, S.J.< [redacted] Dena Feeney< [redacted]
Henry Fust [redacted] Joseph O'Hare, S.J.< [redacted]; Pidge James< [redacted]
William Flynn< [redacted]; Bob Yeazel< [redacted]; Joseph
Marina< [redacted]; Elizabeth Hicks< [redacted] William Dolan,
S.J. [redacted] Fred Pestello< [redacted] Robert Errico< [redacted]
Francis Hilton, S.J.< [redacted] Walter Benson, Jr. [redacted] Stephen
Helmer< [redacted]; Michael Falcone< [redacted]; Noreen Falcone< [redacted] Paul Drescher< [redacted] Abraham Lackman< [redacted] James Malvaso [redacted] Richard Salmi, S.J. [redacted]; Darlene
Kerr< [redacted] Clifford Auth [redacted] Thomas Costello,
D.D [redacted] James Carrick [redacted] William Edwards [redacted] Jerry Brown< [redacted]; John Vensel< [redacted] James Rybicki< [redacted]; Debbie DiFino [redacted] Sharon
Kinsman< [redacted]
Cc: Maria Lee< [redacted] Judy Owen< [redacted] Denise
Chartrand< [redacted]
Subject: Update on Fr. Beirne, S.J.

Dear Trustees and Trustee Associates,

I am writing to share an update on Fr. Beirne's health. Fr. Beirne called this morning to let me know that his cancer has reached a stage where he has made the decision not to have any further clinical intervention. He prefers to live out the time he has remaining, six months by the doctors' projections, without the sapping of his energy and other side effects posed by his recent treatments. I have his permission to share this sad news with you. You may write to Fr. Beirne at Murray-Weigel Hall where he is now living (see address below) or phone him on his cell phone at [redacted]

Murray-Weigel Hall

515 E. Fordham Road

Bronx, NY 10458-5029

I am sure that you join me in offering prayers for Fr. Beirne as he faces the challenges his illness presents in his final months with us.

Sincerely,

Fred P. Pestello, Ph.D.

President
Le Moyne College
1419 Salt Springs Road
Syracuse, NY 13214-1301
Phone: 315.445.4120
FAX: 315.445.4691

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, June 1, 2010 5:16 PM
To: 'Russorv@state.gov'
Subject: Fw:

----- Original Message -----
From: Ebeling, Betsy
To: H
Sent: Tue Jun 01 09:11:33 2010
Subject: RE:

B6

-----Original Message-----
From: H [mailto:HDR22@clintonemail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, June 01, 2010 6:04 AM
To: Ebeling, Betsy
Cc: 'Russorv@state.gov'
Subject: Re:

----- Original Message -----
From: Ebeling, Betsy
To: H
Sent: Thu May 27 16:33:25 2010
Subject:

FISA director leaves legacy of collaboration

Breaking down barriers

Wednesday, May 26, 2010

By Tina Calabro, Pittsburgh Post-Gazette

Pam Panchak/Post-Gazette

FISA Foundation retiring executive director Dee Delaney, left, with the new executive director, Kristy Trautmann.

To people in the local disability community, Dee Delaney is a household name.

When news came this spring of her intention to retire as executive director of FISA Foundation in August, one could almost hear a collective gasp. With 14 years at the helm of the small but influential foundation, Ms. Delaney has had a pronounced and lasting influence on quality of life in our region.

On behalf of FISA, Ms. Delaney has changed the local landscape not only by funding projects with far-reaching results, but by bringing people together to craft solutions to longstanding problems and by becoming personally involved in many of the projects the foundation funds.

She became the first executive director of FISA Foundation when it began in 1996 with proceeds from the sale of Harmarville Rehabilitation Center, a nonprofit, to HealthSouth, a for-profit organization.

The new foundation would continue the mission of the Federation of Independent School Alumnae, an organization that opened a convalescent home for women in 1911 and the Harmarville Rehabilitation Center in 1954. That mission was to improve the lives of women, girls and people with disabilities in Western Pennsylvania.

Ms. Delaney, who had been involved with Harmarville since 1980 -- starting as a volunteer and ending as development director of its foundation -- sought the job of leading FISA. "I realized the impact the foundation could have. FISA is not a large foundation, but it's a very focused foundation," she said.

Over the past 14 years, FISA's endowment has grown to more than $38 million. Over $17 million has been granted to 726 projects in 298 organizations.

A roll call of projects funded by FISA reflects progressive thinking about including of people with disabilities in all aspects of life, especially access to health care. Programs have become national models.

Women with disabilities, for example, often encounter barriers in typical healthcare settings. Standard exam tables and diagnostic equipment were designed for the able-bodied, and medical staff often struggle to accommodate individuals with special needs. FISA provided the seed money for the Center for Women with Disabilities at Magee-Womens Hospital of UPMC, one of the first such clinics in the nation. FISA is involved in the overall issue of improving access to healthcare for people with disabilities.

Likewise, people with disabilities have difficulty obtaining dental care. A FISA-funded project at Achieva is creating statewide, systemic solutions. FISA also provided support for the Center for Patients with Special Needs at Pitt's School of Dental Medicine.

FISA has also taken the lead on training arts and cultural venues how to make events more accessible and helping places of worship more welcoming.

"Dee is a national leader in the field. If there were more people like her, we wouldn't have the issues we have," said Kim Hutchinson, executive director of the Disability Funders Network, based in Virginia. Ms. Delaney has been a board officer for the group since 2004.

Nancy Murray, president of the ARC of Greater Pittsburgh, said the issues Ms. Delaney has helped solve are ones that people have been working on for years.

"People talk about strategies, but never move forward to solutions. Dee brings all the stakeholders together to get to the solutions," said Ms. Murray.

"I think Dee has greatly influenced the next generation of nonprofit and philanthropic leaders, leading by example on the value of true collaboration," said Susie Chase, a board member of FISA and former executive director of Working Order, a FISA grantee.

"With Dee, it is never about her own role, or FISA's role, it is always about unmet needs in the community and the work that needs to be done. That seems to bring out the best in every partner, and in everyone who has the privilege of working with her."

Ms. Chase added that advice and technical assistance Ms. Delaney provided to Working Order "were of equal or greater value to the organization than the grant funds."

"I still, after many years, never come away from a meeting with Dee that I haven't learned something, been inspired to work harder, and understood more clearly the value of someone else's ideas and efforts."

In her retirement, Ms. Delaney plans to "give back to the community in new ways," she said. A new frontier is helping young people with disabilities prepare for employment and leadership. "We have to keep the fire burning."

On May 19, FISA announced that Kristy Trautmann, who has served as the foundation's program director for six years, was promoted to executive director.

"We sought a person who would follow Ms. Delaney's visionary leadership and guide the foundation into the next decade," said Jane Burger, who chaired the search committee. "We know that we have found such a person in Kristy Trautmann. She understands the challenges facing the populations the foundation supports and has the trust of the board and the community."

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, March 12, 2010 7:43 AM
To: 'rooneym@state.gov'; 'pverveer[redacted] B6
Subject: Speech

Is there a reason I don't mention the need for the UN to have more women at higher levels?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, April 18, 2010 11:44 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Tony blair says he's free to talk anytime today. He's in middle east so is 8 hours ahead.

I can talk w him at 1 or 3.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Apr 18 11:18:10 2010
Subject: Tony blair says he's free to talk anytime today. He's in middle east so is 8 hours ahead.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, April 18, 2010 7:07 PM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Tomorrow

Did you ever ask [redacted] what else I can take? Should I call him directly? B6

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Apr 18 18:21:10 2010
Subject: Re: Tomorrow

latest is that nato will make decision tomorrow morning, they don't want to cancel unless they have to and unless we have other dates to offer. We talked about around poland in july for the alternative.
Phil and I are connecting early tomorrow.
My guess is it will be moved.

[redacted]

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Sun Apr 18 18:13:15 2010
Subject: Re: Tomorrow

[redacted] What's the latest for our trip to Finland?

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Apr 18 18:10:32 2010
Subject: Tomorrow

[redacted]

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, March 12, 2010 11:08 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Deputy Secretary Lew's Schedule, Monday, March 15, 2010

Can you talk tomorrow before 10:30 am?

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri Mar 12 21:41:39 2010
Subject: FW: Deputy Secretary Lew's Schedule, Monday, March 15, 2010

Remind me to discuss when we talk

From: Dubose, Mary L
Sent: Friday, March 12, 2010 5:37 PM
To: D(L)_LewDailySchedule
Subject: Deputy Secretary Lew's Schedule, Monday, March 15, 2010

Deputy Secretary Lew will be out of the office on Monday, March 15. He will return to the office on Tuesday, March 16.

---

Mary L. Dubose • Personal Assistant to Deputy Secretary Lew • Office of the Deputy Secretary of State • U.S. Department of State - 2201 C St, NW Rm 7240, Washington, DC 20520 '(202.647.5073-w: 7 202.647.5108-Fax)* DuboseML@state.gov <mailto:DuboseML@state.gov>

RELEASE IN PART
B1,1.4(D)

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, April 19, 2010 8:24 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: BBC poll on global attitutudes-favorable views of USA
Attachments: plugin-BBC_2010 Country Influence Poll_Long Version.pdf; plugin-BBC_2010 Country Influence Poll_Long Version.pdf

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: McHale, Judith A <McHaleJA@state.gov>
To: H; Steinberg, James B <SteinbergJB@state.gov>; Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>; Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>; Lew, Jacob J <LewJJ@state.gov>
Cc: Macmanus, Joseph E <MacmanusJE@state.gov>
Sent: Mon Apr 19 07:07:33 2010
Subject: FW: BBC poll on global attitutudes-favorable views of USA

FYI. Mostly good news. I am already focusing on Turkey. Met with my Turkish counter-part last week and have a trip planned for early June.

1.4(D)
B1

I'll keep you posted as things move forward. Will also send you an email on the high side about my SSCI hearing last week.

jm

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 04/19/2020

RELEASE IN PART B4,B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, April 19, 2010 3:56 PM
To: 'balderstonkm@state.gov'
Subject: Corning

B4
B5

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, March 13, 2010 10:31 AM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: reception invitation
Attachments: Reception Invitation.pdf; Reception Invitation.pdf

Pls regret.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri Mar 12 21:08:27 2010
Subject: FW: reception invitation

fyi

From: Lomellin, Carmen
Sent: Friday, March 12, 2010 7:02 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: reception invitation

Hi Cheryl – hope you're holding up ok with all of the Haiti work.

I'm having a little reception on 3/22 6pm over at the OAS to celebrate my swearing-in. I'd love it if you could come by for a glass of champagne and a little jazz music!

I'd love to invite the Secretary. Is that even proper protocol? Although she probably couldn't attend, I'd like to share it with her. Your thoughts?

Ambassador Carmen Lomellin

U.S. Permanent Representative to the OAS

2201 C. St, NW #5914

Washington, DC 20520

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, March 13, 2010 5:47 PM
To: 'slaughtera@state.gov'
Cc: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Question

Can you have S/P prepare a comparison of India, Pakistan and Banghladesh over the last 20-30 years on as many factors reflecting their respective economic and social development as you can muster? I suspect it will prove useful in my meetings w Pak leaders in ten days.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, April 19, 2010 5:19 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Secretary's Video Speech

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Apr 19 10:18:03 2010
Subject: FW: Secretary's Video Speech

FYI

---

From: John, Eric G
Sent: Monday, April 19, 2010 4:29 AM
To: Campbell, Kurt M; Marciel, Scot A; Smith, Demian
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Secretary's Video Speech

Kurt:

You'll be happy to know that the Secretary's video message was the subject of a great op-ed in today's Thai Rath, the leading newspaper in Thailand. They took exactly the line that we hoped they would – seeing her message not as the U.S. intervening in politics, but, rather, as a very personal message from someone who cares deeply about Thailand. The writer even referred to the Secretary's autobiography.

Thai Rath (leading Thai language daily), a commentary on Thai politics, April 16, referenced Secretary Clinton's video statement calling for a peaceful solution to Thailand's political crisis: "I would like to thank U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton for making a request herself and on behalf of President Obama for the two opposing parties to return to the negotiating table so as to end their conflict. The short video message in which she mentioned Thailand was full of sincerity. She started by saying that she was making this request as "a long-standing friend of the Thai people" She referred to the Songkran festival which is the Thai New Year and said the opposing parties should consider this an opportunity for a new round of talks. She emphasized that violence cannot bring happiness and peace and that the opposing parties should talk in order to solve the problem. I believe Mrs. Clinton said this with sincerity. I have read a book in which she wrote about her brief visit to Thailand as First Lady several years ago and showed her goodwill toward the Thai people and Thailand in the book. During her most recent visit to Thailand last year, Mrs. Clinton gave an interview and expressed her opinion about Thai politics in the most amicable way. Normally, I do not quite approve of the U.S. because I think it often meddles with other countries' affairs. But I wholeheartedly agree with Secretary Clinton's request and would like to sincerely thank her for it." (To see the video, click here. <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=LPGYKvoDma8> To read the original article in Thai, click here. <http://www.thairath.co.th/column/pol/hehapatee/76917>)

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 14, 2010 8:52 AM
To: 'slaughtera@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Question

Ok.

----- Original Message -----
From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sat Mar 13 19:47:58 2010
Subject: Re: Question

Absolutely. That's what you have a think tank for! On a related note, while it may not be useful for Pakistan, I think we shd find ways to work qddr briefings/discussions into our strategic dialogues w/ india and china, to talk about how we are rethinking both diplomacy and development -- maybe also w/ South Africa. AM

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Slaughter, Anne-Marie
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sat Mar 13 17:47:24 2010
Subject: Question

Can you have S/P prepare a comparison of India, Pakistan and Banghladesh over the last 20-30 years on as many factors reflecting their respective economic and social development as you can muster? I suspect it will prove useful in my meetings w Pak leaders in ten days.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, April 19, 2010 5:22 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: From the road

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: Verveer, Melanne S <VerveerMS@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Apr 18 04:55:23 2010
Subject: From the road

I wanted to give you some brief observations from my trip to Lithuania. First of all, their friendship with the US and respect for you was much in evidence on all levels. Most of the cabinet turned out for the reception that the amb hosted for me. The FM went out his way to tell me what it meant to get a call from you when he assumed his position (he's hoping to have a few mins with you in Tallin). As far as Lith has to go, it has achieved some remarkable achievements for Eastern Eur. They have a female president, Speaker, Finance minister and def. minister. I had a good meeting with the President and thanked her for Lith commitment to our collective efforts in afghanistan. They run the smallest PRT and, despite a tough economy, have done everything we've asked in terms of additional support since the surge. The meeting with the Speaker and top women members of the parl'nt was yet another reminder of your inspiration over many years. One of the women was at the Vienna VV conf and said she's in politics today because of you. Another read about safe birthing kits in your book and was inspired to send several thousand to Afghanistan. They are eager for more opportunities to work together.

I came primarily to launch the new working group on gender that we and Lith are co-chairing. There was much gratitude for our leadership with them in the Community of Democracies.
The meaning of democracy is so strong for people who had to stuggle for it more recently. They really feel this is an important time to renew the understanding of democ, particularly after the bruising it underwent over the last several years.
We had terrific turnout from other countries, many comments about you and references to Beijing and Iceland VV conf. (So many people told me the impact Vienna and Iceland had on them). We left our meeting with many commitments for future concrete projects that will be undertaken. There is great hope that you will be in Krakow in July for the CD ministerial. The Lith CD coordinator headed to Belgium the next day for an EU meeting. He told me he got a very positive response for our gender initiative and that Ashton was particularly excited about it. The EU is locating their new gender institute in Lithuania and they are ager for our help.
The Dutch minister who came said the outcome of their election in June will say much about the nature of their ongoing commitment in Afg.
Lastly, I arrived shortly after the Polish tragedy. There is a very close relationship between the 2 countries and their grief was palpable. Jolenta Kwasniewska and several other Poles came to the CD meeting. She told me that they lost so many of their top leaders across all sectors of society, incl several top women leaders. Jolenta' foundation has been very active in advancing women's progress in Poland as well as working in other countries.

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 14, 2010 8:57 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: AIPAC speech

B5

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, April 19, 2010 6:03 PM
To: 'CampbellKM@state.gov'
Subject: Yeah!

Pls tell Lael how pleased--and relieved--I am for her--and you! Now, take her away for a night or weekend, maybe the Inn at Little Washington or Greenbriar or anywhere sans kids. H

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, April 19, 2010 7:02 PM
To: 'rodriguezme@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Brainard Vote

Yeah! Thx.

----- Original Message -----
From: Rodriguez, Miguel E <RodriguezME@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Apr 19 17:59:23 2010
Subject: Brainard Vote

Cloture was invoked on Lael Brainard's nomination this afternoon, 84-10.

Miguel E. Rodríguez

Deputy Assistant Secretary for Senate Affairs

Bureau of Legislative Affairs

U.S. Department of State

(202) 647-2645

rodriguezme@state.gov

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, September 25, 2010 1:25 PM
To: H
Subject: Judeh

He called again saying he needs to talk before 2pm.
Do you want jeff to return?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, April 20, 2010 9:25 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Volcanic Ash Travel Disruption Spot Report No. 1

So, what's the latest? It sounds contradictory and when does AF have to decide? Shall we take the 1 or 2 shuttle?

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Tue Apr 20 08:31:55 2010
Subject: Fw: Volcanic Ash Travel Disruption Spot Report No. 1

Update on airport openings. Looks like estonia is partially open. They think most ministers will fly private so they seem to want to try and move forward.

---

From: OpsAlert
Sent: Tue Apr 20 06:37:21 2010
Subject: Volcanic Ash Travel Disruption Spot Report No. 1

SENSITIVE BUT UNCLASSIFIED

SPOT REPORT No. 1

VOLCANIC ASH TRAVEL DISRUPTION

Tuesday, April 20, 2010

0630 EDT

SOME EUROPEAN AIRLINES RESUME OPERATIONS

(SBU) The European Organization for the Safety of Air Navigation (EuroControl) expects close to 60 percent of the scheduled 27,500 flights in European airspace to fly April 20. There were approximately 8700 flights on April 19, roughly 30 percent of regularly scheduled flights. (www.eurocontrol.int <http://www.eurocontrol.int/> )

· (SBU) EU transportation ministers agreed on a phased opening of larger airports, subject to changing conditions. Per www.eurocontrol.int <http://www.eurocontrol.int/> , current European airport operations include:

o Normal Operations: Austria, Bosnia, Bulgaria, Czech Republic, Hungary, Italy, Latvia, Montenegro, Netherlands, Romania, Russia, Serbia, Switzerland, Turkey, Ukraine

o Partial Operations (includes airports fully operational for limited hours): Belgium, Britain, Estonia, France, Germany, Ireland, Luxembourg, Norway, Slovakia, Spain, Sweden

o Closed (in some cases the airspace remains open for transit flights): Denmark, Finland, Lithuania, Poland, Slovenia

· (SBU) For additional information, please go to the New York Times airport cancellation tracker: www.nytimes.com/interactive/2010/04/15/world/europe/airport-closings-graphic.html?src=me&ref=world <http://www.nytimes.com/interactive/2010/04/15/world/europe/airport-closings-graphic.html?src=me&ref=world>

STATE DEPARTMENT RESPONSE

· (SBU) The United States is not evacuating American citizens at this time. Commercial travel is expected to resume before U.S. Government-facilitated arrangements could be made. (travel.state.gov <http://www.travel.state.gov/> )

· (SBU) Consular Affairs (CA) updated the travel.state.gov <http://www.state.gov/> website, as well as websites for U.S. Embassies throughout Europe, in order to provide additional details, including low-cost hotels, medical services, and the process to refill U.S. prescriptions. CA urges travelers to monitor local news and check in with airlines frequently. As applicable, the websites also detail procedures for those who have exceeded the duration of their visas due to the delays. (travel.state.gov <http://www.travel.state.gov/> )

Please see our classified website at http://ses.state.sgov.gov <http://ses.state.sgov.gov/> .

Drafted: KMZurcher

Approved: HCThompson

Dist: State (all bureaus), NSS, OSD, NMCC, JCS, CIA, OSC, NCTC, DHS

SENSITIVE BUT UNCLASSIFIED

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, June 2, 2010 9:59 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Cell Number for AL Ag Comm Ron Sparks, Dem Nominee for Gov Beating Rep Artur Davis w over 60 Percent

Pls add to call list.

----- Original Message -----
From: Burns Strider <[redacted] B6
To: H; Huma Abedin <abedinh@state.gov>
Sent: Tue Jun 01 23:36:17 2010
Subject: Cell Number for AL Ag Comm Ron Sparks, Dem Nominee for Gov Beating Rep Artur Davis w over 60 Percent

Ag Comm Ron Sparks Cell
[redacted].. Sparks was vocal, active HRC supporter. He traveled to some other states, participated in nearly all Rural Americans for Hillary conference and strategy calls, offered ideas and encouragement and was always ready to speak on your behalf. He's a smart, energetic politician.

Burns Strider

RELEASE IN PART
B6

B6

From: sbwhoeop
Sent: Saturday, September 25, 2010 1:51 PM
To: H
Subject: Re: more...

The marginal vote undoubtedly was driven by reactive and residual feelings about Tony. David paid the price.

-----Original Message-----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: 'sbwhoeop
Sent: Sat, Sep 25, 2010 1:40 pm
Subject: Re: more...

Clearly more about Tony that David or Ed.

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop
To: H
Sent: Sat Sep 25 12:14:37 2010
Subject: more...

Ed Miliband's victory was carried by an anti-Blair undercurrent. In the first round voting, David was ahead. But when the votes of Ed Balls was distributed to the second choice of voters, they put Ed over. Balls represents Gordon, but even more a distancing from New Labour. Ed's use of Iraq as an issue is symbolic of the repudiation of New Labour. Ed had more labor union votes for leader, which accounted for one-third of total. Ed's "new generation" rhetoric covers that regression and continuing reactive impulse. Now the shadow cabinet, due to a new decision, will be elected by the party. Ed is the former environment minister and good on green issues, of course, but has no foreign policy perspective yet instinctively to the left, which means anti-Afghanistan mission as currently conceived, it should go without saying. David lost precisely because he held responsible positions.

Sid

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, April 20, 2010 9:26 AM
To: 'preines[redacted] B6
Cc: Huma Abedin
Subject: Dorothy Height

Have we prepared a statement--w Bill or solo?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, April 20, 2010 10:08 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Statement for sign off

Ok to go.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Tue Apr 20 09:40:12 2010
Subject: Statement for sign off

Joint Statement by Former President Clinton and Secretary of State Clinton on the Passing of Dr. Dorothy Height We are deeply saddened to learn of the passing of Dr. Dorothy Height, an icon of America's long march toward equality and a personal inspiration to us both. As the only woman among the "Big Six" civil rights leaders, Dr. Height helped galvanize a movement that changed our country forever. She organized the "Wednesdays in Mississippi" meetings that brought black and white women together to find common ground and break down barriers. She never stopped fighting for what she knew was right. And through it all, she was always the best dressed woman in the room. We were blessed to know Dr. Height, to benefit from her grace, passion and wisdom, and to call her our friend. For decades, starting with the early days at the Children's Defense Fund, we worked with her, learned from her, and drew inspiration from her example. From the Presidential Medal of Freedom, to the Congressional Gold Medal, to the unveiling of a long-sought-after bust of Sojourner Truth in the United States Capitol, we had the privilege of helping honor Dr. Height and her accomplishments. Born before women had the right to vote, denied access to the college of her choice because of the color of her skin, and witness to nation divided, Dr. Height dedicated her life to the proposition that all Americans should have the opportunity to live up to their full God-given potential. Our nation is poorer for her loss but infinitely richer for the life she led, the progress she achieved, and the people she touched. Our thoughts and prayers are with Dr. Height's family today, and with her many loving friends and colleagues. She would be the first to tell us that the best way to honor her memory is to carry forward the work she started and the causes she championed, to open wide the freedom gates. May we all find the strength and the wisdom to live up to her legacy.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 14, 2010 2:18 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Cc: Huma Abedin
Subject: Call list

Take off:

Miliband
Carson
Netanyahu
Mubarak
Powell
Rice
Lautenberg--but ask Rob to do note
Pascual

RELEASE IN PART B6

B6

From: Burns Strider
Sent: Saturday, September 25, 2010 1:54 PM
To: H; Huma Abedin; Justin Cooper; Jon Davidson
Subject: Lots of copy on Clintons... Photo of Chelsea
Attachments: LexmarkAIOScan11.jpg; LexmarkAIOScan12.jpg; LexmarkAIOScan13.jpg; LexmarkAIOScan9.jpg; LexmarkAIOScan11.jpg; LexmarkAIOScan12.jpg; LexmarkAIOScan13.jpg; LexmarkAIOScan9.jpg

I agreed to this feature because the mag covers most of Travis' district... Hoping to add some narrative and values to things down there... A good bit of copy on the Clinton family... It doesn't seem to be online (not yet anyway). took shots of hardcopy (attachments) and sent to us:

Sent from my Verizon Wireless BlackBerry

-----Original Message-----
From: "Burns Strider"
Date: Fri, 24 Sep 2010 21:46:09
To: <burns.strider
Subject: Fw:

-----Original Message-----
From: Cindy Akins
To: Burns Strider
Sent: Fri Sep 24 20:09:26 2010

Ok I have no idea what all I have sent you. It is no telling.
hopefully you got the article. Talk to you soon

Note: These attachments will expire in 30 days.

1 file(s) attached (25.61 MB): View All lexmarkaioscan1-tif
25.61 MBView powered by
-- simple, private, sharing and collaboration Learn more.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, September 25, 2010 2:46 PM
To: H
Subject: Feltman

In mtg with Egyptians. Will call in when done.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, April 20, 2010 11:39 AM
To: 'balderstonkm@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Office to Monitor and Combat Trafficking.....Jim Blom, Etc

Pls keep me updated on this project. Thx.

----- Original Message -----
From: Marty Torrey [redacted] B6
To: Balderston, Kris M <BalderstonKM@state.gov>; H
Sent: Thu Apr 15 14:27:42 2010
Subject: Office to Monitor and Combat Trafficking.....Jim Blom, Etc

Kris,
Background.....All this separate from Simon's broader system(s) potential. Jim (James F.)Blom is Dave's former business partner in Alacrity Homeland Group. Lives in San Francisco w/ wife and 2 kids. American, but well healed due to long family history in Norwegian shipping companies. Grandfather was pals with Onassis. You get the picture. Has tight linkage in supply chain & IT space(s). Deals in countries like you and I dealt with counties / states. Brilliant, resourceful. Not prone to hyperbole, says he can bring the 'best in the world' to this effort. Based on track record , I believe him. For example, CdeBaca recently met with social networking folks in Silicon Valley. Not sure how that went, but Jim is close friends with the guy who handles 'Facebook's' finances and said he can get his attention 'in one phone call'. Social networking piece helpful, but probably a more aggressive 'identify, track, snag, deal with' traffickers required. Method(s) & prioritization necessary. Let's look into. Spoke w/ Jim about CdeBaca connect. We're in. Best, Marty
---- "Balderston wrote:
> Thnx. I am happy to do the introduction.
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: H [mailto:HDR22@clintonemail.com]
> Sent: Thursday, April 15, 2010 12:54 PM
> To: 'mtorrey [redacted]
> Cc: Balderston, Kris M
> Subject: Re: 'Stone Harbour,LLC'
>
> Marty--I'm copying Kris and asking that he connect you w Lou C de Baca whose in charge of the office responsible for trafficking in State so you can explore ways of helping. Thx.
>
> ----- Original Message -----
> From: Marty Torrey [redacted]
> To: H
> Sent: Thu Apr 15 07:44:25 2010
> Subject: 'Stone Harbour,LLC'
>
> HRC,
> As of April 21st Dave Stone's former business partner ( James F. Blom > ), and I will establish 'Stone Harbour,LLC' (named for Dave) in Delaware. This will be a nice merger of Dave's and my contacts. Apart from the ongoing vetting of Simon Stringer's multi purpose software, at several levels, I am keen to help in the human trafficking effort. I have been in touch with Sharyn Magarian (keeping Kris B informed) in seeking the status of that effort, as I am quite sure the combo of Dave's former contacts and mine can help. Jim Blom has already spoken to several (Oracle Corp and his friends in Silicon Valley) and they too are motivated. Work is work, but the human trafficking issue seems like the right thing to do. All the best, Marty

RELEASE IN PART
B1 1.4(B) 1.4(D), B6

From: aclb [redacted] B6
Sent: Saturday, September 25, 2010 2:56 PM
To: H
Cc: 'jake.sullivan [redacted] B6
Subject: Re: Info for you

[redacted]

[redacted] Best Tony B1 1.4(B) 1.4(D)

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: 'jake.sullivan [redacted] <jake.sullivan [redacted] B6
Sent: Fri Sep 24 15:49:27 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

Hi Hillary. Just spent 3 hours with BB. Ready to speak when convenient but should do it on secure line. Best Tony

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: aclb
Cc: 'jake.sullivan [redacted] <jake.sullivan [redacted] B6
Sent: Fri Sep 24 05:16:14 2010
Subject: Fw: Info for you

Tony---

Message delivered. Pls read all the way down. Also, I'm copying Jake Sullivan because I've asked him to arrange a call w you once you land so you can be fully briefed before seeing BN. We are on a fast moving train changing direction every hour but determined to reach our destination.

Thx again for jumping into action this week. It's great having you on the team. All the best, H

----- Original Message -----
From: Lynn Forester de Rothschild [redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Thu Sep 23 23:58:37 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

Hillary,
We of course understand and thank you for personally reaching out to us. It is a big loss for the weekend but as we know it does not add up to a hill of beans. You are the best, and we remain your biggest fans.
Sweet dreams and Godspeed with everything you are doing.
Oxoxo
Lynn

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 09/24/2035

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Lynn Forester de Rothschild
Sent: Thu Sep 23 22:30:45 2010
Subject: Info for you

Lynn,

I was trying to reach you to tell you and Teddy that I asked Tony Blair to go to Israel as part of our full court press on keeping the Middle East negotiations going. He told me that he had a commitment in Aspen w you two and the conference, but after we talked, he decided to go and asked me to tell you. He is very sorry, obviously, but I'm grateful that he accepted my request. I hope you all understand and give him a raincheck.

If you were interested, he might be able to satellite in if you have the technology available.

He should land around 5am Aspen time. Let me know what penance I owe you. And pls explain to Teddy. As ever, H

DISCLAIMER

WARNING – This email is only intended for the person to whom or entity to which it is addressed and, together with any files transmitted with it, is confidential and may also be privileged. If you are not the intended recipient, you must not copy, forward, use or rely on any part of it or disclose its contents to any person. If you have received it in error, please notify our system manager on +44 20 7647 7782 and delete all copies immediately.

Except where this email is sent in the usual course of our business, the views expressed in this email are those of the sender and not those of The Office of Tony Blair.

The Office of Tony Blair accepts no responsibility for software viruses and you should check for viruses before opening any attachments. Internet communications are not secure and therefore The Office of Tony Blair does not provide any guarantee or warranty that this email or any attachments shall remain confidential.

The Office of Tony Blair is a trading name of Windrush Ventures Limited and Windrush Ventures No.3 LP. Windrush Ventures Limited is a limited company registered in England and Wales with registered number 06397276. Its registered office is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL.

Windrush Ventures No. 3 LP is a limited partnership registered in England and Wales with registered number LP012665. Its registered office is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL. The members of Windrush Ventures No.3 LP are BDBCO No.819 Limited and Windrush Ventures No.2 LLP and the address at which each of these can be served is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL.

This email may relate to or be sent from other members of the Windrush group.

---

This email has been scanned by the MessageLabs Email Security System.
For more information please visit http://www.messagelabs.com/email

---

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 14, 2010 3:36 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Any new developments on Israel or anything else?

Call if there is info to report. Thx.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 14, 2010 5:22 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Statement

Ok.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Mar 14 17:11:28 2010
Subject: Statement

Does this work for you?

Statement by the Secretary

Murders in Ciudad Juárez, Mexico

Today the men and women of the Department of State are mourning the murder of three people connected to the United States Consulate General in Ciudad Juárez, Mexico. One American consulate employee was killed along with her husband, and the husband of a Mexican employee was also killed. I offer my deepest sympathies to the family, loved ones and colleagues of these victims. The safety and security of our personnel and their families in Mexico and at posts around the world is always our highest priority. I have spoken with our Ambassador in Mexico and we are working with the Government of Mexico to do everything necessary to protect our people and to ensure that the perpetrators of these horrendous acts are brought to justice.

These appalling assaults on members of our own State Department family are, sadly, part of a growing tragedy besetting many communities in Mexico. They underscore the imperative of our continued commitment to work closely with the Government of President Calderón to cripple the influence of trafficking organizations at work in Mexico. This is a responsibility we must shoulder together, particularly in border communities where strong bonds of history, culture, and common interest bind the Mexican and the American people closely together.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 14, 2010 6:30 PM
To: 'rooneym@state.gov'
Subject: UN speech

Thx for all you did to make it work. I thought it went very well and I was so pleased you could be there. Now, onto the Irish!

RELEASE IN PART
B1 1.4(B) 1.4(D), B6

From: jake.sullivan B6
Sent: Saturday, September 25, 2010 3:19 PM
To: aclb; H
Subject: Re: Info for you

We have pitched this B1 1.4(B) 1.4(D)

Sent from my BlackBerry® smartphone with SprintSpeed

-----Original Message-----
From: aclb B6
Date: Sat, 25 Sep 2010 19:56:19
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com'<HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: 'jake.sullivan <jake.sullivan
Subject: Re: Info for you

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 09/24/2035

B1 1.4(B) 1.4(D)

Best Tony

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: 'jake.sullivan ' <jake.sullivan B6
Sent: Fri Sep 24 15:49:27 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

Hi Hillary. Just spent 3 hours with BB. Ready to speak when convenient but should do it on secure line. Best Tony

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: aclb
Cc: 'jake.sullivan <jake.sullivan B6
Sent: Fri Sep 24 05:16:14 2010
Subject: Fw: Info for you

Tony---

Message delivered. Pls read all the way down. Also, I'm copying Jake Sullivan because I've asked him to arrange a call w you once you land so you can be fully briefed before seeing BN. We are on a fast moving train changing direction every hour but determined to reach our destination.

Thx again for jumping into action this week. It's great having you on the team. All the best, H

----- Original Message -----
From: Lynn Forester de Rothschild B6

To: H
Sent: Thu Sep 23 23:58:37 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

Hillary,
We of course understand and thank you for personally reaching out to us. It is a big loss for the weekend but as we know it does not add up to a hill of beans. You are the best, and we remain your biggest fans.
Sweet dreams and Godspeed with everything you are doing.
Oxoxo
Lynn

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Lynn Forester de Rothschild
Sent: Thu Sep 23 22:30:45 2010
Subject: Info for you

Lynn,

I was trying to reach you to tell you and Teddy that I asked Tony Blair to go to Israel as part of our full court press on keeping the Middle East negotiations going. He told me that he had a commitment in Aspen w you two and the conference, but after we talked, he decided to go and asked me to tell you. He is very sorry, obviously, but I'm grateful that he accepted my request. I hope you all understand and give him a raincheck.

If you were interested, he might be able to satellite in if you have the technology available.

He should land around 5am Aspen time. Let me know what penance I owe you. And pls explain to Teddy. As ever, H

DISCLAIMER

WARNING – This email is only intended for the person to whom or entity to which it is addressed and, together with any files transmitted with it, is confidential and may also be privileged. If you are not the intended recipient, you must not copy, forward, use or rely on any part of it or disclose its contents to any person. If you have received it in error, please notify our system manager on +44 20 7647 7782 and delete all copies immediately.

Except where this email is sent in the usual course of our business, the views expressed in this email are those of the sender and not those of The Office of Tony Blair.

The Office of Tony Blair accepts no responsibility for software viruses and you should check for viruses before opening any attachments. Internet communications are not secure and therefore The Office of Tony Blair does not provide any guarantee or warranty that this email or any attachments shall remain confidential.

The Office of Tony Blair is a trading name of Windrush Ventures Limited and Windrush Ventures No.3 LP. Windrush Ventures Limited is a limited company registered in England and Wales with registered number 06397276. Its registered office is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL.

Windrush Ventures No. 3 LP is a limited partnership registered in England and Wales with registered number LP012665. Its registered office is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL. The members of Windrush Ventures No.3 LP are BDBCO No.819 Limited and Windrush Ventures No.2 LLP and the address at which each of these can be served is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL.

This email may relate to or be sent from other members of the Windrush group.

This email has been scanned by the MessageLabs Email Security System.
For more information please visit http://www.messagelabs.com/email

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, April 20, 2010 11:39 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Cc: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Tony blair says he's free to talk anytime today. He's in middle east so is 8 hours ahead.

Pls schedule so I can get this done.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Apr 18 11:18:10 2010
Subject: Tony blair says he's free to talk anytime today. He's in middle east so is 8 hours ahead.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

B6

From: jake.sullivan[redacted]
Sent: Saturday, September 25, 2010 6:10 PM
To: H
Subject: Re: What's happening now?

We're going to send you letter in a few.

------Original Message------
From: H
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
To: 'jake.sullivan[redacted]
Subject: What's happening now?
Sent: Sep 25, 2010 6:23 PM

Sent from my BlackBerry® smartphone with SprintSpeed

RELEASE IN PART
1.4(B),B1,1.4(D),B6

From: aclb [redacted] B6
Sent: Saturday, September 25, 2010 6:12 PM
To: H
Cc: 'jake.sullivan[redacted]
Subject: Re: Info for you

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 09/24/2035

[redacted] I'm here til tomorrow night. Call if you need. Best Tony

B1
1.4(B)
1.4(D)

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: 'jake.sullivan[redacted]' <jake.sullivan[redacted]> B6
Sent: Sat Sep 25 19:56:19 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

[redacted] Best Tony

B1
1.4(B)
1.4(D)

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: 'jake.sullivan[redacted]' <jake.sullivan[redacted]> B6
Sent: Fri Sep 24 15:49:27 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

Hi Hillary. Just spent 3 hours with BB. Ready to speak when convenient but should do it on secure line. Best Tony

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: aclb
Cc: 'jake.sullivan[redacted]<jake.sullivan[redacted]> B6
Sent: Fri Sep 24 05:16:14 2010
Subject: Fw: Info for you

Tony---

Message delivered. Pls read all the way down. Also, I'm copying Jake Sullivan because I've asked him to arrange a call w you once you land so you can be fully briefed before seeing BN. We are on a fast moving train changing direction every hour but determined to reach our destination.

Thx again for jumping into action this week. It's great having you on the team. All the best, H

----- Original Message -----
From: Lynn Forester de Rothschild [redacted] B6
To: H

Sent: Thu Sep 23 23:58:37 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

Hillary,
We of course understand and thank you for personally reaching out to us. It is a big loss for the weekend but as we know it does not add up to a hill of beans. You are the best, and we remain your biggest fans.
Sweet dreams and Godspeed with everything you are doing.
Oxoxo
Lynn

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Lynn Forester de Rothschild
Sent: Thu Sep 23 22:30:45 2010
Subject: Info for you

Lynn,

I was trying to reach you to tell you and Teddy that I asked Tony Blair to go to Israel as part of our full court press on keeping the Middle East negotiations going. He told me that he had a commitment in Aspen w you two and the conference, but after we talked, he decided to go and asked me to tell you. He is very sorry, obviously, but I'm grateful that he accepted my request. I hope you all understand and give him a raincheck.

If you were interested, he might be able to satellite in if you have the technology available.

He should land around 5am Aspen time. Let me know what penance I owe you. And pls explain to Teddy. As ever, H

DISCLAIMER

WARNING – This email is only intended for the person to whom or entity to which it is addressed and, together with any files transmitted with it, is confidential and may also be privileged. If you are not the intended recipient, you must not copy, forward, use or rely on any part of it or disclose its contents to any person. If you have received it in error, please notify our system manager on +44 20 7647 7782 and delete all copies immediately.

Except where this email is sent in the usual course of our business, the views expressed in this email are those of the sender and not those of The Office of Tony Blair.

The Office of Tony Blair accepts no responsibility for software viruses and you should check for viruses before opening any attachments. Internet communications are not secure and therefore The Office of Tony Blair does not provide any guarantee or warranty that this email or any attachments shall remain confidential.

The Office of Tony Blair is a trading name of Windrush Ventures Limited and Windrush Ventures No.3 LP. Windrush Ventures Limited is a limited company registered in England and Wales with registered number 06397276. Its registered office is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL.

Windrush Ventures No. 3 LP is a limited partnership registered in England and Wales with registered number LP012665. Its registered office is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL. The members of Windrush Ventures No.3 LP are BDBCO No.819 Limited and Windrush Ventures No.2 LLP and the address at which each of these can be served is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL.

This email may relate to or be sent from other members of the Windrush group.

This email has been scanned by the MessageLabs Email Security System.
For more information please visit http://www.messagelabs.com/email

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, April 20, 2010 11:42 AM
To: 'lynn [redacted] B6
Cc: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Re: Miss You

Lynn--

I would love to see you but your days overlap w Karzai's visit so I will have to get that settled before I can confirm a time but let's make it happen. So I'm copying Lona and Huma so we can start planning. Much love, H

----- Original Message -----
From: Lynn Forester de Rothschild [redacted]
To: H
Sent: Sun Apr 18 16:01:01 2010
Subject: Miss You

Hi Hillary,

I am back from the unpredictable and exciting elections in Britain.

Congratulations on all the good things you are doing at State.

You have so many fans from Manmohan Singh, who smiled broadly when we talked about you, to those women who never stop dreaming.

I would love to catch up. I have to be in DC from the 12th-15th May, in case you have any time to sneak away for a few minutes.

I understand it may not be possible, but thought I would check.

In any event, I remain your loyal adoring pal.

Xoxox

Lynn

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, September 25, 2010 7:25 PM
To: H
Subject: Language

B5

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, March 15, 2010 10:43 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Aipac speech

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Mon Mar 15 10:07:22 2010
Subject: Aipac speech

We are working with Jake on some very good ideas that Bruce Jentleson has put forward, but I want to plant one idea for you to mull. [redacted] B5

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, June 2, 2010 10:03 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Just emailed Ms Cheryl to help co-ordinate a time -love you and thanks for keeping the world together-"Fourth Turning"...might want to re-read the ending chapters of Neil Howe and Bill Strauss book-love you so Pls get me a copy of this book from the library. Thx.

----- Original Message -----
From: Roy Spence < [redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Tue Jun 01 18:42:24 2010
Subject: Just emailed Ms Cheryl to help co-ordinate a time -love you and thanks for keeping the world together-"Fourth Turning"...might want to re-read the ending chapters of Neil Howe and Bill Strauss book-love you so

-----Original Message-----
From: H [mailto:HDR22@clintonemail.com]
Sent: Sunday, May 30, 2010 6:28 PM
To: Roy Spence
Subject: Re: Hillary Clinton is now the most popular politician in America who has held elected office

Well. [redacted] When B6 will come in so we can catch up?

----- Original Message -----
From: Roy Spence [redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Sat May 29 09:40:01 2010
Subject: Hillary Clinton is now the most popular politician in America who has held elected office

Hillary Clinton is now the most popular politician in America who has held elected office <http://www.openleft.com/diary/18891/hillary-clinton-is-now-the-most-popular-politician-in-america-who-has-held-elected-office>

by: Chris Bowers <http://www.openleft.com/user/Chris%20Bowers>

Fri May 28, 2010 at 14:00

Here is a weekend factoid for you: among all living politicians in the United States who have ever held elected office, Hillary Clinton the most popular.

That's right. Ever since she became Secretary of State, her favorables have soared into the mid-60's <http://www.pollingreport.com/C2.htm#Hillary> , putting her well clear of any other statewide officeholder in the country. The only national figures who are viewed as favorably as Clinton are Michelle Obama <http://www.pollingreport.com/o.htm#Michelle> , Colin Powell <http://www.pollingreport.com/p.htm#Powell> , and David Patraeus <http://www.pollingreport.com/p.htm#Petraeus> . However, they have never run for office, which invariably lowers your favorables.

Hillary Clinton will turn 69 in in the final week of the 2016 campaign, which makes her slightly younger than Ronald Reagan when he first was elected in 1980. Also, as Secretary of State, a major presidential candidate, a U.S. Senator, and First Lady, she is also probably more credentialed than any other potential Presidential candidate, too. There is even talk she may become the next Secretary of Defense <http://www.politico.com/news/stories/0510/37672.html> , further adding to her credentials.

Some have said that, in choosing Joe Biden as Vice-President, Barack Obama did not pick a successor to lead the Democratic Party. However, that needs rethinking. Because Barack Obama made her Secretary of State, Hillary Clinton remains remarkably well-positioned to run for President in 2016, even more so than she was in 2008.

Anyway, have a good holiday weekend.

Chris Bowers <http://www.openleft.com/userDiary.do?personId=9> :: Hillary Clinton is now the most popular politician in America who has held elected office <http://www.openleft.com/showDiary.do?diaryId=18891>

Ride at Dawn

---

This e-mail is intended only for the named person or entity to which it is addressed and contains valuable business information that is proprietary, privileged, confidential and/or otherwise protected from disclosure. If you received this email in error, any review, use, dissemination, distribution or copying of this email is strictly prohibited. Please notify us immediately of the error via email to disclaimerinquiries@ideacity.com and please delete the email from your system, retaining no copies in any media. We appreciate your cooperation.
----------ideacity.legal.disclaimer.01112008

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, April 20, 2010 12:41 PM
To: 'vermarr@state.gov'
Subject: Re:

Finally! Thx for helping out.

----- Original Message -----
From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Tue Apr 20 12:36:20 2010
Subject:

Lael was confirmed....79 to 19.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, March 16, 2010 6:19 AM
To: 'rooneym@state.gov'
Cc: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: ireland

Can you send me a draft this morning? And, what is the Lamplighter story?

----- Original Message -----
From: Rooney, Megan <RooneyM@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Mar 15 20:21:33 2010
Subject: ireland

Ma'am -- Jake tells me that you are tired of the Lamplighter story. I'm sorry, I didn't know. But the Belfast people have come up with a FANTASTIC story -- apparently, as per your request, they have tracked down the two kids who won the peace essay contest in the 90s, and they are doing great things -- one is a teacher, one is a police officer. They are now reaching out to get permission for you to tell their stories tomorrow night; assuming they will grant it, I am writing up their stories now and will fax a revised draft to you shortly.

Sorry for the Lamplighter redux; I'll let Lissa know it's off-limits for at least a few years.

-----Original Message-----
From: H [mailto:HDR22@clintonemail.com]
Sent: Sunday, March 14, 2010 6:30 PM
To: Rooney, Megan
Subject: UN speech

Thx for all you did to make it work. I thought it went very well and I was so pleased you could be there. Now, onto the Irish!

RELEASE IN PART B5,B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, April 20, 2010 12:42 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: ISAB

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Tue Apr 20 12:39:39 2010
Subject: FW: ISAB

fyi

From: Toiv, Nora F
Sent: Tuesday, April 20, 2010 12:35 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D; Diminuco, Steven L
Cc: Laszczych, Joanne; Gelber, Ethan M; Balenger, De'Ara N
Subject: RE: ISAB

FYI on [redacted]. B5 B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Tuesday, April 20, 2010 12:10 PM
To: Diminuco, Steven L
Cc: Toiv, Nora F; Laszczych, Joanne; Gelber, Ethan M; Balenger, De'Ara N
Subject: RE: ISAB

The secretary had two other names she wanted looked at: [redacted]; she is fine with considering [redacted] B6

Can we update with those candidates if they pass an initial vet?

cmd

From: Diminuco, Steven L
Sent: Monday, April 19, 2010 3:30 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Cc: Toiv, Nora F; Laszczych, Joanne
Subject: ISAB

B5
B6

Cheryl-Here is the memo that was sent in August and then in November.

Thanks. Steve

From: Diminuco, Steven L
Sent: Friday, December 04, 2009 5:56 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Cc: Abedin, Huma
Subject: ISAB

Cheryl-I wanted to give you an update where we are on ISAB. The memo enclosed is the Nov 1 revision.

B5
B6

I want to know how you want to proceed on this. Thanks. Steve

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, March 16, 2010 7:22 AM
To: 'preines [redacted] B6
Subject: The Steinberg Project

How's it going? I'm happy to go on the record anytime anywhere on his behalf. Just let me know.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, April 20, 2010 12:53 PM
To: 'rodriguezme@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Brainard Confirmed

Thx. And finally.

----- Original Message -----
From: Rodriguez, Miguel E <RodriguezME@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Tue Apr 20 12:43:38 2010
Subject: Brainard Confirmed

Lael Brainard was confirmed 78-19 this afternoon.

Miguel E. Rodríguez

Deputy Assistant Secretary for Senate Affairs

Bureau of Legislative Affairs

U.S. Department of State

(202) 647-2645

rodriguezme@state.gov

RELEASE IN PART
B5,B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, March 16, 2010 7:24 AM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Human Rights report on Haiti

So, what do we do now? [redacted] B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Mar 15 16:51:08 2010
Subject: Fw: Human Rights report on Haiti

See original email b/l

---

From: Mills, Cheryl D
To: Lindwall, David E; Curtis, Meghann A
Cc: Merten, Kenneth H; Sullivan, Jacob J; Posner, Michael H; Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Mon Mar 15 16:50:15 2010
Subject: Re: Human Rights report on Haiti

I have not seen nor reviewed that report and it was not flagged for me.

Adding Jake and mike posner to advise - esp re process of vetting w/ embassy given the profile of the work we are doing w/ them.

Cdm

---

From: Lindwall, David E
To: Mills, Cheryl D; Curtis, Meghann A
Cc: Merten, Kenneth H
Sent: Mon Mar 15 14:24:23 2010
Subject: Human Rights report on Haiti

Cheryl,

Local media drew attention this weekend to the line in the introduction of our annual human rights report that refers to the GOH by saying that there is severe corruption in all branches of government. [redacted] called this morning asking for a copy of the report (which we sent him), saying that the President was upset and wanted to read it. The Embassy human rights officer sent the Department a first draft of this report late last year. It normally would have gone through two or three more versions with input from DRL and ultimately clearance by the Embassy Front Office. B6

Because our Human Rights officer (Kathey-Lee Galvin) was seriously injured in the quake, DRL took it upon themselves to finish the report. The final draft was never sent to us for clearance/comments and I don't know who all in the Department cleared off on it. You may already be familiar with the report, but in the event you are not, I wanted you to have a copy in advance of meetings in Santo Domingo where you may hear about it from [redacted] Cheers, David B6

http://www.state.gov/g/drl/rls/hrrpt/2009/wha/136116.htm

David E. Lindwall

Deputy Chief of Mission

U.S. Embassy Port-au-Prince, Haiti

(509) 2229-8132

RELEASE IN PART
B5,B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, March 16, 2010 7:35 AM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Human Rights report on Haiti

Not if they say there have been problems which they were addressing before the quake and w outside help will continue and achieve their reform agenda.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Tue Mar 16 07:30:17 2010
Subject: Re: Human Rights report on Haiti

Trying - they are a bit mad on two proper grounds - will make other donors less likel to give and our congress less likely to give

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Tue Mar 16 07:24:03 2010
Subject: Re: Human Rights report on Haiti

So, what do we do now? [redacted] B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Mar 15 16:51:08 2010
Subject: Fw: Human Rights report on Haiti

See original email b/l

---

From: Mills, Cheryl D
To: Lindwall, David E; Curtis, Meghann A
Cc: Merten, Kenneth H; Sullivan, Jacob J; Posner, Michael H; Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Mon Mar 15 16:50:15 2010
Subject: Re: Human Rights report on Haiti

I have not seen nor reviewed that report and it was not flagged for me.

Adding Jake and mike posner to advise - esp re process of vetting w/ embassy given the profile of the work we are doing w/ them.

Cdm

---

From: Lindwall, David E
To: Mills, Cheryl D; Curtis, Meghann A
Cc: Merten, Kenneth H
Sent: Mon Mar 15 14:24:23 2010
Subject: Human Rights report on Haiti

Cheryl,

Local media drew attention this weekend to the line in the introduction of our annual human rights report that refers to the GOH by saying that there is severe corruption in all branches of government. [redacted] called this morning asking for a copy of the report (which we sent him), saying that the President was upset and wanted to read it. The Embassy human rights officer sent the Department a first draft of this report late last year. It normally would have gone through two or three more versions with input from DRL and ultimately clearance by the Embassy Front Office. Because our Human Rights officer (Kathey-Lee Galvin) was seriously injured in the quake, DRL took it upon themselves to finish the report. The final draft was never sent to us for clearance/comments and I don't know who all in the Department cleared off on it. You may already be familiar with the report, but in the event you are not, I wanted you to have a copy in advance of meetings in Santo Domingo where you may hear about it from [redacted] Cheers, David

B6

B6

http://www.state.gov/g/drl/rls/hrrpt/2009/wha/136116.htm

David E. Lindwall

Deputy Chief of Mission

U.S. Embassy Port-au-Prince, Haiti

(509) 2229-8132

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, June 2, 2010 10:14 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Any news to report?

RELEASE IN PART
B6

B6

From: sbwhoeop[redacted]
Sent: Saturday, September 25, 2010 11:08 PM
To: H
Subject: H: the revenge of old Labour. Sid

[redacted]

September 26, 2010

John Rentoul: The party voted for David Miliband but got the Panda instead

New Labour leader won't stand a chance against David Cameron

The result is the worst possible for the Labour Party. A decisive victory for Ed Miliband would have been one thing. The party would have made the wrong decision, but it would have done so with its eyes open and with the leader's legitimacy unchallenged.

Instead, Ed Miliband lost the election in two parts of Labour's electoral college, among MPs and among Labour Party members, but won thanks to a 60-40 margin the other way among trade union members on a very low turnout.

If he had won by a clear margin I would have said that Labour had chosen the Panda as its leader. He is soft, cuddly and panders to every oppositional instinct in the party. There has been no position taken by the Labour government of which he was a member that he was not prepared to trash if he thought Labour members would like it. Tuition fees, Iraq, the third runway for Heathrow: you name it, he disowned it. Even, in the case of the third runway, a policy for which he had direct ministerial responsibility. There has been no part of the manifesto, which he wrote, that he has not been prepared to ditch.

But that is not what the party did. Labour Party members chose David Miliband. Labour MPs chose David. The party itself voted for what Ed Miliband tried to dismiss as the "New Labour Establishment", in other words, the supposedly hated Blairites. The party read the signals from the voters correctly. It knows that, although it didn't do as badly as it feared in the general election, a lurch to the left was not the answer. Party members and MPs took on board Tony Blair's warning that Labour lost because Gordon Brown "moved a millimetre" to the left of New Labour. They did not fall for the argument that Labour did better than expected by moving a millimetre to the left and, therefore, to do better still they needed to move a couple of centimetres further to the left.

They did not think that, because Labour has pulled level in the opinion polls, the next election is in the bag. They know that the opposition party often moves ahead of the government in the opinion polls within months of an election. They also know that Labour's poll rating is artificially inflated by the absence from the fray of the Liberal Democrats as a protest party, and they know that this protest vote cannot be relied upon in a general election.

The Labour Party and Labour MPs got it right, and the election was won by an operation run by the trade union machines. That means that Ed Miliband, who would have struggled against David Cameron in the House of Commons in any event, is going to be roasted every week.

Every week, the Prime Minister is going to point out that the Leader of the Opposition does not have the support of the members on the benches behind him. Not only that, he does not have the support of the members of his party in the country. Every week, Cameron is going to portray Miliband as the place person of the trade union bosses and the beneficiary of a boss-politics stitch-up.

If Ed Miliband had won the party members but lost among MPs, which is what I expected, the Conservatives would have teased him in the Commons, but he would have had as much legitimacy as Iain Duncan Smith - the choice of the party activists against the wishes of his MPs. No wonder Ed was the "cork-popper" candidate in Conservative HQ. The way things have turned out, that's not just a phrase; it would be worth lifting the austerity ban on bubbly for. David Cameron, lucky general, faces an opponent with less of a mandate than IDS.

Even if Ed Miliband had won comfortably in all three sections of Labour's electoral college, I feel he would have struggled against Cameron. This way, I fear that he fights with both hands tied behind his back.

RELEASE IN PART
B5,B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, March 16, 2010 7:51 AM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Human Rights report on Haiti

Not yet.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Tue Mar 16 07:42:09 2010
Subject: Re: Human Rights report on Haiti

Agree - did you reach FM cannon

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Tue Mar 16 07:34:54 2010
Subject: Re: Human Rights report on Haiti

Not if they say there have been problems which they were addressing before the quake and w outside help will continue and achieve their reform agenda.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Tue Mar 16 07:30:17 2010
Subject: Re: Human Rights report on Haiti

Trying - they are a bit mad on two proper grounds - will make other donors less likel to give and our congress less likely to give

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Tue Mar 16 07:24:03 2010
Subject: Re: Human Rights report on Haiti

So, what do we do now? [redacted] B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Mar 15 16:51:08 2010
Subject: Fw: Human Rights report on Haiti

See original email b/l

---

From: Mills, Cheryl D
To: Lindwall, David E; Curtis, Meghann A
Cc: Merten, Kenneth H; Sullivan, Jacob J; Posner, Michael H; Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Mon Mar 15 16:50:15 2010
Subject: Re: Human Rights report on Haiti

I have not seen nor reviewed that report and it was not flagged for me.

Adding Jake and mike posner to advise - esp re process of vetting w/ embassy given the profile of the work we are doing w/ them.

Cdm

---

From: Lindwall, David E
To: Mills, Cheryl D; Curtis, Meghann A
Cc: Merten, Kenneth H
Sent: Mon Mar 15 14:24:23 2010
Subject: Human Rights report on Haiti

Cheryl,

Local media drew attention this weekend to the line in the introduction of our annual human rights report that refers to the GOH by saying that there is severe corruption in all branches of government. [redacted] called this morning asking for a copy of the report (which we sent him), saying that the President was upset and wanted to read it. The Embassy human rights officer sent the Department a first draft of this report late last year. It normally would have gone through two or three more versions with input from DRL and ultimately clearance by the Embassy Front Office. Because our Human Rights officer (Kathey-Lee Galvin) was seriously injured in the quake, DRL took it upon themselves to finish the report. The final draft was never sent to us for clearance/comments and I don't know who all in the Department cleared off on it. You may already be familiar with the report, but in the event you are not, I wanted you to have a copy in advance of meetings in Santo Domingo where you may hear about it from [redacted] Cheers, David

B6

B6

http://www.state.gov/g/drl/rls/hrrpt/2009/wha/136116.htm

David E. Lindwall

Deputy Chief of Mission

U.S. Embassy Port-au-Prince, Haiti

(509) 2229-8132

RELEASE IN PART
B5,B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, April 21, 2010 8:23 AM
To: 'mchaleja@state.gov'; 'millscd@state.gov'; 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Mission Corrections: Bhutto Assassination

Good work. [redacted] B5

----- Original Message -----
From: McHale, Judith A <McHaleJA@state.gov>
To: H; Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>; Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Wed Apr 21 08:18:44 2010
Subject: FW: Mission Corrections: Bhutto Assassination

Example of our hitting back in action ---- it works.

jm

From: Schwartz, Larry
Sent: Wednesday, April 21, 2010 8:15 AM
To: McHale, Judith A
Subject: RE: Mission Corrections: Bhutto Assassination

Already running as a crawl on Express, one of the offending networks, within an hour of sending our correction.

From: McHale, Judith A
Sent: Wednesday, April 21, 2010 4:47 PM
To: Schwartz, Larry
Subject: RE: Mission Corrections: Bhutto Assassination

Thanks. Need to be sure this gets picked up by print and/or broadcast outlets as well as some major online enterprise in ALL critical languages (URDU, PASHTO. Etc) so that it pops up when this topic is googled. Have Richard send me his plan for getting this picked up. Do you have a copy of the release in Urdu that I can forward to WH and Hill ?

jm

From: Schwartz, Larry
Sent: Wednesday, April 21, 2010 7:32 AM
To: McHale, Judith A
Subject: Mission Corrections: Bhutto Assassination

Under Secretary McHale:

This week we have seen the most extraordinary series of public attacks on the United States by Lt Gen (ret) Hamid Gul, a noted anti-American crackpot who derives his role as an "expert analyst" by being the only former Inter-Services Intelligence (ISI) Chief who ever appears on TV. Gul was briefly ISI chief during PM Bhutto's first term in office almost 20 years ago. Appearing on several TV stations this week, Gul has repeated allegations that the U.S. is implicated in the Bhutto Assassination – the subject is current this week because of the release of the U.N. report on the assassination, which is itself a remarkable document.

One ironic element of the UN report on the assassination is the report that on October 16, 2007 former PM Bhutto wrote to General Musharraf that the very same Hamid Gul was one of three people she considered a threat to her security. (see excerpt below) This fact came up in none of the programs.

Our view is that the television journalists and executives now must begin taking responsibility for putting inciting and unsubstantiated claims on the air. We have released the attached "Correction," which will be seen by news editors across the country.

Larry

Excerpt from the UN report on the Bhutto assassination:

179. On 16 October 2007, Ms Bhutto writing from Dubai to General Musharraf, identified three people she considered a threat to her security: (i) Brigadier (ret) Ejaz Shah, Director General of the IB at the time of the assassination, (ii) General (ret) Hamid Gul, a former Director General of the ISI, and (iii) Mr Chaudhry Pervaiz Elahi, Chief Minister of Punjab until 22 November 2007.

++++++++++++++++++++++++++++++++

Larry Schwartz

Minister Counselor for Public Affairs

Embassy of the United States of America

Islamabad - PAKISTAN

Tel: (92)(51) 208-2040

Mobile: [redacted] B6

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, September 26, 2010 10:27 AM
To: H
Subject: Call

Did you want to do another call before the 1115?

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, March 19, 2010 8:04 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Conversation w/ Dan Kurtzer

Makes a good case. Should we include policy?

----- Original Message -----
From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Thu Mar 18 15:51:49 2010
Subject: Conversation w/ Dan Kurtzer

I had breakfast w/ Dan this morning, who weighed in strongly and to my mind compellingly for [redacted] B5

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, April 22, 2010 9:16 AM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'; 'muscatinel@state.gov'
Subject: Re: speech theme idea

I agree that this is a great idea and want to pursue. Thx.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: Muscatine, Lissa <MuscatineL@state.gov>; H
Sent: Thu Apr 22 09:11:17 2010
Subject: RE: speech theme idea

I like this idea.

I like even better that we have a nutrition speech coming up which bridges GHI and GHFSI and we could use it as a venue not only to check the box re: FS, but health.

cdm

From: Muscatine, Lissa
Sent: Thursday, April 22, 2010 8:39 AM
To: Mills, Cheryl D; 'H'
Subject: speech theme idea

Hillary and Cheryl,

I'm feeling very good about our recent efforts to connect our speeches thematically. We've done it with development, human rights, and Internet freedom; and most recently with AIPAC, Ctr for Middle East Peace, and next the AJC. Here's what I want to suggest: The three most basic elements of human existence are food, water, and health. We have now done major speeches on food and water. I'd like us to consider a major speech on global health – the third in a trilogy. Linking these three issues thematically, we can explain how and why foreign policy challenges and solutions must be seen through a prism of human survival and why the conditions of people's lives influence everything from economic development to political stability and more. This trilogy of speeches (with the right PR) could further underscore our elevation of development AND our comprehensive, smart power approach to foreign policy. After all, food, water, and health are the sine qua non of human progress. And this is a Hillary Clinton signature idea, at least to me. Thoughts?

LM

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, March 20, 2010 11:27 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Abu Mazen

Not until I have a report from Mitchell. No one asked mer to call and I don't know what I'd say.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Oscar Flores
Sent: Sat Mar 20 11:25:37 2010
Subject: Abu Mazen

I understand you are ok making the abu mazen call. Everyone agrees you should make it and they want you to do it today. Can you do after marianne?

Below are points.

B5

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, March 20, 2010 11:32 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Abu Mazen

Where are points? Jake did mention it, but I didn't know there was a decision.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Mar 20 11:31:31 2010
Subject: Re: Abu Mazen

Oh I apologize. Jake said he spoke with you about it and that you'd agreed to do it if mitchell recommended it. He does recommend it, these are points from him about what to say. And they asked if you would do today.
Ill follow up.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Sat Mar 20 11:26:34 2010
Subject: Re: Abu Mazen

Not until I have a report from Mitchell. No one asked mer to call and I don't know what I'd say.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Oscar Flores
Sent: Sat Mar 20 11:25:37 2010
Subject: Abu Mazen

I understand you are ok making the abu mazen call. Everyone agrees you should make it and they want you to do it today. Can you do after marianne?

Below are points.

B5

B5

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, March 20, 2010 11:44 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Abu Mazen

Ok to schedule after Marianne sometime.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Mar 20 11:34:47 2010
Subject: Re: Abu Mazen

They are in the original email I sent and pasting again below. Oscar should have printed.

B5

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Sat Mar 20 11:32:21 2010
Subject: Re: Abu Mazen

Where are points? Jake did mention it, but I didn't know there was a decision.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Mar 20 11:31:31 2010

Subject: Re: Abu Mazen

Oh I apologize. Jake said he spoke with you about it and that you'd agreed to do it if mitchell recommended it. He does recommend it, these are points from him about what to say. And they asked if you would do today.
Ill follow up.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Sat Mar 20 11:26:34 2010
Subject: Re: Abu Mazen

Not until I have a report from Mitchell. No one asked mer to call and I don't know what I'd say.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Oscar Flores
Sent: Sat Mar 20 11:25:37 2010
Subject: Abu Mazen

I understand you are ok making the abu mazen call. Everyone agrees you should make it and they want you to do it today. Can you do after marianne?

Below are points.

B5

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, March 20, 2010 12:25 PM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Abu Mazen

Pls do after 1 if possible.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Mar 20 11:34:47 2010
Subject: Re: Abu Mazen

They are in the original email I sent and pasting again below. Oscar should have printed.

B5

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Sat Mar 20 11:32:21 2010
Subject: Re: Abu Mazen

Where are points? Jake did mention it, but I didn't know there was a decision.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Mar 20 11:31:31 2010

Subject: Re: Abu Mazen

Oh I apologize. Jake said he spoke with you about it and that you'd agreed to do it if mitchell recommended it. He does recommend it, these are points from him about what to say. And they asked if you would do today.
Ill follow up.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Sat Mar 20 11:26:34 2010
Subject: Re: Abu Mazen

Not until I have a report from Mitchell. No one asked mer to call and I don't know what I'd say.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Oscar Flores
Sent: Sat Mar 20 11:25:37 2010
Subject: Abu Mazen

I understand you are ok making the abu mazen call. Everyone agrees you should make it and they want you to do it today. Can you do after marianne?

Below are points.

B5

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, June 3, 2010 7:31 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Warning story

According to WPost and PJ, US govt warned Israel about handling the flotilla. [redacted] B5

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, March 20, 2010 12:25 PM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Abu Mazen

I meant after 1:30. Thx

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Mar 20 11:34:47 2010
Subject: Re: Abu Mazen

They are in the original email I sent and pasting again below. Oscar should have printed.

B5

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Sat Mar 20 11:32:21 2010
Subject: Re: Abu Mazen

Where are points? Jake did mention it, but I didn't know there was a decision.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Mar 20 11:31:31 2010

Subject: Re: Abu Mazen

Oh I apologize. Jake said he spoke with you about it and that you'd agreed to do it if mitchell recommended it. He does recommend it, these are points from him about what to say. And they asked if you would do today.
Ill follow up.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Sat Mar 20 11:26:34 2010
Subject: Re: Abu Mazen

Not until I have a report from Mitchell. No one asked mer to call and I don't know what I'd say.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Oscar Flores
Sent: Sat Mar 20 11:25:37 2010
Subject: Abu Mazen

I understand you are ok making the abu mazen call. Everyone agrees you should make it and they want you to do it today. Can you do after marianne?

Below are points.

B5

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, April 22, 2010 9:20 AM
To: 'muscatinel@state.gov'
Subject: Re: betsey griffith

[redacted] Any chance the date could be changed? B6

----- Original Message -----
From: Muscatine, Lissa <MuscatineL@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Thu Apr 22 09:01:37 2010
Subject: betsey griffith

Sheepishly inquired as to whether you might be willing to speak at Madeira's commencement on June 4th in the morning. It's her last time officiating as head of the school. It's a couple of days before the Lat Am trip. Thoughts?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, April 22, 2010 9:21 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: speech theme idea

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: Muscatine, Lissa <MuscatineL@state.gov>
To: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>; H
Sent: Thu Apr 22 08:39:03 2010
Subject: speech theme idea

Hillary and Cheryl,

I'm feeling very good about our recent efforts to connect our speeches thematically. We've done it with development, human rights, and Internet freedom; and most recently with AIPAC, Ctr for Middle East Peace, and next the AJC. Here's what I want to suggest: The three most basic elements of human existence are food, water, and health. We have now done major speeches on food and water. I'd like us to consider a major speech on global health – the third in a trilogy. Linking these three issues thematically, we can explain how and why foreign policy challenges and solutions must be seen through a prism of human survival and why the conditions of people's lives influence everything from economic development to political stability and more. This trilogy of speeches (with the right PR) could further underscore our elevation of development AND our comprehensive, smart power approach to foreign policy. After all, food, water, and health are the sine qua non of human progress. And this is a Hillary Clinton signature idea, at least to me. Thoughts?

LM

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, June 3, 2010 8:39 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Brief memo for Cheryl Mills on Colombia - for Secretary Clinton

Pls print 2 copies.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Thu Jun 03 08:32:53 2010
Subject: FW: Brief memo for Cheryl Mills on Colombia - for Secretary Clinton

Fyi – cir to team for addressing as appropriate

From: Buhl, Cindy [mailto:Cindy.Buhl@mail.house.gov]
Sent: Wednesday, June 02, 2010 3:49 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Cc: Buhl, Cindy
Subject: Brief memo for Cheryl Mills on Colombia - for Secretary Clinton

Dear Cheryl –

In my last email (Friday, 5/28), I attached the letter from the bipartisan Co-Chairs and Executive Committee members of the Tom Lantos Human Rights Commission sent to Assistant Secretary Mike Posner expressing grave concern about the recent rise in death threats, attacks and murders of Colombian human rights defenders, religious, community and other NGO leaders. Congressman McGovern also strongly encouraged the Secretary to meet with representatives of those organizations and individuals being threatened, with a particularly effort to reach out to and invite the Bishops of Tumaco (Nariño), Barrancabermeja/Medio Magdalena (Santander), and we would now add Putumayo, since the Colombian Catholic Church just advised us yesterday of increased death threats against religious workers there. In addition, we recommended inviting Monseñor Hector Fabio Henao, director of Pastoral Social, at the Archdiocese in Bogotá, who represents all the pastoral work of the Church throughout the country, as well as representatives from the Mennonite and Lutheran churches, in particular.

While in Colombia, the most important thing the Secretary can do is avoid effusive praise for President Álvaro Uribe, who leaves office in August. Inside Colombia, the visit by the Secretary is being described as focusing solely on the free trade agreement and continuing support of the counterdrug strategy/Plan Colombia. Without changes in the human rights situation and the culture of impunity, it is unlikely that anything the Secretary might say or do will alter the equation on Capitol Hill regarding the trade agreement. It should be noted that the October 2008 GAO report on the counter-drug operations in Colombia concluded that U.S. assistance was successful in increasing security in parts of the country, but a failure in the areas of counter-narcotics (GAO-09-71) , and a subsequent April 2009 USAID evaluation on U.S. aid for Plan Colombia for illegal crop reduction and Colombian counternarcotics policies actually contribute to increased coca production.

The Colombian president has been a solid backer of U.S. policy and U.S. interests in the region, and has achieved some important improvements in the country's security situation. It is important to recognize that, but to do so without repeating the tone of Defense Secretary Gates' April visit, in which he called Uribe a "great hero" <http://www.defense.gov/news/newsarticle.aspx?id=58754> and failed even to mention any concerns.

These concerns are of critical importance, and while the Secretary need not list them all, at least some deserve public acknowledgement – some recognition that it is important to the United States that Colombia, including the current government and its successor, show the necessary political will to deal with them:

· A sharp rise in alleged military killings of civilians. In many cases, these are so-called "false positives": non-combatants murdered and later presented as members of armed groups killed in combat. These, notes <http://www.extrajudicialexecutions.org/colombia> UN Special Rapporter for Extrajudicial Executions Philip Alston, "began occurring with a disturbing frequency across Colombia from 2004." Citing prosecutors' and NGOs' reports, Alston indicates that Colombia's security forces may have killed 1,486 civilians during the first six years of Álvaro Uribe's presidency. Alston notes that the Defense Ministry only began to address the situation after the media broke the story of the false-positives and the subsequent negative publicity and horrified public outcry.

The prosecution of "false positives" is moving with excruciating slowness. In perhaps the most notorious case – the murders of about twenty young men from the poor Bogotá suburb of Soacha – nearly all of the accused soldiers and officers have been released from prison <http://www.ipsnews.net/news.asp?idnews=49968> , pending trial, as deadlines for timely prosecution have run out. Since their arrest in late 2008, their case has been prolonged by numerous delaying tactics by the defense, including attempts to have their cases tried in the military court system as "acts of service." Alston reports that the impunity rate on these extrajudicial murders by security forces may be as high as 98.5 percent.

· Mounting allegations that the President's intelligence service, the DAS, was put at the service <http://www.cipcol.org/?p=1123> of paramilitary leaders and narcotraffickers; used to spy on and intimidate <http://www.cipcol.org/?p=752> Supreme Court justices, opposition politicians, journalists and human rights defenders; and employed in a campaign of sabotage and smears <http://www.cipcol.org/?p=1467> against political opponents.

Prosecutors are alleging that the orders to have the DAS carry out wiretaps, surveillance and "political warfare" came from high up in the Colombian presidency <http://www.caracoltv.com/noticias/justicia/articulo168592-tres-asesores-de-uribe-son-investigados-chuzadas-ilegales> , though the question of "what President Uribe knew, and when he knew it" remains unanswered. Meanwhile efforts to reform or dissolve the DAS are stalled in Colombia's Congress.

· President Uribe's political coalition has also been hit by a scandal known in Colombia as "para-politics." This coalition has included dozens of political bosses from regions beyond the capital. Many are large landholders with ties to narcotrafficking, the same local leaders who created and fostered the brutal pro-government paramilitary groups that killed tens of thousands of non-combatants in the 1990s and early 2000s.

Evidence, much of it from former paramilitary leaders, has brought about 300 criminal investigations against legislators, governors, mayors and other local officials, nearly all of them Álvaro Uribe's political supporters, who made common cause with the far-right warlords. To date, of the 278 congresspeople and senators elected in 2006, 68 <http://www.nuevoarcoiris.org.co/sac/?q=node/64> are under official investigation, on trial, or convicted for paramilitary ties. Those embroiled in parapolitics include the President's cousin, Mario Uribe; the brother of his former foreign minister; and individuals whom the President had named to be Colombia's ambassadors to Chile, the Dominican Republic, and Canada.

The Colombian prosecutors, investigators, witnesses and non-governmental organizations trying to uncover the truth about these abuses are working under conditions of great personal risk. They, too, are heroes and would benefit greatly from a public expression of concern about the cases they are investigating, and a reminder that their work is legitimate and important to U.S. interests in Colombia.

At the same time, it is important to avoid appearing to endorse any candidate in the June 20 runoff elections. Between the first and second rounds of a country's presidential election is a politically awkward time for a high-level official visit. Though President Uribe's former defense minister, Juan Manuel Santos, is the overwhelming favorite given his margin of success in the May 30th first round of balloting over former Bogotá mayor Antanas Mockus, it is necessary at this stage to convey a sense of balance and a willingness to work closely with whoever wins. As a result, any kind words for one candidate should be balanced by praise for the other.

Finally, it would be helpful to remind the Colombian people that the United States supports a peaceful resolution of Bogotá's worsening differences with Venezuela. While President Chávez's behavior is a significant concern, it would be most unhelpful to be perceived on this trip as fanning the flames of conflict with Colombia – or playing into the Chavez rhetoric that the U.S. and Colombia have military aspirations in the region.

Hope this memo, along with last week's copy of the TLHRC letter to Assistant Secretary Posner, are helpful and useful materials for the Secretary as she plans her trip.

Very best wishes –

On behalf of Cong. Jim McGovern

Staff Contact: Cindy Buhl (202-225-6101 or cindy.buhl@mail.house.gov <mailto:cindy.buhl@mail.house.gov> )

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, April 22, 2010 12:10 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Obama Backs Down on Sudan

So, what was the reaction?

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Thu Apr 22 10:18:23 2010
Subject: FW: Obama Backs Down on Sudan

FYI

Kristof's OpEd From Today's NY Times.
---

April 22, 2010
Op-Ed Columnist
Obama Backs Down on Sudan
By NICHOLAS D. KRISTOF
JUBA, Sudan

Until he reached the White House, Barack Obama repeatedly insisted that the United States apply more pressure on Sudan so as to avoid a humanitarian catastrophe in Darfur and elsewhere.

Yet, as president, Mr. Obama and his aides have caved, leaving Sudan gloating at American weakness. Western monitors, Sudanese journalists and local civil society groups have all found this month's Sudanese elections to be deeply flawed - yet Mr. Obama's special envoy for Sudan, Maj. Gen. Scott Gration, pre-emptively defended the elections, saying they would be "as free and as fair as possible." The White House showed only a hint more backbone with a hurried reference this week to "an essential step" with "serious irregularities."

President Omar Hassan al-Bashir of Sudan - the man wanted by the International Criminal Court for crimes against humanity in Darfur - has been celebrating. His regime calls itself the National Congress Party, or N.C.P., and he was quoted in Sudan as telling a rally in the Blue Nile region: "Even America is becoming an N.C.P. member. No one is against our will."

Memo to Mr. Obama: When a man who has been charged with crimes against humanity tells the world that America is in his pocket, it's time to review your policy.

Perhaps the Obama administration caved because it considers a flawed election better than no election. That's a reasonable view, one I share. It's conceivable that Mr. Bashir could have won a quasi-fair election - oil revenues have manifestly raised the standard of living in parts of Sudan - and the campaigning did create space for sharp criticism of the government.

It's also true that Sudan has been behaving better in some respects.

The death toll in Darfur is hugely reduced, and the government is negotiating with rebel groups there. The Sudanese government gave me a visa and travel permits to Darfur, allowing me to travel legally and freely.

The real game isn't, in fact, Darfur or the elections but the maneuvering for a possible new civil war. The last north-south civil war in Sudan ended with a fragile peace in 2005, after some two million deaths. The peace agreement provided for a referendum, scheduled to take place in January, in which southern Sudanese will decide whether to secede. They are expected to vote overwhelmingly to form a separate country.

Then the question becomes: will the north allow South Sudan to separate? The south holds the great majority of the country's oil, and it's difficult to see President Bashir allowing oil fields to walk away.

"If the result of the referendum is independence, there is going to be war - complete war," predicts Mudawi Ibrahim Adam, one of Sudan's most outspoken human rights advocates. He cautions that America's willingness to turn a blind eye to election-rigging here increases the risk that Mr. Bashir will feel that he can get away with war.

"They're very naïve in Washington," Mr. Mudawi said. "They don't understand what is going on."

On the other hand, a senior Sudanese government official, Ghazi Salahuddin, told me unequivocally in Khartoum, the nation's capital, that Sudan will honor the referendum results. And it's certainly plausible that north and south will muddle through and avoid war, for both sides are exhausted by years of fighting.

Here in Juba, the South Sudan capital, I met Winnie Wol, 26, who fled the civil war in 1994 after a militia from the north attacked her village to kill, loot, rape and burn. Her father and many relatives were killed, but she escaped and made her way to Kenya - and eventually resettled as a refugee in California. She now lives in Olathe, Kan., and she had returned for the first time to Sudan to visit a mother and sisters she had last seen when she was a little girl.

Ms. Wol, every bit the well-dressed American, let me tag along for her journey back to her village of Nyamlell, 400 miles northwest of Juba.
The trip ended by a thatch-roof hut that belonged to her mother, who didn't know she was coming - so no one was home. Ms. Wol was crushed.

Then there was a scream and a woman came running. It was Ms. Wol's mother, somehow recognizing her, and they flew into each other's arms.
To me, it felt like a peace dividend.

Yet that peace is fragile, and Ms. Wol knows that the northern forces may come back to pillage again. "I don't want war," she said, "but I don't think they will allow us to separate."

My own hunch is that the north hasn't entirely decided what to do, and that strong international pressure can reduce the risk of another savage war. If President Obama is ever going to find his voice on Sudan, it had better be soon.

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, June 3, 2010 3:55 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Brief memo for Cheryl Mills on Colombia - for Secretary Clinton

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Thu Jun 03 13:48:20 2010
Subject: FW: Brief memo for Cheryl Mills on Colombia - for Secretary Clinton

fyi

From: Brownfield, William R
Sent: Thursday, June 03, 2010 10:41 AM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: RE: Brief memo for Cheryl Mills on Colombia - for Secretary Clinton

Cheryl

B5

Feel free to share if you wish.

WRB

From: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Thursday, June 03, 2010 7:33 AM
To: Sullivan, Jacob J; Posner, Michael H
Cc: Abedin, Huma; Kelly, Craig A; Brownfield, William R; Fuchs, Michael H; Baer, Daniel B; Reines, Philippe I
Subject: FW: Brief memo for Cheryl Mills on Colombia - for Secretary Clinton

See b/l re travel to columbia

From: Buhl, Cindy [mailto:Cindy.Buhl@mail.house.gov]
Sent: Wednesday, June 02, 2010 3:49 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Cc: Buhl, Cindy
Subject: Brief memo for Cheryl Mills on Colombia - for Secretary Clinton

Dear Cheryl –

In my last email (Friday, 5/28), I attached the letter from the bipartisan Co-Chairs and Executive Committee members of the Tom Lantos Human Rights Commission sent to Assistant Secretary Mike Posner expressing grave concern about the recent rise in death threats, attacks and murders of Colombian human rights defenders, religious, community and other NGO leaders. Congressman McGovern also strongly encouraged the Secretary to meet with representatives of those organizations and individuals being threatened, with a particularly effort to reach out to and invite the Bishops of Tumaco (Nariño), Barrancabermeja/Medio Magdalena (Santander), and we would now add Putumayo, since the Colombian Catholic Church just advised us yesterday of increased death threats against religious workers there. In addition, we recommended inviting Monseñor Hector Fabio Henao, director of Pastoral Social, at the Archdiocese in Bogotá, who represents all the pastoral work of the Church throughout the country, as well as representatives from the Mennonite and Lutheran churches, in particular.

While in Colombia, the most important thing the Secretary can do is avoid effusive praise for President Álvaro Uribe, who leaves office in August. Inside Colombia, the visit by the Secretary is being described as focusing solely on the free trade agreement and continuing support of the counterdrug strategy/Plan Colombia. Without changes in the human rights situation and the culture of impunity, it is unlikely that anything the Secretary might say or do will alter the equation on Capitol Hill regarding the trade agreement. It should be noted that the October 2008 GAO report on the counter-drug operations in Colombia concluded that U.S. assistance was successful in increasing security in parts of the country, but a failure in the areas of counter-narcotics (GAO-09-71) , and a subsequent April 2009 USAID evaluation on U.S. aid for Plan Colombia for illegal crop reduction and Colombian counternarcotics policies actually contribute to increased coca production.

The Colombian president has been a solid backer of U.S. policy and U.S. interests in the region, and has achieved some important improvements in the country's security situation. It is important to recognize that, but to do so without repeating the tone of Defense Secretary Gates' April visit, in which he called Uribe a "great hero" <http://www.defense.gov/news/newsarticle.aspx?id=58754> and failed even to mention any concerns.

These concerns are of critical importance, and while the Secretary need not list them all, at least some deserve public acknowledgement – some recognition that it is important to the United States that Colombia, including the current government and its successor, show the necessary political will to deal with them:

· A sharp rise in alleged military killings of civilians. In many cases, these are so-called "false positives": non-combatants murdered and later presented as members of armed groups killed in combat. These, notes <http://www.extrajudicialexecutions.org/colombia> UN Special Rapporter for Extrajudicial Executions Philip Alston, "began occurring with a disturbing frequency across Colombia from 2004." Citing prosecutors' and NGOs' reports, Alston indicates that Colombia's security forces may have killed 1,486 civilians during the first six years of Álvaro Uribe's presidency. Alston notes that the Defense Ministry only began to address the situation after the media broke the story of the false-positives and the subsequent negative publicity and horrified public outcry.

The prosecution of "false positives" is moving with excruciating slowness. In perhaps the most notorious case – the murders of about twenty young men from the poor Bogotá suburb of Soacha – nearly all of the accused soldiers and officers have been released from prison <http://www.ipsnews.net/news.asp?idnews=49968> , pending trial, as deadlines for timely prosecution have run out. Since their arrest in late 2008, their case has been prolonged by numerous delaying tactics by the defense, including attempts to have their cases tried in the military court system as "acts of service." Alston reports that the impunity rate on these extrajudicial murders by security forces may be as high as 98.5 percent.

· Mounting allegations that the President's intelligence service, the DAS, was put at the service <http://www.cipcol.org/?p=1123> of paramilitary leaders and narcotraffickers; used to spy on and intimidate <http://www.cipcol.org/?p=752> Supreme Court justices, opposition politicians, journalists and human rights defenders; and employed in a campaign of sabotage and smears <http://www.cipcol.org/?p=1467> against political opponents.

Prosecutors are alleging that the orders to have the DAS carry out wiretaps, surveillance and "political warfare" came from high up in the Colombian presidency <http://www.caracoltv.com/noticias/justicia/articulo168592-tres-asesores-de-uribe-son-investigados-chuzadas-ilegales> , though the question of "what President Uribe knew, and when he knew it" remains unanswered. Meanwhile efforts to reform or dissolve the DAS are stalled in Colombia's Congress.

· President Uribe's political coalition has also been hit by a scandal known in Colombia as "para-politics." This coalition has included dozens of political bosses from regions beyond the capital. Many are large landholders with ties to narcotrafficking, the same local leaders who created and fostered the brutal pro-government paramilitary groups that killed tens of thousands of non-combatants in the 1990s and early 2000s.

Evidence, much of it from former paramilitary leaders, has brought about 300 criminal investigations against legislators, governors, mayors and other local officials, nearly all of them Álvaro Uribe's political supporters, who made common cause with the far-right warlords. To date, of the 278 congresspeople and senators elected in 2006, 68 <http://www.nuevoarcoiris.org.co/sac/?q=node/64> are under official investigation, on trial, or convicted for paramilitary ties. Those embroiled in parapolitics include the President's cousin, Mario Uribe; the brother of his former foreign minister; and individuals whom the President had named to be Colombia's ambassadors to Chile, the Dominican Republic, and Canada.

The Colombian prosecutors, investigators, witnesses and non-governmental organizations trying to uncover the truth about these abuses are working under conditions of great personal risk. They, too, are heroes and would benefit greatly from a public expression of concern about the cases they are investigating, and a reminder that their work is legitimate and important to U.S. interests in Colombia.

At the same time, it is important to avoid appearing to endorse any candidate in the June 20 runoff elections. Between the first and second rounds of a country's presidential election is a politically awkward time for a high-level official visit. Though President Uribe's former defense minister, Juan Manuel Santos, is the overwhelming favorite given his margin of success in the May 30th first round of balloting over former Bogotá mayor Antanas Mockus, it is necessary at this stage to convey a sense of balance and a willingness to work closely with whoever wins. As a result, any kind words for one candidate should be balanced by praise for the other.

Finally, it would be helpful to remind the Colombian people that the United States supports a peaceful resolution of Bogotá's worsening differences with Venezuela. While President Chávez's behavior is a significant concern, it would be most unhelpful to be perceived on this trip as fanning the flames of conflict with Colombia – or playing into the Chavez rhetoric that the U.S. and Colombia have military aspirations in the region.

Hope this memo, along with last week's copy of the TLHRC letter to Assistant Secretary Posner, are helpful and useful materials for the Secretary as she plans her trip.

Very best wishes –

On behalf of Cong. Jim McGovern

Staff Contact: Cindy Buhl (202-225-6101 or cindy.buhl@mail.house.gov <mailto:cindy.buhl@mail.house.gov> )

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, June 4, 2010 7:40 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Fyi

What does Bill Burns think? I'd rather do it later so I can get ready to go.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri Jun 04 07:21:24 2010
Subject: Fyi

B5

RELEASE IN PART
B5,B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, June 4, 2010 7:43 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Fyi

B6

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri Jun 04 07:21:24 2010
Subject: Fyi

B5

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, June 4, 2010 8:02 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Bill recommends that u talk to yang. I can see if he can do right after greek call? Give u a little more time.

I know the Greek call will last a long time and I can't predict how long Yang will take so this is not a good idea. But if I can finish the P call by 8:20, then I can do as long as I'm done by 8:45.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri Jun 04 07:53:41 2010
Subject: Bill recommends that u talk to yang. I can see if he can do right after greek call? Give u a little more time.

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, April 22, 2010 5:56 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Cc: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: To Cheryl Mills: Rep. McGovern Letter to President Obama, DHS Secretary Napolitano and Secretary of State Clinton

B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Wed Apr 21 15:59:02 2010
Subject: FW: To Cheryl Mills: Rep. McGovern Letter to President Obama, DHS Secretary Napolitano and Secretary of State Clinton

fyi

From: Buhl, Cindy [mailto:Cindy.Buhl@mail.house.gov]
Sent: Wednesday, April 21, 2010 2:42 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Cc: Buhl, Cindy
Subject: To Cheryl Mills: Rep. McGovern Letter to President Obama, DHS Secretary Napolitano and Secretary of State Clinton

Dear Cheryl –

It's our understanding that the review of the terrorist list undertaken at the beginning of the year is reaching completion, imminently. Jim asked me to shoot you a note that this continues to be a very important issue for him and Bill Delahunt. The list needs to be purged of political manipulation – and quite frankly, the current status quo with Cuba needs to be broken, not further reinforced – for the sake of Alan Gross, those on the island needing space to voice their views, and indeed, all of us outside who know change is coming.

It's time to do something bold and constructive – and in our very best interests –

Let us know if there's anything we can do to help –

Cindy

From: Buhl, Cindy
Sent: Thursday, January 07, 2010 1:15 PM
To: 'Mills, Cheryl D'
Cc: Buhl, Cindy

Subject: To Cheryl Mills: Rep. McGovern Letter to President Obama, DHS Secretary Napolitano and Secretary of State Clinton

Dear Cheryl --

Attached please find a letter regarding the review of terrorist lists currently taking place within the Obama Administration. The letter cites Cuba as a nation that should be purged from such lists, including the State Sponsors of Terrorism list, as an example for the need of a thorough, robust and judicious review and updating of these lists.

Can you please ensure that the Secretary and other relevant State Department officials are made aware of this letter?

Very best regards --

Cindy

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, June 4, 2010 8:07 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Gaza

B5

Pls see the memcon for details.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, April 22, 2010 6:06 PM
To: 'verveerms@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Mrs Mubarak

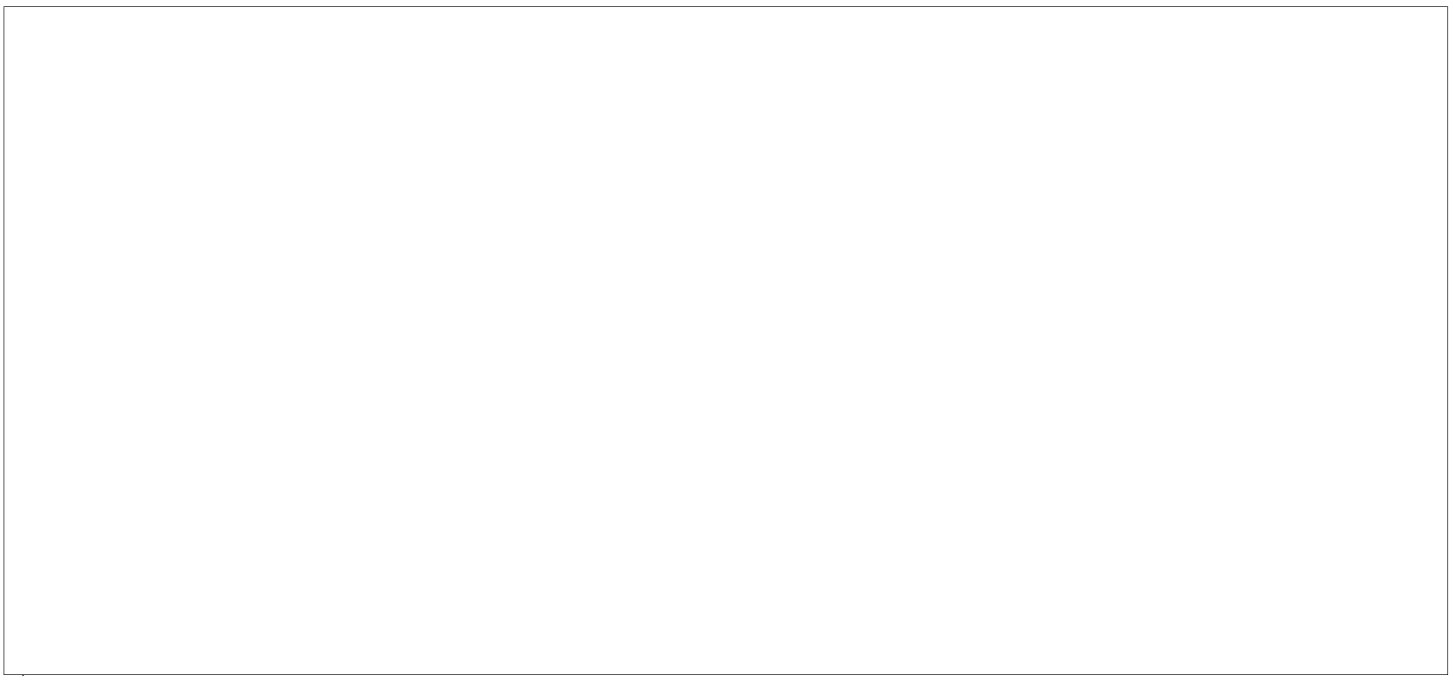
What is the date of her event in December?

----- Original Message -----
From: Verveer, Melanne S <VerveerMS@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Tue Apr 20 14:36:21 2010
Subject: Mrs Mubarak

I had a good visit with her. She very much wants you to come to Egypt for the major anti-trafficking event she is doing in December and sends you her regards.
Egypt is making good progress on women's issues: prosecuting child marriage cases, combating FGM and they're close to passing a tough anti-trafficking law. Mrs M is the guiding force.
She and the President appreciated your call after his surgery. The most difficult part of our conversation was [redacted] B6

[redacted]

We also announced our partnership with egypt for the training of. Afghan midwives at the suzanne mubarek health center in Alexandria.



RELEASE IN PART B5

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, September 26, 2010 12:56 PM
To: H

Points for Call to

B5

B5

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, September 26, 2010 1:08 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (AP) Israeli settlement slowdown to end at midnight

From: Deyo, Justin A
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: DeBaere, Judes E
Sent: Sun Sep 26 13:05:29 2010
Subject: (AP) Israeli settlement slowdown to end at midnight

REVAVA (AP) - Dozens of Jewish settlers broke ground on a new daycare center deep inside the West Bank to celebrate the end of the government's 10-month-old construction slowdown at midnight- symbolically renewing settlement activity that threatens to derail peace talks with the Palestinians. Some 2000 people headed to another nearby settlement for a larger rally, where activists released 2000 blue and white balloons- the colors of the Israeli flag- into the air at sundown. The balloons were meant to symbolize the 2000 apartments that settlers say they are ready to be built immediately. The festivities went ahead despite Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's call for the settlers to show "restraint" as the curbs are lifted.

Justin Deyo
U.S. Department of State
Operations Center (S/ES-O)
202-647-1512

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, April 23, 2010 8:46 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Hikers

I thought we did already.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri Apr 23 17:12:47 2010
Subject: Hikers

Can we put out the below?

Draft S Statement on the Hikers

I was pleased to learn of the consular visit yesterday by the Swiss Ambassador in Iran to the three detained American hikers, Shane Bauer, Josh Fattal, and Sarah Shourd. But we are disturbed by the families' reports of their children's physical and emotional health. These three Americans -- innocent tourists in Iraq's Kurdistan region when they were detained on July 31, 2009 -- have been unjustly held for almost nine months without formal charges or access to legal representation. We ask the Islamic Republic of Iran to release these three Americans and allow them to go home and be reunited with their families.

###

RELEASE IN PART
B5,B6

From: jake.sullivan[redacted] B6
Sent: Sunday, September 26, 2010 1:40 PM
To: H
Subject: Re: Any reactions?

I think[redacted] B5
-----Original Message-----
From: H
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
To: 'jake.sullivan[redacted] B6
Subject: Any reactions?
Sent: Sep 26, 2010 1:48 PM

Sent from my BlackBerry® smartphone with SprintSpeed

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 24, 2010 9:31 AM
To: 'vermarr@state.gov'
Cc: 'millscd@state.gov'; 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Harry Reid

Rich, Given his recent letter to me, I need to call him soon. Can you provide suggested points for Iran and Israel? Thx.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 21, 2010 1:07 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Speech

When can we do conf call on speech?

RELEASE IN PART
B5,B6

From: jake.sullivan B6
Sent: Sunday, September 26, 2010 1:42 PM
To: H
Subject: Re: Any reactions?

All the rest of this is B5

------Original Message------
From: H
To: 'jake.sullivan B6
Subject: Re: Any reactions?
Sent: Sep 26, 2010 1:56 PM

That's what I've thought for weeks.

----- Original Message -----
From: jake.sullivan <jake.sullivan B6
To: H
Sent: Sun Sep 26 13:39:43 2010
Subject: Re: Any reactions?

I think ------Original Message------ B5
From: H
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
To: 'jake.sullivan B6
Subject: Any reactions?
Sent: Sep 26, 2010 1:48 PM

Sent from my BlackBerry® smartphone with SprintSpeed

Sent from my BlackBerry® smartphone with SprintSpeed

RELEASE IN PART
B1 1.4(B) 1.4(D), B6

From: aclb [redacted] B6
Sent: Sunday, September 26, 2010 2:29 PM
To: H
Cc: 'jake.sullivan[redacted]
Subject: Re: Info for you

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 09/25/2035

I'm due to leave at 5pm your time to go back to US for various obligations.(Airport may shut at 6) I'm ready to stay however if you need since I'm anxious about this situation.

[redacted]

If you wished I would stay to try to arrange. But totally understand if not! Best Tony

B1
1.4(B)
1.4(D)

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: 'jake.sullivan[redacted] <jake.sullivan[redacted] B6
Sent: Sat Sep 25 23:11:39 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

[redacted]

[redacted] I'm here til tomorrow night. Call if you need. Best Tony

B1
1.4(B)
1.4(D)

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: 'jake.sullivan[redacted] <jake.sullivan[redacted] B6
Sent: Sat Sep 25 19:56:19 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

[redacted]

[redacted] Best Tony

B1
1.4(B)
1.4(D)

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: 'jake.sullivan[redacted] <jake.sullivan[redacted] B6
Sent: Fri Sep 24 15:49:27 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

Hi Hillary. Just spent 3 hours with BB. Ready to speak when convenient but should do it on secure line. Best Tony

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: aclb
Cc: 'jake.sullivan[redacted] <jake.sullivan[redacted] B6

Sent: Fri Sep 24 05:16:14 2010
Subject: Fw: Info for you

Tony---

Message delivered. Pls read all the way down. Also, I'm copying Jake Sullivan because I've asked him to arrange a call w you once you land so you can be fully briefed before seeing BN. We are on a fast moving train changing direction every hour but determined to reach our destination.

Thx again for jumping into action this week. It's great having you on the team. All the best, H

----- Original Message -----
From: Lynn Forester de Rothschild [redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Thu Sep 23 23:58:37 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

Hillary,
We of course understand and thank you for personally reaching out to us. It is a big loss for the weekend but as we know it does not add up to a hill of beans. You are the best, and we remain your biggest fans.
Sweet dreams and Godspeed with everything you are doing.
Oxoxo
Lynn

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Lynn Forester de Rothschild
Sent: Thu Sep 23 22:30:45 2010
Subject: Info for you

Lynn,

I was trying to reach you to tell you and Teddy that I asked Tony Blair to go to Israel as part of our full court press on keeping the Middle East negotiations going. He told me that he had a commitment in Aspen w you two and the conference, but after we talked, he decided to go and asked me to tell you. He is very sorry, obviously, but I'm grateful that he accepted my request. I hope you all understand and give him a raincheck.

If you were interested, he might be able to satellite in if you have the technology available.

He should land around 5am Aspen time. Let me know what penance I owe you. And pls explain to Teddy. As ever, H

DISCLAIMER

WARNING – This email is only intended for the person to whom or entity to which it is addressed and, together with any files transmitted with it, is confidential and may also be privileged. If you are not the intended recipient, you must not copy, forward, use or rely on any part of it or disclose its contents to any person. If you have received it in error, please notify our system manager on +44 20 7647 7782 and delete all copies immediately.

Except where this email is sent in the usual course of our business, the views expressed in this email are those of the sender and not those of The Office of Tony Blair.

The Office of Tony Blair accepts no responsibility for software viruses and you should check for viruses before opening any attachments. Internet communications are not secure and therefore The Office of Tony Blair does not provide any guarantee or warranty that this email or any attachments shall remain confidential.

The Office of Tony Blair is a trading name of Windrush Ventures Limited and Windrush Ventures No.3 LP. Windrush Ventures Limited is a limited company registered in England and Wales with registered number 06397276. Its registered office is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL.

Windrush Ventures No. 3 LP is a limited partnership registered in England and Wales with registered number LP012665. Its registered office is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL. The members of Windrush Ventures No.3 LP are BDBCO No.819 Limited and Windrush Ventures No.2 LLP and the address at which each of these can be served is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL.

This email may relate to or be sent from other members of the Windrush group.

---

This email has been scanned by the MessageLabs Email Security System.
For more information please visit http://www.messagelabs.com/email

---

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 21, 2010 1:27 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Small dinner

Can we reschedule the dinner if I can't do the 24th?

RELEASE IN PART B1 1.4(B) 1.4(D), B5, B6

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, September 26, 2010 2:45 PM
To: H; jake.sullivan B6
Subject: Re: Info for you

I think B5

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: 'jake.sullivar ' <jake.sullivar >; Sullivan, Jacob J B6
Sent: Sun Sep 26 14:59:17 2010
Subject: Fw: Info for you

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 09/25/2035

What's your opinion on this?

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb < B6
To: H
Cc: 'jake.sullivan <jake.sullivan B6
Sent: Sun Sep 26 14:29:12 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

I'm due to leave at 5pm your time to go back to US for various obligations.(Airport may shut at 6) I'm ready to stay however if you need since I'm anxious about this situation.

If you wished I would stay to try to arrange. But totally understand if not! Best Tony

B1 1.4(B) 1.4(D)

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: 'jake.sullivan ' <jake.sullivan > B6
Sent: Sat Sep 25 23:11:39 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

. I'm here til tomorrow night. Call if you need. Best Tony

B1 1.4(D) 1.4(B)

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: 'jake.sullivan ' <jake.sullivan B6
Sent: Sat Sep 25 19:56:19 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

B1
1.4(B)
1.4(D)

[redacted]

[redacted] Best Tony

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: 'jake.sullivan[redacted] <jake.sullivan[redacted] B6
Sent: Fri Sep 24 15:49:27 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

Hi Hillary. Just spent 3 hours with BB. Ready to speak when convenient but should do it on secure line. Best Tony

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: aclb
Cc: 'jake.sullivan[redacted] <jake.sullivan[redacted] B6
Sent: Fri Sep 24 05:16:14 2010
Subject: Fw: Info for you

Tony---

Message delivered. Pls read all the way down. Also, I'm copying Jake Sullivan because I've asked him to arrange a call w you once you land so you can be fully briefed before seeing BN. We are on a fast moving train changing direction every hour but determined to reach our destination.

Thx again for jumping into action this week. It's great having you on the team. All the best, H

----- Original Message -----
From: Lynn Forester de Rothschild [redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Thu Sep 23 23:58:37 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

Hillary,
We of course understand and thank you for personally reaching out to us. It is a big loss for the weekend but as we know it does not add up to a hill of beans. You are the best, and we remain your biggest fans.
Sweet dreams and Godspeed with everything you are doing.
Oxoxo
Lynn

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Lynn Forester de Rothschild
Sent: Thu Sep 23 22:30:45 2010
Subject: Info for you

Lynn,

I was trying to reach you to tell you and Teddy that I asked Tony Blair to go to Israel as part of our full court press on keeping the Middle East negotiations going. He told me that he had a commitment in Aspen w you two and the conference, but after we talked, he decided to go and asked me to tell you. He is very sorry, obviously, but I'm grateful that he accepted my request. I hope you all understand and give him a raincheck.

If you were interested, he might be able to satellite in if you have the technology available.

He should land around 5am Aspen time. Let me know what penance I owe you. And pls explain to Teddy. As ever, H

DISCLAIMER

WARNING – This email is only intended for the person to whom or entity to which it is addressed and, together with any files transmitted with it, is confidential and may also be privileged. If you are not the intended recipient, you must not copy, forward, use or rely on any part of it or disclose its contents to any person. If you have received it in error, please notify our system manager on +44 20 7647 7782 and delete all copies immediately.

Except where this email is sent in the usual course of our business, the views expressed in this email are those of the sender and not those of The Office of Tony Blair.

The Office of Tony Blair accepts no responsibility for software viruses and you should check for viruses before opening any attachments. Internet communications are not secure and therefore The Office of Tony Blair does not provide any guarantee or warranty that this email or any attachments shall remain confidential.

The Office of Tony Blair is a trading name of Windrush Ventures Limited and Windrush Ventures No.3 LP. Windrush Ventures Limited is a limited company registered in England and Wales with registered number 06397276. Its registered office is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL.

Windrush Ventures No. 3 LP is a limited partnership registered in England and Wales with registered number LP012665. Its registered office is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL. The members of Windrush Ventures No.3 LP are BDBCO No.819 Limited and Windrush Ventures No.2 LLP and the address at which each of these can be served is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL.

This email may relate to or be sent from other members of the Windrush group.

---

This email has been scanned by the MessageLabs Email Security System.
For more information please visit http://www.messagelabs.com/email

---

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, June 6, 2010 1:38 PM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Washington Post "Outlook" Article
Attachments: 2010.06.06.WashPost.Israeli Narrative.doc; 2010.06.06.WashPost.Israeli Narrative.doc

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sun Jun 06 11:45:56 2010
Subject: Fw: Washington Post "Outlook" Article

You'll want to make sure you see this. AM

---

From: Daniel C. Kurtzer [redacted] B6
Sent: Sun Jun 06 11:25:33 2010
Subject: Washington Post "Outlook" Article

I have attached, for your information, an article I wrote in today's Washington Post "Outlook" section. All the best. Dan

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, September 26, 2010 2:50 PM
To: H
Subject: Re: Info for you

RELEASE IN PART
1.4(B),B1,B5,1.4(D),B6

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 09/25/2035

Ok

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sun Sep 26 15:03:28 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

[redacted] B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H; jake.sullivan[redacted] B6
Sent: Sun Sep 26 14:45:29 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

I think [redacted] B5

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: 'jake.sullivan[redacted]<jake.sullivan[redacted]; Sullivan, Jacob J B6
Sent: Sun Sep 26 14:59:17 2010
Subject: Fw: Info for you

What's your opinion on this?

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb [redacted] B6
To: H
Cc: 'jake.sullivan[redacted]<jake.sullivan[redacted]> B6
Sent: Sun Sep 26 14:29:12 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

1.4(B)
1.4(D)
B1

I'm due to leave at 5pm your time to go back to US for various obligations.(Airport may shut at 6) I'm ready to stay however if you need since I'm anxious about this situation.

[redacted]

If you wished I would stay to try to arrange. But totally understand if not! Best Tony

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: 'jake.sullivar' <jake.sullivan> B6
Sent: Sat Sep 25 23:11:39 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

I'm here til tomorrow night. Call if you need. Best Tony 1.4(B) 1.4(D) B1

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: 'jake.sullivar' <jake.sullivan> B6
Sent: Sat Sep 25 19:56:19 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

Best Tony 1.4(B) 1.4(D) B1

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: 'jake.sullivan' <jake.sullivan> B6
Sent: Fri Sep 24 15:49:27 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

Hi Hillary. Just spent 3 hours with BB. Ready to speak when convenient but should do it on secure line. Best Tony

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: aclb
Cc: 'jake.sullivar' <jake.sullivan> B6
Sent: Fri Sep 24 05:16:14 2010
Subject: Fw: Info for you

Tony---

Message delivered. Pls read all the way down. Also, I'm copying Jake Sullivan because I've asked him to arrange a call w you once you land so you can be fully briefed before seeing BN. We are on a fast moving train changing direction every hour but determined to reach our destination.

Thx again for jumping into action this week. It's great having you on the team. All the best, H

----- Original Message -----
From: Lynn Forester de Rothschild B6
To: H
Sent: Thu Sep 23 23:58:37 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

Hillary,
We of course understand and thank you for personally reaching out to us. It is a big loss for the weekend but as we know it does not add up to a hill of beans. You are the best, and we remain your biggest fans.
Sweet dreams and Godspeed with everything you are doing.
Oxoxo
Lynn

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Lynn Forester de Rothschild
Sent: Thu Sep 23 22:30:45 2010
Subject: Info for you

Lynn,

I was trying to reach you to tell you and Teddy that I asked Tony Blair to go to Israel as part of our full court press on keeping the Middle East negotiations going. He told me that he had a commitment in Aspen w you two and the conference, but after we talked, he decided to go and asked me to tell you. He is very sorry, obviously, but I'm grateful that he accepted my request. I hope you all understand and give him a raincheck.

If you were interested, he might be able to satellite in if you have the technology available.

He should land around 5am Aspen time. Let me know what penance I owe you. And pls explain to Teddy. As ever, H

DISCLAIMER

WARNING – This email is only intended for the person to whom or entity to which it is addressed and, together with any files transmitted with it, is confidential and may also be privileged. If you are not the intended recipient, you must not copy, forward, use or rely on any part of it or disclose its contents to any person. If you have received it in error, please notify our system manager on +44 20 7647 7782 and delete all copies immediately.

Except where this email is sent in the usual course of our business, the views expressed in this email are those of the sender and not those of The Office of Tony Blair.

The Office of Tony Blair accepts no responsibility for software viruses and you should check for viruses before opening any attachments. Internet communications are not secure and therefore The Office of Tony Blair does not provide any guarantee or warranty that this email or any attachments shall remain confidential.

The Office of Tony Blair is a trading name of Windrush Ventures Limited and Windrush Ventures No.3 LP. Windrush Ventures Limited is a limited company registered in England and Wales with registered number 06397276. Its registered office is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL.

Windrush Ventures No. 3 LP is a limited partnership registered in England and Wales with registered number LP012665. Its registered office is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL. The members of Windrush Ventures No.3 LP are BDBCO No.819 Limited and Windrush Ventures No.2 LLP and the address at which each of these can be served is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL.

This email may relate to or be sent from other members of the Windrush group.

---

This email has been scanned by the MessageLabs Email Security System.

For more information please visit http://www.messagelabs.com/email

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, September 26, 2010 2:55 PM
To: H
Subject: Re: Info for you

RELEASE IN PART
B1,1.4(B),1.4(D), B5, B6

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 09/25/2035

Yep

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sun Sep 26 15:07:22 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

[redacted] B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Sep 26 14:49:55 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

Ok

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sun Sep 26 15:03:28 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

[redacted] B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H; jake.sullivan[redacted] <jake.sullivan[redacted] B6
Sent: Sun Sep 26 14:45:29 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

I think [redacted] B5

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: 'jake.sullivan[redacted]' <jake.sullivan[redacted]; Sullivan, Jacob J B6
Sent: Sun Sep 26 14:59:17 2010
Subject: Fw: Info for you

What's your opinion on this?

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb [redacted] B6
To: H
Cc: 'jake.sullivan [redacted]' <jake.sullivan [redacted]> B6
Sent: Sun Sep 26 14:29:12 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

I'm due to leave at 5pm your time to go back to US for various obligations.(Airport may shut at 6) I'm ready to stay however if you need since I'm anxious about this situation.

[redacted] 1.4(B) 1.4(D) B1

If you wished I would stay to try to arrange. But totally understand if not! Best Tony

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: 'jake.sullivan [redacted]' <jake.sullivan [redacted]> B6
Sent: Sat Sep 25 23:11:39 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

[redacted] I'm here til tomorrow night. Call if you need. Best Tony 1.4(B) 1.4(D) B1

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: 'jake.sullivan [redacted] <jake.sullivan [redacted] B6
Sent: Sat Sep 25 19:56:19 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

[redacted] Best Tony 1.4(B) 1.4(D) B1

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: 'jake.sullivan [redacted] <jake.sullivan [redacted] B6
Sent: Fri Sep 24 15:49:27 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

Hi Hillary. Just spent 3 hours with BB. Ready to speak when convenient but should do it on secure line. Best Tony

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: aclb
Cc: 'jake.sullivan [redacted]' <jake.sullivan [redacted] B6

Sent: Fri Sep 24 05:16:14 2010
Subject: Fw: Info for you

Tony---

Message delivered. Pls read all the way down. Also, I'm copying Jake Sullivan because I've asked him to arrange a call w you once you land so you can be fully briefed before seeing BN. We are on a fast moving train changing direction every hour but determined to reach our destination.

Thx again for jumping into action this week. It's great having you on the team. All the best, H

----- Original Message -----
From: Lynn Forester de Rothschild [redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Thu Sep 23 23:58:37 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

Hillary,
We of course understand and thank you for personally reaching out to us. It is a big loss for the weekend but as we know it does not add up to a hill of beans. You are the best, and we remain your biggest fans.
Sweet dreams and Godspeed with everything you are doing.
Oxoxo
Lynn

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Lynn Forester de Rothschild
Sent: Thu Sep 23 22:30:45 2010
Subject: Info for you

Lynn,

I was trying to reach you to tell you and Teddy that I asked Tony Blair to go to Israel as part of our full court press on keeping the Middle East negotiations going. He told me that he had a commitment in Aspen w you two and the conference, but after we talked, he decided to go and asked me to tell you. He is very sorry, obviously, but I'm grateful that he accepted my request. I hope you all understand and give him a raincheck.

If you were interested, he might be able to satellite in if you have the technology available.

He should land around 5am Aspen time. Let me know what penance I owe you. And pls explain to Teddy. As ever, H

DISCLAIMER

WARNING – This email is only intended for the person to whom or entity to which it is addressed and, together with any files transmitted with it, is confidential and may also be privileged. If you are not the intended recipient, you must not copy, forward, use or rely on any part of it or disclose its contents to any person. If you have received it in error, please notify our system manager on +44 20 7647 7782 and delete all copies immediately.

Except where this email is sent in the usual course of our business, the views expressed in this email are those of the sender and not those of The Office of Tony Blair.

The Office of Tony Blair accepts no responsibility for software viruses and you should check for viruses before opening any attachments. Internet communications are not secure and therefore The Office of Tony Blair does not provide any guarantee or warranty that this email or any attachments shall remain confidential.

The Office of Tony Blair is a trading name of Windrush Ventures Limited and Windrush Ventures No.3 LP. Windrush Ventures Limited is a limited company registered in England and Wales with registered number 06397276. Its registered office is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL.

Windrush Ventures No. 3 LP is a limited partnership registered in England and Wales with registered number LP012665. Its registered office is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL. The members of Windrush Ventures No.3 LP are BDBCO No.819 Limited and Windrush Ventures No.2 LLP and the address at which each of these can be served is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL.

This email may relate to or be sent from other members of the Windrush group.

---

This email has been scanned by the MessageLabs Email Security System.
For more information please visit http://www.messagelabs.com/email

---

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, September 26, 2010 3:39 PM
To: H
Subject: Re: Info for you

RELEASE IN PART B1,1.4(B),1.4(D), B5, B6

He's staying

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D), B1 ~ Declassify on: 09/26/2035

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sun Sep 26 15:52:14 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Sep 26 14:55:06 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

Yep

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sun Sep 26 15:07:22 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Sep 26 14:49:55 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

Ok

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sun Sep 26 15:03:28 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H; jake.sullivan <jake.sullivan >
Sent: Sun Sep 26 14:45:29 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

B6

I think

B5

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: 'jake.sullivar <jake.sullivan ; Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sun Sep 26 14:59:17 2010
Subject: Fw: Info for you

B6

What's your opinion on this?

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb

B6

To: H
Cc: 'jake.sullivan <jake.sullivar >

B6

Sent: Sun Sep 26 14:29:12 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

I'm due to leave at 5pm your time to go back to US for various obligations.(Airport may shut at 6) I'm ready to stay however if you need since I'm anxious about this situation.

If you wished I would stay to try to arrange. But totally understand if not! Best Tony

1.4(B)
1.4(D)
B1

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: 'jake.sullivan <jake.sullivan

B6

Sent: Sat Sep 25 23:11:39 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

I'm here til tomorrow night. Call if you need. Best Tony

1.4(B)
1.4(D)
B1

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: 'jake.sullivan <jake.sullivar

B6

Sent: Sat Sep 25 19:56:19 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

1.4(B)
1.4(D)
B1

[redacted] 1.4(B) 1.4(D) B1

[redacted] Best Tony

----- Original Message -----
From: aclb
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: 'jake.sullivan[redacted]' <jake.sullivan[redacted]> B6
Sent: Fri Sep 24 15:49:27 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

Hi Hillary. Just spent 3 hours with BB. Ready to speak when convenient but should do it on secure line. Best Tony

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: aclb
Cc: 'jake.sullivan[redacted] <jake.sullivan[redacted]> B6
Sent: Fri Sep 24 05:16:14 2010
Subject: Fw: Info for you

Tony---

Message delivered. Pls read all the way down. Also, I'm copying Jake Sullivan because I've asked him to arrange a call w you once you land so you can be fully briefed before seeing BN. We are on a fast moving train changing direction every hour but determined to reach our destination.

Thx again for jumping into action this week. It's great having you on the team. All the best, H

----- Original Message -----
From: Lynn Forester de Rothschild [redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Thu Sep 23 23:58:37 2010
Subject: Re: Info for you

Hillary,
We of course understand and thank you for personally reaching out to us. It is a big loss for the weekend but as we know it does not add up to a hill of beans. You are the best, and we remain your biggest fans.
Sweet dreams and Godspeed with everything you are doing.
Oxoxo
Lynn

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Lynn Forester de Rothschild
Sent: Thu Sep 23 22:30:45 2010
Subject: Info for you

Lynn,

I was trying to reach you to tell you and Teddy that I asked Tony Blair to go to Israel as part of our full court press on keeping the Middle East negotiations going. He told me that he had a commitment in Aspen w you two and the conference, but after we talked, he decided to go and asked me to tell you. He is very sorry, obviously, but I'm grateful that he accepted my request. I hope you all understand and give him a raincheck.

If you were interested, he might be able to satellite in if you have the technology available.

He should land around 5am Aspen time. Let me know what penance I owe you. And pls explain to Teddy. As ever, H

DISCLAIMER

WARNING – This email is only intended for the person to whom or entity to which it is addressed and, together with any files transmitted with it, is confidential and may also be privileged. If you are not the intended recipient, you must not copy, forward, use or rely on any part of it or disclose its contents to any person. If you have received it in error, please notify our system manager on +44 20 7647 7782 and delete all copies immediately.

Except where this email is sent in the usual course of our business, the views expressed in this email are those of the sender and not those of The Office of Tony Blair.

The Office of Tony Blair accepts no responsibility for software viruses and you should check for viruses before opening any attachments. Internet communications are not secure and therefore The Office of Tony Blair does not provide any guarantee or warranty that this email or any attachments shall remain confidential.

The Office of Tony Blair is a trading name of Windrush Ventures Limited and Windrush Ventures No.3 LP. Windrush Ventures Limited is a limited company registered in England and Wales with registered number 06397276. Its registered office is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL.

Windrush Ventures No. 3 LP is a limited partnership registered in England and Wales with registered number LP012665. Its registered office is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL. The members of Windrush Ventures No.3 LP are BDBCO No.819 Limited and Windrush Ventures No.2 LLP and the address at which each of these can be served is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL.

This email may relate to or be sent from other members of the Windrush group.

---

This email has been scanned by the MessageLabs Email Security System.
For more information please visit http://www.messagelabs.com/email

---

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775117 Date: 08/31/2015

RELEASE IN FULL

The Washington Post

After the flotilla attack, it's time for a new, kinder Israeli narrative

By Daniel Kurtzer
Sunday, June 6, 2010

Of the many confounding aspects of Monday's flotilla fiasco, one of the most curious is the monotone quality of Israel's response. Within hours of the Israeli assault on an aid ship bound for Gaza, while the dead and wounded were still being evacuated from the scene, Israel's deputy foreign minister delivered a verbal broadside that became his nation's public line: The flotilla organizers are terrorist sympathizers, they ambushed Israeli forces, and they are responsible for what followed.

Even so adept a communicator as Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu, in a prepared statement Wednesday that attacked Israel's critics as much as it defended Israel's actions, could manage only one sentence of regret for civilian casualties.

Why, even to its friends, has Israel sounded so shrill, even tone deaf? Where are the grief and sadness that Israelis ought to feel about a military operation gone awry? The French philosopher Bernard-Henri Levy expressed anger with the tendency of some Israeli leaders to believe that "they are alone in the world and will always be blamed, and to act accordingly."

Israel's friends know that the country has a case to make. But by hunkering down in self-justification, Israel has confused that case. And now the jury of world public opinion, comprising at least as many friends as foes, has stopped listening. At the United Nations, speaker after speaker condemned Israel's action, and even the United States joined in a harsh statement of condemnation. Normally pro-Israel editorial writers added to the chorus of ostracism.

Israel has long seen itself as the Alamo, a fortress under siege. Decades ago, a song titled "The Entire World is Against Us" hit the Israeli pop charts. At the time, there was some truth to the words: Arab states rejected Israel's existence. An Arab economic boycott persuaded major companies in Europe and Asia to decline to do business in Israel. Trade with many countries had to be conducted through third parties.

Indeed, Israel has faced recurring threats to its security and existence, a reality reflected in a maxim I heard often during my time as U.S. ambassador there early this decade: Israel goes to sleep with memories of the Holocaust and wakes up to the Arab-Israeli conflict. In this context, the nation's military power was seen as a necessary response. And in turn, Israel's narrative portrayed the country as a David facing an Arab Goliath.

Although the 1967 war changed this reality, Israel's narrative never really caught up. Newly demonstrated military superiority and deepening ties with the United States provided a measure of security the country had not enjoyed before. Egypt's President Anwar Sadat was the first Arab leader to recognize this new strategic reality, and in 1979, he made peace with Israel.

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775117 Date: 08/31/2015

But even as the outdated David vs. Goliath theme lingered in the minds of many Israelis, among other segments of the population a new, religious-national narrative that centered on settling and holding all of Eretz Israel was taking hold. Even though settlements complicated Israel's relations with the Palestinians, and even though Israel had evacuated the Sinai settlements to make peace with Egypt -- a move that vitiated the argument that settlements were required for security -- activists such as Ariel Sharon continued to argue that they enhanced security.

For a while, conditions allowed this new narrative to take root: The Palestine Liberation Organization was busy attacking Israel from Jordan, Lebanon and the United Nations and pursuing a tactical moderation designed to lull Israel into complacency.

But soon this reality, too, began to change. The PLO decided in 1988 to officially support a two-state solution to the conflict and entered into dialogue with the United States. In 1991, Arab states participated in multilateral negotiations with Israel on water, the environment, economic development and regional security. Arab and Israeli business leaders met at international conferences. Israel's diplomatic isolation eased as China, India and others established formal ties, and Israeli liaison offices opened in Morocco and Arab states in the Persian Gulf. In 1994, Jordan made peace, removing the security justification for Israeli settlements in the West Bank. And in 2002, Arab states announced an "Arab peace initiative" offering peace and security in return for Israel's withdrawal from lands taken in the 1967 war.

But the Palestinian intifada put a brake on these developments, ushering in a decade of violence. As Palestinian terrorists attacked not only soldiers and settlers in the occupied territories, but also civilians in Israeli cities, the Israeli storyline of the 1950s -- David vs. Goliath -- revived.

I arrived in Israel as the U.S. ambassador in 2001, right after the first Palestinian suicide bombing, and discussed these issues often with then-Prime Minister Sharon, usually in the context of the choices Israel made in dealing with terrorism. Sharon believed that a strong and unyielding military response was all that was needed to persuade Palestinians to stop the intifada. A terrorist attack in Tel Aviv would often lead him to impose a closure on Gaza, preventing the movement of people and goods.

A typical conversation with Sharon on this subject went something as follows: I would suggest that the closure on Gaza would be seen by the media and even friendly governments as collective punishment, would shift the media's story line from Palestinian violence to Israel's reaction and could even drive Palestinians hurt by the closure into the terrorist camp. Sharon would reply that his responsibility was to protect Israelis, that the Gaza closure was designed to prevent further attacks and that the media were to blame for distorting reality.

His underlying point was clear: Any impact on Israel's image and on the long-term possibility of a widened conflict was outweighed by the need to prevent the next suicide bombing. Whatever the consequences of its actions, Israel would not apologize for defending itself.

Netanyahu would echo this refrain almost a decade later, after years marked not only by the intifada but by an Israeli decision to build a security barrier. The decade saw a brutal war in Lebanon in 2006, sparked by Hezbollah's kidnapping and killing of Israeli soldiers and ended by Israel's destruction of Lebanese civilian infrastructure and significant civilian casualties. The decade saw Hamas's election victory in 2006, its violent takeover of Gaza in 2007, its unrelenting rocket attacks against Israel in 2008 and Israel's massive response, again involving great numbers of civilian casualties and the destruction of infrastructure. By decade's end, a frustrated Israel had sealed off and blockaded Gaza to try to stem the flow of arms to Hamas, but because of the worsening humanitarian situation there, it was losing the battle for international legitimacy.

Narratives, as self-justifications, do little to explain the complexities, ironies and paradoxes of the Arab-Israeli conflict. In the early 1980s, while I was assigned to the American Embassy in Tel Aviv, I met a Palestinian nationalist figure in Gaza who was unrelentingly opposed to the Israeli occupation. He shocked me one day when he said he also admired Israel. After a near-fatal car accident in Gaza, his son had been evacuated to one of Israel's leading hospitals, where doctors saved his life. My Palestinian contact hated the Israel of the occupation, but he admired the Israel that was blind to the nationality of a boy in need of care.

When an Israeli military plan goes awry and civilians are killed -- as happened last week off the shores of Gaza -- should Israel's narrative take in the human dimension? Should it express empathy for those affected by the conflict and by Israeli military actions? Marla Braverman, an editor of Azure, an Israeli neoconservative journal, thinks not. In the current issue, she writes that despite a longtime tendency toward self-effacement, "Israel must learn to adopt a clear, unapologetic stance befitting a sovereign state."

The fact is, however, that sovereign states make mistakes, and they apologize. Sovereign states rely not only on military might and insistent rhetoric to defend their people, but also on diplomacy and values of empathy and understanding. Sovereign states can be strong while fostering a narrative of caring about the consequences of their policies.

In the aftermath of the flotilla fiasco, it is not just Israel's military tactics and its blockade of Gaza that need a thorough reexamination. Its narrative does, too. A dose of empathy might be a place to start. Israel will not break by military force and tough rhetoric alone the political and moral double standards by which the world judges its actions. But it can make its case better by tempering force with diplomacy, by caring as much about the humanitarian distress among Palestinians as it does about humanitarian causes elsewhere in the world, and by developing a storyline infused with the moral and ethical standards by which Israelis judge their own behavior.

Daniel Kurtzer, a former U.S. ambassador to Israel and Egypt, is a visiting professor at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, September 26, 2010 4:38 PM
To: H
Subject: Sunday

Should at least be Sunday. One less day of bldng

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, September 26, 2010 5:37 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Jerusalem Post) E. Jerusalem: Policeman injured, molotov thrown

From: Simmons, Krista M
To: NEWS-Mahogany; NEWS-NEA
Cc: SES-O_Shift-III
Sent: Sun Sep 26 17:04:08 2010
Subject: (Jerusalem Post) E. Jerusalem: Policeman injured, molotov thrown (Jerusalem Post) - One policeman was injured in an altercation in Sheikh Jarrah, when police arrived on the scene of a street fight and arrested four Arab residents.

After the arrest, other residents started throwing rocks at the police forces. One policeman was hit in the head with a rock and was injured. He was treated on the scene. The police fired two warning shots into the air and the crowd dispersed.

In a separate incident also on September 26, a molotov cocktail was thrown at police and border patrol forces on patrol in the Givati parking lot near the entrance to Silwan and the City of David. The molotov cocktail exploded but there were no injuries.

A sweep of the area by border patrol found three other molotov cocktails and three suspects were arrested.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, September 26, 2010 5:41 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Reuters) US says keeps pushing for Mideast talks to continue

---

From: Simmons, Krista M
To: NEWS-Mahogany; NEWS-NEA
Cc: SES-O_Shift-III
Sent: Sun Sep 26 17:39:49 2010
Subject: (Reuters) US says keeps pushing for Mideast talks to continue

WASHINGTON (Reuters) - The United States continues to press for Israeli-Palestinian direct peace talks to advance despite Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's decision to allow a temporary freeze on settlement construction to expire, the U.S. State Department said September 26.

"We keep pushing for the talks to continue," said State Department spokesman P.J. Crowley in a brief statement, adding that Secretary of State Hillary Clinton had spoken to Netanyahu twice on September 26.

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, June 6, 2010 3:56 PM
To: 'slaughtera@state.gov'
Subject: Re: tying up a couple of loose ends from this week

Thx for following up on both.

----- Original Message -----
From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>; Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Sat Jun 05 19:08:44 2010
Subject: tying up a couple of loose ends from this week

You mentioned at Thursday's 8:45 meeting that you had talked to Qureshi and that he thought he was not going to get any trade access to the EU. My EU contact writes that the Member States in the EU have been slowing up progress on trade concessions to Pakistan, although the draft language negotiated w/ Pakistan still leaves room for the Commission (which is pro-trade) to keep working on enhanced trade benefits for Pakistan. Still, the original timetable of 2011 will not be kept. Even more ominous, any agreement will have to go to the European Parliament, which is down on Pakistan for human rights reasons. B5

B5

I have also read Esther's note to you on UN Security Council Reform. You are right that overall our best position for the moment is B5

B5

Have a good trip!

AM

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, September 26, 2010 5:59 PM
To: H; Oscar Flores
Subject: Monday schedule

I've left message for roy for 9am.
10:00am UNSC Session on Counter-Terrorism (UN)
-- S+4; Amb. Rice, A/S Brimmer, Amb. Benjamin, Amb. DiCarlo (Deputy PermRep)
-- Intervention by the Secretary
-- S is 3rd speaker (can then depart)

12:45pm Bilat with UK FS Hague (Waldorf-Astoria) (30 mins.)

-- S, A/S Gordon, S/CT Benjamin, PA, Sullivan, EUR notetake r➢ Press: Pooled camera spray ➢ Public Remarks: N/a

1:30pm Bilat with Canadian FM Cannon (Waldorf-Astoria) (30 mins.)
-- S, A/S Valenzuela, S/CT Benjamin, PA, Sullivan, WHAnotetaker

➢ Press: Pooled camera spray➢

2:00pm Meeting with Pacific Island Nation Leaders (Waldorf-Astoria) (45 mins.; informal opening/25 mins. meeting)

-- S, A/S Campbell, A/S Brimmer, Admin. Shah, PA, Sullivan, EAP notetaker

-- Opening remarks by the Secretary

-- Response by President of Nauru, Marcus Stephen

-- Discussion

➢ Press: Pooled camera spray

3:00pm Bilat with Indian FM Krishna (Waldorf-Astoria) (30 mins.)

-- S, P, Amb. Rice, A/S Blake, A/S Brimmer, S/CT Benjamin, PA, Sullivan, SCA notetaker

➢ Press: Pooled camera spray➢

3:45pm Bilat with Syrian FM Muallim (Waldorf-Astoria) (30 mins.)

-- S, P, A/S Feltman, SEMEP Mitchell, PA, Sullivan, NEA notetaker

➢ Press: Pooled camera spray➢

4:30pm Bilat with French FM Kouchner (Waldorf-Astoria) (30 mins.)

-- S, A/S Gordon, PA, Sullivan, EUR notetaker

➢ Press: Pooled camera spray➢

6:00pm Depart NYC for Washington

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, September 26, 2010 7:51 PM
To: H
Subject: U r confirmed with roy at 9am tomorrow morning. Agents have info

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, September 27, 2010 7:28 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (WSJ) Prosecutors Focus on Mahmood Karzai, Posing Diplomatic Risks for Washington

From: Abdalla, Alyce N
To: NEWS-Mahogany; NEWS-Afghanistan
Cc: SES-O_Shift-I; SES-O_Shift-II
Sent: Mon Sep 27 05:15:44 2010
Subject: (WSJ) Prosecutors Focus on Mahmood Karzai, Posing Diplomatic Risks for Washington

Federal prosecutors in New York said one of Afghan President Hamid Karzai's brothers, Mahmood Karzai, has become a focus in a corruption probe. The Southern District of New York has a history of charging, extraditing and trying suspects in far-flung parts of the world, including Afghanistan. Prosecutors are trying to determine whether they have enough evidence to bring charges of tax evasion, racketeering or extortion, said U.S. officials.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, September 27, 2010 8:55 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Reuters) Sarkozy calls for October MidEast talks in Paris

From: Goldberg, Joshua W
To: NEWS-Mahogany; NEWS-NEA
Cc: SES-O_Shift-II
Sent: Mon Sep 27 08:49:16 2010
Subject: (Reuters) Sarkozy calls for October MidEast talks in Paris

PARIS (Reuters) - French President Sarkozy said he would ask Palestinian President Abbas, Israeli PM Netanyahu, and Egyptian President Mubarak to peace talks in Paris before the end of October. Abbas said the construction of Jewish settlements, subject of a moratorium that expired on September 26, should be frozen for another 3-4 months, a position Sarkozy backed as crucial. "The settlements must stop," the French president said.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 21, 2010 3:53 PM
To: 'TillemannTS@state.gov'; 'muscatinel@state.gov'
Cc: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Water speech

Will I get a draft later today?

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 21, 2010 3:55 PM
To: 'valenzuelaaa@state.gov'
Cc: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: [redacted] letter B5

[redacted]

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, September 27, 2010 10:18 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Update on the Trilateral Talks

RELEASE IN PART B1, 1.4(B),1.4(D), B5, B6

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D), B1 ~ Declassify on: 09/27/2025

From: Scott Gration [redacted] B6
To: S_SpecialAssistants
Cc: Burns, William J; Steinberg, James B; Mills, Cheryl D; Sullivan, Jacob J; Fuchs, Michael H; Carson, Johnnie; Yamamoto, Donald Y; Shortley, Timothy R
Sent: Mon Sep 27 10:10:59 2010 1.4(B)
Subject: Update on the Trilateral Talks 1.4(D)
B1

Madame Secretary, at the request of Sudanese Foreign Minister Karti and with the agreement of Vice Presidents Taha and Kiir, we brought together senior leaders from the NCP and SPLM to the Greentree Foundation's estate on Long Island this weekend for Trilateral talks to discuss the current impasse on the Abyei referendum. [redacted] B5

[redacted]

[redacted]

I'll keep you informed as things develop, Scott

1.4(B)
1.4(D)
B1
B5

--

Jonathan S. Gration, Maj Gen (Ret)
President's Special Envoy to Sudan
O: (202) 647-5855
M:
H:

B6

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 21, 2010 3:56 PM
To: 'TillemannTS@state.gov'; 'muscatinel@state.gov'
Cc: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Water speech

Thanks so much. As to visuals, will we have handouts or power point on screen?

----- Original Message -----
From: Tillemann, Tomicah S <TillemannTS@state.gov>
To: H; Muscatine, Lissa <MuscatineL@state.gov>
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sun Mar 21 15:54:45 2010
Subject: Re: Water speech

Yes -- I'm finalizing the visuals now and should have it for you in the next half hour.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Tillemann, Tomicah S; Muscatine, Lissa
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sun Mar 21 15:52:40 2010
Subject: Water speech

Will I get a draft later today?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 21, 2010 3:56 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Netanyahu

I'd like one-on-one time w him.

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, September 27, 2010 10:24 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Call today

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J
To: Hale, David M
Sent: Mon Sep 27 09:41:01 2010
Subject: Call today

My unsolicited advice would be for GJM to pull a call together today to figure out a strategy

B5

We seem to have a semblance of an opening here to do something.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 21, 2010 3:57 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Espinosa

Am I supposed to call her tomorrow?

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, September 27, 2010 10:26 AM
To: H
Subject: Re: Update on the Trilateral Talks

RELEASE IN PART
B1, 1.4(B),1.4(D), B5, B6

Roger - we'll work em.

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D), B1 ~ Declassify on: 09/27/2025

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Mon Sep 27 10:40:01 2010
Subject: Re: Update on the Trilateral Talks

I'm willing to make the calls he requested.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Sep 27 10:18:23 2010
Subject: Fw: Update on the Trilateral Talks

---

From: Scott Gration [redacted] B6
To: S_SpecialAssistants
Cc: Burns, William J; Steinberg, James B; Mills, Cheryl D; Sullivan, Jacob J; Fuchs, Michael H; Carson, Johnnie; Yamamoto, Donald Y; Shortley, Timothy R
Sent: Mon Sep 27 10:10:59 2010
Subject: Update on the Trilateral Talks

1.4(B)
1.4(D)
B1
B5

Madame Secretary, at the request of Sudanese Foreign Minister Karti and with the agreement of Vice Presidents Taha and Kiir, we brought together senior leaders from the NCP and SPLM to the Greentree Foundation's estate on Long Island this weekend for Trilateral talks to discuss the current impasse on the Abyei referendum. [redacted]

1.4(B)
1.4(D)
B1
B5

Page Denied

[redacted] I'll keep you informed as things develop, Scott

1.4(B)
1.4(D)
B1
B5

--

Jonathan S. Gration, Maj Gen (Ret)
President's Special Envoy to Sudan
O: (202) 647-5855
M: [redacted]
H: [redacted]

B6

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, September 27, 2010 10:38 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: LATimes op ed
Attachments: LATimes - Why H. Clinton was right - 10-09-20.doc; LATimes - Why H. Clinton was right - 10-09-20.doc

A positive message from Les on Mexico!

----- Original Message -----
From: Leslie Gelb [redacted] B6
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Mon Sep 27 10:12:20 2010
Subject: Fw: LATimes op ed

hrc might be interested in this pc saying she was right about the mex/colum comparison. les
----- Original Message -----
From: "Ted McNamara" [redacted] B6
Sent: Wednesday, September 22, 2010 1:04 AM
Subject: LATimes op ed

>I thought this might be of interst to you.
>
> Ted McNamara
>
> --
> Amb. Thomas E. McNamara (Ret.)
> Adjunct Professor
> The Elliott School of International Affairs The George Washington > University
> 1957 E Street NW Suite 603
> Washington, DC 20052
>

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 21, 2010 4:09 PM
To: 'TillemannTS@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Water speech

Sounds great.

----- Original Message -----
From: Tillemann, Tomicah S <TillemannTS@state.gov>
To: H; Muscatine, Lissa <MuscatineL@state.gov>
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sun Mar 21 16:00:53 2010
Subject: Re: Water speech

The plan is to have a large screen off to your side so that it won't get in the way of a tight shot. We've worked with National Geographic on the photos -- some of which are quite stunning -- and they'll pace the presentation slowly with long transitions so it's not distracting. I've folded the images into the text I'm sending you, but you'll have a teleprompter on stage tomorrow.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Tillemann, Tomicah S; Muscatine, Lissa
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sun Mar 21 15:55:50 2010
Subject: Re: Water speech

Thanks so much. As to visuals, will we have handouts or power point on screen?

----- Original Message -----
From: Tillemann, Tomicah S <TillemannTS@state.gov>
To: H; Muscatine, Lissa <MuscatineL@state.gov>
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sun Mar 21 15:54:45 2010
Subject: Re: Water speech

Yes -- I'm finalizing the visuals now and should have it for you in the next half hour.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Tillemann, Tomicah S; Muscatine, Lissa
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sun Mar 21 15:52:40 2010
Subject: Water speech

Will I get a draft later today?

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775157 Date: 08/31/2015

latimes.com

RELEASE IN FULL

Why Hillary Clinton was right about Colombia and Mexico

By recognizing the parallels between the two conflicts, the U.S. and Mexico can learn valuable lessons from Colombia's battle with narco-insurgents.

By Thomas E. McNamara

7:27 AM PDT, September 20, 2010

Washington and Mexico City are unsure whether Mexico today resembles Colombia's insurgency of 20 years ago. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton thinks it does; some Mexicans and, maybe, President Obama think not ("The wrong solution in Mexico," Opinion, Sept. 10). As the American ambassador in Colombia when the notorious drug lord Pablo Escobar was at riding high, and later when he was defeated, I side with Clinton in seeing many parallels.

The parallels begin with the Colombia of the Escobar days being a large, progressive democracy with a vibrant economy. Colombia had a determined president and political leaders who understood the terrible consequences of failing to take control of their own country. This parallels Mexico today.

Colombia suppressed the cartel insurgencies with armed force and a political program. This approach was, and is, largely supported by the Colombian people (witness the election victory of President Juan Manuel Santos, who served as defense minister under predecessor Alvaro Uribe). Cartel insurgencies no longer plague Colombia; only a reduced guerrilla insurgency continues. New drug mafias still operate, but Colombian trafficking has been greatly reduced.

In both countries cartels demanded that they, not the government, determine the rules, settle disputes and control police power. This is clearly insurgency: usurpation of sovereign power, control of territory and the use of force to maintain control. What is unusual — and what causes confusion — is that drug lords have a very limited political agenda.

Thus, in matters they don't care about, they don't interfere. The government can run the hospitals and schools, set taxes, pay benefits, have elections, collect the garbage, put out fires and so on. When the cartels' interests are involved, however, they insist that government must be subservient to them on their territory — or deadly violence will result. This is quite different from organized crime by American drug mafias. Our mafias do not attempt to usurp sovereign power.

In one respect, Colombia is different. Besides mafias, there are narco-insurgents with full political agendas — the guerrillas. These are the usual, easily recognized types who proclaim their agenda in revolutionary political statements, military structures and, above all, in their insistence on sovereign control of all territory, not just territory needed for criminal activity.

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775157 Date: 08/31/2015

What is surprising is Mexican denial of the obviously correct comparison with Colombia by Clinton, which is why Obama tried to quiet this contretemps in Los Angeles last week. Rather than object, Mexicans should acknowledge parallels, study the many mistakes and successes of Colombia over the last 20 years and learn from them. Mexicans, Colombians and Americans are partners in the struggle against narco-insurgency, whether of the unusual or the usual kind.

As Colombia learned, so Mexico and Central America will also: Retaking lost sovereign control is violent. Americans must understand that these battles are to regain government control. Reducing trafficking comes later. Mexico's mafias will not disappear, but they can be forced to abandon insurgency.

The U.S. properly supports our neighbors by giving them political, military and law enforcement assistance, as our drug consumption is one cause of the insurgencies — as is drug production south of our border. We cannot just move out of our neighborhood, so we have an interest in cleaning it up. These insurgencies corrupt us, just as they corrupt others.

While we have been a good partner overall, we have failed to control arms smuggling south across the border. Make no mistake: We armed Escobar and the Colombian drug insurgents 20 years ago; we still arm the guerrillas. We also arm the Villarreal Barragan and Beltran Leyva cartels in Mexico. Our pitiful border controls are a national disgrace and a major cause of the blood spilled in Mexico and Colombia.

What we need today is not for Mexico to claim its situation is far different from the Colombians', or Americans thinking this is only a Mexican or a Colombian drug problem. We need all three to recognize that we are partners in a common struggle for legitimate governments to fully control their territories and borders and suppress insurgency by all legitimate means. The three partners are getting there, but none is there yet.

Thomas E. McNamara was ambassador to Colombia from 1989 to 1991. He served as a State Department official in the Clinton administration and both Bush administrations.

Copyright © 2010, Los Angeles Times

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 21, 2010 4:11 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Netanyahu

At beginning. Will there be a camera spray?

----- Original Message -----
From: Valmoro, Lona J <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>
To: Huma Abedin; H
Sent: Sun Mar 21 16:09:16 2010
Subject: RE: Netanyahu

Any preference to front or back end? He is set for 2:45pm.

-----Original Message-----
From: Huma Abedin [mailto:Huma@clintonemail.com]
Sent: Sunday, March 21, 2010 3:58 PM
To: H; Valmoro, Lona J
Subject: Re: Netanyahu

Yes we figured that?

----- Original Message -----
From: H
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov' <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>; Huma Abedin
Sent: Sun Mar 21 15:56:19 2010
Subject: Netanyahu

I'd like one-on-one time w him.

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 21, 2010 4:14 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: [redacted] letter B5

[redacted]

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Mar 21 16:11:23 2010
Subject: RE [redacted] letter

There is a proposed letter that should be in your weekend reading materials. Adding Huma to see if she's seen it. [redacted] I will make sure it gets to you now.

-----Original Message-----
From: H [mailto:HDR22@clintonemail.com]
Sent: Sunday, March 21, 2010 3:55 PM
To: Valenzuela, Arturo A
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: [redacted] letter

[redacted]

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 21, 2010 4:39 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: China currency memo

I don't have memo.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Mar 21 16:32:02 2010
Subject: China currency memo

You should have Bob's memo on China currency, which he worked through with Bill. See below his further elaboration:

B5

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 21, 2010 5:32 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Speech

On next draft, and I hope last, which incorporates all these changes, I will make line edits.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 21, 2010 8:51 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Dan...

I just went over edits w Dan. Let me know if there are any serious changes from reviewers.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Mar 21 20:31:51 2010
Subject: Dan...

...Is ready to come pick up the speech when you have it done. Just shoot him and email. I think it's really close. It's gone out to the team again for any serious flags or omissions, but they've been warned you're line editing.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, September 27, 2010 2:48 PM
To: Sullivan, Jacob J; H
Subject: Bn

Their secure lines are still down
But ops now has a non-secure line they can connect you to if u want to make the call in between bilats.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 21, 2010 8:51 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Dan...

For the meeting?

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Mar 21 20:32:47 2010
Subject: Re: Dan...

Also, you'll get Bibi points tonight, fresh from the road.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J
To: 'hdr22@clintonemail.com' <hdr22@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sun Mar 21 20:31:51 2010
Subject: Dan...

...Is ready to come pick up the speech when you have it done. Just shoot him and email. I think it's really close. It's gone out to the team again for any serious flags or omissions, but they've been warned you're line editing.

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2010 7:24 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: AIPAC

Ok w me [redacted] B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Mar 22 07:10:55 2010
Subject: Fw: AIPAC

See below. [redacted] How would you like to proceed?

----- Original Message -----
From: Schwerin, Daniel B
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Mon Mar 22 07:07:38 2010
Subject: Fw: AIPAC

[redacted]

----- Original Message -----
From: Knopf, Payton L
To: Schwerin, Daniel B; Prince, Jonathan M; Djerassi, Alexander M
Cc: Rudman, Mara; Sachar, Alon (NEA/IPA)
Sent: Mon Mar 22 06:57:39 2010
Subject: AIPAC

[redacted]

We are boarding a plane from Amman to DC shortly but can be reached via the Operations Center if there are questions.

Thanks.

Payton

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, September 27, 2010 4:37 PM
To: H
Subject: Fyi

Not sure why, but ds took your luggage out of van to go ahead to airport. Very odd and they just told me they did it. I told them to return the oscar gowns to van and all little bags are still in van too.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, September 27, 2010 4:58 PM
To: H; Sullivan, Jacob J; Hanley, Monica R

Just heard from israelis
They said he's not feeling great and wants to turn in Wants to do call in next 5 min or not do today. Can u guys do?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Hanley, Monica R <HanleyMR@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, September 27, 2010 5:00 PM
To: Abedin, Huma; H; Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Re:

Jake is checking w the Secretary.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma
To: 'hdr22@clintonemail.com' <hdr22@clintonemail.com>; Sullivan, Jacob J; Hanley, Monica R
Sent: Mon Sep 27 16:58:13 2010

Just heard from israelis
They said he's not feeling great and wants to turn in Wants to do call in next 5 min or not do today. Can u guys do?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, September 27, 2010 5:02 PM
To: Abedin, Huma; H; Hanley, Monica R
Subject: Re:

Trying now

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma
To: 'hdr22@clintonemail.com' <hdr22@clintonemail.com>; Sullivan, Jacob J; Hanley, Monica R
Sent: Mon Sep 27 16:58:13 2010

Just heard from israelis
They said he's not feeling great and wants to turn in Wants to do call in next 5 min or not do today. Can u guys do?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, September 27, 2010 6:12 PM
To: H
Subject: Camp david

Confirmed its a 4 hour drive there.
We could also get a plane from white plains. Would be an hour and 15 from andrews. Let me know what u prefer.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, September 27, 2010 6:31 PM
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma; Mills, Cheryl D; Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Embracing the PPD

In your book tonight, as Tab 4 of the materials for the USGLC event, is a list I put together of all the key things you said in your CGD speech and the parallel language in the PPD. It is really worth skimming; it shows at a glance how you set the agenda and won the day. As the Secretary who came in determined to elevate development, you have a great deal to take credit for in launching the first national development policy. And as my PPD staff briefings with Gayle on the Hill today demonstrated, the PPD sets the table beautifully for the QDDR.
AM

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2010 7:55 AM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Haiti recovery blueprint includes foreign donors

Sounds good.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Mar 22 07:33:34 2010
Subject: FW: Haiti recovery blueprint includes foreign donors

fyi

From: Nora Toiv [mailto: ] B6
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2010 7:29 AM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: Haiti recovery blueprint includes foreign donors

The Miami Herald <http://media.miamiherald.com/images/redesign/mh_logo_print.gif>

Posted on Sun, Mar. 21, 2010

Haiti recovery blueprint includes foreign donors

BY JACQUELINE CHARLES
jcharles@MiamiHerald.com

Call it the $100 million club.

That's the amount each donor nation will have to ante up for a say in Haiti's early recovery under a plan Haitian President René Préval plans to present at an international donors conference in New York at month's end.

While Haitian and foreign disaster experts were tallying the cost to rebuild after the Jan. 12, 7.0-magnitude earthquake -- $11.5 billion -- Préval and his advisors have been quietly negotiating the blueprint of the development plan that will shape Haiti's reconstruction over the next decade.

``It moves it in the right direction,'' Mark Schneider, senior vice president of the Washington D.C.-based International Crisis Group, said of the plan, which he has seen. ``I've said, the first phase of reconstruction is a decade. The real test is a generation and hopefully with partnerships both inside and outside of Haiti, it will continue for that time period.''

The plan includes creation of an Interim Haitian Recovery Commission that will -- for the first time -- seek to guide how and where aid is spent by giving both Haitians and foreigners a vote in reconstruction priorities and projects over the next 18 months. Haiti's president will retain veto power and there's a starring role for former U.S. President Bill Clinton if he wants it.

The blueprint is certain to come under plenty of scrutiny in Haiti, a country plagued and in-fighting among donors. Over the years, billions of dollars in aid -- often delivered after hurricanes or political coups -- has failed to produce any signs of lasting progress in a country that remains the poorest in the Western Hemisphere.

Clinton, who is to visit Haiti Monday along with former President George W. Bush, will be asked to help lead Haiti's reconstruction planning over the short-term as co-chair -- along with the Haitian prime minister -- of the commission, several sources confirmed to The Miami Herald.

Clinton, who is already in charge of the international relief effort for the United Nations, has not said whether he'll accept the job as Haiti's reconstruction czar but he has championed the strategy, saying the goal is to provide to Haitians the success that has long eluded them.He and Bush are visiting Haiti, where more than 200,000 people were killed in the quake, in their roles as co-chairs of the Clinton Bush Haiti Fund. The private U.S. fundraising effort, initiated by President Obama, has raised more than $36 million.

The commission's goal will be to plan and coordinate reconstruction priorities and projects over the next 18 months with recommendations from a 20-member board made up of Haitians and foreign donors. Eventually, the commission would morph into the Haiti Development Authority (HDA), a central planning agency tasked with approving all reconstruction projects in Haiti regardless of which country or aid agency is funding it.

The authority's executive director, like that of the commission, likely would be a well-respected Haitian.

``Haitians must have the chance to lead the rebuilding of Haiti,'' said U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton's chief of staff Cheryl Mills, a key person in talks. ``Development authorities have helped other countries that have large donor communities to accomplish their visions -- we want no less for Haiti and its citizens.''

The original plan, first reported by The Herald last month, was modeled on the successful reconstruction authority created in Indonesia after the 2004 tsunami and presented by Mills to Préval and top Haitian officials last month. Other countries and multilateral institutions also presented plans to the Haitian government.

The U.S. plan has since undergone several revisions at Préval's urging.

Among them: offering a voting seat on the commission's board to each donor pledging $100 million or more over the next two years and donors who provide $200 million in debt cancellation. As a result, Venezuela is among the likely donors to help review and approve projects. Initially 16 members, the board was expanded to give a say-so to Haiti's private sector and labor unions and the 15-nation sub-regional Caribbean Community (CARCIOM). The plan also establishes a Multi-donor Trust Fund, administered by the World Bank, to possibly pool donors' dollars for reconstruction projects.

For decades, Haiti has been plagued by a lack of planning and coordination among donor nations and aid groups as they battled among each other in the poverty-stricken country.

Using the Indonesian model employed in Indonesia after the Asian tsunami, plan supporters say the reconstruction commission offers Haiti the best chance to lead its own redevelopment and to change the way donors do business, ending an era where aid groups spend budgets larger than Haitian ministries without any accountability to the Haitian people. But that can only be achieved in Haiti, say supporters, if donors and their projects are coordinated, and in line with Haiti's vision and post-disaster reconstruction needs, which will be presented at the March 31 New York conference and remains a work in progress while the government seeks input from various Haitian groups, including the Diaspora. Also Haiti's parliament must vote on the creation of the Interim Haitian Recovery Commission.

Still, the idea of putting Haiti's reconstruction into the hands of one central authority -- or having some donors channel their money into a trust fund -- is not without detractors. Some argue that the authority could render government ministries obsolete because projects would now bypass them, while others point out that a similar World Bank fund in the Sudan has been troubled by rules leaving schools and healthcare facilities undone as hundreds of millions of dollars remain unspent.

Meanwhile, Haitian government officials worry that donors may not want to change the way they do business with Haiti, rendering the reconstruction a failure before it gets started.

``The creation of the [trust fund] or the [Haiti Development Authority] are improvements to changing the paradigm if and only if everybody plays the game -- putting most of their money in the fund -- and access to the funds is more flexible than the usual process of disbursing from the international donors,'' Haitian Prime Minister Jean-Max Bellerive told The Herald.

In the past, donors have pledged hundreds of millions of dollars to assist Haiti but have fallen short in disbursing those dollars -- or at times spent the money on projects without consulting the Haitian government about whether the projects were needed.

Last week, as representatives of the Haitian government and others met to prepare for the New York conference, Bellerive warned that ``New York could be a failure if we don't reach an agreement on the structure for the coordination and the organization of the trust fund...(and) don't manage to establish together the priorities for immediate investments,'' to begin reconstructing the country.

---

© 2010 Miami Herald Media Company. All Rights Reserved.
http://www.miamiherald.com

<http://mcclatchy.112.2O7.net/b/ss/nmmiami/1/H.10--NS/0?pageName=Story:%201540944%7CHaiti%20recovery%20blueprint%20includes%20foreign%20donors&server=www.miamiherald.com&channel=Haiti&c1=http%26%2358;%26%2347;%26%2347;www.miamiherald.com%26%2347;2010%26%2347;03%26%2347;21%26%2347;v-print%26%2347;1540944_haiti-recovery-blueprint-includes.html&c3=Story&c4=miamiherald%7CSIIsend%7C%3Ca%20href=%22mailto:jcharles@MiamiHerald.com%22%3Ejcharles@MiamiHerald.com%3C/a%3E%7CBY%20JACQUELINE%20CHARLES&c6=MIA%7CMA&c28=&h1=MIA%7CMIAMIHERALD%7CNews%7CWorld%7C%7C%7C%7CHaiti>

Read more: http://www.miamiherald.com/2010/03/21/v-print/1540944/haiti-recovery-blueprint-includes.html#ixzz0iu6nDynD

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, September 27, 2010 8:34 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Reuters) Israel kills three Palestinian militants

---

From: Rudnitski, Jennine R
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_Shift-III
Sent: Mon Sep 27 18:49:00 2010
Subject: (Reuters) Israel kills three Palestinian militants

GAZA (Reuters) - An Israeli air strike in the central Gaza Strip September 27 killed three gunmen belonging to the Islamic Jihad group, Palestinian medics said. An Israeli military spokeswoman said a group of militants preparing to fire a rocket at Israel had been targeted, and that the air strike caused an explosion and a secondary blast. Ambulance workers and medical officials said they had recovered three bodies from the site of an explosion that occurred after darkness fell outside Bureij refugee camp, near the Israel-Gaza frontier. Hamas television reports said the blast had been caused either by an Israeli air strike or cross-border tank fire.

From: Jake Sullivan [redacted] B6
Sent: Wednesday, September 29, 2010 10:16 AM
To: H
Cc: sullivanjj@state.gov
Subject: Re: Are you there yet?

RELEASE IN PART B1,1.4(B),1.4(D), B6

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D), B1 ~ Declassify on: 09/29/2025

As usual, your emails aren't showing up in my State account. Still working on that problem.

We met with Bibi for 2.5 hours today. Happy to talk secure at your convenience. The highlights are as follows:

[redacted]

On Wed, Sep 29, 2010 at 1:16 PM, H <HDR22@clintonemail.com> wrote:
Anything happening?

1.4(B)
1.4(D)
B1

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, September 29, 2010 9:10 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw:

What do u think?

---

From: Verma, Richard R
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Wed Sep 29 20:18:16 2010
Subject:

Kerry struck out with Brownback. Kerry thought another call from her to Brownback might be helpful, but I am skeptical. Can you tell her or do you want me to call or save for the morning?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, September 27, 2010 9:17 PM
To: H
Subject: Schumer is free now if u want to call.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, September 28, 2010 7:34 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Reuters) U.S. sends Mideast envoy to try to save peace talks

From: Goldberg, Joshua W
To: NEWS-Mahogany; NEWS-NEA
Cc: SES-O_Shift-II; SES-O_OS
Sent: Tue Sep 28 07:22:49 2010
Subject: (Reuters) U.S. sends Mideast envoy to try to save peace talks

RAMALLAH (Reuters) - Palestinians held fast on to their threat to quit peace talks with Israel if settlement building does not cease, giving a U.S. Middle East envoy a final chance to try to save the negotiations. "Of course we don't want to end negotiations, we want to continue. But if colonization continues we will be forced to end them," Palestinian President Abbas said. He added, "We will wait until after a meeting between Palestinians, and an Arab forum meeting on October 4 ... So Netanyahu has a week to decide."

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, September 28, 2010 8:06 AM
To: Toiv, Nora F
Cc: SES-O_Shift-II
Subject: RE: Ops desperate

I don't even have an email from them - on a call with Korea

-----Original Message-----
From: Toiv, Nora F
Sent: Tuesday, September 28, 2010 7:56 AM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: Ops desperate

To reach you. S has called in twice for you.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: aclb
Sent: Tuesday, September 28, 2010 11:05 AM
To: H
Cc: 'jake.sullivan
Subject: re
Attachments: MEPP note 27_09_10.docx; MEPP note 27_09_10.docx

B6

Here is the paper I am sending GM after my visit. I remain firmly of the view that we can get this agreed. I am now back in London. Happy to talk at any time. Spent long time with both BB and Barak before leaving. Have also spoken to some of Arabs. Best Tony

DISCLAIMER

WARNING - This email is only intended for the person to whom or entity to which it is addressed and together with any files transmitted with it, is confidential and may also be privileged. If you are not the intended recipient you must not copy, forward, use or rely on any part of it or disclose its contents to any person. If you have received it in error, please notify our system manager on +44 20 7647 7782 and delete all copies immediately.

Except where this email is sent in the usual course of our business, the views expressed in this email are those of the sender and not those of The Office of Tony Blair.

The Office of Tony Blair accepts no responsibility for software viruses and you should check for viruses before opening any attachments. Internet communications are not secure and therefore The Office of Tony Blair does not provide any guarantee or warranty that this email or any attachments shall remain confidential.

The Office of Tony Blair is a trading name of Windrush Ventures Limited and Windrush Ventures No. 3 LP. Windrush Ventures Limited is a limited company registered in England and Wales with registered number 06397276. Its registered office is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL.

Windrush Ventures No. 3 LP is a limited partnership registered in England and Wales with registered number LP012665. Its registered office is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL. The members of Windrush Ventures No 3 LP are BOBCO No.819 Limited and Windrush Ventures No 2 LLP and the address at which each of these can be served is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL.

This email may relate to or be sent from other members of the Windrush group.

This email has been scanned by the MessageLabs Email Security System.
For more information please visit http://www.messagelabs.com/email

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 09/27/2025

RELEASE IN PART B1,1.4(D)

Note 27/09/10

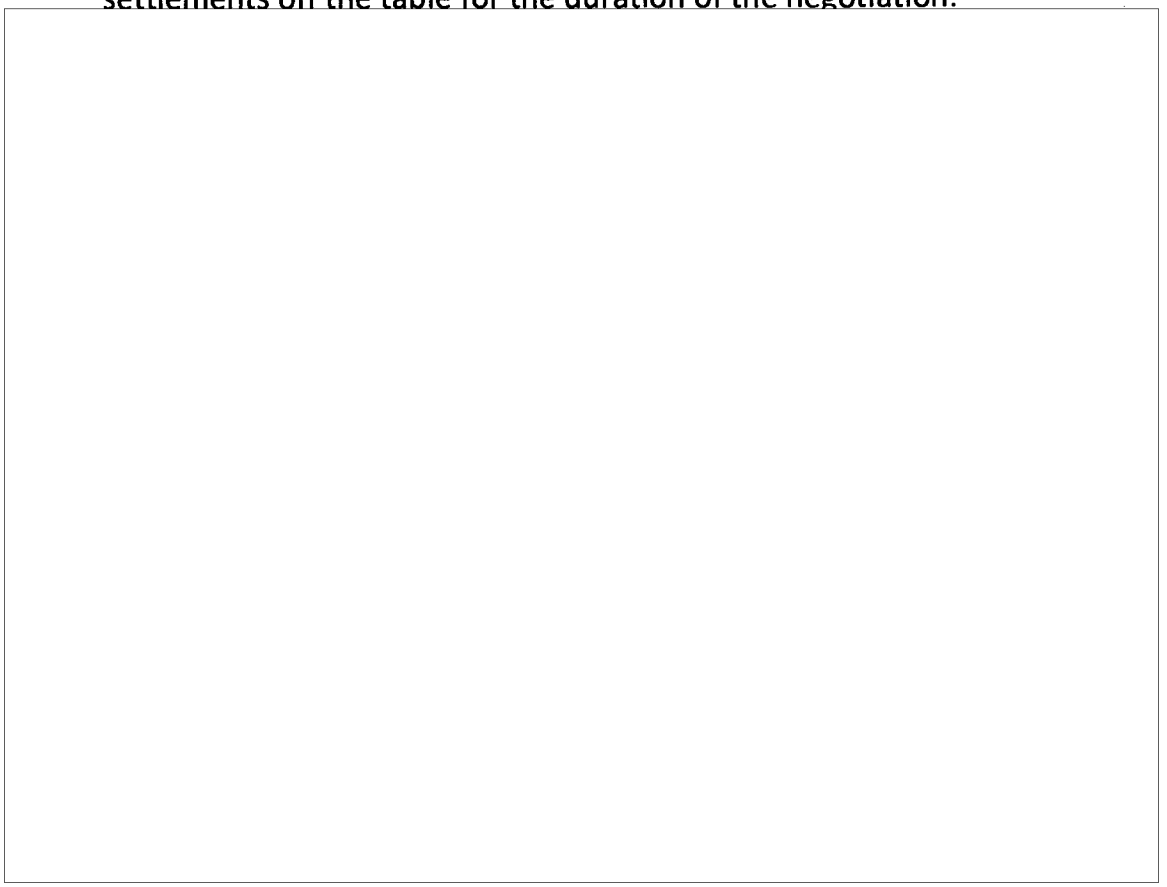
There continue to be two options to get through this and I believe either could work.

A) Extend the existing moratorium by Security Cabinet decree.



[redacted]

[redacted]

1.4(D)
B1

B) If the moratorium as passed by decree cannot be renewed, then there are two alternative ways in which we could try to give the Palestinians confidence to stay in the talks; and at the same time take the issue of settlements off the table for the duration of the negotiation.

1.4(D)
B1

HOW TO GET IT DONE

1.4(D)
B1

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Coleman, Claire L <ColemanCL@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, September 28, 2010 2:42 PM
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma
Subject: Marc Grossman Article you requested
Attachments: Prism_3-14_Grossman.pdf; Prism_3-14_Grossman.pdf

Diplomacy Before and After Conflict

By Marc Grossman

Conflict is a universal condition,[1] older than diplomacy. While conflict is a constant in human history, the nature of armed conflict, and especially the nature of 21st-century warfare, has been transformed. General Rupert Smith identified these changes in his book The Utility of Force: "The ends for which we fight are changing; we fight amongst the people; our conflicts tend to be timeless; we fight so as not to lose the force; on each occasion new uses are found for old weapons; the sides are mostly non-state."[2]

The nature of 21st-century diplomacy is also changing. To be successful, diplomats must simultaneously shape, act upon, and react to global challenges. As Hans Binnendijk and Richard Kugler of the National Defense University argue, no single problem, danger, or threat holds the key to the world's future. What matters is their interaction and the simultaneity of our responses.[3]

The definition of victory, too, is different today. Twenty-first-century national security success will encompass a comprehensive definition of security, and will be achieved by the broadest simultaneous application of all elements of national power. This is the key to understanding Philip Bobbitt's concept of "preclusive victory," which he describes as "anticipatory, precautionary attention to possible futures,"[4] requiring an expansive and integrated approach to modern diplomacy, defense, and development. A diplomatic strategy designed to produce preclusive victory will include conflict prevention, successful negotiation, deterrence, the preparation for conflict should all else fail, and efforts to establish order, ensure stability, and promote political and economic pluralism after conflict.

Diplomats have always been participants in both the prevention and management of conflict and its aftermath. The conflict prevention side of diplomacy occupied much of my time at the State Department from 1993 to 1997 as the Department's Executive Secretary and U.S. Ambassador to Turkey. Postconflict diplomacy was a defining issue of the last third of my career at State as Assistant Secretary of State for European Affairs and as Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs from 2001 to 2005. I have tried to draw upon my experiences and observations to discuss here the scope and complexity of modern diplomacy, the methods and goals needed to prevent conflict, diplomacy's role when conflict is or seems to be unavoidable, and the contribution diplomacy can make to restoring stability following conflict.

Diplomacy and Conflict Prevention

Thanks to the efforts of scholars and practitioners, we can now make better use of the methods and theory of conflict prevention. The United States Institute of Peace and the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars are two among many institutions that have taken a leadership role in these efforts. Michael Lund, a practitionerscholar, notes that the present uncoordinated and patchy nature of preventive diplomacy reflects the absence of any accepted international conflict prevention regime or system of governance—that is, of agreed upon arrangements through which geographic jurisdictions are allocated, functional responsibilities are assigned, norms and procedures are formulated, and actors are held accountable for their responsibilities.[5] He asks the crucial question to all those who seek to "coordinate and rationalize" a system of preventive diplomacy: where should responsibility for the tasks of preventive action be located—early warning, the decision to act, the formulation of a response, or the provision of bureaucratic and political support? Should it be horizontal, across different organizations or actors, or should it be vertical, up or down their chains of command?[6]

An example of conflict prevention that meets Lund's tests was the effort undertaken by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), in close collaboration with the European Union (EU) and the Organisation for Security and Co-operation in Europe, and supported by the United States, to avoid civil war in Macedonia in 2001. It is difficult now to recall that, until September 11, 2001, the possibility of civil war in Macedonia was a leading international headline. This successful campaign of conflict prevention was defined by the remarkable personal and institutional cooperation between the NATO Secretary General Lord Robertson and the EU High Representative for the Common Foreign and Security Policy (and a former NATO Secretary General) Javier Solana. I spoke often during this period to Lord Robertson, Solana, and Ambassador James Pardew, whom President George W. Bush and Secretary Colin Powell appointed as the U.S. representative to the effort and who, along with Francois Leotard, the EU Special Envoy, played a crucial role in negotiating and implementing the Ohrid Framework Agreement.

As a direct participant, senior NATO official Mark Laity stated that there are insights about modern diplomacy and conflict prevention to be drawn from this effort, including the need for personal and institutional teamwork, the importance of early engagement in trying to head off violence, the need to choose the right people for tasks of this kind (including 21st-century diplomats who can act "unconventionally"), and the necessity of being able to apply appropriate force quickly.[7]

Diplomacy When Conflict Is or Seems to Be Unavoidable

When diplomacy fails to prevent conflict, the role of the diplomat changes. The new requirement may be to justify the use of force when all efforts to avoid conflict fail or to seek to address the underlying source of conflict when force is or seems to be inevitable and imperative.

The February 1999 diplomatic negotiations in Rambouillet, France, were designed to show the world that NATO and the Contact Group were willing to make one last effort to avoid using military force to stop Slobodan Milosevic's attacks in Kosovo. I was in Rambouillet as Assistant Secretary of State for European Affairs to support Secretary Madeleine Albright. After the first day or so of the meeting, there was so much chaos that I urged Secretary Albright to depart Rambouillet and leave the "negotiating" to those of us more junior. My strategy was that by not being present, the Secretary of State— and the administration—could keep a distance from an outcome that might be unacceptable to the United States. The Secretary had a different vision. Albright hoped Rambouillet would end the brutality against the Kosovars, but she was also prepared for the meeting to fail, and thereby all options for avoiding military conflict would be exhausted. Her idea was that we had to be seen to be doing everything we could diplomatically, including her continued presence, so that if Rambouillet was a failure, there could be no further excuses against taking military action.

Secretary of State James Baker had pursued a similar strategy before the first Gulf War in 1991. Baker relates in his memoirs, The Politics of Diplomacy, that President George H.W. Bush had concluded the United States should offer a meeting in Washington for Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz followed by a Baker trip to Baghdad to show America's commitment to avoiding war if possible. Baker writes that he thought this proposal had three merits: it would give the administration one last diplomatic opening to avoid war; it would shore up domestic support for conflict; and it would show that, as the deadline for Iraq's withdrawal from Kuwait neared, the administration was doing something other than just preparing for war. The President's offer turned into the famous meeting between Baker and Aziz on January 9, 1991. As Baker recounts, "I was under no illusions. I assumed the talks would be unsuccessful and that within a matter of days, we would be at war."[8]

In 2001–2003, the State Department leadership generally saw Iraq as a diversion from Afghanistan and not central to the war on terror. Saddam Hussein was a dictator and a menace— but "in a box," posing no immediate, direct threat to the United States; focus should be kept on defeating al Qaeda in Afghanistan and supporting the new Afghan government.[9] Iraq had been a source of tension and disagreement inside the State Department since the beginning of the administration, and there were some who sought to move the policy from support for "smart" United Nations (UN) sanctions toward an aggressive posture against Saddam.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger wrote in Years of Upheaval about the second term of the Nixon administration that State Department culture emphasizes negotiability, which is a consciousness of what the other side will accept.[10] Kissinger did not consider this trait a particular positive at the time, and the department's culture of negotiability did not serve as a good guide to institutional behavior for most of the senior State officials who participated in the interagency debate leading to the invasion of Iraq. If that was so during the period surrounding 1970s détente with Russia, diplomatic efforts with the Shah of Iran, and the crisis in the Middle East and the resulting 1973 war, this culture of negotiability no longer served as a good guide to institutional behavior for most of the senior State officials who participated in the interagency debate leading to the invasion of Iraq. We took part in planning for the conflict and its aftermath assuming—or hoping—that events either at home or abroad would turn preparations for conflict into successful coercive diplomacy rather than the military action that was ordered in the spring of 2003.

The State Department's Director of Policy Planning, Richard Haass, observed that while he was "60:40 against going to war . . . no organization could function if people left every time they lost out on a 60:40 decision."[11] Haass was operating under the belief that Iraq had weapons of mass destruction; if he had known they did not, he says he would have been 90:10 against the war.

And no senior Department of State officer resigned in protest. The department sought instead to try to recreate the successful Gulf War coalition of President George H.W. Bush and argued that the United States and its allies might compel Saddam to submit through a deployment of force in the region in early 2003. If this failed, there should be a sustained diplomatic effort to create a broad coalition to move militarily later in 2003. This possibility of a broad international coalition lost all relevance on January 20, 2003, when the French government announced that it would never support a second UN Security Council resolution to authorize the use of force in Iraq.

Diplomacy in Preparation for Conflict

Once conflict is inevitable or is initiated, one job of diplomats is to support military commanders in getting what they need to make conflict as short as possible, with the fewest casualties for Americans, allies, and civilians. This was the objective that the United States pursued in Turkey before the first Gulf War, which resulted in President Turgut Özal's support of American efforts. The diplomatic effort to prepare for conflict in Kosovo also involved the whole of the U.S. Government and the governments of the NATO Allies. To pursue a successful bombing campaign, diplomats in many NATO countries arranged for overflight and support for Allied forces. A similar effort by U.S. diplomats took place before the invasion of Afghanistan in 2001. American and allied diplomats worked closely with nations surrounding Afghanistan, including forging contacts with Central Asian states on security issues for the first time in order to achieve transit, overflight, and bed-down rights for American and coalition forces before the October 7, 2001, beginning of action in Afghanistan.

Before the invasion of Iraq in March 2003, and especially after January 20, 2003, a similar effort began in earnest. Diplomats supported U.S. Central Command commander General Tommy Franks in order to make the war as short and successful as possible and to limit American, allied, and Iraqi civilian casualties. American diplomats worked with military commanders to seek access to facilities for U.S. forces and to participate in the public diplomacy effort to gain as much support as possible for the armed liberation of Iraq. American diplomats and Pentagon officials again paid particular attention to Turkey in an effort to convince the Turks to allow the 4th Infantry Division to transit that country to create a northern front in the battle against Saddam's forces. Although the State Department worried about the size of the Department of Defense (DOD) request to Ankara, it worked closely with both civilian and military authorities at the Pentagon to try to meet the need that had been identified by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Joint DOD–State diplomacy, however, could not overcome a negative vote in the Turkish parliament, which reflected strong public opposition to the war.

The way the debate about using force is carried out inside the government influences attitudes and actions during and after conflict as well as future decisions on whether or not to use force. Military force may restore security, but it cannot resolve political or cultural sources of conflict. As Rupert Smith writes, "We are engaging in conflict for objectives that do not lead to a resolution of the matter directly by force of arms, since at all but the most basic tactical level our objectives tend to concern the intentions of the people and their leaders rather than their territory or forces."[12] Smith argues that the civil-military structure designed to make political-military decisions is "deeply problematic" and distorts decisionmaking in many ways.[13] In his book, Smith imagines a debate between British Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and Ministry of Defense (MOD) officials about how to address the genocide taking place over a number of weeks in Rwanda during the summer of 1994.

FCO: What can we do in the face of events in Rwanda?

MOD: What do you want us to do?

FCO: We ought to act. Something must be done. We can't have people being massacred. As a permanent member of the UN Security Council we cannot be seen to be doing nothing.

MOD: So you want us to use military force?

FCO: Yes.

MOD: To do what? To stop the killing?

FCO: Yes. Exactly.

MOD: Who do you want us to fight? We are not clear who is doing the killing: is it tribe on tribe, or is it a force found from a tribe? And Rwanda is a big country. Where do we start? Kigali, presumably, it's the capital and we would want an airhead.

FCO: Well, there must be an international force, of course.

MOD: And what would be the British aim in joining the force?

FCO: To play our part as a permanent member of the UN Security Council.

MOD: Is Britain to lead the force?

FCO: No, it should be led by the UN—a proper UN mission.

MOD: That will take some time to assemble, so it will probably be too late to stop the killing.

FCO: Then the mission should be aimed at bringing postconflict order.

MOD: OK. But we need to be clear how many British troops are currently available. Given our deployments in Ireland, Bosnia and a few other places, not many.

FCO: What do you suggest?

MOD: What are our government's priorities? Is contributing to this force a higher priority than these other tasks we are already undertaking?

FCO: Probably not.

MOD: In that case, these UN forces always lack expeditionary logistic support. And if we want to speed up the deployment of this force, offering a logistic unit would probably be the most valuable contribution.

FCO: Will that put our soldiers at risk?

MOD: Hardly any.[14]

Many American diplomats will recognize this imaginary conversation, having participated in something like it dozens of times since the fall of the Berlin Wall. In the American debate, the issue also quickly focuses on who pays the bills. It is worth stating, at least in the American case, that officials at the Pentagon and DOD often were legitimately frustrated by the State Department's inclination to promote military missions for the Pentagon and the Armed Forces in an increasing number of situations that were important, but not vital, to U.S. national interests. While this readiness to volunteer U.S. military forces to solve problems around the world was a direct result of the lack of civilian capacity to do the jobs required, it leads to understandable consternation among those in uniform.

Diplomacy and Restoring Stability Following Conflict

There are many issues—defeating extremism, promoting pluralism, bringing the benefits of globalization to those who have not yet benefited, living sustainably on the planet, nonproliferation— that will be part of any definition of successful 21st-century diplomacy. But getting postconflict diplomacy right—creating the conditions for a preclusive victory—may be the most crucial of all. This is not an easy assignment. The concept of success can be redefined after the fact, further complicating the assessment. Successful democratic governance and economic development cannot be delivered on a certain date, and therefore the need for time and patience is a necessity on the ground. However, patience is limited in home countries, and "fatigue" often sets in. Thus, the potential for failure is high. Industrial war produced winners and losers; today's lines are not so clearly drawn, and the timeline may be longer.

Rupert Smith again brings clarity to this assessment:

We intervene in or even decide to escalate to, a conflict in order to establish a condition in which the political objective can be achieved by other means and in other ways. We seek to create a conceptual space for diplomacy, economic incentives, political pressure and other measures to create a desired political outcome of stability, and if possible democracy. . . . if a decisive strategic victory was the hallmark of interstate industrial war, establishing a condition may be deemed a hallmark of the new paradigm of war amongst the people.[15]

Smith's point can be pressed even further by recognizing the additional distinction between a military operation carried out following Smith's rules and the ambiguity inherent in trying to create the conditions Smith identifies as objectives. Christopher Schnaubelt has noted that a typical military operation will have unambiguous geographic boundaries (areas of responsibility) and will assign specific units to be responsible for every inch of ground or cubic foot of airspace. There is an obvious chain of responsibilities and expected actions between each individual Soldier or Marine on the ground and the commanding general. Nothing comparable exists for economic development in governance tasks, which tend to be assigned by function rather than local geography or rigid hierarchy of authority.[16]

Postconflict diplomacy was among the defining diplomatic issues of the last third of my career at the State Department.

In the aftermath of the first Gulf War in 1991, almost 500,000 Kurds fled to the mountains between Iraq and Turkey. Stranded in harsh conditions, they began to starve by the thousands each day. I was then the Deputy Chief of Mission in Turkey. Inspired by the leadership of Ambassador Morton Abramowitz, American diplomats, followed by American military forces and then an international coalition of governments and nongovernmental organizations, initiated Operation Provide Comfort (which became Operation Northern Watch). This was not just a "whole-of-government" but a "whole-of-theinternational- community" campaign to provide humanitarian assistance and then return the Kurds to their homes in Northern Iraq. Once home, they needed to be protected, and for 11 years, the United Sates and some of its allies, including Turkey, worked on the ground there to recreate a functioning society and then protected this area from Saddam by enforcing a no-fly zone.

These years were also punctuated by activity in the Balkans. As Richard Holbrooke recounts, some of the pre-Dayton negotiations with Bosnian leader Alija Izetbegovi took place in my residence while I was Ambassador to Turkey.[17] As one of Holbrooke's successors as Assistant Secretary for European Affairs, I watched the effort made by Ambassadors Robert Gelbard and James Dobbins to implement the Dayton Accords by applying whole-of-government efforts in postconflict post- Yugoslavia. I picked up the diplomatic thread again as Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs promoting reconciliation, development, political progress, and nationbuilding in Kosovo.

Other postconflict diplomacy efforts in Haiti, East Timor, and Liberia called upon the resources of the United States and other governments to try to create the conceptual space for development and sustained peace. The U.S. effort in Colombia, too, highlighted the need to focus on an integrated and cross-sectoral approach, which included disarmament, demobilization, and reintegration of former combatants and promoted justice in postconflict society. But the main events in modern diplomacy's postconflict paradigm are Afghanistan and Iraq.

The key to understanding U.S. diplomacy in postconflict Afghanistan and Iraq is to recall the profound disagreement inside the U.S. Government, especially between DOD and State, about whether the United States should engage in "nationbuilding," a policy President Bush had campaigned against in 2000. State Department professionals were generally proud of the effort the United States had made in nationbuilding and in peacekeeping, supporting the deployment of U.S. military forces to participate, for example, in the Multinational Force and Observers in the Sinai and in peacekeeping and nationbuilding activities in East Timor, Haiti, and the Balkans. Most believed that nationbuilding, properly funded and executed, was an effective long-term tool of integrated modern diplomacy for the United States.

The effort to create a new Afghan government after the overthrow of the Taliban was a piece of classical diplomacy carried out in the 21st-century context.[18] Secretary Powell directed Ambassador Dobbins to support the regional negotiation hosted by the Germans in Bonn in 2001 to create a new Afghan government. To succeed, Dobbins worked with all the key players, including representatives from Iran, to support a major role for the United Nations and put Hamid Karzai in position to lead a new Afghanistan.[19] But, as Dobbins has written, the "Bush Administration, having overthrown the Taliban and installed a new government in Kabul, determined that American troops would do no peacekeeping and that peacekeepers from other countries would not be allowed to venture beyond the Kabul city limits. Public security throughout the rest of the country would be left entirely to Afghans, despite the fact that Afghanistan had no army and no police force."[20]

The struggle over nationbuilding also hampered American attempts to get sufficient amounts of U.S. or international assistance to Afghanistan. Washington accepted the diffusion of responsibility there, with the British taking charge of counternarcotics, the Italians reforming the justice sector, and the Germans training police. This satisfied the need for burden-sharing but did not lead to success. In addition, postconflict resources focused by the United States on Afghanistan were small compared to other recent postconflict situations, even including Kosovo.[21] American diplomats who followed Dobbins to the Embassy in Kabul over the years faced the legacy of this lack of attention and underinvestment.[22]

The State Department participated at many levels in the National Security Council–led planning for postconflict Iraq. Much of the planning was detailed, but focused on lessons learned from the first Gulf War. The department's Future of Iraq Project, while important, would not have solved Iraq's postwar problems. State did not have the capacity to take responsibility for the immediate postconflict administration of Iraq, and its leadership agreed to the Executive order creating a postconflict Iraq structure that reported to the Secretary of Defense.

There is no need here to recount the lost lives and lost opportunities so well chronicled by others in the immediate postconflict period in Iraq, although Dobbins's argument that, looking back, the Coalition Provisional Authority accomplished a great deal under trying circumstances is worth noting.[23] On July 1, 2004, the State Department did officially open (on time and on budget) an Embassy in Baghdad, which allowed an expansion of diplomacy and led to more comprehensive senior civilian-military cooperation.

There is another important lesson to draw from recent postconflict efforts: the need to have adequate civilian capacity to respond, including a role for a revitalized U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID). As this journal chronicled in an article[24] by Ambassador John Herbst, the Secretary of State's Coordinator for Reconstruction and Stabilization (S/CRS), his office was mandated to develop a whole-ofgovernment civilian response to stability operations and to ensure civilian-military coordination.

The Civilian Response Corps (CRC) is in an early stage, and ultimately will be made up of a reserve component, in addition to the existing active and standby components. The personnel are anticipated to represent the full range of sector experts: engineers, lawyers, judges, corrections officials, diplomats, development experts, public administrators, public health officials, city planners, border control officials, economists, and others. Currently, the active and standby components that are being stepped up are drawn from State, USAID, and a core group of domestic U.S. Agencies.

Once congressionally funded, the reserves would be drawn from state and local governments and the private sector. Between January 2008 and May 2009, 56 CRC members deployed to 11 countries, including Afghanistan for planning purposes, and there are realistic plans to have 250 active members and 1,000 standby members ready to deploy by the end of 2010. There are now at least 14 other countries with whom the United States allies that have a civilian peacebuilding capacity—some including stability or civilian police, and employing wholeof- government or "comprehensive" approaches similar to that created by Washington. Several, in fact, have higher budgets proportionate to their gross national products than America's.[25]

One way for State to further support the S/CRS effort would be to consider creating a new personnel specialty: the "expeditionary diplomat." Washington's diplomatic personnel have, of course, always been in one sense expeditionary; the majority of the Foreign Service is deployed abroad the majority of the time. But the post-9/11 diplomatic experience, and especially the effort in Iraq and Afghanistan, means that State needs to be more explicit about the expeditionary nature of some of its future diplomatic work and should prepare a small but significant number of people to serve successfully in the hardest places at a moment's notice.

Experience with the Provincial Reconstruction Teams in Iraq and Afghanistan, the lessons learned with S/CRS, and the example of diplomats who have pursued careers in the toughest posts should lead State leadership to conclude that this is a step worth taking. The first requirement would be advanced training, some of it provided by DOD and some by the Central Intelligence Agency, for those entering diplomats who believe they want to pursue this special career path. These entering officers would make an explicit choice and understand that an investment in their extra training would require their service in hard places, just as we now ask diplomats who take the hardest languages— Chinese or Arabic, for example—to serve more than one tour using their skills. Since these expeditionary diplomats will not need to meet the same age and physical requirements as special operations in the military, the State Department could allow people to opt in and out of this "special force" during their careers as long as they have the proper training. This would allow flexibility across the institution and encourage those who desire or whose family circumstances might change over time to participate as well. The department would also need to make sure those taking this career path are recognized for a career beyond the norm for Foreign Service and are promoted and rewarded.

The creation of S/CRS is a symbol of the comprehensive, simultaneous diplomacy needed for the future, and this expeditionary diplomat could form the backbone of the State and USAID commitment to the civilian response capacity. There are still key questions to be answered about civilian capacity. In the face of a real world situation, will DOD really support a State Department–led operation? Will Congress adequately fund S/CRS, including a reasonable contingency fund? How will S/CRS and a resurgent USAID work together? Where will the lines be drawn between immediate postconflict needs and nationbuilding? There seems to be no question that the path is the right one, consistent with the administration's focus on diplomacy, development, and defense. Success will come with clear direction and active implementation.

If we combine the observations made by several authors,[26] we arrive at this question: What national policies, supported by adequate human and financial resources, will create the conditions during and after war to bring about a preclusive victory? Nation building, post-conflict reconstruction and stability operations, and counterinsurgency strategy (call it what we will) will be part of modern diplomacy for years to come. Accomplishing this task does not have to be an exclusively American responsibility, and, indeed, one of the goals of modern American diplomats will be to make these efforts more international. But for the foreseeable future, the United States will need to learn the lessons of its role in nation building from Germany to Iraq.[27] These lessons include support for new institutions that bring all of the elements of power and influence together in the same theater, at the same time, and in close coordination so the United States and its allies and friends have a chance to succeed.[28] As Philip Bobbitt has written, "The problem is the picture of warfare to which we cling. This picture unfolds in this way: peace making by diplomats; war making by the Armed Forces; peace building by [US]AID and reconstruction personnel. The reality of 21st century warfare, however, is that all of these tasks must be performed simultaneously."[29]

While the challenges and opportunities of the 21st century can be observed and analyzed individually, none of them can be solved without reference to the others. Diplomacy is not the answer to every question, but it has utility both before and after conflict. As General Smith writes at the end of his volume:

For the general purpose of all interventions is clear: we seek to establish in the minds of the people and their leaders that the ever present option of conflict is not the preferable course of action when in confrontation over some matter or another. This applies as much to the state possessing nuclear weapons or seeking to obtain them, rogue or otherwise, as it does to the terrorist or the machete-wielding rebel; each is posing an armed threat to people to establish a condition in which to achieve its political goal. To do this, military force is a valid option, a lever of intervention and influence, as much as economic, political and diplomatic levers, but to be effective it must be applied as a part of a greater scheme focusing all measures on the one goal.[30]

The connection to the utility of a modern diplomacy is clear. Twenty-first-century diplomacy, working to prevent conflict, trying to get ready for it if it is inevitable, or dealing with the consequences, can be an effective tool of national security if it is adequately funded, carried out by well-trained, dedicated people, focused on clear goals set by national leaders, and backed by effective military force. This is the diplomacy of the future.

The author expresses appreciation to The Cohen Group for allowing him time to consider these issues and to the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars and the Harvard John F. Kennedy School Project on Diplomacy for supporting the effort. The author also gratefully acknowledges the important contributions of Toni Getze, Jill O'Donnell, and Daniel Bliss in making this article a reality.

References:

William Zartman, Preventive Negotiation: Avoiding Conflict Escalation (Lanham, MD: Rowman & Littlefield, 2001), 3.

Rupert Smith, The Utility of Force: The Art of War in the Modern World (New York: Vintage Books, 2008), 19.

Hans Binnendijk and Richard L. Kugler, Seeing the Elephant: The U.S. Role in Global Security (Washington, DC: National Defense University Press and Potomac Books, 2006), 286.

Philip Bobbitt, Terror and Consent: The Wars for the Twenty-first Century (New York: Alfred A. Knopf, 2008), 207.

Michael S. Lund, Preventing Violent Conflicts: A Strategy for Preventive Diplomacy (Washington, DC: United States Institute of Peace, 1996), 171.

Ibid., 172.

Mark Laity, Preventing War in Macedonia, Whitehall Paper Number 68 (London: Royal United Services Institute, January 2008).

James A. Baker III, The Politics of Diplomacy (New York: G.P. Putnam's Sons, 1995), 345–365.

Richard Haass, War of Necessity, War of Choice: A Memoir of Two Iraq Wars (New York: Simon and Schuster, 2009), 211–212.

Henry A. Kissinger, Years of Upheaval (Boston: Little, Brown, 1982), 445.

Haass, 247.

Smith, 308.

Ibid., 309.

Ibid., 313–314.

Ibid., 272–273.

Christopher M. Schnaubelt, "Complex Operations and Interagency Operational Art," PRISM 1, no. 1 (December 2009), 41.

Richard Holbrooke, To End a War (New York: Random House, 1999), 127–131.

Bobbitt and Smith.

James F. Dobbins, After the Taliban: Nation-building in Afghanistan (Washington, DC: Potomac Books, 2008).

James F. Dobbins, "Organizing for Victory," PRISM 1, no. 1 (December 2009), 54.

James F. Dobbins et al., America's Role in Nation Building: From Germany to Iraq (Santa Monica, CA: RAND, 2003).

Ronald E. Neumann, The Other War: Winning and Losing in Afghanistan (Washington, DC: Potomac Books, 2009).

Dobbins, "Organizing," 61.

John E. Herbst, "Addressing the Problem of Failed States: A New Instrument," PRISM 1, no. 1 (December 2009), 21–26.

Ibid.

See Bobbitt, Smith, and Dobbins.

Dobbins et al.

Robert Hunter et al., Integrating Instruments of Power and Influence (Santa Monica, CA: RAND, 2008), 11.

Bobbitt, 155.

Smith, 409.

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015

RELEASE IN FULL

U.S. Army (De'Yonte Mosley)

...ng postconflict relationships support ...going work of diplomacy and defense

Diplomacy
Before and After Conflict

Conflict is a universal condition,[1] older than diplomacy. While conflict is a constant in human history, the nature of armed conflict, and especially the nature of 21st-century warfare, has been transformed. General Rupert Smith identified these changes in his book The Utility of Force: "The ends for which we fight are changing; we fight amongst the people; our conflicts tend to be timeless; we fight so as not to lose the force; on each occasion new uses are found for old weapons; the sides are mostly non-state."[2]

The nature of 21st-century diplomacy is also changing. To be successful, diplomats must simultaneously shape, act upon, and react to global challenges. As Hans Binnendijk and Richard Kugler of the National Defense University argue, no single problem, danger, or threat holds the key to the world's future. What matters is their interaction and the simultaneity of our responses.[3]

The definition of victory, too, is different today. Twenty-first-century national security success will encompass a comprehensive definition of security, and will be achieved by the broadest simultaneous application of all elements of national power. This is the key to understanding Philip Bobbitt's concept of "preclusive victory," which he describes as "anticipatory, precautionary attention to possible futures,"[4] requiring an expansive and integrated approach to modern diplomacy, defense, and development. A diplomatic strategy designed to produce preclusive victory will include conflict prevention, successful negotiation, deterrence, the preparation for conflict should all else fail, and efforts to establish order, ensure stability, and promote political and economic pluralism after conflict.

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015

Diplomats have always been participants in both the prevention and management of conflict and its aftermath. The conflict prevention side of diplomacy occupied much of my time at the State Department from 1993 to 1997 as the Department's Executive Secretary and U.S. Ambassador to Turkey. Postconflict diplomacy was a defining issue of the last third of my career at State as Assistant Secretary of State for European Affairs and as Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs from 2001 to 2005. I have tried to draw upon my experiences and observations to discuss here the scope and complexity of modern diplomacy, the methods and goals needed to prevent conflict, diplomacy's role when conflict is or seems to be unavoidable, and the contribution diplomacy can make to restoring stability following conflict.

Diplomacy and Conflict Prevention

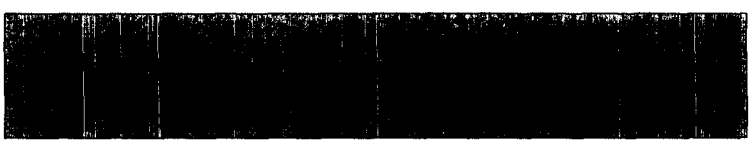
Thanks to the efforts of scholars and practitioners, we can now make better use of the methods and theory of conflict prevention. The United States Institute of Peace and the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars are two among many institutions that have taken a leadership role in these efforts. Michael Lund, a practitioner-scholar, notes that the present uncoordinated and patchy nature of preventive diplomacy reflects the absence of any accepted international conflict prevention regime or system of governance—that is, of agreed upon arrangements through which geographic jurisdictions are allocated, functional responsibilities are assigned, norms and procedures are formulated, and actors are held accountable for their responsibilities.[5] He asks the crucial question to all those who seek to "coordinate and rationalize" a system of preventive diplomacy: where should responsibility for the tasks of preventive action be located—early warning, the decision to act, the formulation of a response, or the provision of bureaucratic and political support? Should it be horizontal, across different organizations or actors, or should it be vertical, up or down their chains of command?[6]

An example of conflict prevention that meets Lund's tests was the effort undertaken by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), in close collaboration with the European Union (EU) and the Organisation for Security and Co-operation in Europe, and supported by the United States, to avoid civil war in Macedonia in 2001. It is difficult now to recall that, until September 11, 2001, the possibility of civil war in Macedonia was a leading international headline. This successful campaign of conflict prevention was defined by the remarkable personal and institutional cooperation between the NATO Secretary General Lord Robertson and the EU High Representative for the Common Foreign and Security Policy (and a former NATO Secretary General) Javier Solana. I spoke often during this period to Lord Robertson, Solana, and Ambassador James Pardew, whom President George W. Bush and Secretary Colin Powell appointed as the U.S. representative to the effort and who, along with Francois Leotard, the EU Special Envoy, played a crucial role in negotiating and implementing the Ohrid Framework Agreement.

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015



As a direct participant, senior NATO official Mark Laity stated that there are insights about modern diplomacy and conflict prevention to be drawn from this effort, including the need for personal and institutional teamwork, the importance of early engagement in trying to head off violence, the need to choose the right people for tasks of this kind (including 21st-century diplomats who can act "unconventionally"), and the necessity of being able to apply appropriate force quickly.[7]

Diplomacy When Conflict Is or Seems to Be Unavoidable

When diplomacy fails to prevent conflict, the role of the diplomat changes. The new requirement may be to justify the use of force when all efforts to avoid conflict fail or to seek to address the underlying source of conflict when force is or seems to be inevitable and imperative.

The February 1999 diplomatic negotiations in Rambouillet, France, were designed to show the world that NATO and the Contact Group were willing to make one last effort to avoid using military force to stop Slobodan Milosevic's attacks in Kosovo. I was in Rambouillet as Assistant Secretary of State for European Affairs to support Secretary Madeleine Albright. After the first day or so of the meeting, there was so much chaos that I urged Secretary Albright to depart Rambouillet and leave the "negotiating" to those of us more junior. My strategy was that by not being present, the Secretary of State—and the administration—could keep a distance from an outcome that might be unacceptable to the United States. The Secretary had a different vision. Albright hoped Rambouillet would end the brutality against the Kosovars, but she was also prepared for the meeting to fail, and thereby all options for avoiding military conflict would be exhausted. Her idea was that we had to be seen to be doing everything we could diplomatically, including her continued presence, so that if Rambouillet was a failure, there could be no further excuses against taking military action.

Secretary of State James Baker had pursued a similar strategy before the first Gulf War in 1991. Baker relates in his memoirs, The Politics of Diplomacy, that President George H.W. Bush had concluded the United States should offer a meeting in Washington for Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz followed by a Baker trip to Baghdad to show America's commitment to avoiding war if possible. Baker writes that he thought this proposal had three merits: it would give the administration one last diplomatic opening to avoid war; it would shore up domestic support for conflict; and it would show that, as the deadline for Iraq's withdrawal from Kuwait neared, the administration was doing something other than just preparing for war. The President's offer turned into the famous meeting between Baker and Aziz on January 9, 1991. As Baker recounts, "I was under no illusions. I assumed the talks would be unsuccessful and that within a matter of days, we would be at war."[8]

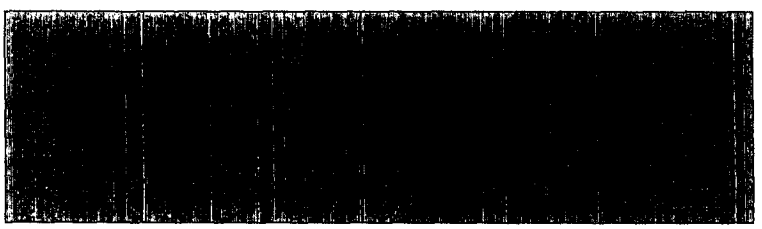
In 2001–2003, the State Department leadership generally saw Iraq as a diversion from Afghanistan and not central to the war on terror. Saddam Hussein was a dictator and a menace—but "in a box," posing no immediate, direct threat to the United States; focus should be kept on defeating al Qaeda in Afghanistan and supporting the new Afghan government.[9] Iraq had been a source of tension and disagreement inside the State Department since the beginning of the administration, and there were some who sought to move the policy from support for



UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015

"smart" United Nations (UN) sanctions toward an aggressive posture against Saddam.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger wrote in Years of Upheaval about the second term of the Nixon administration that State Department culture emphasizes negotiability, which is a consciousness of what the other side will accept.[10] Kissinger did not consider this trait a particular positive at the time, and the department's culture of negotiability did not serve as a good guide to institutional behavior for most of the senior State officials who participated in the interagency debate leading to the invasion of Iraq. If that was so during the period surrounding 1970s détente with Russia, diplomatic efforts with the Shah of Iran, and the crisis in the Middle East and the resulting 1973 war, this culture of negotiability no longer served as a good guide to institutional behavior for most of the senior State officials who participated in the interagency debate leading to the invasion of Iraq. We took part in planning for the conflict and its aftermath assuming—or hoping—that events either at home or abroad would turn preparations for conflict into successful coercive diplomacy rather than the military action that was ordered in the spring of 2003.

The State Department's Director of Policy Planning, Richard Haass, observed that while he was "60:40 against going to war . . . no organization could function if people left every time they lost out on a 60:40 decision."[11] Haass was operating under the belief that Iraq had weapons of mass destruction; if he had known they did not, he says he would have been 90:10 against the war.

And no senior Department of State officer resigned in protest. The department sought instead to try to recreate the successful Gulf War coalition of President George H.W. Bush and argued that the United States and its allies might compel Saddam to submit through a deployment of force in the region in early 2003. If this failed, there should be a sustained diplomatic effort to create a broad coalition to move militarily later in 2003. This possibility of a broad international coalition lost all relevance on January 20, 2003, when the French government announced that it would never support a second UN Security Council resolution to authorize the use of force in Iraq.

Diplomacy in Preparation for Conflict

Once conflict is inevitable or is initiated, one job of diplomats is to support military commanders in getting what they need to make conflict as short as possible, with the fewest casualties for Americans, allies, and civilians. This was the objective that the United States pursued in Turkey before the first Gulf War, which resulted in President Turgut Özal's support of American efforts. The diplomatic effort to prepare for conflict in Kosovo also involved the whole of the U.S. Government and the governments of the NATO Allies. To pursue a successful bombing campaign, diplomats in many NATO countries arranged for overflight and support for Allied forces. A similar effort by U.S. diplomats took place before the invasion of Afghanistan in 2001. American and allied diplomats worked closely with nations surrounding Afghanistan, including forging contacts with Central Asian states on security issues for the first time in order to achieve transit, overflight, and bed-down rights for American and coalition forces before the October 7, 2001, beginning of action in Afghanistan.

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015

Before the invasion of Iraq in March 2003, and especially after January 20, 2003, a similar effort began in earnest. Diplomats supported U.S. Central Command commander General Tommy Franks in order to make the war as short and successful as possible and to limit American, allied, and Iraqi civilian casualties. American diplomats worked with military commanders to seek access to facilities for U.S. forces and to participate in the public diplomacy effort to gain as much support as possible for the armed liberation of Iraq. American diplomats and Pentagon officials again paid particular attention to Turkey in an effort to convince the Turks to allow the 4th Infantry Division to transit that country to create a northern front in the battle against Saddam's forces. Although the State Department worried about the size of the Department of Defense (DOD) request to Ankara, it worked closely with both civilian and military authorities at the Pentagon to try to meet the need that had been identified by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Joint DOD–State diplomacy, however, could not overcome a negative vote in the Turkish parliament, which reflected strong public opposition to the war.

The way the debate about using force is carried out inside the government influences attitudes and actions during and after conflict as well as future decisions on whether or not to use force. Military force may restore security, but it cannot resolve political or cultural sources of conflict. As Rupert Smith writes, "We are engaging in conflict for objectives that do not lead to a resolution of the matter directly by force of arms, since at all but the most basic tactical level our objectives tend to concern the intentions of the people and their leaders rather than their territory or forces."[12] Smith argues that the civil-military structure designed to make political-military decisions is "deeply problematic" and distorts decisionmaking in many ways.[13] In his book, Smith imagines a debate between British Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and Ministry of Defense (MOD) officials about how to address the genocide taking place over a number of weeks in Rwanda during the summer of 1994.

FCO: What can we do in the face of events in Rwanda?

MOD: What do you want us to do?

FCO: We ought to act. Something must be done. We can't have people being massacred. As a permanent member of the UN Security Council we cannot be seen to be doing nothing.

MOD: So you want us to use military force?

FCO: Yes.

MOD: To do what? To stop the killing?

FCO: Yes. Exactly.

MOD: Who do you want us to fight? We are not clear who is doing the killing: is it tribe on tribe, or is it a force found from a tribe? And Rwanda is a big country. Where do we start? Kigali, presumably, it's the capital and we would want an airhead.

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015

FCO: Well, there must be an international force, of course.

MOD: And what would be the British aim in joining the force?

FCO: To play our part as a permanent member of the UN Security Council.

MOD: Is Britain to lead the force?

FCO: No, it should be led by the UN—a proper UN mission.

MOD: That will take some time to assemble, so it will probably be too late to stop the killing.

FCO: Then the mission should be aimed at bringing postconflict order.

MOD: OK. But we need to be clear how many British troops are currently available. Given our deployments in Ireland, Bosnia and a few other places, not many.

FCO: What do you suggest?

MOD: What are our government's priorities? Is contributing to this force a higher priority than these other tasks we are already undertaking?

FCO: Probably not.

MOD: In that case, these UN forces always lack expeditionary logistic support. And if we want to speed up the deployment of this force, offering a logistic unit would probably be the most valuable contribution.

FCO: Will that put our soldiers at risk?

MOD: Hardly any.[14]

Many American diplomats will recognize this imaginary conversation, having participated in something like it dozens of times since the fall of the Berlin Wall. In the American debate, the issue also quickly focuses on who pays the bills. It is worth stating, at least in the American case, that officials at the Pentagon and DOD often were legitimately frustrated by the State Department's inclination to promote military missions for the Pentagon and the Armed Forces in an increasing number of situations that were important, but not vital, to U.S. national interests. While this readiness to volunteer U.S. military forces to solve problems around the world was a direct result of the lack of civilian capacity to do the jobs required, it leads to understandable consternation among those in uniform.

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015

U.S. Air Force (Dayton Mitchell)

Diplomacy and Restoring Stability Following Conflict

There are many issues—defeating extremism, promoting pluralism, bringing the benefits of globalization to those who have not yet benefited, living sustainably on the planet, nonproliferation—that will be part of any definition of successful 21st-century diplomacy. But getting postconflict diplomacy right—creating the conditions for a preclusive victory—may be the most crucial of all. This is not an easy assignment. The concept of success can be redefined after the fact, further complicating the assessment. Successful democratic governance and economic development cannot be delivered on a certain date, and therefore the need for time and patience is a necessity on the ground. However, patience is limited in home countries, and "fatigue" often sets in. Thus, the potential for failure is high. Industrial war produced winners and losers; today's lines are not so clearly drawn, and the timeline may be longer.

Rupert Smith again brings clarity to this assessment:

> We intervene in or even decide to escalate to, a conflict in order to establish a condition in which the political objective can be achieved by other means and in other ways. We seek to create a conceptual space for diplomacy, economic incentives, political pressure and other measures to create a desired political outcome of stability, and if possible democracy. . . . if a decisive strategic victory was the hallmark of interstate industrial war, establishing a condition may be deemed a hallmark of the new paradigm of war amongst the people.[15]

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015

Smith's point can be pressed even further by recognizing the additional distinction between a military operation carried out following Smith's rules and the ambiguity inherent in trying to create the conditions Smith identifies as objectives. Christopher Schnaubelt has noted that a typical military operation will have unambiguous geographic boundaries (areas of responsibility) and will assign specific units to be responsible for every inch of ground or cubic foot of airspace. There is an obvious chain of responsibilities and expected actions between each individual Soldier or Marine on the ground and the commanding general. Nothing comparable exists for economic development in governance tasks, which tend to be assigned by function rather than local geography or rigid hierarchy of authority.[16]

Postconflict diplomacy was among the defining diplomatic issues of the last third of my career at the State Department.

In the aftermath of the first Gulf War in 1991, almost 500,000 Kurds fled to the mountains between Iraq and Turkey. Stranded in harsh conditions, they began to starve by the thousands each day. I was then the Deputy Chief of Mission in Turkey. Inspired by the leadership of Ambassador Morton Abramowitz, American diplomats, followed by American military forces and then an international coalition of governments and nongovernmental organizations, initiated Operation Provide Comfort (which became Operation Northern Watch). This was not just a "whole-of-government" but a "whole-of-the-international-community" campaign to provide humanitarian assistance and then return the Kurds to their homes in Northern Iraq. Once home, they needed to be protected, and for 11 years, the United Sates and some of its allies, including Turkey, worked on the ground there to recreate a functioning society and then protected this area from Saddam by enforcing a no-fly zone.

These years were also punctuated by activity in the Balkans. As Richard Holbrooke recounts, some of the pre-Dayton negotiations with Bosnian leader Alija Izetbegovi took place in my residence while I was Ambassador to Turkey.[17] As one of Holbrooke's successors as Assistant Secretary for European Affairs, I watched the effort made by Ambassadors Robert Gelbard and James Dobbins to implement the Dayton Accords by applying whole-of-government efforts in postconflict post-Yugoslavia. I picked up the diplomatic thread again as Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs promoting reconciliation, development, political progress, and nationbuilding in Kosovo.

Other postconflict diplomacy efforts in Haiti, East Timor, and Liberia called upon the resources of the United States and other governments to try to create the conceptual space for development and sustained peace. The U.S. effort in Colombia, too, highlighted the need to focus on an integrated and cross-sectoral approach, which included disarmament, demobilization, and reintegration of former combatants and promoted justice in postconflict society. But the main events in modern diplomacy's postconflict paradigm are Afghanistan and Iraq.

The key to understanding U.S. diplomacy in postconflict Afghanistan and Iraq is to recall the profound disagreement inside the U.S. Government, especially between DOD and State, about whether the United States should engage in "nationbuilding," a policy President Bush had campaigned against in 2000. State Department professionals were generally proud of the effort the United States had made in nationbuilding and in peacekeeping, supporting the deployment of U.S. military forces to participate, for example, in the Multinational Force and Observers in the Sinai and in peacekeeping and nationbuilding activities in East Timor, Haiti, and the Balkans. Most believed that nationbuilding, properly funded and executed, was an effective long-term tool of integrated modern diplomacy for the United States.

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015

The effort to create a new Afghan government after the overthrow of the Taliban was a piece of classical diplomacy carried out in the 21st-century context.[18] Secretary Powell directed Ambassador Dobbins to support the regional negotiation hosted by the Germans in Bonn in 2001 to create a new Afghan government. To succeed, Dobbins worked with all the key players, including representatives from Iran, to support a major role for the United Nations and put Hamid Karzai in position to lead a new Afghanistan.[19] But, as Dobbins has written, the "Bush Administration, having overthrown the Taliban and installed a new government in Kabul, determined that American troops would do no peacekeeping and that peacekeepers from other countries would not be allowed to venture beyond the Kabul city limits. Public security throughout the rest of the country would be left entirely to Afghans, despite the fact that Afghanistan had no army and no police force."[20]

The struggle over nationbuilding also hampered American attempts to get sufficient amounts of U.S. or international assistance to Afghanistan. Washington accepted the diffusion of responsibility there, with the British taking charge of counternarcotics, the Italians reforming the justice sector, and the Germans training police. This satisfied the need for burden-sharing but did not lead to success. In addition, postconflict resources focused by the United States on Afghanistan were small compared to other recent postconflict situations, even including Kosovo.[21] American diplomats who followed Dobbins to the Embassy in Kabul over the years faced the legacy of this lack of attention and underinvestment.[22]

The State Department participated at many levels in the National Security Council–led planning for postconflict Iraq. Much of the planning was detailed, but focused on lessons learned from the first Gulf War. The department's Future of Iraq Project, while important, would not have solved Iraq's postwar problems. State did not have the capacity to take responsibility for the immediate postconflict administration of Iraq, and its leadership agreed to the Executive order creating a postconflict Iraq structure that reported to the Secretary of Defense.

There is no need here to recount the lost lives and lost opportunities so well chronicled by others in the immediate postconflict period in Iraq, although Dobbins's argument that, looking back, the Coalition Provisional Authority accomplished a great deal under trying circumstances is worth noting.[23] On July 1, 2004, the State Department did officially open (on time and on budget) an Embassy in Baghdad, which allowed an expansion of diplomacy and led to more comprehensive senior civilian-military cooperation.

There is another important lesson to draw from recent postconflict efforts: the need to have adequate civilian capacity to respond, including a role for a revitalized U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID). As this journal chronicled in an article[24] by Ambassador John Herbst, the Secretary of State's Coordinator for Reconstruction and Stabilization (S/CRS), his office was mandated to develop a whole-of-government civilian response to stability operations and to ensure civilian-military coordination.

The Civilian Response Corps (CRC) is in an early stage, and ultimately will be made up of a reserve component, in addition to the existing active and standby components. The personnel are anticipated to represent the full range of sector experts: engineers, lawyers, judges, corrections officials, diplomats, development experts, public administrators, public health officials, city planners, border control officials, economists, and others. Currently, the active and standby components that are being stepped up are drawn from State, USAID, and a core group of domestic U.S. agencies.

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015

Once congressionally funded, the reserves would be drawn from state and local governments and the private sector. Between January 2008 and May 2009, 56 CRC members deployed to 11 countries, including Afghanistan for planning purposes, and there are realistic plans to have 250 active members and 1,000 standby members ready to deploy by the end of 2010. There are now at least 14 other countries with whom the United States allies that have a civilian peacebuilding capacity—some including stability or civilian police, and employing whole-of-government or "comprehensive" approaches similar to that created by Washington. Several, in fact, have higher budgets proportionate to their gross national products than America's.[25]

One way for State to further support the S/CRS effort would be to consider creating a new personnel specialty: the "expeditionary diplomat." Washington's diplomatic personnel have, of course, always been in one sense expeditionary; the majority of the Foreign Service is deployed abroad the majority of the time. But the post-9/11 diplomatic experience, and especially the effort in Iraq and Afghanistan, means that State needs to be more explicit about the expeditionary nature of some of its future diplomatic work and should prepare a small but significant number of people to serve successfully in the hardest places at a moment's notice.

Experience with the Provincial Reconstruction Teams in Iraq and Afghanistan, the lessons learned with S/CRS, and the example of diplomats who have pursued careers in the toughest posts should lead State leadership to conclude that this is a step worth taking. The first requirement would be advanced training, some of it provided by DOD and some by the Central Intelligence Agency, for those entering diplomats who believe they want to pursue this special career path. These entering officers would make an explicit choice and understand that an investment in their extra training would require their service in hard places, just as we now ask diplomats who take the hardest languages—Chinese or Arabic, for example—to serve more than one tour using their skills. Since these expeditionary diplomats will not need to meet the same age and physical requirements as special operations in the military, the State Department could allow people to opt in and out of this "special force" during their careers as long as they have the proper training. This would allow flexibility across the institution and encourage those who desire or whose family circumstances might change over time to participate as well. The department would also need to make sure those taking this career path are recognized for a career beyond the norm for Foreign Service and are promoted and rewarded.

The creation of S/CRS is a symbol of the comprehensive, simultaneous diplomacy needed for the future, and this expeditionary diplomat could form the backbone of the State and USAID commitment to the civilian response capacity. There are still key questions to be answered about civilian capacity. In the face of a real world situation, will DOD really support a State Department–led operation? Will Congress adequately fund S/CRS, including a reasonable contingency fund? How will S/CRS and a resurgent USAID work together? Where will the lines be drawn between immediate postconflict needs and nationbuilding? There seems to be no question that the path is the right one, consistent with the administration's focus on diplomacy, development, and defense. Success will come with clear direction and active implementation.

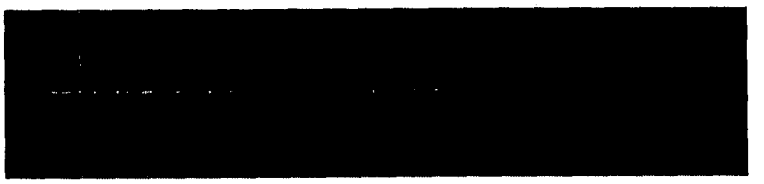
UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015



UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015

If we combine the observations made by several authors,[26] we arrive at this question: What national policies, supported by adequate human and financial resources, will create the conditions during and after war to bring about a preclusive victory? Nationbuilding, postconflict reconstruction and stability operations, and counterinsurgency strategy (call it what we will) will be part of modern diplomacy for years to come. Accomplishing this task does not have to be an exclusively American responsibility, and, indeed, one of the goals of modern American diplomats will be to make these efforts more international. But for the foreseeable future, the United States will need to learn the lessons of its role in nationbuilding from Germany to Iraq.[27] These lessons include support for new institutions that bring all of the elements of power and influence together in the same theater, at the same time, and in close coordination so the United States and its allies and friends have a chance to succeed.[28] As Philip Bobbitt has written, "The problem is the picture of warfare to which we cling. This picture unfolds in this way: peace making by diplomats; war making by the Armed Forces; peace building by [US]AID and reconstruction personnel. The reality of 21st century warfare, however, is that all of these tasks must be performed simultaneously."[29]

While the challenges and opportunities of the 21st century can be observed and analyzed individually, none of them can be solved without reference to the others. Diplomacy is not the answer to every question, but it has utility both before and after conflict. As General Smith writes at the end of his volume:

> For the general purpose of all interventions is clear: we seek to establish in the minds of the people and their leaders that the ever present option of conflict is not the preferable course of action when in confrontation over some matter or another. This applies as much to the state possessing nuclear weapons or seeking to obtain them, rogue or otherwise, as it does to the terrorist or the machete-wielding rebel; each is posing an armed threat to people to establish a condition in which to achieve its political goal. To do this, military force is a valid option, a lever of intervention and influence, as much as economic, political and diplomatic levers, but to be effective it must be applied as a part of a greater scheme focusing all measures on the one goal.[30]

The connection to the utility of a modern diplomacy is clear. Twenty-first-century diplomacy, working to prevent conflict, trying to get ready for it if it is inevitable, or dealing with the consequences, can be an effective tool of national security if it is adequately funded, carried out by well-trained, dedicated people, focused on clear goals set by national leaders, and backed by effective military force. This is the diplomacy of the future. PRISM

The author expresses appreciation to The Cohen Group for allowing him time to consider these issues and to the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars and the Harvard John F. Kennedy School Project on Diplomacy for supporting the effort. The author also gratefully acknowledges the important contributions of Toni Getze, Jill O'Donnell, and Daniel Bliss in making this article a reality.

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015

Notes

[1] I. William Zartman, Preventive Negotiation: Avoiding Conflict Escalation (Lanham, MD: Rowman & Littlefield, 2001), 3.

[2] Rupert Smith, The Utility of Force: The Art of War in the Modern World (New York: Vintage Books, 2008), 19.

[3] Hans Binnendijk and Richard L. Kugler, Seeing the Elephant: The U.S. Role in Global Security (Washington, DC: National Defense University Press and Potomac Books, 2006), 286.

[4] Philip Bobbitt, Terror and Consent: The Wars for the Twenty-first Century (New York: Alfred A. Knopf, 2008), 207.

[5] Michael S. Lund, Preventing Violent Conflicts: A Strategy for Preventive Diplomacy (Washington, DC: United States Institute of Peace, 1996), 171.

[6] Ibid., 172.

[7] Mark Laity, Preventing War in Macedonia, Whitehall Paper Number 68 (London: Royal United Services Institute, January 2008).

[8] James A. Baker III, The Politics of Diplomacy (New York: G.P. Putnam's Sons, 1995), 345–365.

[9] Richard Haass, War of Necessity, War of Choice: A Memoir of Two Iraq Wars (New York: Simon and Schuster, 2009), 211–212.

[10] Henry A. Kissinger, Years of Upheaval (Boston: Little, Brown, 1982), 445.

[11] Haass, 247.

[12] Smith, 308.

[13] Ibid., 309.

[14] Ibid., 313–314.

[15] Ibid., 272–273.

[16] Christopher M. Schnaubelt, "Complex Operations and Interagency Operational Art," PRISM 1, no. 1 (December 2009), 41.

[17] Richard Holbrooke, To End a War (New York: Random House, 1999), 127–131.

[18] Bobbitt and Smith.

[19] James F. Dobbins, After the Taliban: Nation-building in Afghanistan (Washington, DC: Potomac Books, 2008).

[20] James F. Dobbins, "Organizing for Victory," PRISM 1, no. 1 (December 2009), 54.

[21] James F. Dobbins et al., America's Role in Nation Building: From Germany to Iraq (Santa Monica, CA: RAND, 2003).

[22] Ronald E. Neumann, The Other War: Winning and Losing in Afghanistan (Washington, DC: Potomac Books, 2009).

[23] Dobbins, "Organizing," 61.

[24] John E. Herbst, "Addressing the Problem of Failed States: A New Instrument," PRISM 1, no. 1 (December 2009), 21–26.

[25] Ibid.

[26] See Bobbitt, Smith, and Dobbins.

[27] Dobbins et al.

[28] Robert Hunter et al., Integrating Instruments of Power and Influence (Santa Monica, CA: RAND, 2008), 11.

[29] Bobbitt, 155.

[30] Smith, 409.

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775201 Date: 08/31/2015

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, September 28, 2010 6:33 PM
To: H
Subject: Re: What did you think of the road show?

You hit it out of the park! Really, you touched on every point and set the stage perfectly for the QDDR. Now we just have to deliver, and we will.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Slaughter, Anne-Marie
Sent: Tue Sep 28 18:33:47 2010
Subject: What did you think of the road show?

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, September 28, 2010 6:52 PM
To: H

Margo 6am
Isabelle 730
Enjoy time with [redacted]! Glad she came. B6

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, September 29, 2010 6:52 PM
To: H
Subject: Tomorrow

I talked to isabelle and explained the issue, she agreed and will speak with kristal.
Kristal is confirmed for 6:30am
Isabelle confirmed for 7:30am
We will figure out kristy tomorrow.

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775207 Date: 08/31/2015

RELEASE IN FULL

"The Giving Pledge" At-A-Glance

WHAT: Launched by Warren Buffett during the Summer of 2010, the Giving Pledge is an effort to invite the wealthiest individuals and families in America to commit to giving the majority of their wealth to the philanthropic causes and charitable organizations of their choice either during their lifetime or after their death. Each person who chooses to pledge will make this statement publicly, along with a letter explaining their decision to pledge. At an annual event, those who take the pledge will come together to share ideas and learn from each other.

The Pledge is a moral commitment to give, not a legal contract. It does not involve pooling money or supporting a particular set of causes or organizations. While the Giving Pledge is specifically focused on billionaires, the idea takes its inspiration from efforts in the past and at present that encourage and recognize givers of all financial means and backgrounds. We are inspired by the example set by millions of Americans who give generously (and often at great personal sacrifice) to make the world a better place.

WHO: The Pledge currently has forty participants, listed below in alphabetical order. To date, all are American, although a dinner is scheduled in Beijing for September 29, 2010, in hopes of generating interest for the Pledge among wealthy Chinese.

Paul G. Allen
Laura and John Arnold
Michael R. Bloomberg
Eli and Edythe Broad
Warren Buffett
Michele Chan and Patrick Soon-Shiong
Barry Diller and Diane von Furstenberg
Ann and John Doerr
Larry Ellison
Larry Ellison
Bill and Melinda Gates
Bill and Melinda Gates
Barron Hilton
Jon and Karen Huntsman
Joan and Irwin Jacobs
George B. Kaiser
Elaine and Ken Langone
Ken Langone
Gerry and Marguerite Lenfest
Lorry I. Lokey
George Lucas
George Lucas
Alfred E. Mann
Bernie and Billi Marcus
Bernie Marcus
Thomas S. Monaghan
Tashia and John Morgridge
Pierre and Pam Omidyar
Bernard and Barbro Osher
Ronald O. Perelman
Peter G. Peterson
T. Boone Pickens
Julian H. Robertson, Jr.
David Rockefeller
David M. Rubenstein
Herb and Marion Sandler
Vicki and Roger Sant
Walter Scott, Jr.
Jim and Marilyn Simons
Jeff Skoll
Tom Steyer and Kat Taylor
Jim and Virginia Stowers
Ted Turner
Sanford and Joan Weill
Shelby White

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775207 Date: 08/31/2015

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2010 8:02 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: AIPAC

Pls add to the acknowledgements: Howard Friedman, Ester Kurz and Richard Fishman.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Mar 22 07:10:55 2010
Subject: Fw: AIPAC

See below. [redacted] How would you like to proceed? B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Schwerin, Daniel B
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Mon Mar 22 07:07:38 2010
Subject: Fw: AIPAC

[redacted]

----- Original Message -----
From: Knopf, Payton L
To: Schwerin, Daniel B; Prince, Jonathan M; Djerassi, Alexander M
Cc: Rudman, Mara; Sachar, Alon (NEA/IPA)
Sent: Mon Mar 22 06:57:39 2010
Subject: AIPAC

[redacted]

We are boarding a plane from Amman to DC shortly but can be reached via the Operations Center if there are questions.

Thanks.

Payton

RELEASE IN PART B5,B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2010 8:47 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'; 'preines [redacted] B6
Subject: Health care topper

[redacted] B5

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, September 29, 2010 7:37 AM
To: H
Subject: At physical therapy - need me to call?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Jiloty, Lauren C <JilotyLC@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, September 29, 2010 8:06 AM
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma
Subject: Mini Schedule 9/29/10 Wednesday

8:15 am DEPART Private Residence *En route State Department

8:25 am ARRIVE State Department

8:25 am PRESIDENTIAL DAILY BRIEFING
8:30 am Secretary's Office

8:30 am DAILY SMALL STAFF MEETING
8:45 am Secretary's Office

8:45 am DAILY MEETING w/SENIOR STAFF
9:15 am Secretary's Conference Room

9:15 am OFFICE TIME
9:40 am Secretary's Office

9:45 am REMARKS TO THE HISTORIC CONFERENCE ON THE AMERICAN
10:00 am EXPERIENCE ON SOUTHEAST ASIA Marshall Conference Center

10:30 am BILAT. MTG. w/EUROPEAN UNION HIGH REP. CATHERINE ASHTON
11:30 am Secretary's Conference Room *Official photo in East Hall preceding.

11:35 am JOINT PRESS AVAILABLITY w/LADY CATHERINE ASHTON
11:45 am Treaty Room, 7th Floor

11:45 am PRIVATE MEETING w/ LOIS QUAM
12:00 pm Secretary's Office

12:00 pm OFFICE TIME
12:25 pm Secretary's Office

12:25 pm PRE-BRIEF w/TREASURY SECRETARY TIM GEITHNER
12:30 pm Secretary's Outer Office

12:35 pm PRESS ANNOUNCEMENT ON IRAN HUMAN RIGHTS DESIGNATIONS
12:50 pm w/TREASURY SECRETARY TIM GEITHNER State Department Press Briefing Room

1:00 pm WORKING LUNCH w/GERMAN FOREIGN MINISTER GUIDO WESTERWELLE
2:00 pm James Monroe Room, 8th Floor *Official photo preceding.

2:05 pm JOINT PRESS AVAILABILITY w/GERMAN FOREIGN MINISTER
2:15 pm GUIDO WESTERWELLE Treaty Room, 7th Floor

2:30 pm BILATERAL MEETING w/EL SALVADOR PRESIDENT MAURICIO FUNES
3:15 pm Secretary's Conference Room *Official photo preceding.

3:15 pm JOINT PRESS STATEMENT w/ EL SALVADOR PRESIDENT MAURICIO FUNES
3:25 pm Treaty Room, 7th Floor

3:40 pm DROP-BY NATIONAL INTERRELIGIOUS LEADERSHIP INITIATIVE
3:50 pm FOR PEACE IN THE MIDDLE EAST GROUP D Conference Room

4:00 pm OFFICE TIME
5:00 pm Secretary's Office

Tbd pm DEPART State Department *En route Private Residence

Tbd pm ARRIVE Private Residence

###

B6

From: d.gunners
Sent: Wednesday, September 29, 2010 3:24 PM
To: H
Subject: From David Miliband

RELEASE IN PART B1,1.4(B),1.4(D), B6

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D), B1 ~ Declassify on: 09/29/2025

Hillary -

Thanks a lot for all the good wishes you have sent via Lois. It has been one of the pleasures of the last few months to see you going from strength to strength. And the wedding looked fantastic!

Your message on Saturday was poignant. Losing is tough. When you win the party members and MPs doubly so. (When it's your brother...). But I am so proud of the campaign we ran, the issues we raised etc. We got people to believe in a New Labour platform - and modernised the platform.

I have announced today that I will stay in Parliament but not in shadow cabinet.

Thanks for all your encouragement over the last couple of years. I will let you know when I am in DC.

All best,

1.4(B)
1.4(D)
B1

David
Sent from my BlackBerry® wireless device

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, March 23, 2010 12:36 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'; 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Nita Lowey and AJC

I think we should reconsider this invite.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Mar 22 21:44:02 2010
Subject: FW: Nita Lowey and AJC

fyi

From: Lew, Jacob J
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2010 5:08 PM
To: Valmoro, Lona J
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J; Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: Nita Lowey and AJC

B5

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, September 29, 2010 8:02 PM
To: H
Subject: noms

B5

Still unclear if they will go out tonight or tomorrow mid-morning. They have one vote left on the CR.

And, you probably saw Tom Nides was officially nominated today.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, March 23, 2010 4:14 PM
To: 'williamsbarrett [redacted] B6
Cc: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Hi from Maggie

Am sending to Lona to work out time.

----- Original Message -----
From: williamsbarrett [redacted]
To: H
Sent: Tue Mar 23 15:50:51 2010
Subject: Hi from Maggie

I want to speak to you about Shanghai--- I am coming to DC tomorrow and will be at the State Department for a meeting on Friday. Any hope of seeing you? M

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 1:34 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Rich

See b/l for sr team

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D
To: Rodriguez, Miguel E
Sent: Thu Sep 30 01:33:10 2010
Subject: Re: Rich

Got it and agree - will have it noted by S at tomorrow's sr staff meeting

----- Original Message -----
From: Rodriguez, Miguel E
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Wed Sep 29 23:21:52 2010
Subject: Rich

This is just for you because I wouldn't want anyone to think this is motivated by a desire to curry favor with my boss.

I know you're already fully aware, but with the shortened congressional work session coming to an end this evening, I thought it was worth repeating -- we're really lucky to have Rich. He seemingly willed the latest set of legislative accomplishments. In particular, the two defense treaties and the child support treaty never would have gotten across the finish line without his leadership.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, March 24, 2010 6:47 AM
To: 'bam@mikulski.senate.gov'
Subject: Re: Nuns. Health. Care

Let's hear it for the nuns--I knew when they came out, the die was cast and Bart would get his knuckles rapped. Now, let's wrap this up in the Senate and go drink something unhealthy! All your AIPAC friends told me you're doing well so take care and keep going--w the wind at you back and my fervent cheers--Hillary

----- Original Message -----
From: Mikulski, BAM (Mikulski) <BAM@Mikulski.senate.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Mar 22 20:00:34 2010
Subject: Nuns. Health. Care

Whew once again u are in the thick of thing--- but didn't it make your heart feel good about the passage of. Health. Care----and. The. Nuns pushed it over the finish line----as usual in the fcore front of. Social. Justice and a daring willingness. To break with the. Boys------ if you need a tonic. Go to the. Nuns exhibit @ the. Smithsonian--- Ripley. Center. Gives the 250 year history of. Nuns in. Usa. And their role in shaping. Our country and producing 1000s of women leaders with names like. Pelosi. Mikulski. Ferrar0. Sebilius. ------- takes less than a hour. You are doing great

---

Sent from my BlackBerry Wireless Handheld

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 7:40 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw:

Fyi

---

From: Steinberg, James B
To: Verma, Richard R; Burns, William J; [redacted]
Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Thu Sep 30 06:35:18 2010
Subject: Re:

B6

Awesome!

---

From: Verma, Richard R
To: Steinberg, James B; Burns, William J; Donilon, Thomas E. [redacted]
Sent: Wed Sep 29 23:06:37 2010
Subject:

UK/Australia defense trade treaties made it through the Senate tonight. We are all done!

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 7:41 AM
To: H
Subject: Abbas

We just finished [redacted] More on secure line when you are available. B5

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, March 24, 2010 6:50 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Are you up yet?

I need to discuss Pakistan agenda--pls call me thru Ops.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Jiloty, Lauren C <JilotyLC@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 7:47 AM
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma
Subject: Mini Schedule 9/30/10 Thursday

8:25 am ARRIVE State Department

8:25 am PRESIDENTIAL DAILY BRIEFING
8:30 am Secretary's Office

8:30 am DAILY SMALL STAFF MEETING
8:45 am Secretary's Office

8:45 am DAILY MEETING w/SENIOR STAFF
9:15 am Secretary's Conference Room

9:15 am WEEKLY MEETING w/REGIONAL BUREAU SECRETARIES
10:00 am Deputy Secretary's Conference Room

10:00 am VIDEOS (4)
10:30 am George Marshall Room, 7th Floor

10:40 am DEPART State Department *En route U.S. Capitol

10:55 am ARRIVE U.S. Capitol (Senate Carriage Entrance)

11:00 am MEETING w/US SENATOR JOHN KERRY
11:55 am S-116 (Sen. Kerry Hideaway)

12:00 pm PULL-ASIDE w/SENATOR CHUCK SCHUMER
12:10 pm Outside H-122

12:15 pm REFUGEE CONSULTATIONS w/HOUSE COMMITTEE MEMBERS
1:00 pm H-122 (Speaker's Dining Room)

1:00 pm DEPART U.S. Capitol (House Carriage Entrance) *En route State Department

1:15 pm ARRIVE State Department

1:15 pm OFFICE TIME
2:15 pm Secretary's Office

2:15 pm CALL w/SENATOR JOHN CORNYN
2:25 pm Secretary's Office

2:30 pm OFFICE TIME
3:00 pm Secretary's Office

3:00 pm BILAT. MTG w/PANAMANIAN VICE PRESIDENT & FOREIGN MINISTER
3:30 pm JUAN CARLOS VARELA Secretary's Conference Room *Camera spray at top.

3:30 pm OFFICE TIME
4:00 pm Secretary's Office

4:00 pm PHOTOS (3)
4:15 pm Treaty Room, 7th Floor

4:15 pm BILATERAL MEETING w/INDIAN NATIONAL SECURITY ADVISOR
4:45 pm SHIV SHANKAR MENON Secretary's Conference Room *Official photo at top.

5:00 pm OFFICE TIME
6:30 pm Secretary's Office

6:45 pm DROP-BY MERIDIAN INTERNATIONAL CENTER RECEPTION
7:00 pm HONORING AMBASSADOR ELIZABETH BAGLEY
Monroe Room, Franklin Room, 8th Floor

7:05 pm DEPART State Department *En route Jockey Club

7:15 pm ARRIVE Jockey Club

7:15 pm DINNER w/TAMERA
8:30 pm (t) Jockey Club, Fairfax Hotel

8:30 pm (t) DEPART Jockey Club *En route Private Residence

8:35 pm (t) ARRIVE Private Residence

###

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, March 24, 2010 6:53 AM
To: 'slaughtera@state.gov'; 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Pak-India-Bangl

Remember the comparison I asked for? Is that ready--I'd like it today.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, March 24, 2010 7:03 AM
To: 'slaughtera@state.gov'; 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Pak-India-Bangl

I haven't seen it yet and it's not in my materials for today.

----- Original Message -----
From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
To: H; Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Cc: Chollet, Derek H <CholletDH@state.gov>
Sent: Wed Mar 24 06:56:05 2010
Subject: Re: Pak-India-Bangl

I checked last friday and was told it went up to you -- am checking again now. AM

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Slaughter, Anne-Marie; Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Wed Mar 24 06:53:05 2010
Subject: Pak-India-Bangl

Remember the comparison I asked for? Is that ready--I'd like it today.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 7:58 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Excellent news on one of the defense advocacy cases the Secretary raised with Antony

Your time with Antony was well-spent.

---

From: Pyatt, Geoffrey R
To: Sullivan, Jacob J; Holmes, David A; Duncan, John D
Cc: Blake, Robert O; SCA-INDIA-ONLY-DL; Keegan, David J; Nawab, Ahmed E; Amend, Kurt E
Sent: Thu Sep 30 07:35:11 2010
Subject: Excellent news on one of the defense advocacy cases the Secretary raised with Antony

THE ECONOMIC TIMES
Thu, Sep 30, 2010 | Updated 04.20PM IST
30 SEP, 2010, 04.03PM IST,PTI

US major GE wins engine bid for Indian LCAs

NEW DELHI: US aircraft engine manufacturer (GE) Aviation today won the bid for supplying engines for the Indian programme and the deal is estimated to be worth over $600 million.

GE pipped its European competitor Eurojet for the deal after DRDO, which is developing the LCA's mark II version, formally announced that the American major's was the lowest bid in the tenders that saw a long-drawn battle for over two years.

"GE was declared as the lowest bidder" by the Price Negotiating Committee headed by Chief Controller for Aerospace systems Dr Prahlada.

"The Prime Negotiating Committee for the alternate engine for LCA Mk 2 has finalised the comparative statement of tenders...After evaluation and acceptance of the technical offer provided by both Eurojet and GE Aviation, the commercial quotes were compared in detail and GE Aviation was declared as the lowest bidder," an official statement from DRDO said in New Delhi.

The committee also had representatives from Defence Ministry, Defence Finance, Aeronautical Development Agency, DRDO, Hindustan Aeronautics Limited, Indian Air Force and Indian Navy.

"Further price negotiations and contract finalisation will follow," the release added.

Though the order could be for 99 engines initially, will have the option of order for another 100 engines in the future.

GE had offered its GE F-414 engine as an alternative to its GE F-404 engines that are fitted in the first batch of LCAs that IAF would receive in a couple of years from now.

Eurojet had offered its EJ-200 engines for the LCA Mk II aircraft that is under development now.

The DRDO announcement comes a day after Defence Minister AK Antony returned here after a two-day visit to the US and met American Secretary of State Hillary Clinton and Defence Secretary Robert Gates among others. Get a Quote

This email is UNCLASSIFIED.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Jiloty, Lauren C <JilotyLC@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 7:59 AM
To: H
Subject: RE: Fwd:

Yes,
The Argentina desk is working this issue on your behalf. They are in touch with the sender of the letter (Mr. Ramer in California). The letter asks you to enter into a bilateral agreement with Argentina in order to rectify a Locally Employed Staffer's (in Argentina) personal tax predicament. I will also let Brian know that the department is in touch with his brother-in-law (the sender of the letter), in case he doesn't know already. - Lauren

-----Original Message-----
From: H [mailto:HDR22@clintonemail.com]
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 7:42 AM
To: 'Laurenjiloty [redacted] Jiloty, Lauren C
Subject: Fw: Fwd:

Did you follow up w Brian about this matter? I think you told me what you did, but I can't remember!

----- Original Message -----
From: Brian Greenspun [redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Thu Sep 09 03:00:17 2010
Subject: Fwd:

Hi Hillary,
Once again I am imposing on our friendship to get to you a matter that is important to my brother-in-law Bruce Ramer and, therefore , important to me. I am enclosing his note to me just so you can read how he really talks! I know his relationship with his friend [redacted] and can attest to the personal nature of his appeal. Thank you for whatever attention you give to this which, by my understanding, seems to be a simple matter of justice. Alas, nothing is simple. All the best, Brian

Begin forwarded message:

From: "Bruce M. Ramer" [redacted]
To: "Brian Greenspun" <[redacted]

Brian, I so appreciate your willingness to get my letter (attached, with attachments) into Hilary's hands.

This is purely an act of love for my friend [redacted] As I say in the letter to her, I am N OT acting as an attorney (or for any organization--see end of my letter), but only for a friend who is getting screwed (not the terminology of the letter).

You are more than welcome to read all of the enclosures. Naturally.

The attachments to this email should be: Ramer letter to Secretary Clinton, with an attachment of the letter from [redacted] tax lawyer (and three official attachments thereto--a letter from the IRS to the Argentine Embassy, a revenue ruling and a certification issued this year by the State Department. B6

My letter contains a brief summary of the situation and argument.

This is, as I said, very meaningful to me. Thank you for helping in an indispensible way.

Love to the Greenspun clan. Bruce

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 8:01 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: FYI-ZARDARI CALLS FOR FLOOD TAX

Fyi

----- Original Message -----
From: Holbrooke, Richard
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Thu Sep 30 07:53:06 2010
Subject: Fw: FYI-ZARDARI CALLS FOR FLOOD TAX

Jake--Given H's public comments on this issue, she should see this.

----- Original Message -----
From: Bommer, Ashley F
To: 'HolbrookeR@state.gov' <HolbrookeR@state.gov>
Sent: Thu Sep 30 04:54:51 2010
Subject: Fw: FYI-ZARDARI CALLS FOR FLOOD TAX

----- Original Message -----
From: Husain Haqqani [redacted] B6
To: Bommer, Ashley F
Sent: Thu Sep 30 01:16:01 2010
Subject: FYI-ZARDARI CALLS FOR FLOOD TAX

ZARDARI CALLS FOR FLOOD TAX

By Syed Irfan Raza

DAWN Thursday, 30 Sep, 2010

ISLAMABAD: President Asif Ali Zardari asked the government on Wednesday to levy a one-time flood tax on wealthy people.

"A one-time flood tax will have to be imposed on the well-off and people of means to help shore up relief and rehabilitation efforts," he said at a meeting of women ministers, parliamentarians and representatives of non-governmental organisations.

"Unless we are prepared to share bread with our grief- and disaster-stricken brethren, we should not expect others to help us.

"I have already advised the government to tap into indigenous resources wherever there is room," he said.

The president said that funds would be disbursed transparently and every citizen would have access to information relating to the aid received and distributed.

http://www.dawn.com/wps/wcm/connect/dawn-content-library/dawn/the-newspaper/front-page/president-calls-for-flood-tax-090
Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 8:47 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Haaretz) Palestinians expected to leave direct talks

From: Rudnitski, Jennine R
To: NEWS-NEA; NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_Shift-I; SES-O_Shift-II; SES-O_OS
Sent: Thu Sep 30 06:07:26 2010
Subject: (Haaretz) Palestinians expected to leave direct talks

(Haaretz) - The Palestinian leadership plans to meet October 2 and is expected to officially decide to end negotiations with Israel if the renewed West Bank settlement construction is not halted. Those expected to attend the meeting include representatives of the PLO workers committee, the Fatah central committee, and the heads of other political parties. After making a decision, the Palestinian leadership is expected to announce that the final decision of whether to leave the talks will be made by the Arab League, who are planning to discuss the issue October 4. The head of the Palestinian negotiation team, Saeb Erekat, said "there are no half-way solutions on the settlements issue." In a statement released to the press after meeting with U.S. Consul General Daniel Rubinstein, Erekat called on the American government and the European Union to force Israel to stop all construction in the West Bank and East Jerusalem, in order to give peace a chance. Egyptian Foreign Minister Ahmed Aboul Gheit said the Palestinians would not be able to remain in the peace talks after Israel's decision not to extend the moratorium. Gheit added that "despite the international efforts, I am not optimistic [about peace talks]".

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 11:07 AM
To: H
Subject: FW:

-----Original Message-----
From: williamsbarrett [redacted] B6
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 10:10 AM
To: Minyon Moore; Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: Re:

nice that the country he loves so much loves him back.
------Original Message------
From: Minyon Moore
To: Maggie Williams
To: Cheryl D Mills
Subject:
Sent: Sep 30, 2010 6:45 AM

Newsweek's Ben Adler: "Why is Bill Clinton So Much More Popular Than Barack Obama?" Here's a fun fact from the latest NBC/Wall Street Journal poll: Bill Clinton is the most popular political figure in the country.
The former president, who never won an outright majority of the popular vote and was impeached by Congress, enjoys a 55-23 favorable/unfavorable rating. Clinton left office with an approval rating of 68 percent according to the CBS poll at the time, so his continuing popularity is not surprising. LINK

Sent from my Verizon Wireless BlackBerry

RELEASE IN PART
B5, B6

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 10:43 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Dealing with Netanyahu

----- Original Message ----- B5
From: Feltman, Jeffrey D
To: Sullivan, Jacob J; Walles, Jacob; Hale, David M; Cunningham, James B; Schlicher, Ronald L
Sent: Thu Sep 30 09:02:27 2010
Subject: FW: Dealing with Netanyahu

Jeffrey Feltman
Assistant Secretary
Bureau of Near Eastern Affairs
Department of State
202-647-7209

-----Original Message-----
From: Martin Indyk [mailto: B6
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 8:59 AM
To: George Mitchell; Feltman, Jeffrey D
Subject: Dealing with Netanyahu

The principle conclusion from a quick visit to Israel and Ramallah over the weekend is that Netanyahu is in a strong position politically, with an unusually stable ruling coalition. Nobody I spoke with believed that the government would have fallen if he had decided to extend the settlement freeze before its expiry, as a gesture to U.S. peacemaking efforts. In their view, he could have easily garnered the support of a large majority of the people, for whom the settlers are a marginal concern. And this would have given him leverage over his ministers to ensure their support or abstention in the cabinet. As Dan Meridor noted, Likud voters are to the left of their Knesset members when it comes to peacemaking (70 percent support the two-state solution, vs only 50 percent of the leadership).

Lieberman, not the Likud, is Bibi's chief concern. He wants to keep him in the government for as long as possible for fear that when he leaves he will garner the support of those on the right, including from the Likud, who oppose peacemaking. For the time being, Bibi uses the threat of an alternative coalition with Kadima to keep Lieberman in the tent. But the clock is ticking. According to Tzipi Livni, she can bring her party into the government now, and is willing to do so without any demand for "rotation," provided Bibi is serious about negotiating peace. But as the elections grow closer, more and more of her party members are turning against the idea of joining the government. They are strengthened in their views by recent internal polling which shows Kadima with 32 seats (up from 28 now), Likud slightly down at 25, and Labor at only 5.

Therefore, if Bibi intends to make a deal with Abu Mazen, he will need to do so sooner rather than later. The longer he waits, the less leverage he has on Lieberman and the more likely Lieberman will break away to oppose him in the next elections.

In this context, Bibi's negotiating tactics become self-defeating. Believing that he is a great negotiator, and that he is operating in the Middle East bazaar, he inflates his requirements well beyond anything reasonable in the belief that this is the best way to secure the highest price. The process of bringing him down to a reasonable price uses up a lot of energy, uses up a lot of goodwill, humiliates his Palestinian negotiating partner, and raises doubts about his seriousness. In the end, under great pressure from all quarters, he will make the final concession, but only after wasting a lot of time, making everybody furious with him, and thereby securing no credit either with his supporters or negotiating partners. At heart, he seems to lack a generosity of spirit. This combines with his legendary fear of being seen as a "freier" (sucker) in front of his people to create a real problem in the negotiations, especially because he holds most of the cards.

This is further complicated by his introduction of the notion of "creative ideas." Thinking out of the box, as he likes to do, will only further delay the negotiations because the box is already well-defined. To attempt to broaden the parameters will generate mistrust of his intentions on the Palestinian side just when direct negotiations provide the opportunity to build trust.

The reason for dwelling on Bibi's psychology rather than his politics is that the latter all point in the direction of making a deal: the Israeli public is ready to get on with it; if Israel doesn't make a serious move, it will further delegitimize its standing internationally (something Bibi is deeply concerned about); Bibi needs President Obama in his corner to deal with the threat from Iran and to avoid punishment by the voters for mishandling relations with the U.S.; and if he doesn't make the deal with Abu Mazen now, he will have helped to advance the future he is most concerned about - a Hamas takeover of the Palestinian leadership.

Yuval Diskin was quite clear about this latter point. After praising the Palestinian security services to the sky (unusual for him) he told me that he had warned Bibi that at the moment they have a high motivation to prevent terror because they believe they are building their state. If that proves to be an illusion, the motivation will disappear and then he cannot guarantee security in the West Bank. He considers it quite possible that if Bibi doesn't quickly demonstrate his seriousness to Abu Mazen, he will resign because his honor has now been seriously damaged. He told Bibi that he cannot predict who will lead the Palestinians if Abu Mazen resigns, but that Salam Fayyad will likely have to go too.

What is to be done? I have no magic solution for what must be a deeply frustrating exercise for you. And please forgive me if what I recommend here is just repeating what you already know.

1. Put your arm around Bibi: he still thinks we are out to bring him down. There is no substitute for working with him, even though he makes it such a frustrating process. But the purpose of embracing him is to nudge him forward, not to buy into his exaggerated political fears or accept his inflated demands.

2. Try to find a way to make him understand that his negotiating tactics are counterproductive to his own purposes. The Obama Administration has done a great deal lately to underscore its concern for Israel's security, from the vote at the IAEA, to the sanctions on Iran, to the letter that Obama was willing to sign that accepted Bibi's security requirements. That should buy you credibility with him.

3. As his friend, paint a realistic picture of the strategic consequences of his negotiating tactics, particularly in terms of what is likely to happen to the PA leadership if he worries only about his politics and not at all about Abu Mazen's politics.

4. If all else fails, avoid recriminations in favor of a "clarifying moment." The world will of course blame Bibi. But you should avoid any kind of finger-pointing in favor of a repeated commitment to a negotiated solution and a willingness to engage with both sides in trying to make that happen, when they're ready. The Israeli public and the American Jewish Community should know how far the President was prepared to go and they should be allowed to draw their own conclusions. Bibi, Abu Mazen, and the Arab states need negotiations and time is not on the side of any of them. They will come back to the table sooner rather than later as long as we keep the door open.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, March 25, 2010 12:24 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Mack McLarty

Pls put him on my call list and call to ask how late tonight or early tomorrow I can call him.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, March 26, 2010 5:45 AM
To: 'sbwhoeop[redacted] B6
Subject: Re:

I have extended my congrats to all.

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop[redacted]
To: H
Sent: Mon Mar 22 00:11:45 2010
Subject:

I just want to drop you a note congratulating you on the vote tonight on health care, that whatever its imperfections the establishment of the principle is a vindication. You might take a moment of personal privilege tomorrow to express gratitude to Nancy Pelosi, the House, and the President for finally achieving the work of years. Sid

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, March 26, 2010 5:46 AM
To: 'slaughtera@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Brava!

What a week!

----- Original Message -----
From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Mar 22 10:14:46 2010
Subject: Brava!

The way you did the ending was pitch perfect. The headlines may about the Iran language, but you laid a powerful predicate for moving forward. AM

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, March 26, 2010 5:47 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Call with Secretary Clinton

Pls be sure that this # is on call list.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Thu Mar 25 22:46:22 2010
Subject: FW: Call with Secretary Clinton

From: Thomas F. McLarty [mailto: B6
Sent: Thursday, March 25, 2010 10:24 AM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: RE: Call with Secretary Clinton

Dear Cheryl,

Thanks for your trademark prompt, clear and courteous response. As always, it and you are appreciated knowing the demands of your responsibilities.

I fully realize that the Secretary is engaged (understatement of the year), so I will wait on and anticipate her call as soon as she has a convenient window to do so. The matters I would like to discuss with Hillary are very timely and important but not urgent.

. I will be available on my cell phone or through my assistant who will be traveling with me. Coordinates in London are as follows.

Mack:

[redacted]

B6

Claridge's: 020-7629-8860

Thank you.

Mack

From: Mills, Cheryl D [mailto:MillsCD@state.gov]
Sent: Wednesday, March 24, 2010 10:40 PM
To: Thomas F. McLarty
Subject: RE: Call with Secretary Clinton

Dear Mack:

Thank you for following up on this matter. I know she appreciated your conversation and has been concerned about this matter.

I will flag for Lona – this week is relatively hectic so it may be a weekend or next week call but will flag now as this issue is ripe.

Best.

cdm

From: Thomas F. McLarty [mailto[redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, March 24, 2010 10:24 AM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: Call with Secretary Clinton

Dear Cheryl,

Good morning on a consequential and indeed historic week in the life of our country given the passage of health care reform. President Obama was courageous, persevering and skilled in his leadership and efforts. Having said that, in my humble opinion, he would not have been successful had it not been for President Clinton's, Hillary's and our efforts in 1994. That's my story and I'm sticking to it, and I believe it's true.

I know this has been a particularly demanding week in the life of the Secretary and in your life as well. Having Netanyahu, AIPAC and a major trip to Mexico to fight the narco-traffickers is a formidable task even for Hillary Clinton.

Cheryl, I would like to respectfully request a brief meeting or phone call with Secretary Clinton following up on the conversation she initiated with me at the Vital Voices event regarding the IDB. It's my sense and belief that this matter needs to be carefully handled for a number of reasons including the longstanding friendship that both the Secretary and President Clinton have with Luis Alberto Moreno. I also have another important and timely matter (personal not business) that I would like to discuss with Hillary in our time together.

As I think you know, I try to be very judicious about these types of requests. I think 15 minutes either in person or by phone will be adequate to cover both of these subjects. As always, I appreciate your consideration relating to my request. Thank you and I'll await your guidance and direction.

Personally,

Mack

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, March 26, 2010 5:50 AM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Tonight

Is it too late to get a plane for tonight? (I have too much stuff!) If it is, I may prefer to shuttle back Sunday and fly to Ottawa straight from DC on Monday in order to get better organized for next week.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, March 26, 2010 7:23 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Kabul IG report

Were you able to get a copy of it?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, March 26, 2010 7:40 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Kabul IG report

I will call later.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri Mar 26 07:33:15 2010
Subject: Re: Kabul IG report

Yes. I will be finished going through it this morning before your meeting. Happy to discuss/report when you come in.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Fri Mar 26 07:23:02 2010
Subject: Kabul IG report

Were you able to get a copy of it?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, March 26, 2010 8:39 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Pan Arab Press Cartoons for Friday, March 26, 2010 from the London-based Media Outreach Center
Attachments: image005.jpg; Al-Quds, March 26, 2010.jpg; image005.jpg; Al-Quds, March 26, 2010.jpg

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: McHale, Judith A <McHaleJA@state.gov>
To: Otero, Maria <OteroM2@state.gov>; Waxman, Sharon L <WaxmanSL@state.gov>; DiMartino, Kitty <DiMartinoK@state.gov>
Sent: Fri Mar 26 08:10:33 2010
Subject: FW: Pan Arab Press Cartoons for Friday, March 26, 2010 from the London-based Media Outreach Center

From Al Quds should be the front piece of all our presentations !

RELEASE IN PART B5,B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, March 26, 2010 7:27 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Wynn Resorts as Sponsor

B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Fri Mar 26 18:33:24 2010
Subject: Fw: Wynn Resorts as Sponsor

---

From: Balderston, Kris M
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Fri Mar 26 17:25:30 2010
Subject: FW: Wynn Resorts as Sponsor

CM

Thghts

Kris

From: Haynie, Robert R
Sent: Friday, March 26, 2010 3:51 PM
To: Balderston, Kris M
Subject: FW: Wynn Resorts as Sponsor

What do you think?

From: TJ Woodley [mailto: ] B6
Sent: Friday, March 26, 2010 3:02 PM
To: Haynie, Robert R
Subject: Wynn Resorts as Sponsor

Robert,

Are you sure that the USA Pavilion would not be in a sponsorship by Wynn Resorts (specifically Wynn Macau)? There CFO, Matt Maddox, has expressed strong interest.

The Wynn Macau well known brand in China and Steve Wynn is an extremely popular figure in China. In addition, he is well respected and well though of by the Chinese leadership and business leaders. A sponsorship by Wynn would be well received.

I should be able to get an answer by early next week, but don't want to look foolish if they would be rejected.

TJ

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 12:00 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: CHICAGO (AP) - AP Sources: Emanuel to resign as White House chief of staff Friday, to begin Chicago mayor bid

---

From: Moore, Anna W
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_Shift-II; SES-O_OS
Sent: Thu Sep 30 11:58:32 2010
Subject: CHICAGO (AP) - AP Sources: Emanuel to resign as White House chief of staff Friday, to begin Chicago mayor bid

(Headline only.)

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 2:29 PM
To: H
Subject: FW: here is the article i mentioned where Merten's quote seems to substantiate the need for authorization language and that money has not moved

FYI

---

From: Curtis, Meghann A
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 2:05 PM
To: Klevorick, Caitlin B; Bulgrin, Julie K; Chartrand, Jennifer; Mcdonald, Kara C
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: RE: here is the article i mentioned where Merten's quote seems to substantiate the need for authorization language and that money has not moved

B5

---

From: Klevorick, Caitlin B
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 1:53 PM
To: Bulgrin, Julie K; Chartrand, Jennifer; Curtis, Meghann A
Subject: Re: here is the article i mentioned where Merten's quote seems to substantiate the need for authorization language and that money has not moved

---

From: Bulgrin, Julie K
To: Klevorick, Caitlin B; Chartrand, Jennifer; Curtis, Meghann A
Sent: Thu Sep 30 13:51:51 2010
Subject: RE: here is the article i mentioned where Merten's quote seems to substantiate the need for authorization language and that money has not moved

There's an indirect quote of Merten through Coburn's office.

---

From: Klevorick, Caitlin B
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 1:51 PM
To: Chartrand, Jennifer; Curtis, Meghann A
Cc: Bulgrin, Julie K

Subject: Re: here is the article i mentioned where Merten's quote seems to substantiate the need for authorization language and that money has not moved

There is no quote from merten in this article.

---

From: Sumilas, Michele [mailto:Michele.Sumilas@mail.house.gov]
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 1:38 PM
To: Chartrand, Jennifer
Subject: here is the article i mentioned where Merten's quote seems to substantiate the need for authorization language and that money has not moved

Haiti Still Waiting For Pledged U.S. Aid

JONATHAN M. KATZ and MARTHA MENDOZA | 09/29/10 02:54 AM | AP

Members of NGO Goal work in the Port-au-Prince streets on September 11, 2010. An United Nations report on the impoverished Caribbean state, where a magnitude 7.0 earthquake on January 12 killed 250,000 people, said criminal gangs are increasing their grip on many of the 1,300 camps where most of the estimated 1.3 million homeless are still based. It painted a desolate picture of Haiti's infrastructure, estimating that almost a quarter of the 230,000 buildings damaged, including about 150,000 hou

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — Nearly nine months after the earthquake, more than a million Haitians still live on the streets between piles of rubble. One reason: Not a cent of the $1.15 billion the U.S. promised for rebuilding has arrived.

The money was pledged by Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton in March for use this year in rebuilding. The U.S. has already spent more than $1.1 billion on post-quake relief, but without long-term funds, the reconstruction of the wrecked capital cannot begin.

With just a week to go before fiscal 2010 ends, the money is still tied up in Washington. At fault: bureaucracy, disorganization and a lack of urgency, The Associated Press learned in interviews with officials in the State Department, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the White House and the U.N. Office of the Special Envoy. One senator has held up a key authorization bill because of a $5 million provision he says will be wasteful.

Meanwhile, deaths in Port-au-Prince are mounting, as quake survivors scramble to live without shelter or food.

"There are truly lives at stake, and the idea that folks are spending more time finger-pointing than getting this solved is almost unbelievable," said John Simon, a former U.S. ambassador to the African Union who is now with the Center for Global Development, a Washington think tank.

Nor is Haiti getting much from other donors. Some 50 other nations and organizations pledged a total of $8.75 billion for reconstruction, but just $686 million of that has reached Haiti so far – less than 15 percent of the total promised for 2010-11.

The lack of funds has all but halted reconstruction work by CHF International, the primary U.S.-funded group assigned to remove rubble and build temporary shelters. Just 2 percent of rubble has been cleared and 13,000 temporary shelters have been built – less than 10 percent of the number planned.

The Maryland-based agency is asking the U.S. government for $16.5 million to remove more than 21 million cubic feet (600,000 cubic meters) of additional rubble and build 4,000 more temporary houses out of wood and metal.

"It's just a matter of one phone call and the trucks are out again. We have contractors ready to continue removing rubble. ... We have local suppliers and international suppliers ready to ship the amount of wood and construction materials we need," said CHF country director Alberto Wilde. "It's just a matter of money."

Story continues below
ADVERTISEMENT

Last week the inaction bore tragic results. On Friday an isolated storm destroyed an estimated 8,000 tarps, tents and shacks in the capital and killed at least six people, including two children. And the threat of violence looms as landowners threaten entire camps with forced eviction.

In Washington there is confusion about the money. At a July hearing, Ravij Shah, director of the U.S. Agency for International Development, thanked members of Congress for approving the funds, saying, "The resources are flowing and are being spent in country."

It wasn't true then, and still hasn't happened.

When the earthquake hit, U.S. agencies sent troops, rescuers, aid workers and supplies to the devastated capital, Port-au-Prince. On March 24, President Barack Obama asked Congress for $2.8 billion in emergency aid to Haiti – about half to pay back money already spent by USAID, the Defense Department and others. An additional $212 million was to write off debt.

The heart of the request was $1.15 billion in new reconstruction funds.

A week later, Clinton touted that figure in front of representatives of 50 nations at the U.N. secretariat, the president of Haiti at her side.

"If the effort to rebuild is slow or insufficient, if it is marked by conflict, lack of coordination or lack of transparency, then the challenges that have plagued Haiti for years could erupt with regional and global consequences," Clinton said.

That was nearly six months ago. It took until May for the Senate to pass a supplemental request for the Haiti funds and until July for the House to do the same. The votes made $917 million available but did not dictate how or when to spend it. Without that final step, the money remains in the U.S. Treasury.

Then came summer recess, emergencies in Pakistan and elsewhere, and the distractions of election politics.

Now the authorization bill that would direct how the aid is delivered remains sidelined by a senator who anonymously pulled it for further study. Through calls to dozens of senators' offices, the AP learned it was Sen. Tom Coburn, a Republican from Oklahoma.

"He is holding the bill because it includes an unnecessary senior Haiti coordinator when we already have one" in U.S. Ambassador Kenneth Merten, Coburn spokeswoman Becky Bernhardt said.

The bill proposes a new coordinator in Washington who would not oversee U.S. aid but would work with the USAID administrator in Washington to develop a rebuilding strategy. The position would cost $1 million a year for five years, including salaries and expenses for a staff of up to seven people.

With the bill on hold, the State Department is trying to move the money along by avoiding Congress as much as possible. It sent lawmakers a "spending plan" on Sept. 20 and gave legislators 15 days to review it. If they fail to act on the plan, the money could be released as soon as specific projects get the OK.

"We need to make sure that the needs of the Haitian people are not sacrificed to procedural and bureaucratic impediments," Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman John Kerry told the AP by e-mail. "As we approach nine months since the earthquake, further delays on any side are unacceptable."

Asked when the money will actually come, State Department spokesman Charles Luoma-Overstreet said the department expects to start spending in the coming weeks and months. He added that $275 million in "bridge" funds were released in March and have gone toward agriculture, work, health and shelter programs – not long-term reconstruction.

Haitian advocates say that is not enough.

Jean-Claude Bajeux of the Ecumenical Center for Human Rights in Port-au-Prince said this phase was supposed to be about building semi-permanent houses.

"Where are they? We haven't seen them," he said. "There is not much money that is being used. There is not much work that has actually been done."

Of course there is no guarantee that the money would lead to the successful rebuilding of Haiti. Many past U.S. aid efforts have fallen short.

"I don't think (the money) will make any difference," said Haitian human rights advocate Pierre Esperance. "Haitian people are not really involved in this process."

But officials agree the funds could pay for new approaches to make Haiti more sustainable, and rebuilding projects could improve millions of lives.

The AP found that $874 million of the funds pledged by other countries at the donors conference was money already promised to Haiti for work or aid before the quake. An additional $1.13 million wasn't ever going to be sent; it was debt relief. And $184 million was in loans to Haiti's government, not aid.

The Office of the Special Envoy has been tracking the money delivered so far but does not know who got it. The envoy himself, former President Bill Clinton, told the AP in July and again in August that he was putting pressure on donors to meet their pledges.

On the streets of Haiti, many simply feel abandoned. Mishna Gregoire, 22, said she was happy when she heard about the donors conference. But six months later she is still in a tarp city with 5,000 other people, on a foul-smelling plaza in the Port-au-Prince suburb of Petionville.

"I thought it was something serious they were really going to do," Gregoire said, standing amid tarps torn apart by the sudden storm. "But nothing has been done. And I don't think anything will be done."

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, March 27, 2010 8:25 AM
To: 'cheryl.mills[redacted]' 'millscd@state.gov' B6
Subject: Can you talk this am?

I'm free until 10:30 and after 1. Sorry I couldn't get back to you last night.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Campbell, Kurt M <CampbellKM@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 7:33 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Lee Kuan Yew on SCS

Madame Secretary -- a very sophisticated and supportive voice from Singapore. Kurt

----- Original Message -----
From: Heng Chee CHAN [redacted] B6
To: Campbell, Kurt M
Sent: Thu Sep 30 19:04:40 2010
Subject: Lee Kuan Yew on SCS

Message Classification: Unclassified

Kurt,

Minister Mentor spoke in a Singapore-russia dialogue held in Singapore. I think Secretary Clinton would like his comments.

Heng Chee

Headline: The way to solve border disputes: MM
Byline: JEREMY AU YONG
Publication: ST^ST
Date: Wednesday, 29 September 2010
Page: A4
(C) Singapore Press Holdings Limited

It's fair for smaller countries to turn to international conventions

MINISTER Mentor Lee Kuan Yew supports the use of international conventions to solve border disputes, especially when the countries involved are not of equal standing.

By way of illustration, he said it was "fair" for smaller countries like Vietnam to resolve disputes with China using conventions like Unclos – the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea.

He made the point at a dialogue of the Russia-Singapore Business Forum yesterday, when he was asked by former Japanese senator Kotaro Tamura to comment on the ongoing China-Japan dispute.

Mr Tamura, in his question, made his feelings clear, describing China as a "teenager" in its handling of the situation.

Adding that China was also pushing around other countries like those in South-east Asia, he asked if it was a good idea for countries with potential border problems to team up and take China into a multilateral negotiation.

Mr Lee, in his response, noted that multiparty negotiations had been proposed by United States Secretary of State Hillary Clinton in a visit to Vietnam this July.

But Mrs Clinton's statement had upset China, he added.

Mr Lee said: "It was a really quiet statement but I think it also drew a line, a red line which will not make the Chinese very happy.

"As you can see its foreign minister says it's none of America's business, it is a bilateral matter with the Philippines, with Brunei, with Vietnam."

The three South-east Asian countries, China and some others have all laid claim – either in whole or in part – to the Spratly Islands in the South China Sea.

But any bilateral negotiation with China is unlikely to be a fair fight, he said.

"So if you deal with China, and Vietnam with 100 million (people) and they've got 1,300 million, where is your punching power?" he asked.

He cited a 2008 dispute over a deal Vietnam made with US oil giant ExxonMobil to do oil exploration in contested waters.

"The Chinese told ExxonMobil: 'Move on or you'll get no business from China.' So ExxonMobil moved on," he said. That is why, he said, a multilateral, Unclos- based solution was just.

He stressed that negotiations needed to be based on internationally accepted rules.

Mrs Clinton, he said, probably did not act independently when making the statement in Hanoi and would have consulted her country's national security lobby and even the President.

He said the US policy made it clear that territorial claims were more complex than producing a map with dotted lines and saying: "All this is mine".

"I mean who produces this map? What is the authenticity of this map? Who kept it? And even if you can prove its antiquity, what does it show?

"It shows that at that time these countries were not independent and (were) under French, American or British or other rule and so they could not object.

"But now they're independent and they're entitled to protest. It's within their EEZ (exclusive economic zone); it's within their territorial waters," he said.

Mr Lee said the points made by the US in Hanoi draw an "important line against bilateral dealings which are unequal".

He also spoke on Japan's current spat with China, the worst between the two countries in years, which was sparked earlier this month when Japan detained a Chinese ship captain following a sea collision near the disputed Senkaku islands.

Japan, however, released the captain on Saturday.

Mr Lee felt that moving to settle the dispute was probably the right thing to do.

He said: "Supposing he (Japanese PM Naoto Kan) decided to do otherwise, then what? Then the Senkaku islands will become a dispute. Then they will send their navy there. Then you will send your navy there.

"And normally (you) have better ships than they have. But they will build an aircraft carrier. So in 10 years they have a bigger fleet than you have, so you have to factor that into your calculation.

"These are the realities of power."

B6

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 8:09 PM
To: H
Subject: My status

Mitchell and team leave at 5 tomorrow for Qatar. My inclination is that my value add to the team declines in making these Arab rounds, so I was thinking of flying back overnight tomorrow night. But if you believe I can be of use out here, I'm certainly prepared to stay.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 8:55 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Gas air ballon race

One of missing balloonist is [redacted]

----- Original Message -----
From: [redacted]
To: Toiv, Nora F; Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Thu Sep 30 17:46:51 2010
Subject: Re: Gas air ballon race

I cannot Thank you enough. I was just with [redacted] August

As I read the e mail It is hard to believe this is happening

[redacted] brother is also on his way. He is a pilot [redacted]

B6

[redacted]
Sent from my iP

On Sep 30, 2010, at 5:05 PM, "Toiv, Nora F" <ToivNF@state.gov> wrote:

> See below. I'll send you updates as I get them.
>
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Mull, Stephen D
> Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 2:40 PM
> To: Toiv, Nora F
> Subject: RE: Gas air ballon race
>
> Absolutely!
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Toiv, Nora F
> Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 13:30 PM
> To: Mull, Stephen D
> Subject: RE: Gas air ballon race
>
> Thank you Steve!
>
> Is it okay if I pass this info on [redacted]
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Mull, Stephen D
> Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 1:23 PM
> To: Toiv, Nora F

> Subject: RE: Gas air ballon race
>
> Nora, here's the latest:
>
> --Balloonists remain missing. Italian authorities continued the > search this morning at first light, but have encountered poor weather > and poor visibility.
>
> --The Sixth Fleet has reached out to the Italians and offered to > provide airplane support for the search using resources based in > Sicily. The Italian government has agreed to accept the assistance.
> The U.S. Navy is sending two planes to assist in the search (one from > Naples and one from Sigonella). The plane from Naples is a C-26 (a > passenger aircraft) and it should be lifting off this hour. Later > tonight, a P-3 (a maritime patrol plane) from Sigonella will be sent to the search area.
>
> --CA/OCS has been in contact with Governor Richardson's office.
> However, due to privacy act issues, CA/OCS told the Governor's office > that it cannot release certain information. However, CA/OCS stressed > that DOS is actively involved and knew about the incident immediately > after it occurred from race operators.
>
> --Consulate Naples reports they notified next of kin. [redacted]
> [redacted] is in England at race headquarters and [redacted]
> [redacted] is going to Rome today. [redacted] is > traveling with an Italian friend and will be met at the airport by the > balloon chase team and will proceed directly to Bari, where the > operations center overseeing the search is located. ConGen Naples has > been in touch with her directly and is working now with the GOI to > secure a permit for her to visit the operations center there. Consul > General Don Moore (whom Cheryl may remember from Haiti) is remaining > personally engaged [redacted] and the Italian authorities to > facilitate contacts and otherwise support.
>
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Toiv, Nora F
> Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 11:07 AM
> To: Mull, Stephen D
> Subject: FW: Gas air ballon race
>
> Saw your email. Is somebody here at State staying in touch [redacted]
> Thanks.
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: [redacted]
> Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 10:24 AM
> To: Toiv, Nora F
> Subject: Gas air ballon race
>
>
> [redacted]
> .please if you can give her call at [redacted] and her e mail is

B6

>
>
> I only have the information that she sent me and you have
>
>
> Sent from my iPad

B6

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, March 27, 2010 12:36 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Anything to report?

Call me at home thru Ops.

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, September 30, 2010 9:04 PM
To: H
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Martin Indyk sent this to Jeff Feltman -- very interesting analysis

Jake probably passed this on to you, but just in case, I think it's definitely worth reading – [redacted] A few comments from one of my staff members who has long experience with the Middle East follow. B5

From Martin: The principle conclusion from a quick visit to Israel and Ramallah over the weekend is that Netanyahu is in a strong position politically, with an unusually stable ruling coalition. Nobody I spoke with believed that the government would have fallen if he had decided to extend the settlement freeze before its expiry, as a gesture to U.S. peacemaking efforts. In their view, he could have easily garnered the support of a large majority of the people, for whom the settlers are a marginal concern. And this would have given him leverage over his ministers to ensure their support or abstention in the cabinet. As Dan Meridor noted, Likud voters are to the left of their Knesset members when it comes to peacemaking (70 percent support the two-state solution, vs only 50 percent of the leadership).

Lieberman, not the Likud, is Bibi's chief concern. He wants to keep him in the government for as long as possible for fear that when he leaves he will garner the support of those on the right, including from the Likud, who oppose peacemaking. For the time being, Bibi uses the threat of an alternative coalition with Kadima to keep Lieberman in the tent. But the clock is ticking. According to Tzipi Livni, she can bring her party into the government now, and is willing to do so without any demand for "rotation," provided Bibi is serious about negotiating peace. But as the elections grow closer, more and more of her party members are turning against the idea of joining the government. They are strengthened in their views by recent internal polling which shows Kadima with 32 seats (up from 28 now), Likud slightly down at 25, and Labor at only 5.

Therefore, if Bibi intends to make a deal with Abu Mazen, he will need to do so sooner rather than later. The longer he waits, the less leverage he has on Lieberman and the more likely Lieberman will break away to oppose him in the next elections.

In this context, Bibi's negotiating tactics become self-defeating. Believing that he is a great negotiator, and that he is operating in the Middle East bazaar, he inflates his requirements well beyond anything reasonable in the belief that this is the best way to secure the highest price. The process of bringing him down to a reasonable price uses up a lot of energy, uses up a lot of goodwill, humiliates his Palestinian negotiating partner, and raises doubts about his seriousness. In the end, under great pressure from all quarters, he will make the final concession, but only after wasting a lot of time, making everybody furious with him, and thereby securing no credit either with his supporters or negotiating partners. At heart, he seems to lack a generosity of spirit. This combines with his legendary fear of being seen as a "freier" (sucker) in front of his people to create a real problem in the negotiations, especially because he holds most of the cards.

This is further complicated by his introduction of the notion of "creative ideas." Thinking out of the box, as he likes to do, will only further delay the negotiations because the box is already well-defined. To attempt to broaden the parameters will generate mistrust of his intentions on the Palestinian side just when direct negotiations provide the opportunity to build trust.

The reason for dwelling on Bibi's psychology rather than his politics is that the latter all point in the direction of making a deal: the Israeli public is ready to get on with it; if Israel doesn't make a serious move, it will further delegitimize its standing internationally (something Bibi is deeply concerned about); Bibi needs President Obama in his corner to deal with the threat from Iran and to avoid punishment by the voters for mishandling relations with the U.S.; and if he doesn't make the deal with Abu Mazen now, he will have helped to advance the future he is most concerned about - a Hamas takeover of the Palestinian leadership.

Yuval Diskin was quite clear about this latter point. After praising the Palestinian security services to the sky (unusual for him) he told me that he had warned Bibi that at the moment they have a high motivation to prevent terror because they believe they are building their state. If that proves to be an illusion, the motivation will disappear and then he cannot guarantee security in the West Bank. He considers it quite possible that if Bibi doesn't quickly demonstrate his seriousness to Abu Mazen, he will resign because his honor has now been seriously damaged. He told Bibi that he cannot predict who will lead the Palestinians if Abu Mazen resigns, but that Salam Fayyad will likely have to go too.

What is to be done? I have no magic solution for what must be a deeply frustrating exercise for you. And please forgive me if what I recommend here is just repeating what you already know.

1. Put your arm around Bibi: he still thinks we are out to bring him down. There is no substitute for working with him, even though he makes it such a frustrating process. But the purpose of embracing him is to nudge him forward, not to buy into his exaggerated political fears or accept his inflated demands.

2. Try to find a way to make him understand that his negotiating tactics are counterproductive to his own purposes. The Obama Administration has done a great deal lately to underscore its concern for Israel's security, from the vote at the IAEA, to the sanctions on Iran, to the letter that Obama was willing to sign that accepted Bibi's security requirements. That should buy you credibility with him.

3. As his friend, paint a realistic picture of the strategic consequences of his negotiating tactics, particularly in terms of what is likely to happen to the PA leadership if he worries only about his politics and not at all about Abu Mazen's politics.

4. If all else fails, avoid recriminations in favor of a "clarifying moment." The world will of course blame Bibi. But you should avoid any kind of finger-pointing in favor of a repeated commitment to a negotiated solution and a willingness to engage with both sides in trying to make that happen, when they're ready. The Israeli public and the American Jewish Community should know how far the President was prepared to go and they should be allowed to draw their own conclusions. Bibi, Abu Mazen, and the Arab states need negotiations and time is not on the side of any of them. They will come back to the table sooner rather than later as long as we keep the door open.

From my staffer:

B5

B5

AM

Anne-Marie Slaughter
Director of Policy Planning
U.S. Department of State
(202) 647-2972

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 28, 2010 9:19 PM
To: 'Burnswj@state.gov'; 'wburns66 [redacted] B6
Cc: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Putin trip

Bill--My husband cannot go w PM Putin in mid-April because of his schedule, but he would be very interested in doing such events w the PM in the future. Will you pls pass on to the Russians? Thx. HRC

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, March 28, 2010 9:27 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: NPR

I've reviewed the memo from Bob and Derek and can agree w its comments but would like to know what Jim thinks.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, March 29, 2010 8:31 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: NPR

Ok. Thx.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Mar 29 08:30:17 2010
Subject: Re: NPR

Jim concurs in the memo recommendations.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sun Mar 28 21:26:42 2010
Subject: NPR

I've reviewed the memo from Bob and Derek and can agree w its comments but would like to know what Jim thinks.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, March 29, 2010 8:47 AM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Cc: H
Subject: Schedule

I have to meet w Baucus after the recess on trade issues

April 28--I want to meet w the Belgian FM

Did we ever get a date for Mort Zuckerman dinner for the Wiesels?

I'd like to meet w:

Phil Goldberg
Jackie Novogartz

I'd like to see Missy Kincaid when she and her family are here June 27-July 8.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, March 29, 2010 8:48 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Call list

Pls put the following on the list:

Walter Pincus (move him up from 12/9/08) Derek Harvey (move him up) Mona Ackerman (move from 9/24/08)

And take off the following:

Belgian FM
Height
Turkish FM
Lowey
Cannon
Rosen
Goldberg
McLarty (the 1/4 entry
Frist
Foxman
Stern
Rhodeen
Osteen
Straley
Jacobs
Magee

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, March 30, 2010 7:00 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'; 'preines [redacted] B6
Subject: Canada

A friend just emailed me telling me she was so sorry I had such a tough day in Canada. What's the news that suggests that back here?

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, March 30, 2010 7:09 PM
To: 'jake.sullivar ; 'preines B6
Subject: Re: Canada

Here's what she said:

Sounds like a tuff day in Canada. Sorry you have such a incredibly hard job but we do appreciate all you do.

Beats me.

----- Original Message -----
From: jake.sullivan <jake.sullivan
To: preines <preines ; H
Sent: Tue Mar 30 19:06:25 2010
Subject: Re: Canada

I haven't seen anything real in our press.

------Original Message------
From: PIR
To: Evergreen
Cc: Jake Sullivan
ReplyTo: preines
Subject: Re: Canada
Sent: Mar 30, 2010 7:01 PM

Just the stuff from yesterday. Maybe one of the cable nets or talking heads made a to do about it.

But I'm surprised because it didn't seem anyone here cared, was all Canada

------Original Message------
From: Evergreen
To: Jake Sullivan
To: PIR
Subject: Canada
Sent: Mar 30, 2010 6:59 PM

A friend just emailed me telling me she was so sorry I had such a tough day in Canada. What's the news that suggests that back here?

Sent from my BlackBerry® smartphone with SprintSpeed

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, March 31, 2010 10:20 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison

B6

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Wed Mar 31 10:09:09 2010
Subject: Fw: Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison

Fyi

---

From: Rodriguez, Miguel E
To: Abedin, Huma
Cc: Verma, Richard R
Sent: Wed Mar 31 09:55:03 2010
Subject: Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison

Not much of a surprise. Later this morning KBH will announce that she will NOT resign her Senate seat.

You'll recall that she had had promised during her gubernatorial campaign that, win or lose, she'd give up her seat.

Miguel E. Rodríguez

Deputy Assistant Secretary for Senate Affairs

Bureau of Legislative Affairs

U.S. Department of State

(202) 647-2645

rodriguezme@state.gov

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, March 31, 2010 10:44 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison

No.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Wed Mar 31 10:23:59 2010
Subject: Re: Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison

B6

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Wed Mar 31 10:20:18 2010
Subject: Re: Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Wed Mar 31 10:09:09 2010
Subject: Fw: Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison

Fyi

---

From: Rodriguez, Miguel E
To: Abedin, Huma
Cc: Verma, Richard R
Sent: Wed Mar 31 09:55:03 2010
Subject: Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison

Not much of a surprise. Later this morning KBH will announce that she will NOT resign her Senate seat.

You'll recall that she had had promised during her gubernatorial campaign that, win or lose, she'd give up her seat.

Miguel E. Rodríguez

Deputy Assistant Secretary for Senate Affairs

Bureau of Legislative Affairs

U.S. Department of State

(202) 647-2645

rodriguezme@state.gov

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, March 31, 2010 10:50 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Troika on Sudan

Ok. Did you see the latest FT article?

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Wed Mar 31 10:49:10 2010
Subject: Troika on Sudan

Team would like to release following statement. Okay by you?

MEDIA NOTE
Joint Statement on the Upcoming Sudan National Elections

Following is the text of a joint statement by U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton, Norwegian Foreign Minister Jonas Støre, and United Kingdom Foreign Secretary David Miliband on the upcoming national elections in Sudan.

Begin Text:

National elections in Sudan this month will represent a major milestone in the Comprehensive Peace Agreement that ended Sudan's twenty-two year civil war, and are an important opportunity for the people of Sudan to participate in the political process.

We urge all parties in Sudan to work urgently to ensure that elections can proceed peacefully and credibly in April. We are deeply concerned by reports of continued administrative and logistical challenges, as well as restrictions on political freedoms. We call on the Government of Sudan, the National Elections Commission, and all political parties to engage in further dialogue to resolve practical obstacles, procedural impediments, and address allegations of intimidation, harassment, and safety concerns, and other legitimate concerns raised by various political parties. We continue to urge the parties to improve conditions on the ground in Darfur and create a secure environment conducive to Darfuri participation.

Irrespective of the outcome of elections, it is essential that work continues and is accelerated to meet remaining CPA deadlines. Progress is needed urgently to complete border demarcation, to establish the commissions that will supervise the referenda for the South and Abyei, to conduct popular consultations in Blue Nile and Southern Kordofan, and to negotiate sustainable post-CPA arrangements in areas such as wealth-sharing, citizenship and assets, and liabilities.

We reiterate our commitment to ensure that the referenda must happen on schedule and that their outcomes need to be respected. It is time to redouble efforts to achieve these ends. We urge all parties in Sudan and all regional and international partners to work together to achieve the peaceful future that the people of Sudan deserve.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, March 31, 2010 10:52 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison

[redacted]

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Wed Mar 31 10:23:59 2010
Subject: Re: Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison

[redacted] B6

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Wed Mar 31 10:20:18 2010
Subject: Re: Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison

[redacted]

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Wed Mar 31 10:09:09 2010
Subject: Fw: Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison

Fyi

---

From: Rodriguez, Miguel E
To: Abedin, Huma
Cc: Verma, Richard R
Sent: Wed Mar 31 09:55:03 2010
Subject: Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison

Not much of a surprise. Later this morning KBH will announce that she will NOT resign her Senate seat.

You'll recall that she had had promised during her gubernatorial campaign that, win or lose, she'd give up her seat.

Miguel E. Rodríguez

Deputy Assistant Secretary for Senate Affairs

Bureau of Legislative Affairs

U.S. Department of State

(202) 647-2645

rodriguezme@state.gov

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, March 31, 2010 11:47 AM
To: 'cheryl.mills millscd@state.gov' B6
Subject: Fw: FT re NSC

------Original Message------
From: PIR
To: Evergreen
Subject: FT re NSC
Sent: Mar 31, 2010 11:02 AM

Sorry - the middle part most relevant to you was omitted from what I sent - here's the full article:

US Foreign Policy: Waiting on a Sun King By Edward Luce and Daniel Dombey Financial Times
Published: March 30 2010

For better or for worse, Washington has grown used to the fact that Barack Obama runs the most centralised – or "White House-centric" – administration since Richard Nixon. When Nixon wanted foreign policy advice, everyone knew where he got it from: Henry Kissinger, variously his national security adviser and secretary of state.

In contrast, Mr Obama has no big foreign policy strategist. Even insiders give different answers when asked to whom he turns for advice on the big international questions. But almost all agree with the following observation. "The truth is that President Obama is his own Henry Kissinger – no one else plays that role," says a senior official. "Every administration reflects the personality of the president. This president wants all the trains routed through the Oval Office."

Fifteen months after he took office, the character and structure of Mr Obama's foreign policy machinery is still evolving. But from interviews with dozens of insiders and outsiders, including senior officials both authorised and unauthorised to speak, and three former national security advisers, it is clear the buck not only stops with, but often floats for quite a long time around, Mr Obama himself.

Foreigners have complained about the tendency of his domestic agenda to crowd out the international one – the passage last week of healthcare reform was greeted with an audible sigh of relief among US allies. But within foreign policy itself, his centralised structure can also result in many issues being left on the back burner awaiting presidential attention, say critics.

"On the positive side, we have a very conscientious president who takes advice widely," says the official. "On the debit side, for all the president's intelligence, Barack Obama came to office with very little experience. He just doesn't have much depth on some issues."

The core of Mr Obama's foreign policy machinery is in the White House-based National Security Council, which advises the president and co-ordinates activities across an increasingly complex alphabet soup of Washington departments, military commands and intelligence agencies. The most widely questioned link in the chain is Jim Jones, whom, to many people's surprise, Mr Obama brought in as his national security adviser.

Only briefly acquainted with Mr Obama beforehand, General Jones, a retired four-star marine corps general, shows little interest in running the "inter-agency" process – a key part of the job. Somewhat unconventionally, Gen Jones travels frequently and is thus often out of town. Unusually, it is Mr Obama himself who usually chairs the weekly National Security Council, known as the "principals meeting", not Gen Jones.

Rahm Emanuel, Mr Obama's chief of staff, is also a key part of it. "If you were to ask me who the real national security adviser is, I would say there were three or four, of whom Rahm is one and of which Gen Jones is probably the least important," says another official.

Anyone who has dealt with Gen Jones speaks highly of his matter-of-factness, his geniality and the respect many foreign governments have for him – Pakistan and Israel among them. But as he himself admitted rather disarmingly last year, he does not have a taste for bureaucracy. Speaking at the Atlantic Council, a think-tank where he previously worked, Gen Jones provoked laughter when he said: "I fondly remember [the Atlantic Council] as a place where people actually did what you asked them to do. In my new role I'm finding out that an order is a basis for negotiation."

STATE AND DEFENCE DEPARTMENTS

An 'alliance of the unsackables' finds it can confront the inner circle

If there is a caveat to the depiction of the Obama administration as White House-centric, it is in the alliance between Hillary Clinton and Robert Gates, the president's secretaries of state and defence.

Mrs Clinton has proved one of the surprises of Barack Obama's tenure, forging a strong working relationship with her former rival and establishing herself as his chief foreign policy spokesperson internationally – if not at home, where Mr Obama's inner circle often seems to monopolise the explaining.

Mr Gates, who recently decided to stay for at least another year, is seen as unsackable, not least for the credibility he lends on issues ranging from missile defence to Guantánamo Bay and Afghanistan. As a holdover from the Bush administration, his national security bona fides are hard to dispute. It is no coincidence that Mrs Clinton is probably the only other unsackable cabinet member.

The combination has made itself felt in some of the administration's most significant debates, notably on Afghanistan, where both successfully urged the deployment of more troops."

Gates and Clinton happen to like each other, which no one really predicted," says one official, who notes that while the traditional role of the NSC is to "play referee" between the state and defence departments, it is as often nowadays a combination of the two against the White House. This is very different from how it worked when Donald Rumsfeld and Colin Powell held those positions."We work together well," Mr Gates said at an appearance with Mrs Clinton on CNN last year. "I think it starts with, frankly, based on my experience, the secretary of defence being willing to acknowledge that the secretary of state is the principal spokesperson for United States foreign policy."

Their outlooks often overlap. From the Pentagon, Mr Gates has long called for more US spending on diplomacy. As chief diplomat, Mrs Clinton has adopted a muscular approach. On Iran, both favour tough sanctions; on Russia, both have sought to reassure Moscow's neighbours even while improving relations with the Kremlin.

But for all their workmanlike co-operation, there is no escaping the fact that Mrs Clinton is not part of the Obama inner circle – a traditionally helpful feature in that job. There is also a constant "residue of friction" between Mr Obama's and Mrs Clinton's teams, according to insiders. For example, Cheryl Mills, Mrs Clinton's chief of staff, has had several run-ins with others in the administration.

One official describes Mrs Clinton as "totally loyal" to Mr Obama. He adds: "She and the president are not the best of friends – how could they be? But she totally respects the presidency – she was married to a president and she wanted to be one. . . She still might be."

The lack of a strong national security adviser has created recurring difficulties. Perhaps the best example is the Arab-Israeli peace process, which Mr Obama launched on his second day in office when he appointed George Mitchell as his envoy. Three months later, Mr Obama insisted Benjamin Netanyahu freeze all settlements activity in order to boost Arab confidence in the talks.

In a heated showdown in the Oval Office last May, in which Mr Netanyahu refused to accede to Mr Obama's demand, the only officials present were Mr Emanuel and David Axelrod, senior adviser to Mr Obama in office and during the campaign. Gen Jones was not there. The fallout put the talks in abeyance and damped high Arab hopes for Mr Obama.

"The question is, which bright spark advised the president to demand a settlements freeze without working out what the next step should be when Netanyahu inevitably said 'No'?" says Leslie Gelb, an official in the Carter administration and former head of the Council on Foreign Relations. "Why wasn't George Mitchell in the room? Where was Jones?"Mr Obama's character is also stamped on the inter-agency process, set up and managed by Tom Donilon, deputy national security adviser. The nitty-gritty of foreign policy-making is done at these frequent "deputies' meetings", which can sometimes consume four to six hours a day.

Described by one insider as "the most powerful man in the White House whose name isn't widely known", Mr Donilon, who was an official in the Clinton administration, is the man who keeps Mr Obama's trains running on time. And there are a lot of trains. Last year, Mr Donilon held 270 deputies meetings – a workload described as "clinically insane" by a former senior diplomat under Bill Clinton.

But as time goes on, it is becoming streamlined – now taking up roughly two to three hours a day, say officials. "People forget that we inherited two wars, terrorism threats, and perhaps the biggest single eight-year decline [George W. Bush's two terms] in America's power and reputation in our history," says a senior official. "It took time to put in place a process that could deal with the very complex decisions we had to take."

Also the organiser of Mr Obama's 9.30am national security briefing, Mr Donilon reinstated the paper trails needed to prevent intra-governmental anarchy, using the model de-vised by Brent Scowcroft, national se-curity adviser to George Bush senior and Gerald Ford. Vice-president Joe Biden's team was also incorporated to prevent the kind of "parallel process" Dick Cheney used to circumvent the bureaucracy under George W. Bush.

"If you look for the 2002 or 2003 meeting where the decision to go to war in Iraq was taken, you cannot find it," says the senior official. "By getting the process right, we are improving the quality of decisions."

The deputies' ties go back years. For example, the families of Mr Donilon and Jim Steinberg, deputy secretary of state, often go on holiday together. Mr Donilon's wife, Cathy Russell, is chief of staff to Jill Biden, the vice-president's wife. Mr Steinberg's wife, Sherburne Abbott, is deputy to John Holdren, Mr Obama's chief scientific adviser.

All those who regularly attend, including Michèle Flournoy, a senior Pentagon official, and Susan Rice, the US ambassador to the United Nations, have known each other since at least 1993, when they started off in the Clinton administration. This is just as well, since they spend half their lives together:

"A lot of work gets done in that group," says Ms Flournoy. "Sometimes it feels like shovelling coal to keep the fires going."

The refurbished machinery was perhaps most in evidence during the build-up to Mr Obama's decision in December to send another 30,000 US troops to Afghanistan – a journey that took four months and involved him in 40 hours of Oval Office meetings.

But the very diligence of the process crowded out Mr Obama's time to focus on other crises – of which there are many. "Time is the most precious commodity a president has," says a for-mer national security ad-viser.

"On average he is only going to have 45 minutes a day for foreign policy, so you want to make sure it is well spent."

The widely expected departure of Gen Jones before the end of the year has also created rivalries within the engine room. Those who are thought to have ambitions to replace him include Mr Steinberg, Ms Rice, Mr Donilon and Denis McDonough, NSC chief of staff and the foreign policy official who is personally closest to Mr Obama. Although all are widely respected, none is considered a big strategic thinker in the Kissinger or Scowcroft mould.

Described by Mr Gelb as Mr Obama's "Lord High Executioner", Mr McDonough "has appended himself to the Chicago crowd", says another official. Mr McDonough's widely feared role highlights some of the contradictions of Mr Obama's foreign policy apparatus.

Once an adviser to former Senate majority leader Tom Daschle, Mr McDonough was frequently at Mr Obama's side during the campaign. Insiders describe him as the "en-forcer" and as the keeper of "message discipline", a key element of any campaign but something that can drastically slow the wheels of government.

"McDonough is the guy from the campaign and the one who plays basketball with the president – they're very close," says an official. "Instead of Jim Jones telling McDonough what the president thinks, it is the other way round."

Indeed, if Mr Obama's highly centralised foreign policy machine had a face, it would be Mr McDonough's. "Donilon has been perceived to make the process inclusive and give everyone a seat at the table," says David Rothkopf, a former Clinton official and scholar on the NSC. "Fairly or not, McDonough has been perceived as representing a process that was taking place in another room, among the inner circle, at a table to which most weren't invited."Mr Obama has built a machine in which all roads lead to and from him. On the minus side, that means a lot of lower-level meetings without decisions. It also means neglecting issues that cannot be squeezed into his diary, such as trade policy, which continues to drift; or relations with India, which are unnecessarily tense.

And it means that the fingerprints of Mr Obama's political inner circle are detected by the rumour mill even when they are absent, such as on the president's decision to begin the troop withdrawal from Afghanistan in July 2011 – a recommendation that came from Robert Gates, secretary of defence.

On the plus side, Mr Obama has a sharp learning curve, which means his administration continues to evolve. On the plus side also, if it has to be White House-centric, it is perhaps better with him as the Sun King than, say, Nixon or George W. Bush."At the end of each meeting, the president summarises what everyone has said and the arguments each has made with a real lawyer's clarity," says a participant to the NSC principals meeting, which includes Mr Gates and Mrs Clinton. "When the president finally makes a decision, it is with the full facts and usually shows a high calibre of judgment."

When Mr Obama makes a decision, that is.

###

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, March 31, 2010 4:36 PM
To: 'sbwhoeop[redacted] B6
Subject: Re: H: In case you haven't seen this in today's FT. Sid

Saw it. What do you make of it?

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop[redacted] <sbwhoeop[redacted]
To: H
Sent: Wed Mar 31 16:28:04 2010
Subject: H: In case you haven't seen this in today's FT. Sid http://www.ft.com/cms/s/0/df53a396-3c2a-11df-b40c-00144feabdc0.html

* Skip to main content, accesskey 's' <http://www.ft.com/cms/s/df53a396-3c2a-11df-b40c-00144feabdc0,dwp_uuid=03d100e8-2fff-11da-ba9f-00000e2511c8,print=yes.html#access-content>
* Homepage, accesskey '1' <http://www.ft.com>

Financial Times FT.com

FT.com logo <http://media.ft.com/FTCOM/Images/ftlogo2.gif>
<http://media.ft.com/t.gif> COMMENT

<http://media.ft.com/t.gif> Analysis

* Close <http://www.ft.com/cms/s/df53a396-3c2a-11df-b40c-00144feabdc0,dwp_uuid=03d100e8-2fff-11da-ba9f-00000e2511c8,print=yes.html#>

<http://www.ft.com/cms/s/df53a396-3c2a-11df-b40c-00144feabdc0,dwp_uuid=03d100e8-2fff-11da-ba9f-00000e2511c8,print=yes.html#>

US foreign policy: Waiting on a sun king

By Edward Luce and Daniel Dombey
Published: March 30 2010 22:22 | Last updated: March 30 2010 22:22 barack obama on the great wall of china <http://media.ft.com/cms/37d96f42-3c0c-11df-9412-00144feabdc0.jpg>
Barack Obama at the Great Wall of China last year. Unlike his predecessor Richard Nixon, who turned to Henry Kissinger for advice, the US president has no big foreign policy strategist

For better or for worse, Washington has grown used to the fact that Barack Obama <http://www.ft.com/indepth/obama-presidency> runs the most centralised – or "White House-centric" – administration since Richard Nixon. When Nixon wanted foreign policy advice, everyone knew where he got it from: Henry Kissinger, variously his national security adviser and secretary of state.

In contrast, Mr Obama has no big foreign policy strategist. Even insiders give different answers when asked to whom he turns for advice on the big international questions. But almost all agree with the following observation. "The truth is that President Obama is his own Henry Kissinger – no one else plays that role," says a senior official. "Every administration reflects the personality of the president. This president wants all the trains routed through the Oval Office."

Fifteen months after he took office, the character and structure of Mr Obama's foreign policy machinery is still evolving. But from interviews with dozens of insiders and outsiders, including senior officials both authorised and unauthorised to speak, and three former national security advisers, it is clear the buck not only stops with, but often floats for quite a long time around, Mr Obama himself.

Foreigners have complained about the tendency of his domestic agenda to crowd out the international one – the passage last week of healthcare reform <http://www.ft.com/indepth/us-healthcare-reform> was greeted with an audible sigh of relief among US allies. But within foreign policy itself, his centralised structure can also result in many issues being left on the back burner awaiting presidential attention, say critics.

"On the positive side, we have a very conscientious president who takes advice widely," says the official. "On the debit side, for all the president's intelligence, Barack Obama came to office with very little experience. He just doesn't have much depth on some issues."

The core of Mr Obama's foreign policy machinery is in the White House-based National Security Council, which advises the president and co-ordinates activities across an increasingly complex alphabet soup of Washington departments, military commands and intelligence agencies. The most widely questioned link in the chain is Jim Jones <http://www.ft.com/cms/s/0c0c8c5a-c002-11dd-9222-0000779fd18c.html> , whom, to many people's surprise, Mr Obama brought in as his national security adviser.

Only briefly acquainted with Mr Obama beforehand, General Jones, a retired four-star marine corps general, shows little interest in running the "inter-agency" process – a key part of the job. Somewhat unconventionally, Gen Jones travels frequently and is thus often out of town. Unusually, it is Mr Obama himself who usually chairs the weekly National Security Council, known as the "principals meeting", not Gen Jones.

Rahm Emanuel, Mr Obama's chief of staff, is also a key part of it. "If you were to ask me who the real national security adviser is, I would say there were three or four, of whom Rahm is one and of which Gen Jones is probably the least important," says another official.

Anyone who has dealt with Gen Jones speaks highly of his matter-of-factness, his geniality and the respect many foreign governments have for him – Pakistan and Israel among them. But as he himself admitted rather disarmingly last year, he does not have a taste for bureaucracy. Speaking at the Atlantic Council, a think-tank where he previously worked, Gen Jones provoked laughter when he said: "I fondly remember [the Atlantic Council] as a place where people actually did what you asked them to do. In my new role I'm finding out that an order is a basis for negotiation."

The lack of a strong national security adviser has created recurring difficulties. Perhaps the best example is the Arab-Israeli peace process, which Mr Obama launched on his second day in office when he appointed George Mitchell <http://www.ft.com/cms/s/0/b904d928-29ef-11df-b940-00144feabdc0.html> as his envoy. Three months later, Mr Obama insisted Benjamin Netanyahu freeze all settlements activity in order to boost Arab confidence in the talks.

In a heated showdown in the Oval Office <http://www.ft.com/cms/s/159f9c90-43e1-11de-a9be-00144feabdc0.html> last May, in which Mr Netanyahu refused to accede to Mr Obama's demand, the only officials present were Mr Emanuel and David Axelrod, senior adviser to Mr Obama in office and during the campaign. Gen Jones was not there. The fallout put the talks in abeyance and damped high Arab hopes for Mr Obama.

"The question is, which bright spark advised the president to demand a settlements freeze without working out what the next step should be when Netanyahu inevitably said 'No'?" says Leslie Gelb, an official in the Carter administration and former head of the Council on Foreign Relations. "Why wasn't George Mitchell in the room? Where was Jones?"

Mr Obama's character is also stamped on the inter-agency process, set up and managed by Tom Donilon, deputy national security adviser. The nitty-gritty of foreign policy-making is done at these frequent "deputies' meetings", which can sometimes consume four to six hours a day.

Described by one insider as "the most powerful man in the White House whose name isn't widely known", Mr Donilon, who was an official in the Clinton administration, is the man who keeps Mr Obama's trains running on time. And there are a lot of trains. Last year, Mr Donilon held 270 deputies meetings – a workload described as "clinically insane" by a former senior diplomat under Bill Clinton.

But as time goes on, it is becoming streamlined – now taking up roughly two to three hours a day, say officials. "People forget that we inherited two wars, terrorism threats, and perhaps the biggest single eight-year decline [George W. Bush's two terms] in America's power and reputation in our history," says a senior official. "It took time to put in place a process that could deal with the very complex decisions we had to take."

Also the organiser of Mr Obama's 9.30am national security briefing, Mr Donilon reinstated the paper trails needed to prevent intra-governmental anarchy, using the model de-vised by Brent Scowcroft, national se-curity adviser to George Bush senior and Gerald Ford. Vice-president Joe Biden's team was also incorporated to prevent the kind of "parallel process" Dick Cheney used to circumvent the bureaucracy under George W. Bush.

"If you look for the 2002 or 2003 meeting where the decision to go to war in Iraq was taken, you cannot find it," says the senior official. "By getting the process right, we are improving the quality of decisions."

The deputies' ties go back years. For example, the families of Mr Donilon and Jim Steinberg, deputy secretary of state, often go on holiday together. Mr Donilon's wife, Cathy Russell, is chief of staff to Jill Biden, the vice-president's wife. Mr Steinberg's wife, Sherburne Abbott, is deputy to John Holdren, Mr Obama's chief scientific adviser.

All those who regularly attend, including Michèle Flournoy, a senior Pentagon official, and Susan Rice, the US ambassador to the United Nations, have known each other since at least 1993, when they started off in the Clinton administration. This is just as well, since they spend half their lives together: "A lot of work gets done in that group," says Ms Flournoy. "Sometimes it feels like shovelling coal to keep the fires going."

The refurbished machinery was perhaps most in evidence during the build-up to Mr Obama's decision in December to send another 30,000 US troops to Afghanistan – a journey that took four months and involved him in 40 hours of Oval Office meetings.

But the very diligence of the process crowded out Mr Obama's time to focus on other crises – of which there are many. "Time is the most precious commodity a president has," says a for-mer national security ad-viser. "On average he is only going to have 45 minutes a day for foreign policy, so you want to make sure it is well spent."

The widely expected departure of Gen Jones before the end of the year has also created rivalries within the engine room. Those who are thought to have ambitions to replace him include Mr Steinberg, Ms Rice, Mr Donilon and Denis McDonough, NSC chief of staff and the foreign policy official who is personally closest to Mr Obama. Although all are widely respected, none is considered a big strategic thinker in the Kissinger or Scowcroft mould.

Described by Mr Gelb as Mr Obama's "Lord High Executioner", Mr McDonough "has appended himself to the Chicago crowd", says another official. Mr McDonough's widely feared role highlights some of the contradictions of Mr Obama's foreign policy apparatus.

Once an adviser to former Senate majority leader Tom Daschle, Mr McDonough was frequently at Mr Obama's side during the campaign. Insiders describe him as the "en-forcer" and as the keeper of "message discipline", a key element of any campaign but something that can drastically slow the wheels of government.

"McDonough is the guy from the campaign and the one who plays basketball with the president – they're very close," says an official. "Instead of Jim Jones telling McDonough what the president thinks, it is the other way round."

Indeed, if Mr Obama's highly centralised foreign policy machine had a face, it would be Mr McDonough's. "Donilon has been perceived to make the process inclusive and give everyone a seat at the table," says David Rothkopf, a former Clinton official and scholar on the NSC. "Fairly or not, McDonough has been perceived as representing a process that was taking place in another room, among the inner circle, at a table to which most weren't invited."

Mr Obama has built a machine in which all roads lead to and from him. On the minus side, that means a lot of lower-level meetings without decisions. It also means neglecting issues that cannot be squeezed into his diary, such as trade policy, which continues to drift; or relations with India, which are unnecessarily tense.

And it means that the fingerprints of Mr Obama's political inner circle are detected by the rumour mill even when they are absent, such as on the president's decision to begin the troop withdrawal from Afghanistan <http://www.ft.com/cms/s/c4efd1d6-df74-11de-98ca-00144feab49a.html> in July 2011 – a recommendation that came from Robert Gates, secretary of defence.

On the plus side, Mr Obama has a sharp learning curve, which means his administration continues to evolve. On the plus side also, if it has to be White House-centric, it is perhaps better with him as the Sun King than, say, Nixon or George W. Bush.

"At the end of each meeting, the president summarises what everyone has said and the arguments each has made with a real lawyer's clarity," says a participant to the NSC principals meeting, which includes Mr Gates and Mrs Clinton. "When the president finally makes a decision, it is with the full facts and usually shows a high calibre of judgment."

When Mr Obama makes a decision, that is.

STATE AND DEFENCE DEPARTMENTS

An 'alliance of the unsackables' finds it can confront the inner circle

If there is a caveat to the depiction of the Obama administration as White House-centric, it is in the alliance between Hillary Clinton and Robert Gates, the president's secretaries of state and defence.

Mrs Clinton has proved one of the surprises of Barack Obama's tenure, forging a strong working relationship with her former rival and establishing herself as his chief foreign policy spokesperson internationally – if not at home, where Mr Obama's inner circle often seems to monopolise the explaining.

Mr Gates, who recently decided to stay for at least another year, is seen as unsackable, not least for the credibility he lends on issues ranging from missile defence to Guantánamo Bay and Afghanistan. As a holdover from the Bush administration, his national security bona fides are hard to dispute. It is no coincidence that Mrs Clinton is probably the only other unsackable cabinet member.

The combination has made itself felt in some of the administration's most significant debates, notably on Afghanistan, where both successfully urged the deployment of more troops.

"Gates and Clinton happen to like each other, which no one really predicted," says one official, who notes that while the traditional role of the NSC is to "play referee" between the state and defence departments, it is as often nowadays a combination of the two against the White House. This is very different from how it worked when Donald Rumsfeld and Colin Powell held those positions.

"We work together well," Mr Gates said at an appearance with Mrs Clinton on CNN last year. "I think it starts with, frankly, based on my experience, the secretary of defence being willing to acknowledge that the secretary of state is the principal spokesperson for United States foreign policy."

Their outlooks often overlap. From the Pentagon, Mr Gates has long called for more US spending on diplomacy. As chief diplomat, Mrs Clinton has adopted a muscular approach. On Iran, both favour tough sanctions; on Russia, both have sought to reassure Moscow's neighbours even while improving relations with the Kremlin.

But for all their workmanlike co-operation, there is no escaping the fact that Mrs Clinton is not part of the Obama inner circle – a traditionally helpful feature in that job. There is also a constant "residue of friction" between Mr Obama's and Mrs Clinton's teams, according to insiders. For example, Cheryl Mills, Mrs Clinton's chief of staff, has had several run-ins with others in the administration.

One official describes Mrs Clinton as "totally loyal" to Mr Obama. He adds: "She and the president are not the best of friends – how could they be? But she totally respects the presidency – she was married to a president and she wanted to be one ... She still might be."

Copyright <http://www.ft.com/servicestools/help/copyright> The Financial Times Limited 2010. Print a single copy of this article for personal use. Contact us <http://ftcorporate.ft.com/contact-us.html> if you wish to print more to distribute to others.
<http://track.ft.com/track/track.js?javascript=disabled> <http://stats.ft.com/si/track.gif?WT.js=No>
"FT" and "Financial Times" are trademarks of the Financial Times. Privacy policy
<http://www.ft.com/servicestools/help/privacy> | Terms <http://www.ft.com/servicestools/help/terms>
© Copyright The Financial Times <http://www.ft.com/servicestools/help/copyright> Ltd 2010.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, March 31, 2010 7:29 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'; 'cheryl.mills [redacted] B6
Subject: KUDOS!

You did a fabulous job and everybody knew this would not have succeeded w/out your leadership. Onward.

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 07/01/2025

RELEASE IN PART
B1,1.4(D),B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, July 1, 2010 5:56 AM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Preval rejects US Advice on Presidential election and respond to Lugar's report

[redacted] 1.4(D) B1

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Thu Jul 01 05:44:51 2010
Subject: Fw: Preval rejects US Advice on Presidential election and respond to Lugar's report

---

From: Guy Noel [redacted] B6
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Wed Jun 30 22:44:31 2010
Subject: Preval rejects US Advice on Presidential election and respond to Lugar's report

A PALI PAPA..PONYET PREVAL GONFLE
==========

Preval rejects US advice on presidential election

By JONATHAN M. KATZ (AP) – 2 hours ago

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — Haiti's president on Wednesday rejected U.S. Senate recommendations on holding an election for his successor, brushing off criticism that the current process will leave the shattered country without a credible leader.

A report issued this month by Sen. Richard Lugar, the ranking Republican on the U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee, "strongly encourages" Haiti to let its international partners help restructure the eight-member Provisional Electoral Council, which has been accused of corruption.

The report also recommends ensuring the participation of the key opposition party of ousted former President Jean-Bertrand Aristide, which was blocked from participating in 2009 legislative contests because of a dispute over rival candidate lists.

On Tuesday, President Rene Preval fulfilled one recommendation of the report by issuing a signed decree setting election day for Nov. 28.

But speaking at a news conference in an open-air gazebo alongside the broken remains of the national palace a day later, Preval told reporters he had no intention of complying with the rest, including changing the election body, known as the CEP.

"I'm not doing the CEP with international partners. I'm doing the CEP with national partners," Preval said. "The senator's proposition is inadmissible."

Seeking to show the council was not "hand-picked," as he said in English, Preval handed out copies of nomination letters for the panel's members submitted by various national and religious organizations, including the National Council of Political Parties, Roman Catholic Church and National Confederation of Haitian Vodou.

He also defended the prohibition on the exiled Aristide's Fanmi Lavalas party in last year's elections, a ban that came after rival factions of the party submitted competing lists of candidates.

"International donors need to look for an accord with the CEP and the political parties and the factions of Fanmi Lavalas," Preval said. "We are giving (the parties) the support that they need, and the factions need to figure it out (for themselves)."

Preval did not discuss the forced resignation of an electoral council member accused of stealing a staffer's pay or opponents' allegations that the council gave special privileges to the president's newly formed Unity Party ahead of planned Feb. 28 legislative elections, which were postponed because of the Jan. 12 earthquake that devastated the capital.

He also declined to answer questions about another U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee report that criticizes Haiti's earthquake recovery, saying he would address that issue at a news conference on reconstruction next week.

Elections have never been easy in Haiti, a country whose founding president crowned himself emperor. It took 186 years to hold what the international community considered a democratic election in 1990, which was then closely followed by a coup d'etat.

Preval, in fact, is the only Haitian ever to be elected president, serve a full term and hand off power to an elected successor. Unable to run for re-election in the November contest, he pledged to relinquish power again as he did in the 1990s — after protesters alleged earlier this year that he was dragging his feet on holding presidential the election.

Doing so will require significant help. The electoral council's headquarters were destroyed and its records lost in the quake, while millions of voters were either killed, made homeless or displaced. Its new headquarters is a former Gold's Gym seized by drug agents.

The election will also be a cost burden for this grindingly poor Caribbean nation: $29 million according to electoral officials at the news conference with Preval, $38 million according to the U.S. Senate report.

The Organization of American States and United Nations have pledged support. U.N. Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon issued a statement Wednesday praising the decree setting the election date and pledged the help of U.N. peacekeepers and advisers in preparing and supporting the ballot. Ban urged member states to quickly provide the money needed to run the vote.

Copyright © 2010 The Associated Press. All rights reserved.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, July 1, 2010 11:09 AM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'; 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: fyi

Let's discuss.

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop <sbwhoeop
To: H
Cc: cheryl.mills <cheryl.mills B6
Sent: Thu Jul 01 11:06:04 2010
Subject: fyi

<http://coteret.com/author/didiremez/>
Maariv: Netanyahu won't meet Clinton; 'sources' say she "isn't relevant" <http://coteret.com/2010/07/01/maariv-netanyahu-wont-meet-clinton-sources-say-she-isnt-relevant/>

Didi Remez <http://coteret.com/author/didiremez/> | July 1, 2010 at 15:25 | Categories: Diplomacy <http://coteret.com/category/diplomacy/> | URL: http://wp.me/pHlQV-Ep

Do they honestly think that publicizing a quote like this, on record or off, works to their advantage?

Israeli diplomatic [euphemism for Prime Minister's Office -- DR] sources said: "Clinton isn't relevant and is out of the circle of influence. Mitchell has taken over the peace process to a great extent and Obama, in any event, is the important person in this story because he is the one who decides."

---

<http://didiremez.files.wordpress.com/2009/11/maariv.gif>
<http://didiremez.files.wordpress.com/2009/11/maariv.gif>
<http://didiremez.files.wordpress.com/2009/11/maariv.gif> Netanyahu to meet Obama, but not Clinton
Eli Bardenstein, Maariv, July 1 2010 [page 7; Hebrew original here and at bottom of post]
<http://www.scribd.com/doc/33775924/Maariv-Jul01-10-Netanyahu-Will-Not-Meet-Clinton>
<http://www.scribd.com/doc/33775924/Maariv-Jul01-10-Netanyahu-Will-Not-Meet-Clinton>
<http://www.scribd.com/doc/33775924/Maariv-Jul01-10-Netanyahu-Will-Not-Meet-Clinton> Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu is to leave next week for Washington, where he will meet with US President Barack Obama. Rather curiously, he is not scheduled to meet with Secretary of State Hillary Clinton in the course of his visit to Washington.

Contrary to his previous visit in March, this time the US administration intends to create the impression, outwardly at least, that the severe crisis in the relationship has passed and that the relations between the two countries are as strong as ever. In order to bolster that impression, the two leaders will meet the media together and will be photographed. As opposed to the previous time, Netanyahu will also be put up at Blair House, the official White House guesthouse, and not at a hotel.

That said, officials in Washington are waiting apprehensively for the answers that Netanyahu will provide in the course of the meeting, which is expected to address the transition from the proximity talks that are at an impasse to direct negotiations. Obama, apparently, will demand that Netanyahu agree to extend the construction freeze in Judea and Samaria beyond the September 26 expiration date in hope of securing PA Chairman Abu Mazen's consent to begin direct talks with Israel. For the time being, the forum of seven is divided over this issue.

Read more of this post <http://coteret.com/2010/07/01/maariv-netanyahu-wont-meet-clinton-sources-say-she-isnt-relevant/#more-2505>

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, July 1, 2010 6:25 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Bomb at Sufi shrine

Can you get me more info about the shrine?

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Thu Jul 01 18:24:02 2010
Subject: Fw: Bomb at Sufi shrine

Fyi

----- Original Message -----
From: Holbrooke, Richard
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Thu Jul 01 18:07:11 2010
Subject: Fw: Bomb at Sufi shrine

Jake please pass to hillary. I will call. She may want to, especially given forthcoming trip. R PS--tell her I had a good (I think)u talk with Misha S today. Hope it helps trip.

----- Original Message -----
From: Nasr, S Vali R
To: 'HolbrookeR@state.gov' <HolbrookeR@state.gov>
Sent: Thu Jul 01 17:32:48 2010
Subject: Bomb at Sufi shrine

Richard

3 bombs devastated the shrine of Data Ganjbakhsh (the most sacred Muslim place in all of South Asia, and the shrine S was supposed to go to). Aside from loss of life, this is a major blow to Pakistan. I recommend that you call Qureshi, Nawaz and Pasha (who will be here tomorrow). This will either break Pakistanis or will get them into the fight. This shrine is deeply tied to the foundation of Islam in Pakistan.
Vali Nasr

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, July 1, 2010 6:53 PM
To: 'preines [redacted] B6
Subject: Re: Test

Received.

----- Original Message -----
From: PIR <preines [redacted]
To: H
Cc: Lona J Valmoro <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>
Sent: Thu Jul 01 18:52:18 2010
Subject: Test

Testing in-flight communication

Sent from my iPad

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, July 1, 2010 8:09 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: Re: 8:10pm

Yes--I'll come out and eat w you all.

----- Original Message -----
From: Valmoro, Lona J <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Thu Jul 01 20:08:44 2010
Subject: 8:10pm

MS, the crew is asking if you would like dinner soon – I wanted to check with you before they interrupted you in the cabin.

Lona Valmoro

Special Assistant to the Secretary of State

[redacted] (direct) B6

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, July 2, 2010 12:38 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Pakistan bombing

Ok to go.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri Jul 02 12:33:08 2010
Subject: Pakistan bombing

FYI we are putting out the following statement.

STATEMENT BY SECRETARY CLINTON

Bombing of the Shrine of Syed Ali Hujviri in Lahore

I was shocked and saddened by yesterday's attack on one of Pakistan's most popular places of worship, the Shrine of Syed Ali Hujviri (Data Ganjbakhsh) in Lahore, which claimed the lives of many innocent Pakistanis.

The extremists have shown that they respect neither human dignity nor the fundamental religious values of Pakistani society. Violating the sanctity of this revered shrine is a particularly sinister attempt to destabilize Pakistan and to intimidate its people. The attackers will not succeed, as the Pakistani public refuses to be cowed by such violence.

We condemn this brutal crime and reaffirm our commitment to support the Pakistani people in their efforts to defend their democracy from the violent extremists who seek to destroy it. Our thoughts and prayers are with the families of the victims and with all the people of Pakistan.

###

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, October 24, 2010 11:29 AM
To: H
Subject: FW: Looks bad

FYI -- see chain on PSC issue.

-----Original Message-----
From: DeHart, James P
Sent: Sunday, October 24, 2010 11:02 AM
To: Singh, Vikram J; Feldman, Daniel F; Ruggiero, Frank J
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Re: Looks bad

Yep.

----- Original Message -----
From: Singh, Vikram J
To: DeHart, James P; Feldman, Daniel F; Ruggiero, Frank J
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sun Oct 24 10:54:09 2010
Subject: Re: Looks bad

Looks like we will be leaving it to them. I spoke to someone who was there, and he said the whole int community was offended. HK said people would rather be with TB than have the pscs. HK has a press avail at 1030 tomorrow...

----- Original Message -----
From: DeHart, James P
To: Singh, Vikram J; Feldman, Daniel F; Ruggiero, Frank J
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sun Oct 24 10:13:53 2010
Subject: Re: Looks bad

Yes very bad. No movement and some ugly words. Rch is with ghani and eikenberry now. Next steps a bit unclear.

----- Original Message -----
From: Singh, Vikram J
To: DeHart, James P; Feldman, Daniel F
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sun Oct 24 09:43:28 2010
Subject: Looks bad

B5

Here's Panjwok's article:

Karzai firm on deadline for security firms

by Javed Hamim Kakar on 24 October, 2010 - 16:54 KABUL (PAN): President Hamid Karzai has firmly rejected a joint request from US, British and German ambassadors to extend the deadline for disbanding private security firms in the country, his office said on Sunday.

At a special meeting, President Karzai told the foreign officials that the private security companies had established a parallel government in the war-torn country, something he would not allow.

Ambassadors Karl Eikenberry (US), William Patey (UK), Ambassador Rüdiger König (Germany),ISAF Commander Gen. David Petraeus and NATO's special civilian representative, Mark Sidwell, were among the foreign officials who attended the meeting.

Karzai issued a four-month deadline for dissolving all foreign and Afghan security companies, a move he believes will help stabilise Afghanistan."I addressed the problem five years ago but our international friends warned of halting development projects," Karzai was quoted in a statement from his office.

"I again raised the issue three years ago and international community representatives asked for an additional two years. But now the Afghan government is determined to dissolve the companies," Karzai told the foreign envoys.

Japan's deputy ambassador also took part in the meeting. The president told the ambassadors to convey their security concerns about the implementation of projects to the government. Karzai would continue to meet foreign officials who expressed serious concerns over the presidential decree banning the security firms, the statement added.

In/mud

RELEASE
IN PART B6

B6

From: sbwhoeop
Sent: Sunday, October 24, 2010 12:27 PM
To: H
Subject: H: Brock memo here, have many more ideas on this. S
Attachments: Memo on Clarence Thomas.docx; Memo on Clarence Thomas.docx

CONFIDENTIAL

October 24, 2010

From: David Brock
Re: Memo on Impeaching Clarence Thomas

Lillian McEwen – a former prosecutor, law professor and administrative law judge --says publicly for the first time she was romantically involved with Clarence Thomas during the entire time that Anita Hill worked for Thomas. She was subpoenaed neither by the Democrats nor the Republicans during the hearings (even though she wrote a personal note to Biden, for whom she had once worked on the Judiciary Committee, telling him that she had personal knowledge of Thomas). Her recent interviews with the Washington Post (10-22) and The NY Times (10-23) and the ABC Washington affiliate (10-23) are the first record of her information.

(Personal note: During my reporting for The Real Anita Hill, every potential friendly witness for Thomas was made available to me through close Thomas associates. They held McEwen forth to me as evidence that her relationship with Thomas negated the possibility that he pressured Hill to date him and also that Hill's knowledge of the relationship made Hill angry that she could not attract Thomas's romantic attention. In his Senate testimony Thomas himself had made that suggestion in an exchange with Specter. Thomas said he had tensions with Hill because of "the complexion of the woman I dated." McEwen is light-skinned. McEwen, assumed by me to be a friendly witness, was NOT made available to me by the Thomas associates, however. It is now obvious why. They knew better).

PORNOGRAPHY IN THE WORKPLACE

NYT: Ms. McEwen said that pornography for Justice Thomas was "just a part of his personality structure." She said he kept a stack of pornographic magazines, "frequented a store on Dupont Circle that catered to his needs" and allowed his interest in pornography to bleed into his professional relationships.

Dowd (10/24): In her interviews McEwen confirmed Thomas's obsession with women with "huge, huge breasts," with scouting the women he worked with as possible partners and with talking about porn at work – while he was the head of the federal agency that polices sexual harassment.

Thomas testimony:

Leahy: Let me ask you – she has asked whether this happened – let me ask you: Did you ever have a discussion of pornographic films with Professor Hill?

Thomas: Absolutely not.

LEAHY: Have you ever had such discussions with any woman?

Thomas: Senator, I will not get into any discussion that I might have had about my personal life or my sex life with any person outside the workplace.

Leahy: I'm not asking –

Thomas: I will categorically say that I have not had any such discussions with Professor Hill.

Leahy: Please don't misunderstand my question judge. I am confining it to the workplace. I have no interest in what may be your personal life in this. That's yours. What I'm asking is within – she alleges within the workplace. Make sure I fully understand—I'm asking you this question so that you can give the answer. Am I correct in understanding your answer, within the workplace with Professor Hill, you never had such a discussion?

Thomas: Right.

Leahy: You never had such discussions within the workplace with any other women?

Thomas: That's right.

Leahy: Or with anyone for that matter?

Thomas: Right.

WORKPLACE BEHAVIOR

WP: To McEwen, Hill's allegations that Thomas had pressed her for dates and made lurid sexual references rang familiar. "He was always actively watching the women he worked with to see if they could be potential partners. It was a hobby of his."

WP: According to McEwen, Thomas would also tell her about women he encountered at work. He was partial to women with large breasts, she said. In an instance at work, Thomas was so impressed that he asked one woman her bra size, McEwen recalled him telling her.

McEwen told ABC News (10-22): "He was constantly evaluating women in terms of whether they would be a good sex partner or not."

Thomas testimony:

"Senator [Biden] my attitude at work was in my work environment my staffs were almost invariably predominantly women. The senior person on my staff was a woman. I could not tolerate individuals making that environment uncomfortable or hostile. I could tolerate individuals who had to segregate their language or conduct in order to get along. The conduct had to be purged of offensive attitudes and I made a constant effort, and that was something that I was proud of and it was something I am sure the people who worked for me felt comfortable with and understood."

WP: In her Senate testimony, Hill, who worked with Thomas at two federal agencies, said that Thomas would make sexual comments to her at work, including references to scenes in hard-core pornographic films.

Thomas testimony:

"If I used that kind of grotesque language with one person it would seem to me that there would be traces of it throughout the employees who worked closely with me; there would be other individuals who heard it, or bits and pieces of it, or various levels of it."

SUPPRESSED EVIDENCE

There were five other individuals, including now McEwen, who had first-hand knowledge of Thomas's behavior as Hill described it, but none testified in the hearing.

NYT: Ms. McEwen has generally kept a low profile all these years, largely, she explains, out of respect for the wishes of Justice Thomas, who asked her to "take the same position toward him as his first wife had take" and not speak publicly about their relationship. A former prosecutor and judge, she is now retired.

WP: McEwen recalls writing Thomas a short note before the confirmation hearings, curious about what she should say if she were quizzed about their relationship. She said Thomas preferred that she would take "the same attitude of his first wife" who never talked publicly about their relationship.

WP: Angela Wright, who in 1984 worked as a public affairs director at the Equal Opportunity Employment Commission – which polices sexual harassment claims – during Thomas's long tenure as chairman, shared similar accounts with Senate investigators. Once when walking into an EEOC seminar with Thomas, he asked her "What size are your breasts?" according to the transcript of her Senate interview.

WP: Her (Wright's) story was corroborated by a former EEOC speechwriter, Rose Jourdain, who told Senate investigators that Wright had become increasingly uneasy around Thomas because of his comments about her appearance.

WP: Another woman, Sukari Hardnett, who worked as a special assistant to Thomas in 1985 and 1986, wrote in a letter to the Judiciary Committee: "If you were young, black, female and reasonably attractive, you knew full well you were being inspected and auditioned as a female" by Thomas.

Neither Wright, nor Rose Jourdain (her corroborator), nor Sukari Hardnett testified at the hearing. As he drew the hearing to a close, Biden lifted a subpoena for Wright to testify and instead transcripts of the interviews with Wright and her corroborator were simply entered into the record then the hearing was concluded, and Thomas was confirmed the next day.

Dowd: "For the written record Biden allowed negative accounts only from women who had worked for Thomas. He also ruled out testimony from women who simply had personal relationships with Thomas, and he did not respond to a note from McEwen – as a former US attorney who had once worked as a counsel for Biden's committee – reminding him of her long relationship with Thomas."

INTIMIDATING A WITNESS

A fourth woman with knowledge of Thomas's behavior, Kaye Savage, was first named in a 1994 book Strange Justice by Jill Abramson and Jane Mayer. Savage was a close colleague of Thomas's and Hill's in the Reagan Administration. Savage was interviewed by Judiciary Committee staff after she contacted the committee, and a staffer made notes, but she was never called to testify. Her story did not become public until Abramson and Mayer obtained the staff notes and interviewed Savage, who told the authors of visiting Thomas's apartment during the time Hill was working for Thomas and observing stacks of pornographic magazines and all of the walls of the apartment papered with centerfolds of large-breasted nude women.

From Blinded by the Right:

"The biggest problem raised by the Strange Justice authors for the Thomas camp was the testimony of yet another woman, Kaye Savage, who had not been heard from during the first round of hearings."

"I called Mark Paoletta (a close Thomas friend and former associate White House counsel under Bush) at his Washington law office and discussed the Savage matter with him. Mark had been helping me on all other aspects of (my) review (of Strange Justice for The American Spectator) and we developed a plan for dealing with Savage. I needed to find out quickly who she was and what negative information might exist about her before confronting her and trying to force her into backing off the story she had told the Strange Justice authors. I was intent on doing to Savage what had been done to Anita Hill and Angela Wright during the Thomas hearings. Mark said he would call Clarence Thomas (then a sitting Justice) and see what he could find out."

"Within an hour or so that morning Mark phoned me back. He said he had posed my question about how to discredit Savage to Thomas, who knew I was at work on a review of the Mayer and Abramson book. (Personal note: I had personally told Thomas this when I met him at a Paoletta family event only days prior). Mark told me that Thomas had, in fact, some derogatory information on his former friend Savage; he passed it along to Mark so that Mark could give it to me. Quoting Thomas directly, Mark told me of unverified embarrassing personal information about Savage that Thomas claimed had been raised against her in a sealed court record of a divorce and child custody battle more than a decade ago. Thomas also told Mark where Savage worked after Mark related that I was eager to hunt her down as soon as possible. Surely skirting the bounds of judicial propriety to intimidate and smear yet another witness against him, Thomas was playing dirty and so was I."

After an excerpt of Blinded featuring the Savage story was published in TALK magazine in 2001, The NYT reported (6-27-01): "Reached at home in Washington last night, Ms. Savage said that Mr. Brock had tried to intimidate her but that he had not told her the source of the negative information. 'I didn't think to ask,' she said. But she said that she had shared the information about her divorce with few people and that Justice Thomas and Ms. Hill were 'primarily' those to whom she had confided. 'He either got it from Clarence or he got it from Anita, Ms. Savage said. 'and Anita's my friend.'"

(Personal note: Though I confronted Savage with the information in an effort to get her to recant, she never did, although I made it appear otherwise by journalistic sleight-of-hand involving a written statement Savage had given me under duress about her interviews with Mayer and Abramson in my Spectator review).

Frank Rich, NYT (12-29-94): "This time Mr. Brock's partisan desperation has led him to a tactic that is beyond the pale of even tabloid journalism and that would make any citizen think twice before speaking freely to any journalist: He tried to bully a source in Strange Justice, a one-time Hill and Thomas associate named Kaye Savage, to get her to sign a statement denying her own contribution to the book."

Jamin Raskin, a law professor and associate dean at American University in Washington, received a call seeking advice from Ms. Savage after her encounter with Mr. Brock a few weeks ago: "She was distraught and said Brock was threatening to reveal damaging information about her from a divorce situation unless she agreed to retract everything she had said to the authors of Strange Justice, he said in an interview. 'I told her this is a clear violation of journalistic ethics and might be blackmail and that she shouldn't give in to it. She was beside herself because she had told the truth.'"

MORE CONFIRMATION ON PORNOGRAPHY

Blinded by the Right:

"I next set out to blow away the Mayer and Abramson story that Thomas had been a frequent customer of an X-rated video store near Dupont Circle, called Graffiti, where in the early 1980s he was alleged to have rented X-rated videos of the type that Hill claimed he had discussed with her in graphic terms. In the hearings Thomas had pointedly refused to answer questions about his personal use of pornography, other than to categorically deny that he had ever talked about porn with Hill (or with anyone in the workplace). The Graffiti story was another theretofore unknown piece of evidence for Hill's case..."

"Now that Mark had opened up a channel directly to Thomas, I asked him to find out for me whether Thomas had owned the video equipment needed to view movies at home in the early 1980s...Mark came back with a straightforward answer: Thomas not only had the video equipment in his apartment, but he also habitually rented pornographic movies from Graffiti during the years Anita Hill worked for him. Here was the proof that Senate investigators and reporters had been searching for during the hearings.

NYT: (Lillian McEwen) said he kept a stack of pornographic magazines, "frequented a store on Dupont Circle that catered to his needs."

CALLS FOR INVESTIGATION

Partial Transcript of CNN's Crossfire, 6-28-2001, after TALK published the excerpt from Blinded on Kaye Savage:

Eleanor Smeal, President of Feminist Majority Foundation: "I think there should be a hearing. Not only do I think there should be a hearing, I think that we can get to the bottom of it. There's other people now involved. There's Kaye Savage, who was, in fact, discredited by Brock. There are other authors who have written and were discredited by Brock. There is – essentially what Brock is saying they're very serious charges, they're not light charges. They are charges that he was fed information, and being fed this information, they discredited people wrongfully and knowingly. And this is serious.

"And let's face it, the Supreme Court these are life-time appointments. We are sitting here with a Supreme Court that elected this president by a five to four decision, but a Supreme Court that could reverse Roe v Wade and many many serious things affecting women...

"Let's get right to – let's just get right to this, the problem with Clarence Thomas. There was a book that came out by two reputable reporters, Jill Abramson and Jane Mayer. And it collaborated – it confirmed a lot of what Anita Hill said. And we now know – of course we don't know this – it's alleged by Brock that he knew when he attacked that book and attacked it systematically that he was saying a lie. And so basically that is a reputable account that substantiates what she said...

"Why don't you just bring it before a Senate judiciary committee and have Paoletta there, and not only that, why don't you investigate? I mean in fact there were – it's not just one person's word against another. He said that he was a regular participator in buying videos from a certain store. I mean why can't..."

Robert Novak: "Who said that? Who said that?"

Smeal: "Paoletta. Paoletta said it to Brock but what I'm saying is you can check it. I mean you don't have to..."

Novak: "He (Paoletta) denies it."

Smeal: 'But that's a person's word. Is there no such thing as investigations? Is there no such thing as a hearing? I mean and why can't it be bipartisan? If in fact it's true that this man is just a liar, then you clear the name. But if it isn't we get at something also very serious. So – it's a serious allegation."

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775406 Date: 08/31/2015

RELEASE
IN FULL

CONFIDENTIAL

October 24, 2010

From: David Brock
Re: Memo on Impeaching Clarence Thomas

Lillian McEwen – a former prosecutor, law professor and administrative law judge -- says publicly for the first time she was romantically involved with Clarence Thomas during the entire time that Anita Hill worked for Thomas. She was subpoenaed neither by the Democrats nor the Republicans during the hearings (even though she wrote a personal note to Biden, for whom she had once worked on the Judiciary Committee, telling him that she had personal knowledge of Thomas). Her recent interviews with the Washington Post (10-22) and The NY Times (10-23) and the ABC Washington affiliate (10-23) are the first record of her information.

(Personal note: During my reporting for The Real Anita Hill, every potential friendly witness for Thomas was made available to me through close Thomas associates. They held McEwen forth to me as evidence that her relationship with Thomas negated the possibility that he pressured Hill to date him and also that Hill's knowledge of the relationship made Hill angry that she could not attract Thomas's romantic attention. In his Senate testimony Thomas himself had made that suggestion in an exchange with Specter. Thomas said he had tensions with Hill because of "the complexion of the woman I dated." McEwen is light-skinned. McEwen, assumed by me to be a friendly witness, was NOT made available to me by the Thomas associates, however. It is now obvious why. They knew better).

PORNOGRAPHY IN THE WORKPLACE

NYT: Ms. McEwen said that pornography for Justice Thomas was "just a part of his personality structure." She said he kept a stack of pornographic magazines, "frequented a store on Dupont Circle that catered to his needs" and allowed his interest in pornography to bleed into his professional relationships.

Dowd (10/24): In her interviews McEwen confirmed Thomas's obsession with women with "huge, huge breasts," with scouting the women he worked with as possible partners and with talking about porn at work – while he was the head of the federal agency that polices sexual harassment.

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775406 Date: 08/31/2015

Thomas testimony:

Leahy: Let me ask you – she has asked whether this happened – let me ask you: Did you ever have a discussion of pornographic films with Professor Hill?

Thomas: Absolutely not.

LEAHY: Have you ever had such discussions with any woman?

Thomas: Senator, I will not get into any discussion that I might have had about my personal life or my sex life with any person outside the workplace.

Leahy: I'm not asking –

Thomas: I will categorically say that I have not had any such discussions with Professor Hill.

Leahy: Please don't misunderstand my question judge. I am confining it to the workplace. I have no interest in what may be your personal life in this. That's yours. What I'm asking is within – she alleges within the workplace. Make sure I fully understand—I'm asking you this question so that you can give the answer. Am I correct in understanding your answer, within the workplace with Professor Hill, you never had such a discussion?

Thomas: Right.

Leahy: You never had such discussions within the workplace with any other women?

Thomas: That's right.

Leahy: Or with anyone for that matter?

Thomas: Right.

WORKPLACE BEHAVIOR

WP: To McEwen, Hill's allegations that Thomas had pressed her for dates and made lurid sexual references rang familiar. "He was always actively watching the women he worked with to see if they could be potential partners. It was a hobby of his."

WP: According to McEwen, Thomas would also tell her about women he encountered at work. He was partial to women with large breasts, she said. In an instance at work, Thomas was so impressed that he asked one woman her bra size, McEwen recalled him telling her.

McEwen told ABC News (10-22): "He was constantly evaluating women in terms of whether they would be a good sex partner or not."

Thomas testimony:

"Senator [Biden] my attitude at work was in my work environment my staffs were almost invariably predominantly women. The senior person on my staff was a woman. I could not tolerate individuals making that environment uncomfortable or hostile. I could tolerate individuals who had to segregate their language or conduct in order to get along. The conduct had to be purged of offensive attitudes and I made a constant effort, and that was something that I was proud of and it was something I am sure the people who worked for me felt comfortable with and understood."

WP: In her Senate testimony, Hill, who worked with Thomas at two federal agencies, said that Thomas would make sexual comments to her at work, including references to scenes in hard-core pornographic films.

Thomas testimony:

"If I used that kind of grotesque language with one person it would seem to me that there would be traces of it throughout the employees who worked closely with me; there would be other individuals who heard it, or bits and pieces of it, or various levels of it."

SUPPRESSED EVIDENCE

There were five other individuals, including now McEwen, who had first-hand knowledge of Thomas's behavior as Hill described it, but none testified in the hearing.

NYT: Ms. McEwen has generally kept a low profile all these years, largely, she explains, out of respect for the wishes of Justice Thomas, who asked her to "take the same position toward him as his first wife had take" and not speak publicly about their relationship. A former prosecutor and judge, she is now retired.

WP: McEwen recalls writing Thomas a short note before the confirmation hearings, curious about what she should say if she were quizzed about their relationship. She said Thomas preferred that she would take "the same attitude of his first wife" who never talked publicly about their relationship.

WP: Angela Wright, who in 1984 worked as a public affairs director at the Equal Opportunity Employment Commission – which polices sexual harassment claims – during Thomas's long tenure as chairman, shared similar accounts with Senate investigators. Once when walking into an EEOC seminar with Thomas, he asked her "What size are your breasts?" according to the transcript of her Senate interview.

WP: Her (Wright's) story was corroborated by a former EEOC speechwriter, Rose Jourdain, who told Senate investigators that Wright had become increasingly uneasy around Thomas because of his comments about her appearance.

WP: Another woman, Sukari Hardnett, who worked as a special assistant to Thomas in 1985 and 1986, wrote in a letter to the Judiciary Committee: "If you were young, black, female and reasonably attractive, you knew full well you were being inspected and auditioned as a female" by Thomas.

Neither Wright, nor Rose Jourdain (her corroborator), nor Sukari Hardnett testified at the hearing. As he drew the hearing to a close, Biden lifted a subpoena for Wright to testify and instead transcripts of the interviews with Wright and her corroborator were simply entered into the record then the hearing was concluded, and Thomas was confirmed the next day.

Dowd: "For the written record Biden allowed negative accounts only from women who had worked for Thomas. He also ruled out testimony from women who simply had personal relationships with Thomas, and he did not respond to a note from McEwen – as a former US attorney who had once worked as a counsel for Biden's committee – reminding him of her long relationship with Thomas."

INTIMIDATING A WITNESS

A fourth woman with knowledge of Thomas's behavior, Kaye Savage, was first named in a 1994 book Strange Justice by Jill Abramson and Jane Mayer. Savage was a close colleague of Thomas's and Hill's in the Reagan Administration. Savage was interviewed by Judiciary Committee staff after she contacted the committee, and a staffer made notes, but she was never called to testify. Her story did not become public until Abramson and Mayer obtained the staff notes and interviewed Savage, who told the authors of visiting Thomas's apartment during the time Hill was working for Thomas and observing stacks of pornographic magazines and all of the walls of the apartment papered with centerfolds of large-breasted nude women.

From Blinded by the Right:

"The biggest problem raised by the Strange Justice authors for the Thomas camp was the testimony of yet another woman, Kaye Savage, who had not been heard from during the first round of hearings."

"I called Mark Paoletta (a close Thomas friend and former associate White House counsel under Bush) at his Washington law office and discussed the Savage matter with him. Mark had been helping me on all other aspects of (my) review (of Strange Justice for The American Spectator) and we developed a plan for dealing with Savage. I needed to find out quickly who she was and what negative information might exist about her before confronting her and trying to force her into backing off the story she had told the Strange Justice authors. I was intent on doing to Savage what had been done to Anita Hill and Angela Wright during the Thomas hearings. Mark said he would call Clarence Thomas (then a sitting Justice) and see what he could find out."

"Within an hour or so that morning Mark phoned me back. He said he had posed my question about how to discredit Savage to Thomas, who knew I was at work on a review of the Mayer and Abramson book. (Personal note: I had personally told Thomas this when I met him at a Paoletta family event only days prior). Mark told me that Thomas had, in fact, some derogatory information on his former friend Savage; he passed it along to Mark so that Mark could give it to me. Quoting Thomas directly, Mark told me of unverified embarrassing personal information about Savage that Thomas claimed had been raised against her in a sealed court record of a divorce and child custody battle more than a decade ago. Thomas also told Mark where Savage worked after Mark related that I was eager to hunt her down as soon as possible. Surely skirting the bounds of judicial propriety to intimidate and smear yet another witness against him, Thomas was playing dirty and so was I."

After an excerpt of Blinded featuring the Savage story was published in TALK magazine in 2001, The NYT reported (6-27-01): "Reached at home in Washington last night, Ms. Savage said that Mr. Brock had tried to intimidate her but that he had not told her the source of the negative information. 'I didn't think to ask,' she said. But she said that she had shared the information about her divorce with few people and that Justice Thomas and Ms. Hill were 'primarily' those to whom she had confided. 'He either got it from Clarence or he got it from Anita, Ms. Savage said. 'and Anita's my friend.'"

(Personal note: Though I confronted Savage with the information in an effort to get her to recant, she never did, although I made it appear otherwise by journalistic sleight-of-hand involving a written statement Savage had given me under duress about her interviews with Mayer and Abramson in my Spectator review).

Frank Rich, NYT (12-29-94): "This time Mr. Brock's partisan desperation has led him to a tactic that is beyond the pale of even tabloid journalism and that would make any citizen think twice before speaking freely to any journalist: He tried to bully a source in Strange Justice, a one-time Hill and Thomas associate named Kaye Savage, to get her to sign a statement denying her own contribution to the book."

Jamin Raskin, a law professor and associate dean at American University in Washington, received a call seeking advice from Ms. Savage after her encounter with

Mr. Brock a few weeks ago: "She was distraught and said Brock was threatening to reveal damaging information about her from a divorce situation unless she agreed to retract everything she had said to the authors of Strange Justice, he said in an interview. 'I told her this is a clear violation of journalistic ethics and might be blackmail and that she shouldn't give in to it. She was beside herself because she had told the truth.'"

MORE CONFIRMATION ON PORNOGRAPHY

Blinded by the Right:

"I next set out to blow away the Mayer and Abramson story that Thomas had been a frequent customer of an X-rated video store near Dupont Circle, called Graffiti, where in the early 1980s he was alleged to have rented X-rated videos of the type that Hill claimed he had discussed with her in graphic terms. In the hearings Thomas had pointedly refused to answer questions about his personal use of pornography, other than to categorically deny that he had ever talked about porn with Hill (or with anyone in the workplace). The Graffiti story was another theretofore unknown piece of evidence for Hill's case..."

"Now that Mark had opened up a channel directly to Thomas, I asked him to find out for me whether Thomas had owned the video equipment needed to view movies at home in the early 1980s...Mark came back with a straightforward answer: Thomas not only had the video equipment in his apartment, but he also habitually rented pornographic movies from Graffiti during the years Anita Hill worked for him. Here was the proof that Senate investigators and reporters had been searching for during the hearings.

NYT: (Lillian McEwen) said he kept a stack of pornographic magazines, "frequented a store on Dupont Circle that catered to his needs."

CALLS FOR INVESTIGATION

Partial Transcript of CNN's Crossfire, 6-28-2001, after TALK published the excerpt from Blinded on Kaye Savage:

Eleanor Smeal, President of Feminist Majority Foundation: "I think there should be a hearing. Not only do I think there should be a hearing, I think that we can get to the bottom of it. There's other people now involved. There's Kaye Savage, who was, in fact, discredited by Brock. There are other authors who have written and were discredited by Brock. There is – essentially what Brock is saying they're very serious charges, they're not light charges. They are charges that he was fed information, and being fed this information, they discredited people wrongfully and knowingly. And this is serious.

"And let's face it, the Supreme Court these are life-time appointments. We are sitting here with a Supreme Court that elected this president by a five to four decision, but a Supreme Court that could reverse Roe v Wade and many many serious things affecting women...

"Let's get right to – let's just get right to this, the problem with Clarence Thomas. There was a book that came out by two reputable reporters, Jill Abramson and Jane Mayer. And it collaborated – it confirmed a lot of what Anita Hill said. And we now know – of course we don't know this – it's alleged by Brock that he knew when he attacked that book and attacked it systematically that he was saying a lie. And so basically that is a reputable account that substantiates what she said...

"Why don't you just bring it before a Senate judiciary committee and have Paoletta there, and not only that, why don't you investigate? I mean in fact there were – it's not just one person's word against another. He said that he was a regular participator in buying videos from a certain store. I mean why can't..."

Robert Novak: "Who said that? Who said that?"

Smeal: "Paoletta. Paoletta said it to Brock but what I'm saying is you can check it. I mean you don't have to..."

Novak: "He (Paoletta) denies it."

Smeal: 'But that's a person's word. Is there no such thing as investigations? Is there no such thing as a hearing? I mean and why can't it be bipartisan? If in fact it's true that this man is just a liar, then you clear the name. But if it isn't we get at something also very serious. So – it's a serious allegation."

RELEASE
IN FULL

CONFIDENTIAL

October 24, 2010

From: David Brock
Re: Memo on Impeaching Clarence Thomas

Lillian McEwen – a former prosecutor, law professor and administrative law judge -- says publicly for the first time she was romantically involved with Clarence Thomas during the entire time that Anita Hill worked for Thomas. She was subpoenaed neither by the Democrats nor the Republicans during the hearings (even though she wrote a personal note to Biden, for whom she had once worked on the Judiciary Committee, telling him that she had personal knowledge of Thomas). Her recent interviews with the Washington Post (10-22) and The NY Times (10-23) and the ABC Washington affiliate (10-23) are the first record of her information.

(Personal note: During my reporting for The Real Anita Hill, every potential friendly witness for Thomas was made available to me through close Thomas associates. They held McEwen forth to me as evidence that her relationship with Thomas negated the possibility that he pressured Hill to date him and also that Hill's knowledge of the relationship made Hill angry that she could not attract Thomas's romantic attention. In his Senate testimony Thomas himself had made that suggestion in an exchange with Specter. Thomas said he had tensions with Hill because of "the complexion of the woman I dated." McEwen is light-skinned. McEwen, assumed by me to be a friendly witness, was NOT made available to me by the Thomas associates, however. It is now obvious why. They knew better).

PORNOGRAPHY IN THE WORKPLACE

NYT: Ms. McEwen said that pornography for Justice Thomas was "just a part of his personality structure." She said he kept a stack of pornographic magazines, "frequented a store on Dupont Circle that catered to his needs" and allowed his interest in pornography to bleed into his professional relationships.

Dowd (10/24): In her interviews McEwen confirmed Thomas's obsession with women with "huge, huge breasts," with scouting the women he worked with as possible partners and with talking about porn at work – while he was the head of the federal agency that polices sexual harassment.

Thomas testimony:

Leahy: Let me ask you – she has asked whether this happened – let me ask you: Did you ever have a discussion of pornographic films with Professor Hill?

Thomas: Absolutely not.

LEAHY: Have you ever had such discussions with any woman?

Thomas: Senator, I will not get into any discussion that I might have had about my personal life or my sex life with any person outside the workplace.

Leahy: I'm not asking –

Thomas: I will categorically say that I have not had any such discussions with Professor Hill.

Leahy: Please don't misunderstand my question judge. I am confining it to the workplace. I have no interest in what may be your personal life in this. That's yours. What I'm asking is within – she alleges within the workplace. Make sure I fully understand—I'm asking you this question so that you can give the answer. Am I correct in understanding your answer, within the workplace with Professor Hill, you never had such a discussion?

Thomas: Right.

Leahy: You never had such discussions within the workplace with any other women?

Thomas: That's right.

Leahy: Or with anyone for that matter?

Thomas: Right.

WORKPLACE BEHAVIOR

WP: To McEwen, Hill's allegations that Thomas had pressed her for dates and made lurid sexual references rang familiar. "He was always actively watching the women he worked with to see if they could be potential partners. It was a hobby of his."

WP: According to McEwen, Thomas would also tell her about women he encountered at work. He was partial to women with large breasts, she said. In an instance at work, Thomas was so impressed that he asked one woman her bra size, McEwen recalled him telling her.

McEwen told ABC News (10-22): "He was constantly evaluating women in terms of whether they would be a good sex partner or not."

Thomas testimony:

"Senator [Biden] my attitude at work was in my work environment my staffs were almost invariably predominantly women. The senior person on my staff was a woman. I could not tolerate individuals making that environment uncomfortable or hostile. I could tolerate individuals who had to segregate their language or conduct in order to get along. The conduct had to be purged of offensive attitudes and I made a constant effort, and that was something that I was proud of and it was something I am sure the people who worked for me felt comfortable with and understood."

WP: In her Senate testimony, Hill, who worked with Thomas at two federal agencies, said that Thomas would make sexual comments to her at work, including references to scenes in hard-core pornographic films.

Thomas testimony:

"If I used that kind of grotesque language with one person it would seem to me that there would be traces of it throughout the employees who worked closely with me; there would be other individuals who heard it, or bits and pieces of it, or various levels of it."

SUPPRESSED EVIDENCE

There were five other individuals, including now McEwen, who had first-hand knowledge of Thomas's behavior as Hill described it, but none testified in the hearing.

NYT: Ms. McEwen has generally kept a low profile all these years, largely, she explains, out of respect for the wishes of Justice Thomas, who asked her to "take the same position toward him as his first wife had take" and not speak publicly about their relationship. A former prosecutor and judge, she is now retired.

WP: McEwen recalls writing Thomas a short note before the confirmation hearings, curious about what she should say if she were quizzed about their relationship. She said Thomas preferred that she would take "the same attitude of his first wife" who never talked publicly about their relationship.

WP: Angela Wright, who in 1984 worked as a public affairs director at the Equal Opportunity Employment Commission – which polices sexual harassment claims – during Thomas's long tenure as chairman, shared similar accounts with Senate investigators. Once when walking into an EEOC seminar with Thomas, he asked her "What size are your breasts?" according to the transcript of her Senate interview.

WP: Her (Wright's) story was corroborated by a former EEOC speechwriter, Rose Jourdain, who told Senate investigators that Wright had become increasingly uneasy around Thomas because of his comments about her appearance.

WP: Another woman, Sukari Hardnett, who worked as a special assistant to Thomas in 1985 and 1986, wrote in a letter to the Judiciary Committee: "If you were young, black, female and reasonably attractive, you knew full well you were being inspected and auditioned as a female" by Thomas.

Neither Wright, nor Rose Jourdain (her corroborator), nor Sukari Hardnett testified at the hearing. As he drew the hearing to a close, Biden lifted a subpoena for Wright to testify and instead transcripts of the interviews with Wright and her corroborator were simply entered into the record then the hearing was concluded, and Thomas was confirmed the next day.

Dowd: "For the written record Biden allowed negative accounts only from women who had worked for Thomas. He also ruled out testimony from women who simply had personal relationships with Thomas, and he did not respond to a note from McEwen – as a former US attorney who had once worked as a counsel for Biden's committee – reminding him of her long relationship with Thomas."

INTIMIDATING A WITNESS

A fourth woman with knowledge of Thomas's behavior, Kaye Savage, was first named in a 1994 book Strange Justice by Jill Abramson and Jane Mayer. Savage was a close colleague of Thomas's and Hill's in the Reagan Administration. Savage was interviewed by Judiciary Committee staff after she contacted the committee, and a staffer made notes, but she was never called to testify. Her story did not become public until Abramson and Mayer obtained the staff notes and interviewed Savage, who told the authors of visiting Thomas's apartment during the time Hill was working for Thomas and observing stacks of pornographic magazines and all of the walls of the apartment papered with centerfolds of large-breasted nude women.

From Blinded by the Right:

"The biggest problem raised by the Strange Justice authors for the Thomas camp was the testimony of yet another woman, Kaye Savage, who had not been heard from during the first round of hearings."

"I called Mark Paoletta (a close Thomas friend and former associate White House counsel under Bush) at his Washington law office and discussed the Savage matter with him. Mark had been helping me on all other aspects of (my) review (of Strange Justice for The American Spectator) and we developed a plan for dealing with Savage. I needed to find out quickly who she was and what negative information might exist about her before confronting her and trying to force her into backing off the story she had told the Strange Justice authors. I was intent on doing to Savage what had been done to Anita Hill and Angela Wright during the Thomas hearings. Mark said he would call Clarence Thomas (then a sitting Justice) and see what he could find out."

"Within an hour or so that morning Mark phoned me back. He said he had posed my question about how to discredit Savage to Thomas, who knew I was at work on a review of the Mayer and Abramson book. (Personal note: I had personally told Thomas this when I met him at a Paoletta family event only days prior). Mark told me that Thomas had, in fact, some derogatory information on his former friend Savage; he passed it along to Mark so that Mark could give it to me. Quoting Thomas directly, Mark told me of unverified embarrassing personal information about Savage that Thomas claimed had been raised against her in a sealed court record of a divorce and child custody battle more than a decade ago. Thomas also told Mark where Savage worked after Mark related that I was eager to hunt her down as soon as possible. Surely skirting the bounds of judicial propriety to intimidate and smear yet another witness against him, Thomas was playing dirty and so was I."

After an excerpt of Blinded featuring the Savage story was published in TALK magazine in 2001, The NYT reported (6-27-01): "Reached at home in Washington last night, Ms. Savage said that Mr. Brock had tried to intimidate her but that he had not told her the source of the negative information. 'I didn't think to ask,' she said. But she said that she had shared the information about her divorce with few people and that Justice Thomas and Ms. Hill were 'primarily' those to whom she had confided. 'He either got it from Clarence or he got it from Anita, Ms. Savage said. 'and Anita's my friend.'"

(Personal note: Though I confronted Savage with the information in an effort to get her to recant, she never did, although I made it appear otherwise by journalistic sleight-of-hand involving a written statement Savage had given me under duress about her interviews with Mayer and Abramson in my Spectator review).

Frank Rich, NYT (12-29-94): "This time Mr. Brock's partisan desperation has led him to a tactic that is beyond the pale of even tabloid journalism and that would make any citizen think twice before speaking freely to any journalist: He tried to bully a source in Strange Justice, a one-time Hill and Thomas associate named Kaye Savage, to get her to sign a statement denying her own contribution to the book."

Jamin Raskin, a law professor and associate dean at American University in Washington, received a call seeking advice from Ms. Savage after her encounter with

Mr. Brock a few weeks ago: "She was distraught and said Brock was threatening to reveal damaging information about her from a divorce situation unless she agreed to retract everything she had said to the authors of Strange Justice, he said in an interview. 'I told her this is a clear violation of journalistic ethics and might be blackmail and that she shouldn't give in to it. She was beside herself because she had told the truth.'"

MORE CONFIRMATION ON PORNOGRAPHY

Blinded by the Right:

"I next set out to blow away the Mayer and Abramson story that Thomas had been a frequent customer of an X-rated video store near Dupont Circle, called Graffiti, where in the early 1980s he was alleged to have rented X-rated videos of the type that Hill claimed he had discussed with her in graphic terms. In the hearings Thomas had pointedly refused to answer questions about his personal use of pornography, other than to categorically deny that he had ever talked about porn with Hill (or with anyone in the workplace). The Graffiti story was another theretofore unknown piece of evidence for Hill's case..."

"Now that Mark had opened up a channel directly to Thomas, I asked him to find out for me whether Thomas had owned the video equipment needed to view movies at home in the early 1980s...Mark came back with a straightforward answer: Thomas not only had the video equipment in his apartment, but he also habitually rented pornographic movies from Graffiti during the years Anita Hill worked for him. Here was the proof that Senate investigators and reporters had been searching for during the hearings.

NYT: (Lillian McEwen) said he kept a stack of pornographic magazines, "frequented a store on Dupont Circle that catered to his needs."

CALLS FOR INVESTIGATION

Partial Transcript of CNN's Crossfire, 6-28-2001, after TALK published the excerpt from Blinded on Kaye Savage:

Eleanor Smeal, President of Feminist Majority Foundation: "I think there should be a hearing. Not only do I think there should be a hearing, I think that we can get to the bottom of it. There's other people now involved. There's Kaye Savage, who was, in fact, discredited by Brock. There are other authors who have written and were discredited by Brock. There is – essentially what Brock is saying they're very serious charges, they're not light charges. They are charges that he was fed information, and being fed this information, they discredited people wrongfully and knowingly. And this is serious.

"And let's face it, the Supreme Court these are life-time appointments. We are sitting here with a Supreme Court that elected this president by a five to four decision, but a Supreme Court that could reverse Roe v Wade and many many serious things affecting women...

"Let's get right to – let's just get right to this, the problem with Clarence Thomas. There was a book that came out by two reputable reporters, Jill Abramson and Jane Mayer. And it collaborated – it confirmed a lot of what Anita Hill said. And we now know – of course we don't know this – it's alleged by Brock that he knew when he attacked that book and attacked it systematically that he was saying a lie. And so basically that is a reputable account that substantiates what she said...

"Why don't you just bring it before a Senate judiciary committee and have Paoletta there, and not only that, why don't you investigate? I mean in fact there were – it's not just one person's word against another. He said that he was a regular participator in buying videos from a certain store. I mean why can't..."

Robert Novak: "Who said that? Who said that?"

Smeal: "Paoletta. Paoletta said it to Brock but what I'm saying is you can check it. I mean you don't have to..."

Novak: "He (Paoletta) denies it."

Smeal: 'But that's a person's word. Is there no such thing as investigations? Is there no such thing as a hearing? I mean and why can't it be bipartisan? If in fact it's true that this man is just a liar, then you clear the name. But if it isn't we get at something also very serious. So – it's a serious allegation."

RELEASE IN PART
B5,B6

From: Jake Sullivan <jake.sullivan[redacted] B6
Sent: Sunday, October 24, 2010 2:13 PM
To: H
Subject: point on tone w karl and petraeus

[redacted] B5

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, October 24, 2010 2:15 PM
To: H
Subject: FW: Update

FYI.

---

From: Eikenberry, Karl W
Sent: Sunday, October 24, 2010 2:13 PM
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Update

Karzai has called for an Afghan leaders' meeting at 8:30AM to discuss the Decree. I made the rounds over the past few days and discussed the issue with many of the jihadis (including Fahim Khan); they will urge restraint and sobriety.

PERSONAL
This email is UNCLASSIFIED.

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, October 24, 2010 4:01 PM
To: H
Cc: Lew, Jacob J; Mills, Cheryl D; Sullivan, Jacob J; Abedin, Huma
Subject: 4 QDDR Draft Chapters
Attachments: DiplomacyChapter10 24 10 final 3 pm.doc; Development_Chapter_10_22_10 CLEAN.doc; QDDR_Chapter 3_Crisis_Conflict_and_Instability_102210_final clean.doc; Working smarter 10 24 10 final.doc; DiplomacyChapter10 24 10 final 3 pm.doc; Development_Chapter_10_22_10 CLEAN.doc; QDDR_Chapter 3 _Crisis_Conflict_and_Instability_102210_final clean.doc; Working smarter 10 24 10 final.doc

With prodigious efforts by your entire team (Jeanne, Dana, and Ed Meier worked very hard with Pat and his people over the past week on the last chapter in addition to Bill, Karen, both Jim and Don Steinberg and others at both State and USAID), greatly aided by spectacular thinking and all-night editing from Jake, here are a much improved four chapters. Among other things, the 4th chapter now showcases much of the great work jack and his team have already done.

In the final report we will have

1. An introductory 1-2 page letter from you
2. An exec summary (10-15 pp that can be read in lieu of entire doc)
3. An introduction framing the chapters in terms of leading thru civilian power;
4. A chapter on the global trends and policies driving our assessment of the capabilities we need (written but not yet edited):
5. the attached 4 chapters;
6. a final chapter on the National Security Budget;
7. A conclusion.

With the edits/cuts this week we are on track to come in some 5,000-10,000 words shorter than the QDR.

We're working this week on roll-out strategies of every kind, as well as further revisions to fill holes and respond to your and other comments.

Happy reading!
AM

---

From: Anne-Marie Slaughter [redacted] B6
To: Slaughter, Anne-Marie
Sent: Sun Oct 24 15:40:03 2010
Subject: 4 QDDR Draft Chapters

RELEASE IN PART
B6

B6

From: Strobe Talbott [redacted]
Sent: Sunday, October 24, 2010 5:11 PM
To: H
Cc: Phil Goldberg (State); Jake Sullivan (DOS)
Subject: a possible approach....
Attachments: Georgia-Russia scope paper Oct 24-1.doc; Georgia-Russia scope paper Oct 24-1.doc

Attached are some thoughts of an outsider.

==========

Strobe Talbott
President, The Brookings Institution
1775 Massachusetts Avenue NW
Washington, DC 20036
202.797.6200
stalbott[redacted]

==========

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775424 Date: 08/31/2015

RELEASE IN FULL

A POSSIBLE US DIPLOMATIC INITIATIVE

TO UNFREEZE AND DEFUSE GEORGIA-RUSSIA RELATIONS

Sunday, October 24, 2010

Georgia-Russia relations are not just frozen—they're volatile in ways that could exacerbate current and prospective dangers regionally and globally. The deadlock over Russia occupation and virtual annexation of Abkhazia and South Ossetia already ....

— constitutes an on-going violation of international law;

— highlights the worst, most atavistic, geopolitically assertive trends in Russian domestic and foreign policy;

— complicates Russia's relations with the U.S, EU countries, and Russia's neighbors

— hinders Presidents Obama and Medvedev's joint aspiration for Russia to join the WTO, post-NST progress on arms control in general and CFE in particular and the prospects for strengthening U.S. and allied security interests in general.

— undercuts Russia's credibility as a European democracy in good standing and worthy of further integration into Euroatlantic and global institutions.

The aftermath of the Georgia-Russia conflict of August 2008 also has the potential to blow up into another conflict between Georgia and Russia and—even short of another outright war—spread instability and political violence in the Caucasus (North and South).

Moreover, the situation, if it remains frozen and dangerous, poses a domestic political challenge as well. The Administration's ability to influence Russia's behavior in Georgia has become a litmus test of the "reset." For many in Congress and elsewhere, the President's efforts to get Russia into the WTO, strengthen the OSCE and European security, and move onto next stage of conventional arms control will be judged on whether the U.S. is, simultaneously, able to advance the economic and security interests of Georgia as democratic NATO aspirant. Conversely, any appearance of U.S. pressure on Georgia to accept Moscow's dismemberment of the country will erode support for the "reset" in U.S.-Russia relations, including potentially imperiling ratification of the New Start Treaty and the 123 agreement.

In this adversity there is an opportunity for the US to broker improved communication between Moscow and Tbilisi, perhaps enabling them to reduce current tensions over the territories and make progress on practical economic, humanitarian and security concerns, potentially improving the prospects for a longer term process of normalization and viable negotiations regarding the restoration of Georgian sovereignty.

The inter-state conflict is rooted in deep personal animosities at the leadership level in Moscow and Tbilisi, a factor that is further complicated by the dynamics within the Russian leadership (Putin's close association with the August 2008 invasion). Because the two leaderships are not talking to each other—or, when they do, the situation tends to get worse—the essence of the US initiative would have to be a shuttle between Tbilisi and Moscow.

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775424 Date: 08/31/2015

The near-term goal of the initiative would be to persuade the two principal and legitimate parties, Georgia and Russia, that they have an interest in the taking the following steps in three areas:

1. Humanitarian: alleviation of the displacement that was a consequence of occupation/annexation, opening of borders for family visitation and people to people exchanges.
2. Economic: loosening of economic/commercial relations between and among the two countries and the occupied territories (including by establishing a consensual customs regime on Georgia's Abkhaz and South Ossetia borders with Russia).
3. Security: resumption of confidence-building and crisis-management measures (including CFE style transparency and CSBMs regarding Russian forces, Open Skies flights, international/OSCE monitoring in the territories), reinvigoration of negotiating channels on consensual security arrangements for the longer term (Geneva talks or another forum) and transparency/CSBMs regarding U.S.-Georgian military-military relations.

Under the rubric of security, it would be crucial that the US (and the international community) explicitly reaffirm and adhere to nonrecognition of the two entities and to insistence on the principle of Georgia's territorial integrity, recognizing that Russia will adhere to its own position.

Modernizing CFE and getting the Russians back into conventional arms control compliance are vital to stability, predictability and confidence in Europe and to fulfilling the vision of a post-Cold War Euro-Atlantic Community which includes Russia and its neighbors into a sustainable, increasingly integrated and cooperative zone of peace. The CFE principle of host-nation consent to the stationing of foreign forces would remain nonnegotiable even as the U.S. sets aside for later our disagreement about the ultimate legal status of the territories. Our longer term goal in CFE is to reestablish consensual security arrangements in the territories, not to settle non-arms control questions like legal status.

Indeed, the measures agreed in all three areas above would be taken without prejudice to the final settlement on the territorial and legal issues. "Without prejudice" leaves the issue of end state open but maintains the opening and continuing US, Georgian, NATO and EU positions intact with regard to what the legal end state should be if Russia is to have truly "normal" relations with its neighbors and with the international community.

If there can be movement in these three areas, it might be possible to unlock other issues as well, including WTO for Russia and the beginning of movement on CFE along the lines of the NATO proposal.

Both as a matter of principle and US domestic politics—and as a matter of the logic of the situation—it is essential that the security dimension be integral to the strategy and execution. Security is at the core of the whole problem: Russian troops have, for the first time in the post-Soviet period, invaded, occupied, and brought under the control of Moscow the territory of a foreign country. While reversing that situation will probably take years, the goal of doing so must be part of whatever diplomacy occurs now. And that diplomacy is simply beyond the capability and attitudes of the Georgian and Russian leaderships.

It will be critical to keep key allies—especially France, Germany, Britain (and Turkey?)—closely consulted throughout, as well as the EU/Ashton and NATO. But the initiative should be US only, and not get bogged down with all the other interested parties appointing their own co-mediators.

Now that the Administration is on record—via the Summers public statements in Moscow last week—advocating and predicting that Russia will be in the WTO "well before" the passage of 12 months, the initiative should be planned as soon as possible. The President might propose it, first, to Medvedev face-to-face in Yokohama on [November 14?] and then to Saakashvili on [November 20?] in Lisbon. The initiative would be have the status and support of a presidential mission, with the special representative reporting to the President through Secretary of State, with the diplomacy to begin in January with the goal of determining by the summer the prospects for success.

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775425 Date: 08/31/2015

RELEASE IN FULL

A POSSIBLE US DIPLOMATIC INITIATIVE

TO UNFREEZE AND DEFUSE GEORGIA-RUSSIA RELATIONS

Sunday, October 24, 2010

Georgia-Russia relations are not just frozen—they're volatile in ways that could exacerbate current and prospective dangers regionally and globally. The deadlock over Russia occupation and virtual annexation of Abkhazia and South Ossetia already ....

— constitutes an on-going violation of international law;

— highlights the worst, most atavistic, geopolitically assertive trends in Russian domestic and foreign policy;

— complicates Russia's relations with the U.S, EU countries, and Russia's neighbors

— hinders Presidents Obama and Medvedev's joint aspiration for Russia to join the WTO, post-NST progress on arms control in general and CFE in particular and the prospects for strengthening U.S. and allied security interests in general.

— undercuts Russia's credibility as a European democracy in good standing and worthy of further integration into Euroatlantic and global institutions.

The aftermath of the Georgia-Russia conflict of August 2008 also has the potential to blow up into another conflict between Georgia and Russia and—even short of another outright war—spread instability and political violence in the Caucasus (North and South).

Moreover, the situation, if it remains frozen and dangerous, poses a domestic political challenge as well. The Administration's ability to influence Russia's behavior in Georgia has become a litmus test of the "reset." For many in Congress and elsewhere, the President's efforts to get Russia into the WTO, strengthen the OSCE and European security, and move onto next stage of conventional arms control will be judged on whether the U.S. is, simultaneously, able to advance the economic and security interests of Georgia as democratic NATO aspirant. Conversely, any appearance of U.S. pressure on Georgia to accept Moscow's dismemberment of the country will erode support for the "reset" in U.S.-Russia relations, including potentially imperiling ratification of the New Start Treaty and the 123 agreement.

In this adversity there is an opportunity for the US to broker improved communication between Moscow and Tbilisi, perhaps enabling them to reduce current tensions over the territories and make progress on practical economic, humanitarian and security concerns, potentially improving the prospects for a longer term process of normalization and viable negotiations regarding the restoration of Georgian sovereignty.

The inter-state conflict is rooted in deep personal animosities at the leadership level in Moscow and Tbilisi, a factor that is further complicated by the dynamics within the Russian leadership (Putin's close association with the August 2008 invasion). Because the two leaderships are not talking to each other—or, when they do, the situation tends to get worse—the essence of the US initiative would have to be a shuttle between Tbilisi and Moscow.

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775425 Date: 08/31/2015

The near-term goal of the initiative would be to persuade the two principal and legitimate parties, Georgia and Russia, that they have an interest in the taking the following steps in three areas:

1. Humanitarian: alleviation of the displacement that was a consequence of occupation/annexation, opening of borders for family visitation and people to people exchanges.
2. Economic: loosening of economic/commercial relations between and among the two countries and the occupied territories (including by establishing a consensual customs regime on Georgia's Abkhaz and South Ossetia borders with Russia).
3. Security: resumption of confidence-building and crisis-management measures (including CFE style transparency and CSBMs regarding Russian forces, Open Skies flights, international/OSCE monitoring in the territories), reinvigoration of negotiating channels on consensual security arrangements for the longer term (Geneva talks or another forum) and transparency/CSBMs regarding U.S.-Georgian military-military relations.

Under the rubric of security, it would be crucial that the US (and the international community) explicitly reaffirm and adhere to nonrecognition of the two entities and to insistence on the principle of Georgia's territorial integrity, recognizing that Russia will adhere to its own position.

Modernizing CFE and getting the Russians back into conventional arms control compliance are vital to stability, predictability and confidence in Europe and to fulfilling the vision of a post-Cold War Euro-Atlantic Community which includes Russia and its neighbors into a sustainable, increasingly integrated and cooperative zone of peace. The CFE principle of host-nation consent to the stationing of foreign forces would remain nonnegotiable even as the U.S. sets aside for later our disagreement about the ultimate legal status of the territories. Our longer term goal in CFE is to reestablish consensual security arrangements in the territories, not to settle non-arms control questions like legal status.

Indeed, the measures agreed in all three areas above would be taken without prejudice to the final settlement on the territorial and legal issues. "Without prejudice" leaves the issue of end state open but maintains the opening and continuing US, Georgian, NATO and EU positions intact with regard to what the legal end state should be if Russia is to have truly "normal" relations with its neighbors and with the international community.

If there can be movement in these three areas, it might be possible to unlock other issues as well, including WTO for Russia and the beginning of movement on CFE along the lines of the NATO proposal.

Both as a matter of principle and US domestic politics—and as a matter of the logic of the situation—it is essential that the security dimension be integral to the strategy and execution. Security is at the core of the whole problem: Russian troops have, for the first time in the post-Soviet period, invaded, occupied, and brought under the control of Moscow the territory of a foreign country. While reversing that situation will probably take years, the goal of doing so must be part of whatever diplomacy occurs now. And that diplomacy is simply beyond the capability and attitudes of the Georgian and Russian leaderships.

It will be critical to keep key allies—especially France, Germany, Britain (and Turkey?)—closely consulted throughout, as well as the EU/Ashton and NATO. But the initiative should be US only, and not get bogged down with all the other interested parties appointing their own co-mediators.

Now that the Administration is on record—via the Summers public statements in Moscow last week—advocating and predicting that Russia will be in the WTO "well before" the passage of 12 months, the initiative should be planned as soon as possible. The President might propose it, first, to Medvedev face-to-face in Yokohama on [November 14?] and then to Saakashvili on [November 20?] in Lisbon. The initiative would be have the status and support of a presidential mission, with the special representative reporting to the President through Secretary of State, with the diplomacy to begin in January with the goal of determining by the summer the prospects for success.

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Jiloty, Lauren C <JilotyLC@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, October 24, 2010 8:13 PM
To: H
Subject: Re: a possible approach....

Ok

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Jiloty, Lauren C; 'Laurenjiloty <Laurenjiloty B6
Sent: Sun Oct 24 19:59:38 2010
Subject: Fw: a possible approach....

Pls print for me.

----- Original Message -----
From: Strobe Talbott <STALBOTT B6
To: H
Cc: Phil Goldberg (State) <GoldbergPS@State.Gov>; Jake Sullivan (DOS) <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sun Oct 24 17:11:04 2010
Subject: a possible approach....

Attached are some thoughts of an outsider.

==========
Strobe Talbott
President, The Brookings Institution
1775 Massachusetts Avenue NW
Washington, DC 20036
202.797.6200
========== B6

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, October 24, 2010 8:45 PM
To: H; cheryl.mills[redacted] B6
Subject: Re: Can you talk tonight?

Calling you at 9pm

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Mills, Cheryl D; 'cheryl.mills[redacted] <cheryl.mills[redacted]
Sent: Sun Oct 24 20:00:28 2010
Subject: Can you talk tonight?

Pls let me know. Thx.

RELEASE IN PART B6

B6

From: Lissa Muscatine <lmuscatine[redacted]
Sent: Monday, October 25, 2010 12:18 AM
To: H
Subject: checking in

Just wanted to see if everything is going okay from your vantage point with the speech team. I hear from each of them now and then but want to make sure things are working out the way you want them to.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, October 25, 2010 7:21 AM
To: H
Subject: need to discuss

1. Israel
2. strobe

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, October 25, 2010 10:32 AM
To: H
Subject: FW: Thanks to Secretary Clinton for Participating in the Conference on the American Experience in Southeast Asia [John Carland] below

---

From: Carland, John M [mailto:CarlandJM@state.gov]
Sent: Monday, October 25, 2010 10:27 AM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: Thanks to Secretary Clinton for Participating in the Conference on the American Experience in Southeast Asia

Dear Ms. Mills—

Since the chain of events that led to the Secretary's speaking at the Vietnam conference started with my 15 March 2010 email to you about Brownie Ledbetter's illness, I thought I would close the circle with another email to you asking if you would pass this letter of appreciation to the Secretary. I wanted to go on record saying how much we in the Historian's Office, and how very much I personally, appreciated both her presence and her remarks at the conference.

Best,

John

---

Dear Secretary Clinton:

Thanks so much for delivering the opening speech at the Historian's Office's Conference on the American Experience in Southeast Asia. It was eloquent and affecting. Your speech welcoming the audience struck the perfect note for (1) celebrating the achievement of the Historian's Office documentary histories on Indochina/Vietnam and (2) using that event to explore the history of United States policy in Southeast Asia, 1946-1975. It also placed in context what we were about to do at the conference. We couldn't have found a better way to kick off our two days of historical exploration than your speech. You gave us marching orders to study the conflict in Vietnam and the American role in it but not to let that past blind us to the common ground our two countries now occupy. And that's what we tried to do.

The conference itself was very successful. We have had good feedback from attendees and from participants. The speeches of Dr. Kissinger, Deputy Secretary Negroponte, and Ambassador Holbrooke, sent out ripples of stimulating and provocative discussion, while the scholarly papers presented by American and international scholars not only placed their comments in historical context but also, and more generally, increased our knowledge and understanding of conflict in Indochina. The official historians from Vietnam fulfilled one of my first requirements—that we provide our former enemy's perspective during the conference. And the media panel—with old Vietnam hands such as William Beecher, Edith Lederer, Marvin Kalb, Morley Safer, and Barry Zorthian on it—added zip to the proceedings as well as substance to our understanding of the media role in this conflict. (We put the media panel video on our website Friday, accompanied by a transcript.)

In addition to the preceding I also wanted to tell you how pleased I was to have had the opportunity to briefly chat with you immediately before your speech, and last March, too, after I gave you the sad news about Brownie Ledbetter. Throughout that March conversation I was also having an intense debate with myself over whether I should or should not ask you about opening the conference. I glad I did and glad that you said yes.

I also wish to tell you (no surprise here, I'm sure) how well you are served by the likes of Lona Valmoro and Lauren Jiloty. Over the spring and summer Lona gave advice and reassurance in a number of emails when I was structuring what I hoped you would do for and at the conference. She went out of her way to be helpful and positive. And Lauren, as the conference drew near, gave me the sort of precise guidance, and in an always friendly and efficient manner, about your speech and the surrounding scenario that lowered my anxiety level considerably. I am grateful to both of them.

Finally, as I head toward retirement in February, I wanted to tell you that we in the Historian's Office--and none more than I--see you as a first-rate Secretary of State doing an outstanding job in, to say the least, challenging circumstances. I am personally proud to have been in the Department and served while you were Secretary. Again, the speech was great. Thanks for doing it.

Sincerely,

John M. Carland
Senior Historian
Conference Coordinator and Program Committee Chair
Conference on the American Experience in Southeast Asia, 1946-1975
Office of the Historian

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, October 25, 2010 10:57 AM
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma; Sullivan, Jacob J; Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: Trip reading -- Bangladesh is following the lead of the QDDR
Attachments: Daily Sun-Evolving Diplomatic Eco.docx- 25Nov2010.doc; Daily Sun-Evolving Diplomatic Eco.docx- 25Nov2010.doc

This is a very thoughtful piece that identifies many of the same factors we are in our diplomatic chapter (and that is not just because the author – the former Bangladesh ambassador to the US—cites me). What is most striking is that it affirms that our analysis in the QDDR offers a set of questions that foreign ministries all over the world are grappling with. I had hoped to have time to do some traveling to broadcast the QDDR to key allies and partners around the world after the QDDR is in, but even if that can't happen, we will devise an outreach strategy re sending the report out to foreign ministers around the world and to our ambassadors that will greatly amplify its impact. AM

---

From: humayun Kabir [redacted] B6
Sent: Monday, October 25, 2010 8:21 AM
Subject: Article in the Daily Sun

Dear Colleague,
Here is a piece which has been published in the Daily Sun of today. It is entitled "Evolving Diplomatic Eco system and Bangladesh Foreign Policy: An Agenda for Action." Please enjoy!
Regards,
M.Humayun Kabir
Dhaka

If you want to respond to this e-mail, DO NOT press REPLY button. Please TYPE my address:
[redacted]

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775436 Date: 08/31/2015

RELEASE IN FULL

TRUE & IMPARTIAL
daily Sun

Evolving Diplomatic Eco-system and Bangladesh Foreign Policy: An Agenda for Action

Mr. Humayun Kabir

The foreign policy of a nation is conducted through the institution of diplomacy. Obviously, any evolution in the diplomatic concepts, norms and practices affect the conduct of foreign policy of nations. Bangladesh is no exception to this process. Rather, as a nation which is increasingly coming into global interface, understanding and appreciation of the dynamics of diplomacy is all the more relevant and urgent. Let us have a look at how the changing global environment is impacting on the evolution of diplomacy in general, and how the formulation and implementation of our foreign policy is affected by this process.

New diplomatic topography

During the last few decades, the topography of the institution of diplomacy has experienced significant transformation. Several factors contributed to this process. Recent intensity of thick globalism has pushed deeper the flow of information, capital, manpower, data, images, goods and services. Such a process has produced a kind of paradigm shift in international relations with corresponding change not only in content but also in the context of international politics and perception. With the emergence of "competition state," as articulated by Philip J. Cerny, where transnational powers are achieving salience through the exercise of power by many non-state actors, such a process has gained further momentum. Intense competition has grown to sell one's story to the international community. Those who can successfully tell their stories in a credible fashion win the hearts and minds of people, who in turn can become their friends, consumers, investors, tourists and promoters. In the same vein, the concept of national interest is being redefined in the larger context of collaborative framework, as against the traditional setting of conflict and war alone. Continuous process of empowerment of people around the world has added another new complexity to such a process of transformation.

Some scholars argue that as a consequence sovereign States' monolithic identity has given way to multiple identities of sovereign people. A nation is now evaluated constantly; government policies are being instantly and constantly reviewed and scrutinized by national and global society with clear impact on its ability to influence the perception. Indeed, the network-based world is not only changing topography of sovereignty but also flattened the capacity of hierarchy based bureaucracy practically in all states.

Proliferation of many new actors in international politics and diplomatic arena has reshaped the global list of "Who is Who," and now the list includes NGOs, academics, business leaders, international journalists, social entrepreneurs, foundations, philanthropists, and even celebrities, among others. Internet is extensively used to disseminate messages, initiate dialogue, recruit new allies and friends, build network, and advocate a particular cause or issue. The development of complex international actors and network has affected the international hierarchy of power in a significant way with the spread of huge horizontal contacts all over the world. In a globalised world, public opinion matters more than ever. Being skeptical of the government, people are now demanding greater transparency and are ready to participate in policymaking process, which makes it difficult for the governments to put 'spin' to overcome communication challenges. In January 2007, Klaus Schwab, Executive Chairman and founder President of the World Economic Forum observed, "We are witnessing everywhere a changing power equation. Power is moving from center to the periphery. Vertical command and control structures are eroding and are being replaced by horizontal networks of social communities and collaborative platforms."

New issues and challenges are also crowding the international agenda. They include issues, such as terrorism, climate change, nuclear proliferation, food security, disaster management, peace- making and peace building, public health, and migration, among others. These emerging challenges have practically dwarfed the capacity of any single state to handle them. Cooperation among nations has thus become necessary.

Several consequences flow from this process of transformation. First, as the global system is becoming more fluid and flexible in nature, and moving from multi-polarity to multi partnership, as articulated recently by the US Secretary of State Hillary Clinton, the urgency to reach out to all components of wider global society, including the traditional state centric power structure in a foreign nation, is being acutely felt. Thus, diplomacy has become a multi layered and multi partner exercise, characterized by the active involvement of multiple actors, namely government, civil society organizations, think tanks, business associations, media, advocacy groups, church and mosques, celebrities, and even private persons with global outreach. Second, with multiplicity of actors participating in the policy process, including various Ministries and Departments of a nation alone, the relations between nations have thus willy nilly evolved from the phase of formal foreign policy interactions to a deeper phase of domestic interconnectedness, as evidenced in the European Union in recent years. Third, everyday concerns of citizens have moved way up the ladder and become priority issues for the foreign policy makers. The role of diplomacy has thus significantly transformed from a distant actor to an active social player and catalyst. The growing role of Diaspora communities has accelerated this trend. Fourth, the process of diplomacy has also become more inclusive. In terms of focus, economic diplomacy or management of resources has occupied the centre stage in diplomatic interactions among practically all nations, including the most developed and powerful ones. Advocacy and activism has given way to diplomatic protocol and formalism. With the threat of extremism and terrorism growing and the possibility of failure of state institutions intensifying in some states, diplomacy has moved from a role of passive observer to an active partner in promoting basic values of justice, democracy, human rights and inclusive development, among others.

The New Hubs

As for Bangladesh, several regional and global developments are noteworthy. The rise of China and India, which is often called "Chindia," offers both opportunities and challenges for us. Already, they are our top import sources and could be major export destinations a few years down the line. ASEAN nations are yet another growth hub almost matching Indian growth rate. They could be a good source of future energy, employment and technology for Bangladesh. East Asian nations, including Japan and South Korea are already valuable partners in our economic growth; they could be potential sources of investment, technology and knowledge transfer to Bangladesh. Likewise, the Middle Eastern countries have become the new center of Sovereign Funds and Bangladesh could capitalize on it. Of course, for the foreseeable future they are likely to remain as destinations for our export of manpower. The United States and EU member states are major destinations for our ready-made garment and shrimp products; they could be markets for our potential high value items in the future as well. Russia and other CIS nations could be source of technology and energy, and new export destinations for Bangladeshi products. Latin America and Africa are still not high on our agenda, but both of these continents offer immense opportunities for Bangladesh; we urgently need to build our diplomatic bridges with them without any further delay. It is important to understand that in a globalized world physical distance matters less than psychological distance. Clearly, in the coming years economic diplomacy will occupy the centre stage in exploring new opportunities around the globe. Now the big question is how do these openings fit into our national priorities?

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775436 Date: 08/31/2015

Bangladesh Priorities and Challenges

As Bangladesh strives to elevate itself to a middle income country, she will have to address several developmental challenges, which are closely interlinked. Let us now have a look at some of the important issues, which will demand constant attention from the policy makers in Bangladesh in the coming years.

- Strengthen Democracy- One of major priorities of Bangladesh in the coming years would be to strengthen democratic norms and practices. Being a socially driven nation, a careful nurturing of democracy would be required in Bangladesh to meet the ever growing expectations of the people for good governance, justice, fairness, decency and accountability in public life on a sustained manner. Indeed, the people of Bangladesh overwhelmingly conveyed several messages during the 2008 elections, including their forceful rejection of any kind of extremism, in addition to restoring democracy and returning the ◆Mahajot◆ to power. Reading those messages in right context and responding to them with appropriate care, creativity and dignity would perhaps determine the future course of democracy in Bangladesh. In addition, Bangladesh could also project the verdict of 2008 elections and subsequent forceful stand of the present government against religious extremism as a test case of how a Muslim majority nation could embrace democracy and build up a society based on moderation. In any case, a sustained and creative effort would be required to deal with this insidious phenomenon.

- Alleviation of Poverty and Creation of Jobs- Currently about 40% of people in Bangladesh live under the poverty line and lifting this huge group out of poverty will pose the largest development challenges in the coming years. The present government has also repeatedly expressed their commitment to fight this menace through variety of programmes. Another related issue involves the creation of jobs for the people. In Bangladesh, about 2.5 million job seekers are joining the work force every year and roughly 1 million jobs are created both domestically and externally. A big gap always exists between the demand and supply of jobs. Needless to say, accelerated creation of jobs could also serve to sanitize the society from all extremist ideas, which often threaten the basic fabric of our society.

- Infrastructure- This is a daunting area for Bangladesh to address. Several components could be put in this mix. First, the issue of physical infrastructure, which includes the building of network of physical connectivity, such as road, railways, waterways, airports, seaports, and telecommunications, and IT, among others, deserves attention. In order to accelerate economic growth Bangladesh has not only to significantly upgrade such infrastructure within the country but she must also align them suitably to connect with the larger regional network. Second, Bangladesh will have to build up an energy infrastructure with a view to meeting the growing demand for energy as her economy grows. Government anticipates that Bangladesh economy will grow by 8% by 2013 and by 10% by 2017. We must also not ignore the fact that the demand for energy in both China and India is also growing at an annual rate of 10%, and Bangladesh has to be creative in exploring its domestic sources as well as taping into the regional matrix, which could perhaps meet the regional demand for energy for many years to come. Third, building up a good managerial infrastructure through upgrading the quality of her human resources infrastructure is also a top priority for Bangladesh. According to many experts Bangladesh cannot aspire to be on a higher growth trajectory without the quality human resources, both at the government and private sector level to back it up. In order to achieve this objective, there is an urgent need to align the education system, particularly the higher education, with global standard, including enabling students to learn several foreign languages and building an IT enabled generation as well as reorienting bureaucracy to serve private sector driven economic growth with adequate knowledge and expertise. Ambassador Farooq Sobhan has rightly called them ◆private sector minded bureaucracy.◆ Perhaps what we also need is a globally minded bureaucracy, which would be able to effectively facilitate mobilization of private capital, technology, knowledge and knowhow from global sources. Needless to say that Bangladesh cannot overcome the existing challenge on infrastructure without huge infusion of foreign capital, technology and expertise, among other things.

- Managing shared Resources and Environment- Like many other countries, Bangladesh shares vital resources with other neighbouring countries. Take the case of our river systems. Out of 200 plus rivers in Bangladesh, 54 rivers flow from India and at least one of them from China. Nepal is also linked in this riverine network. While adequate quantity of water is critical for sustenance and economic growth in Bangladesh, keeping a watch on the quality of water that flows into Bangladesh is also important. Flora and fauna of Bangladesh, and indeed the larger ecosystem in Bangladesh is dependent of maintaining the quantity and quality of water system in Bangladesh. As the demand for water increases with economic progress, Bangladesh has to ensure its due share over this critical source of live and livelihood. Creative options have also to be explored to share this vital resource keeping in view the growing needs of all riparian nations, including Bangladesh. Again, all South Asian nations are more of less affected by the issue of climate change. Their leaders have agreed during the last Thimphu Summit to forge a common position for dealing with this common challenge. Yet, the contribution of each country to carbon emission and the impact which they suffer are different, and as such each nation will have to pursue a nuanced strategy to protect her interests within the larger context of ongoing global negotiations on this issue. Likewise, Bangladesh shares energy resources with both Myanmar and India in the Bay of Bengal. Already Bangladesh in engaged in arbitration with them through the multilateral process. It is most likely that more serious negotiations will ensue soon, and a great deal of creativity will have to brought to bear in resolving the maritime boundary issue to the satisfaction of all parties, and to share the energy resources available in that region.

Raising Competitiveness- At the same time, Bangladesh badly needs to raise its economic competitiveness. Bangladesh has consistently performed poorly on Global Competitiveness Index, and unfortunately changes in government in recent years have not had any significant impact on improving our economic competitiveness. Perhaps, a fresh and professional look has to be taken by the policy makers on an urgent basis to complement the heroic efforts of private sector in raising our competitiveness. Otherwise, our policy incentives will produce only modest results. On the other hand, an economically competitive Bangladesh will derive multiple benefits. It will open up more space for Bangladesh in global trade; it will also attract foreign investment, which could play a vital role in transferring resources, technology, expertise and management skills.

Agenda for Action

A number of policy options could be explored to energize our foreign policy with a view to supporting our transition to a middle income country and creating space for advancing our vital interests in the region and beyond. Our diplomacy produced good results when the global system was perhaps predictable; we need a new approach now to reach out to new constituency of global actors in the fast changing global context. Some of the elements for the new framework are noted below:

a. Redesign our Foreign Policy- Our foreign policy outlook and framework is at best traditional in nature, so are our diplomatic instruments. Dramatic changes, which have occurred in concepts and practices in diplomacy during the last 20 years, are not appropriately absorbed and reflected in our foreign policy. This lag costs Bangladesh in terms of effectiveness of her foreign policy. One example will perhaps suffice. The Embassy of Bangladesh carried out a survey among 1000 Nepalese citizens in four different cities in 2006 to understand their awareness about Bangladesh and her foreign policy achievements. Among other questions, we asked them if they would recall any foreign policy initiative Bangladesh had taken in recent years on a regional scale. A large number of respondents only recalled the role of Bangladesh in the creation of SAARC in 1985. Surprisingly it was 20 years ago by then! Such a response alerted us to the fact that we had fallen far behind in terms of drawing attention of common people with our foreign policy, even within the region and more so in a friendly neighbouring nation like Nepal. Now, with a view to redesigning our foreign policy five areas could be looked at. They include:

i. Adopting a look around policy, instead of looking in one direction. This would include exploring all options in building relationship with all neighbours on the basis of mutual benefit;

ii. Articulating a Bilateral plus policy, which is essentially a process of working with multiple partners to achieve major policy objectives, even within the region; Such a policy would essentially complement bilateral relations, not replace it.

iii. Supporting robust regionalism and sub- regionalism, which could create space for capitalizing on larger opportunities; This could allow Bangladesh to capitalize on its geographical location;

iv. Pursuing a creative and flexible multilateralism, which demands nimble diplomacy on issues of common concerns;

v. Engaging in continuous innovations in our diplomacy, including building coalitions with civil society actors to advance shared objectives. After all, as Princeton University scholar Anne- Marie Slaughter has rightly observed, ◆the emerging networked world of the twenty first century exists above the state, below the state, and through the state. In this world, the state with most connections will be the central player, able to set the global agenda and unlock innovation and sustainable growth.◆ Incidentally, the most networked nations are not the powerful and big states. Singapore, Norway and Costa Rica are the ones, which are most nimble and active in this regard. Is not the message clear for Bangladesh?

b. Expanding Outreach and Reputation Management through Public Diplomacy- As policy process attracts new actors, the need for expanding the outreach with a view to incorporating the new actors into policy process and to seek their help to put into effect such policies has grown enormously. This could be done both at home and abroad. Many countries, such as Canada and Norway pursue such a strategy with great effectiveness. This is particularly relevant also for nations, which suffer from reputation deficit, such as Bangladesh. Reputation or image deficit affects Bangladesh at least on three counts: it deprives Bangladesh of the opportunity of getting a suitable context to conduct its diplomacy abroad in an effective manner. British scholar Mark Leonard observed, "Image and reputation of a country are public goods which can create either an enabling or a disenabling environment for individual transactions. Work on particular issue will feed off the general image of the country and reflect back on to it-in both positive and negative directions.◆ Second, in the absence of right kind of collective image we tend to either sink into invisibility or portrayed negatively; consequently we do not figure out in the global conversations. Third, a distorted image, which often is the function of others defining us instead of we defining ourselves, affects our business potential as well. For example, in the Middle Eastern countries Bangladesh is a major supplier of workers for the last 25 years; we contributed to their economic growth as well. Yet Bangladesh is regularly associated with supplying only unskilled and low end workers. When the issue of importing semi skilled and skilled workers comes, they tend to prefer other countries in the region, for example Sri Lanka and India. While emerging nations, such as China and India, which are carefully creating their brand image as a nation, it looks like we are frozen in our old and outdated perception about our inflated self image. Bangladesh needs to wake up from this slumber sooner than later. Experts have suggested a useful tool, namely Public Diplomacy, for articulating a realistic and credible strategy to present the stories of a nation to outside audience. Indeed, many nations, including some developing countries have already integrated public diplomacy in their foreign policy toolkit. Given the growing capacity and potential influence of Bangladeshi Diaspora in many countries around the world, perhaps it is time to articulate a Public Diplomacy programme, which will facilitate their participation in the policy process, among other things. A word of caution would perhaps be in order at this point. Contrary to traditional perception, Public Diplomacy is not about manipulating information to present official version of developments to the foreign audience, nor is it an episodal shot to serve short term political gains either. It is rather a process of engagement with the target audience with a view to building up a relationship of trust. Again, Public Diplomacy it is not a straight jacket affair, one size would not fit all. It has to be calibrated depending on the priorities and sensitivities of local audience. For Bangladesh leveraging Bangladeshi culture and social creativity could form a credible plank of public diplomacy. It is important to note that Public Diplomacy is not an end in itself; it is a support to advance the overall interests of a nation through reaching out to all segments of host societies. These days, some experts also talk about domestic part of Public Diplomacy.

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775436 Date: 08/31/2015

c. The Whole Government Approach- Our current foreign policy approach is highly bureaucratic, vertical and as such fragmented. Foreign Ministry is considered like any other Ministry, while functionally its scope is global in the sense that the Ministry and the Diplomatic Missions protect and promote our vital national interests, spanning over wide range of issues, around the globe. As the process of domestic interconnected has increased resulting in growing interactions among nations on a variety of issues of common concerns, it has become necessary to articulate a whole government approach to deal with issues that have national relevance. Considering the value of horizontal cooperation in dealing with complex problems President Obama had recently advocated such an approach in his National Security Strategy document of 2010. One could argue that the inter-Ministerial consultations, which exist now, could somehow compensate for such a need.

Yet, the value of high level contact cannot be underestimated. One model for consideration for such high level contact could include a Ministerial Coordination Committee comprising a cluster of Ministers, whose Ministries are directly related to issues involving foreign nations. This body could be represented by the Minister for Foreign Affairs, Minister for Finance, Minister for Commerce, Minister for Expatriate Welfare, Minister for Civil Aviation and Tourism and Executive Chairman, BOI, among others. A suitable Representative from the Ministry of Defense could also be included on issues relating to peacekeeping and disaster management issues. Needless to say, all these initiatives would bear fruit only when they receive strong commitment from the highest political level. The coordination role should however always remain with the Ministry of Foreign Affairs like the role of a conductor in a symphony.

d. Strengthening MOFA and Missions- Although the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the Diplomatic Missions abroad have been given the responsibility to conduct Bangladesh Foreign Policy in the most effective manner, several impediments have diminished their ability to perform at the optimum level. One is the shortage of officers in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the existing organogram is outdated by thirty years. It is important to upgrade the same so that the strength of the Ministry could be doubled, as had been suggested by Ambassador Farooq Sobhan. This suggestion is very much in line with what our neighbours are doing in the light of new global reality. India is expanding her Foreign Service cadre, so is being done by China. Nepal is also expanding its Foreign Service cadre with a new law, which would give them the coordinating role on all issues related to foreign affairs. In recent years, United States has added more than 1100 officers to her State Department cadre. Expansion of cadre is dictated by the fact that emerging global issues have to be followed, understood, examined, discussed and negotiated with multiple actors on the global scale, which can only be done by the well groomed diplomats. For Bangladesh, which has to leverage on soft power, it is the diplomats who also constitute the first line of defense! On the other hand, budgetary limitation has also stymied the initiative of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Likewise, Diplomatic Missions have to be re-tooled with new mission to dramatically expand their outreach to all stakeholders and actors, who can have an impact on Bangladesh. Accordingly, it is necessary to support them with research and financial resources. Enhancement in resources must be matched with improvement in the efficiency and effectiveness of Bangladesh diplomats. Consideration could be given to holding a kind of Quadrennial Review on Diplomacy to assess the changing global scenario and to evaluate the effectiveness of our diplomacy vis a vis such transformations. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton has launched such a Review for US State Department in 2009. A rigorous performance evaluation mechanism should be developed to assess the performance of the Heads of Mission and other diplomats posted in the Missions. Experiences of some of our neighbouring countries in this regard could be helpful. In order to ensure smooth and professional functioning of the diplomatic Missions, the authority of the Heads of Missions should be further strengthened and the entire team should be responsible to him for performance of their duties. For some time, the issue of the appointment of an Inspector General of Missions was on the card; it would be better to implement this suggestion sooner than later. Consideration could be given to form a Foreign Policy Advisory Body with retired and experienced diplomats, who could advise the Ministry on various issues suitably. Many countries maintain such a system of consultations.

Conclusion

Diplomacy has moved from traditional format of Club Model to Crisis Management model, from vertical bureaucratic model to horizontal network model. Now foreign policy has to address two fundamental phenomena, which have characterized the contemporary global scenario: managing change and dealing with regional and global crises arising out of multiple interactions of myriad actors. We therefore need a new orientation in our foreign policy, need more flexible and creative outlook, need new institutional mechanism and need new set of skills to build coalitions with all actors with a view to managing the evolving reality on the ground. Above all, what we need is the attention and understanding of the political leadership to lead this process of change. Reorganizing the diplomatic set up along with aligning other domestic setup to support the creative diplomatic endeavour is no less important. Bangladesh has lot many friends all over the world; it is us how to tap on that goodwill to widen our space for building lasting relationship with the members of international community. Let us not forget the hard reality that our effort to build a democratic, dynamic, decent Bangladesh in the coming years would be as robust and as vibrant as our diplomacy is!

M. Humayun Kabir is a former Secretary, and former Ambassador of Bangladesh to the United States.

TRUE & IMPARTIAL
daily sun

Acting Editor: Prof. Dr. Syed Anwar Husain.

Published by Mustafa Kamal Mohiuddin on behalf of East West Media Group Limited from Bashundhara City, 13/ka/1 Panthapath, Dhaka-1215; Printed from Plot No: C/52, Block-K, Bashundhara, Khilkhet, Badda, Dhaka.

PABX: 02-8119006, 8158856 Fax: 88-02-8158021

E-mail: Reporting: reporting@daily-sun.com, National: national@daily-sun.com, News: news@daily-sun.com

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775436 Date: 08/31/2015

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Voda ebeling <[redacted]> B6
Sent: Monday, October 25, 2010 11:37 AM
To: abedinh@state.gov; H

Hillary: I received this email today from [redacted] Thought you should know. So sad.....

[redacted]

----- Original Message -----
From: betsyebeling [redacted] B6
To: [redacted]
Sent: Monday, October 25, 2010 5:21 AM
Subject: Re: HI

[redacted] You both are in my prayers. Please email me your current home address. I think I still have the one prior to your move. B

Sent from my Verizon Wireless BlackBerry

---

From: [redacted]
Date: Sun, 24 Oct 2010 20:21:09 -0700
To: <betsyebeling [redacted] B6
Subject: Re: HI

Thank you, wonderful lady.
Love, [redacted]

[redacted]

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, October 25, 2010 11:39 AM
To: Slaughter, Anne-Marie; H
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J; Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: RE: Trip reading -- Bangladesh is following the lead of the QDDR

Thanks ams.
We are printing for her

---

From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie
Sent: Monday, October 25, 2010 10:57 AM
To: 'H'
Cc: Abedin, Huma; Sullivan, Jacob J; Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: Trip reading -- Bangladesh is following the lead of the QDDR

This is a very thoughtful piece that identifies many of the same factors we are in our diplomatic chapter (and that is not just because the author – the former Bangladesh ambassador to the US—cites me). What is most striking is that it affirms that our analysis in the QDDR offers a set of questions that foreign ministries all over the world are grappling with. I had hoped to have time to do some traveling to broadcast the QDDR to key allies and partners around the world after the QDDR is in, but even if that can't happen, we will devise an outreach strategy re sending the report out to foreign ministers around the world and to our ambassadors that will greatly amplify its impact. AM

---

From: humayun Kabir [redacted] B6
Sent: Monday, October 25, 2010 8:21 AM
Subject: Article in the Daily Sun

Dear Colleague,
Here is a piece which has been published in the Daily Sun of today. It is entitled "Evolving Diplomatic Eco system and Bangladesh Foreign Policy: An Agenda for Action." Please enjoy!
Regards,
M.Humayun Kabir
Dhaka

If you want to respond to this e-mail, DO NOT press REPLY button. Please TYPE my address:
[redacted] B6

RELEASE IN PART
B1,1.4(B),1.4(D),B6

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, October 25, 2010 11:44 AM
To: H
Subject: FW: Judeh

FYI.

-----Original Message-----
From: Hale, David M
Sent: Monday, October 25, 2010 9:56 AM
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Cc: 'george[redacted]; Walles, Jacob; Feltman, Jeffrey D B6
Subject: Judeh

[redacted] 1.4(B) 1.4(D) B1

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 10/25/2025

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, October 25, 2010 12:51 PM
To: Voda ebeling; H
Subject: RE:

Thanks for forwarding betsy.
Rob russo is working on a note now

---

From: Voda ebeling [redacted] B6
Sent: Monday, October 25, 2010 11:37 AM
To: Abedin, Huma; hdr22@clintonemail.com
Subject:

Hillary: I received this email today from [redacted] Thought you should know. So sad.....

[redacted]

----- Original Message -----
From: betsyebeling [redacted] B6
To: [redacted] B6
Sent: Monday, October 25, 2010 5:21 AM
Subject: Re: HI

[redacted] You both are in my prayers. Please email me your current home address. I think I still have the one prior to your move. B

Sent from my Verizon Wireless BlackBerry

---

From: [redacted]
Date: Sun, 24 Oct 2010 20:21:09 -0700
To: <betsyebeling [redacted] B6
Subject: Re: HI

Thank you, wonderful lady.
Love, [redacted]

[redacted]

RELEASE IN PART
B6

B6

From: Ebeling, Betsy
Sent: Monday, October 25, 2010 5:45 PM
To: H
Subject: Emailing: IMG00265-20101016-2233[1][1] (2).jpg
Attachments: IMG00265-20101016-2233[1][1] (2).jpg

<<IMG00265-20101016-2233[1][1] (2).jpg>> One of my favorite photos from the Magical Marigold Weekend. Happy Birthday, Gertie, a day early. Thank you for two magical weekends.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, October 25, 2010 6:40 PM
To: H
Subject: Tiger summit

Bill consulted further today and now feels comfortable on the Putin-Medvedev angle. So I was premature in raising it.

Hu might go. Can't leave the tiger playing field to the Chinese.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, October 26, 2010 6:36 AM
To: H
Subject: Happy Birthday my dear

So glad you were born!

Kiss your mom for me - she did us right bringing you into the world.

XO
Cdm

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Valmoro, Lona J <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, October 26, 2010 7:10 AM
To: H
Subject: Happy, happy!

MS --

Happy Birthday -- hope you have a chance to relax tonight and celebrate!

Here's to a great year ahead --

All the best,
Lona (and the whole Speed/Valmoro family)

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Jiloty, Lauren C <JilotyLC@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, October 26, 2010 7:35 AM
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma
Subject: Mini Schedule 10/26/10 Tuesday

Happy Birthday!!!

7:30 am DEPART Private Residence

En route Andrews Air Force Base

7:55 am ARRIVE Andrews Air Force Base (AAB)

8:05 am WHEELS UP Andrews Air Force Base via Mil Air Tail#60206

En route LaGuardia Airport

8:55 am ARRIVE LaGuardia Airport (LGA)

9:05 am DEPART LaGuardia Airport *En route United Nations Headquarters

9:55 am ARRIVE United Nations Headquarters

10:00 am UNITED NATIONS SECURITY COUNCIL MEETING ON THE 10th

10:30 am ANNIVERSARY OF RESOLUTION 1325 ON WOMEN, PEACE AND SECURITY

Security Council Chamber, United Nations Headquarters

10:30 am MEETING w/UN SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE ON SEXUAL

11:00 am VIOLENCE IN CONFLICT MARGOT WALLSTROM

Security Council Meeting Room, United Nations Headquarters

11:00 am PULL-ASIDE w/AUSTRIAN FOREIGN MINISTER MICHAEL SPINDELEGGER

11:20 am Security Council Meeting Room, United Nations Headquarters

11:30 am DEPART United Nations Headquarters

En route LaGuardia Airport

12:15 pm ARRIVE LaGuardia Airport (LGA)

12:25 pm WHEELS UP LaGuardia Airport *En route Andrews Air Force Base

1:15 pm ARRIVE Andrews Air Force Base

1:25 pm DEPART Andrews Air Force Base *En route State Department

1:50 pm ARRIVE State Department

2:00 pm OFFICE TIME

2:30 pm Secretary's Office

2:30 pm MEETING w/SENATOR JOHN KERRY

3:30 pm Secretary's Office

3:30 pm ASIA TRIP MEETING

4:00 pm Secretary's Outer Office

4:15 pm YITZHAK MOLCOH PRE-BRIEF

4:45 pm Secretary's Outer Office

4:45 pm MEETING w/ISRAELI CHIEF NEGOTIATOR YITZHAK MOLCHO

5:30 pm Secretary's Outer Office

Tbd pm DEPART State Department *En route Private Residence

Tbd pm ARRIVE Private Residence

###

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Reines, Philippe I <reinesp@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, October 26, 2010 8:02 AM
To: H
Subject: PNG

Fascinating read

http://mobile.nytimes.com/article;jsessionid=5BC84EF426D7B4AD6F8FF526C7C4E890.w5?a=686322&f=19

RELEASE IN PART
B5,B6

From: Fuchs, Michael H <FuchsMH@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, October 26, 2010 11:41 AM
To: H
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Note on Sudan for your meeting w/Senator Kerry

Madam Secretary,

In advance of your meeting with Senator Kerry this afternoon, below is a short note on the current state of play of Sudan policy discussions.

[redacted] B5

[redacted] B5

[redacted] B5

[redacted] B5

Mike

Michael H. Fuchs
U.S. Department of State
(202) 647-1709
[redacted] (cell) B6

RELEASE
IN PART B6

B6

From: Strobe Talbott <STALBOTT[redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, October 26, 2010 2:15 PM
To: H
Subject: On another subject.....

Happy birthday - and safe travels.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Otero, Maria <OteroM2@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, October 26, 2010 2:31 PM
To: H
Subject: Happy Bday

Just now returning from Bogota - v good trip. Toasted you from the Miami airport!
The totally very best to you,
Maria

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Steinberg, James B <SteinbergJB@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, October 26, 2010 3:07 PM
To: H
Subject: Happy birthday....

From Colombia

Sorry to miss the festivities!

Jim

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Neera Tanden [redacted] B6
Sent: Tuesday, October 26, 2010 3:09 PM
To: H

Hillary,

Happy Birthday.

I hope you're getting some rest, though, I'm not placing any bets on it.

Thank you for all you are doing for all of us.

Neera

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Jiloty, Lauren C <JilotyLC@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, October 26, 2010 4:47 PM
To: Abedin, Huma; H
Subject: Madeliene Albright

Her assistant left a voice mail (on her behalf) at the office wishing you a happy birthday. I'll add to our birthday greetings list here.

Lauren

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Marshall, Capricia P <MarshallCP@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, October 26, 2010 5:03 PM
To: H
Subject: FW:

FYI –
Hope you had a nice day and have a great trip.

---

From: Spahn, Andy [redacted] B6
Sent: Tuesday, October 26, 2010 1:44 PM
To: Marshall, Capricia P
Subject:

Happy birthday to our favorite Sec. of State !!!! (ever !)

Andy Spahn
President | Andy Spahn & Associates, Inc. | 100 Universal Plaza Building 5121 | Universal City, California 91608 | tele: +1-818-733-7336 | fax: +1-818-733-7329

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, October 26, 2010 6:30 PM
To: H
Subject: FW: Start calls

This is a follow up note from Rich but he'll settle for McConnell.

-----Original Message-----
From: Verma, Richard R
Sent: Tuesday, October 26, 2010 4:58 PM
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Start calls

Been thinking that these are important, even before the election...goal is to have members accepting that this is a lame duck matter and also the members we identified are important in the event our kyl strategy falls apart - at least they know we tried with kyl and made tangible offers.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, October 26, 2010 6:38 PM
To: Jiloty, Lauren C
Cc: H
Subject: More bday wishes

Haim saban
Duke kinney
Binta brown
Vali nasr
Fred hochberg
Lisa perry
Diane von furstenberg
Leecia eve
Michael kives
Bill and ophelia rudin

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, October 26, 2010 8:00 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Note for HRC from Bono and Ali

Fyi

B6

----- Original Message -----
From: Catriona Garde
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Tue Oct 26 19:31:02 2010
Subject: Note for HRC from Bono and Ali

Hi there,

Would you mind passing the below note onto HRC from Bono and Ali?

Many thanks
Catriona

Dearest Hillary,

Happy Birthday - we're sad to have missed the other night, but arrived late from the west coast.

We are in NY for a month... if you and Bill are upstate and have time for a catch up, let us know.

Love Bono & Ali

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, October 26, 2010 8:36 PM
To: H
Subject: Re: Note for HRC from Bono and Ali

I have a letter [redacted] B6
Ill leave at house for you when u r out to dinner.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Tue Oct 26 20:35:06 2010
Subject: Re: Note for HRC from Bono and Ali

Do you have something for me from Elizabeth Bagley?

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Tue Oct 26 20:00:19 2010
Subject: Fw: Note for HRC from Bono and Ali

Fyi

----- Original Message -----
From: Catriona Garde[redacted]
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Tue Oct 26 19:31:02 2010
Subject: Note for HRC from Bono and Ali

Hi there,

Would you mind passing the below note onto HRC from Bono and Ali?

Many thanks
Catriona

Dearest Hillary,

Happy Birthday - we're sad to have missed the other night, but arrived late from the west coast.

We are in NY for a month... if you and Bill are upstate and have time for a catch up, let us know.

Love Bono & Ali

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, October 26, 2010 8:47 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: USGLC Praises Secretary Clinton

Scroll down to her note

---

From: Mills, Cheryl D
To: 'Liz [redacted] B6
Sent: Tue Oct 26 20:46:18 2010
Subject: Re: USGLC Praises Secretary Clinton

You are so relentless helpful - shepherding us when we need it, reminding us when we need it and supporting us when we need it.

We are grateful - thank you.

Cdm

---

From: Liz Schrayer [redacted]
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Tue Oct 26 20:44:21 2010
Subject: USGLC Praises Secretary Clinton

Hi Cheryl,
Here is our statement praising the Secretary's Foreign Policy article and preview of QDDR. Fabulous article – congratulations and thank you for your leadership.
Liz Schrayer

Liz Schrayer | President
202-689-8900 [redacted]

Schrayer & Associates, Inc.
1129 20th Street NW, Suite 600
Washington, DC 20036
www.schrayer.com

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, October 26, 2010 8:47 PM
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma; Mills, Cheryl D; Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: USGLC Press Statement on Clinton Article
Attachments: USGLC_Press_Clinton_Article.pdf

Happy Birthday! An early QDDR return. AM

---

From: Liz Schrayer [redacted] B6
Sent: Tuesday, October 26, 2010 8:43 PM
To: Slaughter, Anne-Marie
Subject: USGLC Press Statement on Clinton Article

Liz Schrayer | President
202-689-8900 | [redacted]

Schrayer & Associates, Inc.
1129 20th Street NW, Suite 600
Washington, DC 20036
www.schrayer.com

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, October 26, 2010 10:52 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (AP) Cholera fears spark anti-clinic protest in Haiti

From: Rudnitski, Jennine R
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_SWO-Only
Sent: Tue Oct 26 22:45:59 2010
Subject: (AP) Cholera fears spark anti-clinic protest in Haiti

PORT-AU-PRINCE (AP) - Protesters attacked a cholera treatment center as it was preparing to open in the city of St. Marc, highlighting the fear surrounding a disease that was almost unknown in Haiti before it began spreading through the countryside, aid workers said. Some of the roughly 300 students and other protesters said they feared the Doctors Without Borders-Spain clinic would bring more of the disease to their seaside town, which is one of the hardest hit in the week-old epidemic that has killed 284 people and infected 3,769, according to United Nations figures. Witnesses said the protesters threw rocks and at least one Molotov cocktail. UN peacekeepers from Argentina arrived with riot shields to reinforce police. Warning shots were heard; the UN said its soldiers fired blanks. There were no reports of injuries. Haitian health officials assured the crowd the clinic would not open in that neighborhood. The 400-bed facility was intended to rehydrate and treat people with the severe diarrheal disease. Doctors Without Borders-Spain country chief Francisco Otero said the group consulted with local authorities and told them the clinic is important for stemming the spread of cholera. He said they would try to reopen it in another part of St. Marc.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, October 26, 2010 11:26 PM
To: H
Subject: Re: USGLC Praises Secretary Clinton

Am now - getting off plane

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Tue Oct 26 21:26:23 2010
Subject: Re: USGLC Praises Secretary Clinton

Are you back yet?

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Tue Oct 26 20:46:44 2010
Subject: Fw: USGLC Praises Secretary Clinton

B6

Scroll down to her note

---

From: Mills, Cheryl D
To: 'Liz
Sent: Tue Oct 26 20:46:18 2010
Subject: Re: USGLC Praises Secretary Clinton

You are so relentless helpful - shepherding us when we need it, reminding us when we need it and supporting us when we need it.

We are grateful - thank you.

Cdm

---

From: Liz Schrayer
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Tue Oct 26 20:44:21 2010
Subject: USGLC Praises Secretary Clinton

Hi Cheryl,

Here is our statement praising the Secretary's Foreign Policy article and preview of QDDR. Fabulous article – congratulations and thank you for your leadership.

Liz Schrayer

Liz Schrayer | President

202-689-8900 | [redacted] B6

Schrayer & Associates, Inc.

1129 20th Street NW, Suite 600

Washington, DC 20036

www.schrayer.com

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Verveer, Melanne S <VerveerMS@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, October 27, 2010 7:50 AM
To: H
Subject: Thank you!

You were so terrific at the UN. The statements of gratitude are pouring in. I will take your message to Denmark. The Nordics will be ecstatic.

Last night at Avon, I got many messages for you from people who want to be helpful, particularly from Anna Quinlan and Patrick Dempsey. I'm hoping to get more $ from Avon to fund VAW grants. We are inundated with requests. Reese Witherspoon will go to Russia next year for our women's summit. She's popular there so would be good. Nothing much has happened vis a vis Russian women and US engagement since your efforts in the 90's so we are attempting to restart are relationship with them .They been going backwards in terms of progress.

I'm attaching the email I sent Jake and Kurt on the NZ and Australian initiatives.

Have a good trip.

---

From: Campbell, Kurt M
To: Verveer, Melanne S; Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sat Oct 23 07:43:50 2010
Subject: Re: Asia trip

This is terrific Melanne and many thanks. Kurt

---

From: Verveer, Melanne S
To: Campbell, Kurt M; Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Fri Oct 22 21:41:33 2010
Subject: Asia trip

I just wanted to give you some background on the initiatives that New Zealand and Australia have put together to empower women in the Pacific region and which they would like to spotlight during the Secretary's trip.

NZ wants to announce a collaboration between us and their government to increase women's political participation in the Pacific region. Their development agency has made this a priority for the Secretary's trip. Our hope is that S will welcome the collaboration in her remarks at a business leaders, et al reception.
Australia wants to announce a collaboration with us on an initiative to combat violence against women in the region. I don't know where this will be included in S's remarks, but I hope it will. Both governments are committing significant resources; we are committing much less, but Australia and NZ are eager to partner with us to address challenges in the Pacific region.

I wanted to briefly share some thoughts on this formed during my last trip to China. It made the collaboration with NZ and Australia on deeper engagement with the Pacific Islands on women and development issues that much more compelling.

I was in Shanghai and Beijing last month to speak at the All-China Women's Federation (ACWF) international women's forum to commemorate the 15th anniversary of the Beijing women conference and to follow up on our interest to launch with the Chinese government the US-China Women Leaders Forum.

The ACWF is a mass organization affiliated with the Chinese Communist Party with strong leaders, huge resources and powerful mobilizing forces throughout the country. The Chair, Chen Zhili, is also the Deputy Chair of the National People's Congress, a former State Councilor; the President, Song Xiuyan, is a former governor of Qinghai Province and rumored to be appointed as a State Councilor after the change of central leadership in 2012. I met with both of them when I was there.

As I walked into the welcoming dinner in Shanghai, I found almost everyone I know of significance who works on women's issues from Southeast Asia, the Pacific and Africa in attendance. However, I did not see government reps from Europe or NEAsia. It appeared to me that the forum was targeted to engage countries and regions where China is expanding its influence.

I know S is going to give a policy speech in Australia during this trip. I hope that you will include our commitment to women in the Pacific Islands, especially through these proposed collaborations with Australia and NZ.

As you know very well, the 12 Pacific Islands, though small in size, represent 12 votes in the UN. They long for our attention and collaboration. I think women's development issues are one ideal way to further our interests and engagement.

Have a good trip!
Melanne

Melanne S. Verveer
Ambassador at Large for Global Women's Issues
U.S. Department of State
2201 C Street NW, Room 6805
Washington, DC 20520
Tel: (202) 647-7283
Fax: (202) 647-7288
VerveerMS@state.gov

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, October 27, 2010 11:13 AM
To: Jacobs, Janice L
Cc: Kirby, Michael D; Kennedy, Patrick F
Subject: FW: Big kudos

Take a bow.

Best.
cdm

---

From: Kantor, Mickey [redacted] B6
Sent: Wednesday, October 27, 2010 10:42 AM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Cc: Kelly, Craig A
Subject: Big kudos

Cheryl-i hope you share this with the secretary-[redacted] your consulate staff in la paz could not have been more effective and considerate acting in the best tradition of the u.s and the stae department-holly monster--kate flachbart--and omar(do not know last name)[redacted] and was on her way the next morning-heidi and i are deeply grateful-mickey

IRS CIRCULAR 230 NOTICE. Any tax advice expressed above by Mayer Brown LLP was not intended or written to be used, and cannot be used, by any taxpayer to avoid U.S. federal tax penalties. If such advice was written or used to support the promotion or marketing of the matter addressed above, then each offeree should seek advice from an independent tax advisor.
This email and any files transmitted with it are intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. If you have received this email in error please notify the system manager. If you are not the named addressee you should not disseminate, distribute or copy this e-mail.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, October 27, 2010 2:59 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: GoC FM Meetings in NY

Kerry.

From: Reynoso, Julissa
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Cc: Valenzuela, Arturo A; Jacobson, Roberta S; Gonzalez, Juan S
Sent: Wed Oct 27 14:01:40 2010
Subject: GoC FM Meetings in NY

Jake;

We have been informed that Senator Kerry and Governor Richardson each met with FM Bruno Rodriguez yesterday and today, respectively, in NY. We are trying to get a readout of the Kerry meeting but am assuming he intends to call S directly. Governor Richardson has asked to meet with me tomorrow morning. I will send you details of that conversation tomorrow. thanks. Julissa

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, October 27, 2010 2:59 PM
To: H
Subject: FW: Update on North Park Meeting with President Preval and Request for Call on Tuesday - 2 Nov - 7am

Nice – lawyer for the Korean investors

---

From: Andrew Samet [redacted] B6
Sent: Wednesday, October 27, 2010 12:48 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: RE: Update on North Park Meeting with President Preval and Request for Call on Tuesday - 2 Nov - 7am

You r doing a great job – if you weren't pushing...I could not imagine where things would still be with the IDB.

It will still be slower and more painful than all of us would like (but that is the nature of these processes as we know), but things had no focus that I could see until you got involved and I think we might have lost the belief that it could work without your determination.

Really – you are doing a great job and I admire and respect your efforts and don't know how you find the energy given I'm sure all of the other demands you must deal with. You are making a difference here and that is what it is all about.

Please don't bother replying again Cheryl – I know how busy you must be.

Just keep going!

Andrew J. Samet
Sorini, Samet & Associates, LLC
700 13th Street, NW
Suite 930
Washington, DC 20005
Office: 202-393-4481
[redacted]
Fax: 202-393-4494
Email: [redacted]

---

From: Mills, Cheryl D [mailto:MillsCD@state.gov]
Sent: Wednesday, October 27, 2010 12:36 PM
To: Andrew Samet
Subject: RE: Update on North Park Meeting with President Preval and Request for Call on Tuesday - 2 Nov - 7am

I know right – me too. I am trying not to be too pushy but could not agree more.

On election day I thought folks should get up early and vote and then get to the call!

cdm

---

From: Andrew Samet [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, October 27, 2010 12:11 PM

To: Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: RE: Update on North Park Meeting with President Preval and Request for Call on Tuesday - 2 Nov - 7am

Ok – thanks can sleep later tomorrow; I was just so eager to move it forward☺

Election Day ...hmmm...Got it! ☺

Andrew J. Samet
Sorini, Samet & Associates, LLC
700 13th Street, NW
Suite 930
Washington, DC 20005
Office: 202-393-4481
Fax: 202-393-4494
Email:

B6

---

From: Mills, Cheryl D [mailto:MillsCD@state.gov]
Sent: Wednesday, October 27, 2010 12:05 PM
To: Andrew Samet; Filippo, Agustin Ignacio; Aguerre, Jose Agustin; georges; ronbaudin; Lee, Ka-Oak; Lee, Sin-Jae; Opertti, Fabrizio; Almeida, Eduardo Marques; ametellus; Beitler, Ady; dodysassine; ldelatour3; (KOTOP) Lee, Steve; Puig, Steven J.; Schulz, Hans U.; Gallon, Jorge Leon; Weissman, Warren Edward; Guillamon, Bernardo E.; Bendersky, Matias; Yu, Chae-Ryong
Cc: Warnholz, Jean-Louis; Mark D'Sa; John Sachs; Gabriel Verret; Laszczych, Joanne
Subject: RE: Update on North Park Meeting with President Preval and Request for Call on Tuesday - 2 Nov - 7am

Andrew:

I will follow-up.

Noted the change the change to Jenny in this traffic for others to use and deleted Da-Woon Jeong.

The call would be Tuesday, 2 Nov (as opposed to tomorrow).

Will revert.

Best.

cdm

---

From: Andrew Samet
Sent: Wednesday, October 27, 2010 12:03 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D; 'Jeong, Da-Woon'; 'Filippo, Agustin Ignacio'; 'Aguerre, Jose Agustin'; georges; ronbaudin; 'Lee, Ka-Oak'; 'Lee, Sin-Jae'; 'Opertti, Fabrizio'; 'Almeida, Eduardo Marques'; ametellus; 'Beitler, Ady'; dodysassine; ldelatour3; '(KOTOP) Lee, Steve'; 'Puig, Steven J.'; 'Schulz, Hans U.'; 'Gallon, Jorge Leon'; 'Weissman, Warren Edward'; 'Guillamon, Bernardo E.'; 'Bendersky, Matias'; 'Yu, Chae-Ryong'
Cc: Warnholz, Jean-Louis; 'Mark D'Sa'; 'John Sachs'; 'Gabriel Verret'; Laszczych, Joanne
Subject: RE: Update on North Park Meeting with President Preval and Request for Call on Tuesday - 2 Nov - 7am

Thanks Cheryl.

That is very encouraging the necessary analysis for the proposed site selection is completed. If Hansoll is interested would there be anything in writing available on the additional analysis on 14/15 or does that need to wait for the full assessment now being undertaken for Site 15?

Please also add going forward to the email list for Hansoll – Jenny Yu – [redacted] I added her on my reply. You can delete [redacted] B6

I can make the call tomorrow morning.

Andrew

Andrew J. Samet
Sorini, Samet & Associates, LLC
700 13th Street, NW
Suite 930
Washington, DC 20005
Office: 202-393-4481
[redacted]
Fax: 202-393-4494
Email: [redacted]

---

From: Mills, Cheryl D [mailto:MillsCD@state.gov]
Sent: Wednesday, October 27, 2010 11:32 AM
To: Jeong, Da-Woon; Filippo, Agustin Ignacio; Aguerre, Jose Agustin; georges[redacted] ronbaudin[redacted] Lee, Ka-Oak; Lee, Sin-Jae; Opertti, Fabrizio; Almeida, Eduardo Marques; ametellus[redacted] asamet[redacted] Beitler, Ady; dodysassine[redacted]; ldelatour3[redacted] (KOTOP) Lee, Steve; Puig, Steven J.; Schulz, Hans U.; Gallon, Jorge Leon; Weissman, Warren Edward; Guillamon, Bernardo E.; Bendersky, Matias
Cc: Warnholz, Jean-Louis; Mark D'Sa; John Sachs; Gabriel Verret; Laszczych, Joanne
Subject: Update on North Park Meeting with President Preval and Request for Call on Tuesday - 2 Nov - 7am

All

I just wanted to give a quick update on the productive meeting we had with President Preval and his team of advisers yesterday, including Gabriel Verret, to discuss a number of critical issues to move the project in the North forward.

The GOH has identified site 15 as the preferred site with which to move forward. This decision is based on the incoming analysis from the IDB on flood risk & drainage, as well as soil and water studies. These studies point to better soil quality and drainage on site 15 as compared to 14. Importantly, the analysis did not point to any flood risks.

The site decision enables the IDB to immediately move forward with the in depth environmental and social analysis, which includes a water systems assessment to shed further light on quantities and quality available. President Preval identified site 14 as the back-up site should the assessments point to any unforeseen risks to the development of a viable park in this location.

I think it makes sense to undertake a call on early Tuesday morning to review the status of the project, address outstanding issues, and get an update on this week's conference. I have again attached the overall timeline of the project and note that a number of deliverables are lagging and require greater attention to meet the agreed target of beginning construction in January 2011.

I would suggest a call at 7am Tuesday morning given our multiple time zones. I have copied Joanne and would be grateful if you could RSVP as to the availability of the appropriate representatives from your team to participate at this time. Thanks so much.

Best

cdm

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: sbwhoeop[redacted] B6
Sent: Wednesday, October 27, 2010 3:11 PM
To: H
Subject: H: One day late, but... happy birthday! Sid

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, October 27, 2010 8:53 PM
To: H
Subject: FW: Outcomes

See traffic below - read from bottom up.

cdm

-----Original Message-----
From: Curtis, Meghann A
Sent: Wednesday, October 27, 2010 7:39 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: Fw: Outcomes

[redacted] B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Ash, Nazanin S
To: Curtis, Meghann A; Radelet, Steven C
Sent: Wed Oct 27 19:32:58 2010
Subject: Re: Outcomes

I described it below, do you need more?

----- Original Message -----
From: Curtis, Meghann A
To: Ash, Nazanin S; Radelet, Steven C
Sent: Wed Oct 27 19:30:55 2010
Subject: Re: Outcomes

What happened to Indonesia?

----- Original Message -----
From: Ash, Nazanin S
To: Curtis, Meghann A; Radelet, Steven C
Sent: Wed Oct 27 19:00:20 2010
Subject: Outcomes

Hi,

Group deliberations resulted in the following tiers (no order within tiers):

[redacted]

B5

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, October 27, 2010 9:34 PM
To: H
Subject: FW: Politico piece on FA article

Pinstripes to cargo pants -- Clinton tailors new vision for diplomacy

By Elise Labott, CNN
October 27, 2010 12:51 p.m. EDT
STORY HIGHLIGHTS

- It is the first-ever undertaking for the State Department
- Approach will focus on American leadership through civilian power
- Going forward, diplomats likely to wear cargo pants as a pinstriped suit.

Washington (CNN) -- Secretary of State Hillary Clinton is outlining how she plans to redefine U.S. diplomacy and development ahead of a top-down review which has taken place this year and will be released in the coming weeks.

In an essay in the November/December issue of Foreign Affairs, Clinton previews the Quadrennial Diplomacy and Development Review, commonly referred to as the QDDR. The review, the first-ever such an undertaking for the State Department, is meant to balance a similar quadrennial review by the Defense Department that projects their strategy and priorities.

The new approach to development, Clinton says, will focus on American leadership through civilian power. Both Clinton and Secretary of Defense Robert Gates and have talked about "demilitarizing" foreign policy, and Clinton says the QDDR will suggest how to do that, with a whole new set of resources for diplomacy and development, much of which will be geared toward fragile states in conflict or crisis.
In the article, Clinton painted the broad strokes of the document, which she called a blueprint for reforms to be implemented over the next four years. Those reforms include modernizing and coordinating diplomacy across U.S. government agencies, creating a stronger nexus between diplomacy and development and ensuring that development undertaken by the U.S. has a lasting and "sustainable" impact.

"Economic growth is the surest route out of poverty, and expanding and strengthening middle classes around the world will be key to creating the just and sustainable international order that lies at the heart of the United States' national security strategy," Clinton wrote in Foreign Affairs. She said that the U.S. ultimate goal in development was to "put itself out of business" by boosting up countries to assume responsibility for their own projects and future.

President Barack Obama laid out the vision and the basic pillars of the policy in September at the United Nations General Assembly when he released the "U.S. Global Development Policy," which changes U.S. efforts to focus on building up countries that demonstrate good governance and economic potential.

But the QDDR will outline how to put that policy into practice. Officials say the 150-page document will detail everything from how the United States conducts multilateral diplomacy, how the United States undertakes "stabilization" efforts in post-conflict areas, how the State Department works with USAID and contractors to the types and numbers of personnel needed to implement the new approach.

American diplomats going forward, Clinton said, are as likely to wear cargo pants as a pinstriped suit.

---

From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie
Sent: Wednesday, October 27, 2010 4:45 PM
To: Hyde, Dana; Reines, Philippe I; Crowley, Philip J; Klevorick, Caitlin B
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J; Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: Politico piece on FA article

http://www.cnn.com/2010/POLITICS/10/27/clinton.qddr/index.html?iref=allsearch

Anne-Marie Slaughter
Director of Policy Planning
U.S. Department of State
(202) 647-2972

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Verveer, Melanne S <VerveerMS@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, October 28, 2010 6:36 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw:

You'll love this. Her asylum is still up in the air.

----- Original Message -----
From: Yu, Wenchi
To: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Wed Oct 27 12:13:51 2010

I went to see [redacted] this morning. She's looking great! [redacted] B6

Talked a lot. She just published another book in Taiwan. She's looking for another publisher for another one. She just keeps writing!!

Paul Weiss is the law firm providing pro bono work for her immigration matters.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, October 28, 2010 7:34 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (AP) US missile strikes kill 14 in NW Pakistan is 24 hours

From: Brown, Justin P
To: NEWS-Pakistan; NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_Shift-I
Sent: Thu Oct 28 05:04:13 2010
Subject: (AP) US missile strikes kill 14 in NW Pakistan is 24 hours

PESHAWAR (AP) - Intelligence officials in Pakistan are reporting the third suspected U.S. missile strike in North Waziristan in the past 24 hours. The officials say two missiles struck a house, killing seven alleged militants in the tribal region close to the Afghan border. Two other attacks October 27 killed seven suspected militants.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Ebeling, Betsy [redacted] B6
Sent: Thursday, October 28, 2010 11:24 AM
To: H
Subject: Very scare sign of the times

The Des Plaines Public Library Board Tuesday approved closing the library on Dec. 5 if the city of Des Plaines does not cosign a bank loan of up to $1.5 million and Cook County property tax receipts are delayed.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

B6

From: sbwhoeop
Sent: Thursday, October 28, 2010 11:53 AM
To: H
Subject: Re: H: One day late, but... happy birthday! Sid

Have a good trip building the de facto China containment alliance. Will discuss election carnage when you return. Sid

-----Original Message-----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: 'sbwhoeop >
Sent: Thu, Oct 28, 2010 11:00 am
Subject: Re: H: One day late, but... happy birthday! Sid

Thx, my friend.

----- Original Message -----

From: sbwhoeop

To: H

Sent: Wed Oct 27 15:11:20 2010

Subject: H: One day late, but... happy birthday! Sid

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, October 28, 2010 1:26 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Baby [redacted] B6

Fyi.

From: Miguel Rodriguez [redacted]
To: Traci Rodriguez [redacted]
Sent: Thu Oct 28 13:18:30 2010
Subject: Baby [redacted]

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, October 28, 2010 1:48 PM
To: H
Subject: FW: Obama denies batch of pardons

From: Toiv, Nora F
Sent: Thursday, October 28, 2010 9:35 AM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: Obama denies batch of pardons

POLITICO

Obama denies batch of pardons

By: Josh Gerstein
October 28, 2010 04:37 AM EDT

After months of pleas from those who favor more use of the president's pardon power, President Barack Obama has finally acted on the issue—disappointing many of those advocates by denying hundreds of requests for sentence commutations and dozens of criminal pardons.

White House and Justice Department officials confirmed that Obama has yet to grant any pardons or commutations since taking office. Earlier this month, officials said, Obama formally denied 605 commutation petitions and 71 pardon requests, a record that criminal justice reform advocates find troubling.

"We'd like to see him being a lot more generous and actively granting clemency, but it doesn't seem to be a high priority of this administration at all," said Molly Gill of Families Against Mandatory Minimums, an organization advocating the elimination of harsh federal punishment for certain low-level crimes. "Obviously, there are a lot of political decisions that go into clemency decisions, particularly in an election year."

According to Pardon Power, a blog that tracks clemency issues, Obama is currently the fourth-slowest president to commute or void a prisoner's sentence. Only Presidents Bill Clinton, George W. Bush and George Washington have taken longer, according to P.S. Ruckman of Rock Valley College in Illinois.

However, Obama's "about 30 days from passing Clinton" to become third slowest, Ruckman said, though he added that details on Washington's grants of clemency are murky.

Neither the White House nor the Justice Department would release the list of those denied clemency by Obama this month.

Last month, the Justice Department argued in federal appeals court that the government has the right to keep secret the names of those refused pardons or commutations. A former Washington Post reporter, George Lardner Jr., sought the names for a book he's writing on executive clemency.

Ohio State University professor Doug Berman, a clemency advocate, said he believes Obama will soon grant pardons and commutations, which traditionally come during the holiday season.

"Kudos to the president for acting, because simply not acting and giving the impression this is going into some black box is actually worse," Berman said. "Wishfully thinking, I would hypothesize that this is a precursor to some future grants. ... Obama has been disappointing so far in that he has sent signals he's going to do nothing or, as of now, deny, but I'm cautiously hopeful."

Margaret Love, a former Justice Department pardon attorney under Clinton and President George H.W. Bush, said she'd like to see Obama grant pardons to some immigrants who have long completed their sentences or never served time but now face deportation because of criminal convictions still on their records.

"It would be wonderful to see President Obama take some action in some of the cases I know are pending where people are under the threat of deportation," said Love, including Chibueze Okorie, a Nigerian who is a Presbyterian minister in Brooklyn, N.Y.

In 1989, he pleaded guilty in federal court to driving a van for a heroin gang and was sentenced to 18 months in prison. Since his release, his community work has been praised by officials, including former Sen. Hillary Clinton, now Obama's secretary of state. But under a 1996 law, Okorie might be forced to leave the country because he was convicted of an aggravated felony.

In May, Democratic Gov. David Paterson of New York set up a commission to deal with cases of green card holders who were convicted before the 1996 law kicked in or who pleaded guilty without realizing deportation was an option.

"Congress set up this list of aggravated felonies. This was a conscious decision," said Ira Mehlman of the Federation for American Immigration Reform. "This is something that ought to be addressed in the legislature, not done by the president or Gov. Paterson exercising their executive clemency privileges."

CORRECTION: An earlier version of this story said Obama has denied all pending pardon requests. While he has yet to grant any such requests, several hundred applications remain pending, according to Justice Department statistics.

© 2010 Capitol News Company, LLC

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, October 29, 2010 8:03 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (AP) Nine policemen killed in ambush in western Mexico

From: Rudnitski, Jennine R
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_SWO-Only
Sent: Fri Oct 29 05:32:53 2010
Subject: (AP) Nine policemen killed in ambush in western Mexico

GUADALAJARA (AP) - Public safety officials in Mexico said gunmen ambushed a convoy of 20 police officers, killing nine of them and leaving one missing. The officials in Jalisco state said ten officers who survived the attack fought an hours-long battle with the unknown attackers, and several gunmen were wounded. The attackers, who were riding in about ten sport utility vehicles, were armed with grenades and assault rifles. They fled into neighboring Michoacan state after the attack. Michoacan is the home to a violent cartel known to launch fierce attacks on police convoys.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, October 29, 2010 9:09 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Reuters) Talks to avert Israeli strike to resume on October 31

From: Withers, Anne M
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_Shift-II
Sent: Fri Oct 29 09:08:15 2010
Subject: (Reuters) Talks to avert Israeli strike to resume on October 31

JERUSALEM (Reuters) - Talks to avert a public sector strike next week which could cripple Israel's ports and airports have been suspended and will resume after the weekend, Finance Minister Yuval Steinitz said on October 29. The Histadrut labor union wants a 10.5 percent pay rise over three years for the 700,000 public sector workers it represents, but the Finance Ministry has offered 1.5 percent. Talks will resume on October 31, the first day of the Israeli working week. "The gaps are still large but at least we have been able to outline (our differences). I think there is no cause for a strike, it will harm everybody -- citizens, the economy and the workers themselves," Steinitz told reporters. Unions have indicated they may call a strike as early as November 2, which could shut down public transport, government offices and some government-owned companies. Health services and utilities would function at reduced capacity. An official with Histadrut, which represents public sector staff, said the pay rise sought by union leaders was justified. "We are looking to reach a decision and gain a realistic wage rise for the workers. This is the heart of the negotiations," Avi Nisan-Koren told reporters.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, October 29, 2010 10:20 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Reuters) Al Jazeera TV's Morocco operations suspended

From: Withers, Anne M
To: NEWS-Mahogany; NEWS-R
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_Shift-II
Sent: Fri Oct 29 10:14:26 2010
Subject: (Reuters) Al Jazeera TV's Morocco operations suspended

RABAT (Reuters) - Morocco has suspended the activities of pan-Arab Al Jazeera television on its territory, Morocco's official MAP news agency reported on October 29, citing the Communications Ministry. The agency said the suspension would take immediate effect and that the accreditations of the Qatar-based television station's staff in Morocco would also be suspended. It did not give any reason for the decision.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, October 29, 2010 10:50 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Reuters) Big rally by Islamic Jihad in Gaza, joined by Hamas

---

From: Withers, Anne M
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_Shift-II
Sent: Fri Oct 29 10:45:00 2010
Subject: (Reuters) Big rally by Islamic Jihad in Gaza, joined by Hamas

GAZA (Reuters) - Tens of thousands of supporters of the militant Islamic Jihad movement rallied in the streets of Gaza on October 29, chanting "Death to America" and "Death to Israel." Young men and boys wearing white T-shirts with a slogan in the shape of a rifle bore portraits of militants killed in combat, under the black flags of Islamic Jihad. Ramadan Shallah, the group's exiled chief in Damascus, sent a recorded message marking the anniversary of the assassination of the group's leader Fathi Shiqaqi in Malta in 1995, by presumed Israeli secret agents. "Israel will not bring peace to the region, it will only bring war and destruction and therefore, the slogan of all should be that Israel must be wiped out of existence," said Shallah, who is on a United States wanted list. Senior leaders of the ruling Islamist group, Hamas, joined the open-air gathering, the largest for years in honor of Islamic Jihad with up to 100,000 attending according to its organizers. Hamas allowed the group to use city terrain it usually reserves exclusively for its own rallies, and Hamas forces provided security for the parade by its smaller rival.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, October 29, 2010 11:49 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Reuters) Vietnam to award Japan nuclear plants deal

From: Withers, Anne M
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_Shift-II
Sent: Fri Oct 29 11:39:49 2010
Subject: (Reuters) Vietnam to award Japan nuclear plants deal

TOKYO (Reuters) - Vietnam has decided to award Japan contracts to build two of four nuclear power plants it plans to set up by the early 2020s, Japan's Kyodo news agency reported, citing sources familiar with the matter. Prime Minister Nguyen Tan Dung is expected to relay the Vietnamese leadership's decision on October 31 when he and Japanese Prime Minister Naoto Kan meet for bilateral talks at a regional summit in Hanoi, Kyodo said. Earlier this month Japan said it had agreed with Vietnam to cooperate on nuclear power plant technologies and materials. Japan, the world's third-biggest nuclear power generator after the United States and France, is stepping up efforts to tap the nuclear power development market overseas. In an effort to sell its atomic technologies abroad with the help of the government, a joint venture of 13 Japanese firms including Toshiba Corp, Hitachi Ltd and Mitsubishi Heavy Industries was formed this month.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, October 29, 2010 12:54 PM
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma
Subject: FW: (Irish Independent) Irish Foreign Minister's daughter dies

From: Withers, Anne M
Sent: Friday, October 29, 2010 12:53 PM
To: NEWS-Mahogany; NEWS-EUR
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_Shift-II
Subject: (Irish Independent) Irish Foreign Minister's daughter dies

(Irish Independent) - The seven-year-old daughter of Foreign Affairs Minister Micheal Martin has died. It is understood Leana, the youngest daughter of Mr. Martin and his wife Mary, suffered from a heart condition. She died peacefully in Great Ormond Street Hospital, London. Her parents and family were at her bedside. Mr. Martin and his wife said they are heartbroken at the loss of their "darling Leana."

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, October 29, 2010 1:04 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Irish Independent) Irish Foreign Minister's daughter dies

From: Withers, Anne M
To: NEWS-Mahogany; NEWS-EUR
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_Shift-II
Sent: Fri Oct 29 12:52:36 2010
Subject: (Irish Independent) Irish Foreign Minister's daughter dies

(Irish Independent) - The seven-year-old daughter of Foreign Affairs Minister Micheal Martin has died. It is understood Leana, the youngest daughter of Mr. Martin and his wife Mary, suffered from a heart condition. She died peacefully in Great Ormond Street Hospital, London. Her parents and family were at her bedside. Mr. Martin and his wife said they are heartbroken at the loss of their "darling Leana."

RELEASE IN PART
B6

---

From: Campbell, Kurt M <CampbellKM@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, October 29, 2010 1:42 PM
To: H; jake.sullivar [redacted] B6
Cc: Huma Abedin
Subject: Re: LMI tomorrow

We are updating for the morning and getting from Washington forward leaning language on damns. Will have at 815 staff. Thanks Kurt

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Campbell, Kurt M; 'jake.sullivan [redacted]
Cc: Huma Abedin [redacted]
Sent: Fri Oct 29 13:25:27 2010
Subject: LMI tomorrow

I've reviewed the notes and do not see any reference to a moratorium on dam projects. Should I raise it or not?

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Huma Abedin <Huma@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, October 29, 2010 1:51 PM
To: H; 'CampbellKM@state.gov'; 'jake.sullivan [redacted] B6
Subject: Re: LMI tomorrow

Joe just gave me point
Hrc has complete packet

----- Original Message -----
From: H
To: 'CampbellKM@state.gov' <CampbellKM@state.gov>; 'jake.sullivan [redacted]
Cc: Huma Abedin
Sent: Fri Oct 29 13:25:27 2010
Subject: LMI tomorrow

I've reviewed the notes and do not see any reference to a moratorium on dam projects. Should I raise it or not?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, October 29, 2010 2:13 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Ashton

Fyi.

From: Burns, William J
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Fri Oct 29 14:07:52 2010
Subject: Ashton

See S has requested to speak to Ashton. Assume it's about NATO-EU stuff, but on Iran, latest is that letter from Jalili's office to Ashton today was pretty vacuous – no firm answer on dates or venue for 5+1 meeting. Cooper following up with Iranian Amb in Brussels and Chinese (who thought they had a more specific answer). Par for course.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, October 29, 2010 2:41 PM
To: H
Subject: Re: Ashton

Coming

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Fri Oct 29 14:35:05 2010
Subject: Re: Ashton

Any news to report?

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri Oct 29 14:12:59 2010
Subject: Fw: Ashton

Fyi.

---

From: Burns, William J
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Fri Oct 29 14:07:52 2010
Subject: Ashton

See S has requested to speak to Ashton. Assume it's about NATO-EU stuff, but on Iran, latest is that letter from Jalili's office to Ashton today was pretty vacuous – no firm answer on dates or venue for 5+1 meeting. Cooper following up with Iranian Amb in Brussels and Chinese (who thought they had a more specific answer). Par for course.

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775500 Date: 08/31/2015

RELEASE IN FULL

CONFIDENTIAL

April 23, 2010

For: Hillary
From: Sid
Re: Kyrgyzstan Update

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775500 Date: 08/31/2015

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775502 Date: 08/31/2015

RELEASE IN FULL

CONFIDENTIAL

April 23, 2010

For: Hillary
From: Sid
Re: Kyrgyzstan Update

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05775502 Date: 08/31/2015

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 24, 2010 4:19 PM
To: Huma Abedin; 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: VMI

What about asking VMI to move to another day--is that out of the question?

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 24, 2010 4:20 PM
To: 'sbwhoeop[redacted] B6
Subject: Re: h: just a line. S

Good advice.

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop[redacted]
To: H
Sent: Fri Apr 23 10:05:50 2010
Subject: h: just a line. S

Next time you feel like stepping all over your story by saying you are tired, use the line of the black woman in the Montgomery bus boycott who walked to work: "My feet is tired, but my soul is rested."

On UK: Clegg held his own in the second debate last night. Gordon hit him as "anti-American." This feels like it's moving to a hung parliament. Cameron can't break through. Two-thirds of the voters simply hate the Tories. No matter how well Clegg does the system doesn't allow for any gain in seats to match his personal poll numbers. UK stunned by its first series of debates and the whole campaign has atrophied in wonderment, little happening between the debates. Final one next week, but guaranteed not to be conclusive, just a repetition, confirming the earlier two.

Sid

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 24, 2010 4:43 PM
To: 'slaughtera@state.gov'
Cc: 'lewjj@state.gov'; 'SteinbergJB@state.gov'; 'millscd@state.gov'; 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: NSS/PSD Strategy Going Forward

I think AMS makes a strong case and we should discuss and decide how to proceed asap.

----- Original Message -----
From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Lew, Jacob J <LewJJ@state.gov>; Steinberg, James B <SteinbergJB@state.gov>; Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>; Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sat Apr 24 16:37:19 2010
Subject: NSS/PSD Strategy Going Forward

I hope that you can read this (3 pages) before your meeting with Secretary Gates on pooled funding on Monday. I have spent a lot of time thinking about these issues in the context of the QDDR, but I think if we're going to push the position I suggest, it has to be now. If you agree, there are a number of ways we can make this quite attractive to other agencies as well as DoD. AM

---

From: Anne-Marie Slaughter [redacted] B6
To: Slaughter, Anne-Marie
Sent: Sat Apr 24 16:33:30 2010
Subject: NSS/PSD Strategy Going Forward

RELEASE IN PART
B1,1.4(B),1.4(D),B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 24, 2010 5:57 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Can you be available for call from PDT Preval this p.m.?

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 04/23/2035

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Apr 24 17:24:02 2010
Subject: Fw: Can you be available for call from PDT Preval this p.m.?

For you eyes only

B1
1.4(D)

----- Original Message -----
From: [redacted]
To: Mills, Cheryl D; Mills Cheryl [redacted]
Sent: Sat Apr 24 16:00:09 2010
Subject: Can you be available for call from PDT Preval this p.m.?

B6

CDM:
At behest of PDT, I tried to call you just minutes ago to ask about your availability for phone call from him this afternoon.
- First choice: 5:00 p.m. (your time)
- Alternative: 7:00 p.m.
- If neither works for you, then propose time and we'll accomodate.
Two options to suggest:
1. With our individual cell phones, it is difficult to involve third person - to wit, me. Could you arrange for a conference type number and code to which PD and I could call separately?
2. Or as alternative, do you have capacity to call us separately to turn it into a conference call?
Either option would not only make for a smoother conversation, but would also allow me to not have to be in same location as PDT.

1.4(B)
1.4(D)
B1

[redacted]

[redacted] so best that call be today.

Regards.

[redacted]

B1
1.4(D)

Sent from my BlackBerry® device from Digicel

RELEASE IN PART
B1,1.4(B),1.4(D),B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 24, 2010 5:58 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Can you be available for call from PDT Preval this p.m.?

Kust seeing this--can you talk? I'm on berry in car.

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~
Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 04/23/2035

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Apr 24 17:24:02 2010
Subject: Fw: Can you be available for call from PDT Preval this p.m.?

For you eyes only

B1
1.4(D)

----- Original Message -----
From
To: Mills, Cheryl D; Mills Cheryl
Sent: Sat Apr 24 16:00:09 2010
Subject: Can you be available for call from PDT Preval this p.m.?

B6

CDM:
At behest of PDT, I tried to call you just minutes ago to ask about your availability for phone call from him this afternoon.
- First choice: 5:00 p.m. (your time)
- Alternative: 7:00 p.m.
- If neither works for you, then propose time and we'll accomodate.
Two options to suggest:
1. With our individual cell phones, it is difficult to involve third person - to wit, me. Could you arrange for a conference type number and code to which PD and I could call separately?
2. Or as alternative, do you have capacity to call us separately to turn it into a conference call? 1.4(B)
Either option would not only make for a smoother conversation, but would also allow me to not have to be in same 1.4(D)
location as PDT.

so best that call be today.

Regards.

B1
1.4(D)

Sent from my BlackBerry® device from Digicel

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 24, 2010 6:26 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: FYI Kornblum... Sid

Pls print and have delivered to my house.

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop [redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Fri Apr 23 10:10:42 2010
Subject: FYI Kornblum... Sid

In light of Clegg's rising popularity partly based on his anti-Americanism and Germany's growing hegemony in Europe while becoming more insular, John Kornblum has written this op-ed with reference in last graphs to US policy.

The New York Times <http://www.nytimes.com/> <http://graphics8.nytimes.com/ads/spacer.gif> Printer Friendly Format Sponsored By <http://www.nytimes.com/adx/bin/adx_click.html?type=goto&opzn&page=www.nytimes.com/printer-friendly&pos=Position1&sn2=336c557e/4f3dd5d2&sn1=1c82efea/a8348c0e&camp=foxsearch2010_emailtools_1225557e_nyt5&ad=Cyrus_120x60_e_01.25&goto=http://www.foxsearchlight.com/cyrus>

---

April 23, 2010
I.H.T. Op-Ed Contributor

Germany in Need of a Dream

By JOHN KORNBLUM
Has Germany abandoned Europe? Do Angela Merkel's tough conditions for aid to Greece mean that Germany is no longer the motor of European integration? Has Frau Merkel in fact morphed from the Miss Europa of 2007 to the Fräulein Germania of 2010, as Germany's own former foreign minister Joschka Fischer has suggested?
As a former American ambassador who has lived and worked the better part of four decades around Germany, my Blackberry often glows red hot with messages from persons asking these questions. My response is always the same: Germany has changed very little, but Europe and the world have changed a lot. Therein lies the dilemma.
Germany has worked hard to dig its way out of the disaster of 1945, but trauma remains a defining issue for German society. Sixty five years later, Germany is still focused on the three essentials of its recovery: stability, respectability and peace. Keep this triangle in mind and lots of things quickly come into focus.
From the first days of the Federal Republic, Germany's leaders emphasized the importance of defining interests solely within a common European and Atlantic vocation. But they also understood that renouncing national ambitions did not remove the responsibility to pursue specific German goals through the common institutions.
Many important postwar accomplishments were conceived and pushed by Germany, sometimes over the opposition of others — including the United States. Ostpolitik was controversial for years, as was NATO enlargement. Germany pushed them with determination.

Helmut Kohl did not consult before promulgating his 10 points on reunification. He agreed to French desires for a common currency, but only if it could be a mirror of the Deutsche mark, for decades the European monetary standard. The euro stability pact, now the object of so much controversy with Greece, was the result. After 1990, the E.U.'s eastward expansion was Germany's way of firming up its Eastern flank.

Slowly and without fanfare, Germany has been remaking the European Union in its image. At each step of the way, Germany made its wishes more palatable by paying more than its share. Part of today's misunderstanding is caused by Germany's success in using its contributions to build an image of selflessness. Germany has been as single-minded in pursuit of its goals as Charles de Gaulle ever was for his, but it almost always left leadership to others.

A new consciousness grew after the costs of reunification began to mount. "Europe" in the institutional sense has become increasingly unpopular. German courts have begun to define German European issues in the context of the German Constitution rather than on the basis of E.U. law. At least some of Ms. Merkel's refusal to allow immediate assistance to Greece was based on her fears that it would fan anti-E.U. sentiment at home. Are these the first signs of a German Tea Party?

Here we find the source of most of the hand wringing about Germany's role as the "motor of Europe." Ms. Merkel's unwillingness to sweeten the financial pot echoed throughout Brussels. To many, it signified the decline of German willingness to "salute the French flag three times before raising the German flag," as Konrad Adenauer used to put it. Germans are not alone in objecting to throwing more money into the E.U. pot, but they happen to be the only ones who can do something about it. Many fear that without German complaisance, the E.U. will stutter to a stop. But such self-denial could never offer a viable foundation for a new Europe. Neither could the inefficiency and even corruption that characterizes many E.U. programs.

Most maddening for most thinking Europeans is the knowledge that the Germans are right. But to them, the question is whether Germany is remaking the E.U. in a fashion palatable to the majority of other member states. They are not so sure that its focus on stability and accountability is the right way to help such a diverse collection of peoples adjust to a globalized world.

And so when Angela Merkel raps Greek knuckles, she is sending a message most Europeans don't want to hear. Not that Germany is dangerous; even worse, that it is unrelenting. The Neue Züricher Zeitung probably spoke for many others when it once accused Germany of wanting Europe to become a large Switzerland.

The growing gap between Germany's aspirations and the perceived needs of other members of the E.U. is beginning to burden both sides. Most Europeans are simply not ready to live up to German standards. Without a more flexible sense of common purpose, the project to build a democratic Europe could stop dead in the water. But as Germans will themselves often tell you: They have forgotten how to dream.

Younger Germans feel this lack of inspiration as well. Dreams were what 200,000 of them were waiting to hear when they rallied to hear Barack Obama in Berlin two summers ago. They wanted more than to "Dare to Hope," which is the characteristically timid German translation of the title of the president's best seller. And they are still waiting. America seems busy elsewhere.

The main conclusion I draw from the debate about Germany is that it is not about Germany at all. The task of building a democratic Europe is far from complete. Most of the foundations have been laid and now the residents are starting to haggle over the design. Weaving today's 27 states into a true trans-Atlantic partnership is a task that is too big for Germany or even Europe to accomplish alone. They desperately need some skilled architectural assistance.

Uniting Europe and North America is the most audacious project ever conceived. If it works, the United States will be joined by nearly 500 million Europeans to form a democratic space, within which modern democratic values will harness more energy than in any single nation on earth. Democracy's future as the operating system for a globalized world will be assured.

European fecklessness seems to worry Washington officials these days. But if Germany has forgotten how to dream and the United States is too busy to try, we will both be guilty of perpetuating the aimlessness we so criticize. To hold up its side of the bargain, Europe needs exactly what Barack Obama originally promised — the audacity of hope.

John Kornblum, senior counselor with the international law firm Noerr LLP in Berlin, served as the U.S. ambassador to Germany from 1997 to 2001.

<http://up.nytimes.com/?d=0/9/&t=&s=1&ui=1384214&r=http%3a%2f%2fwww%2enytimes%2ecom%2f2010%2f04%2f23%2fopinion%2f23iht%2dedkornblum%2ehtml%3femc%3deta1&u=www%2enytimes%2ecom%2f2010%2f04%2f23%2fopinion%2f23iht%2dedkornblum%2ehtml%3femc%3deta1%26pagewanted%3dprint>

DCSIMG
<http://wt.o.nytimes.com/dcsym57yw10000s1s8g0boozt_9t1x/njs.gif?dcsuri=/nojavascript&WT.js=No&WT.tv=1.0.7>

<http://www.nytimes.com/adx/bin/clientside/2c7bce84Q2FRbLQ51TT4Q23TLwQ51Q51Q5BQ25TQ2ATQ22Q22Q2AbQ23Q22Q51>

RELEASE IN PART
B1,1.4(B),1.4(D),B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 24, 2010 7:30 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Amano [redacted] 1.4(D) B1

I assume Steve et al got the readouts [redacted]

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Apr 24 19:21:32 2010
Subject: Fw: Amano [redacted]

Fyi

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 04/23/2035

---

From: Mull, Stephen D
To: Sullivan, Jacob J; Ashraf, Madeeha S; Waser, Tamir G; Burns, William J; Waller, Robert P; Wells, Alice G
Sent: Sat Apr 24 17:50:47 2010
Subject: FW: Amano [redacted]

FYI, excellent readout from Ambassador Davies' meeting with IAEA DG Amano [redacted]

From: Davies, Glyn T
Sent: Saturday, April 24, 2010 1:24 PM
To: Mull, Stephen D; Einhorn, Robert J; Timbie, James P; Cook, Nerissa J; [redacted]; Scheland, Mark DL; Burk, Susan F B6
Cc: 'Poneman, Daniel'; Pyatt, Geoffrey R; Hall, Andrea G; [redacted] Hoh, Christopher J; Pappas, Demitra M; Yu, Alan K; Nephew, Richard M
Subject: Amano [redacted] 1.4(D) B1

Good chat with the DG, just a half-hour after he landed from his Tokyo flight.

[redacted] 1.4(B) 1.4(D) B1

B1
1.4(B)
1.4(D)

-

G

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, April 24, 2010 7:43 PM
To: 'vermarr@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Harry Reid

I still have not received the call sheet.

----- Original Message -----
From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Apr 24 15:19:19 2010
Subject: RE: Harry Reid

We prepared a call sheet that is in clearance now. Will send to you ASAP.

-----Original Message-----
From: H [mailto:HDR22@clintonemail.com]
Sent: Saturday, April 24, 2010 9:31 AM
To: Verma, Richard R
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D; Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Harry Reid

Rich, Given his recent letter to me, I need to call him soon. Can you provide suggested points for Iran and Israel? Thx.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, April 25, 2010 9:56 AM
To: 'preines [redacted] 'sullivanjj@state.gov'; Huma Abedin B6
Subject: Newsweek

So what's the verdict on the article?

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, April 25, 2010 10:18 AM
To: 'preines B6
Subject: Re: Newsweek

Thx for all your help especially since I know it's hard helping Methodists!

----- Original Message -----
From: PIR <preines B6
To: H; Jake Sullivan <sullivanjj@state.gov>; Huma Abedin
Sent: Sun Apr 25 10:03:32 2010
Subject: Re: Newsweek

Really good stuff. Especially fantastic opening page

Getting very very good feedback

I can't even remember now what if anything in it bugged me yesterday. Nothing in it has anyone making a double take to flesh out so far.

Its overall frame of the partnership paints you in exactly the way I think people respect you most, and I think Hirsh might actually have come up with a theme that will stick.

Have only seen the cover photo online, I want to see the hardcopy since we all know it's the pictures that really matter. Text on the cover is great

------Original Message------
From: Evergreen
To: PIR
To: Jake Sullivan
To: Huma Abedin
Subject: Newsweek
Sent: Apr 25, 2010 9:55 AM

So what's the verdict on the article?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, April 25, 2010 10:26 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Anything to report?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, April 25, 2010 11:12 AM
To: 'bam@mikulski.senate.gov'
Subject: Good luck on a good start!

Barb--

I loved your comments at your re-election kickoff and hope you've scared off all the would-be opponents.

How's our friend, Martin, doing? I know he has a rematch when he should be reelected by acclamation for steering the ship of state so well. Pls give him my best wishes.

And go get 'em! Your friend and booster, Hillary

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, April 25, 2010 3:25 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Iran

Sounds good. Thx.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Apr 25 15:05:41 2010
Subject: Iran

You'll get from Derek and me tonight a short agenda with framing questions for the Iran meeting tomorrow. Derek is on call to act as a sort of conductor and move the conversation along, if need be.

RELEASE IN PART
B1,1.4(B),1.4(D)

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, April 25, 2010 4:13 PM
To: 'CampbellKM@state.gov'
Cc: 'SteinbergJB@state.gov'
Subject: Futenma

What is the state of play? I read the reports about [redacted] And what do we do now? 1.4(B) 1.4(D) B1

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 04/25/2035

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, April 25, 2010 7:11 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'; 'cheryl.mills [redacted]' B6
Subject: Can you talk tonight?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, April 25, 2010 9:35 PM
To: 'vermarr@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Harry Reid

I talked w him and will download tomorrow.

----- Original Message -----
From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Apr 25 21:05:19 2010
Subject: RE: Harry Reid

Did you get what you need? Is there anything else that might be helpful to you?

-----Original Message-----
From: H [mailto:HDR22@clintonemail.com]
Sent: Saturday, April 24, 2010 9:31 AM
To: Verma, Richard R
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D; Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Harry Reid

Rich, Given his recent letter to me, I need to call him soon. Can you provide suggested points for Iran and Israel? Thx.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, April 26, 2010 10:15 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Cc: Huma Abedin
Subject: Call list

Pls send Gen. Shalikashvili's numbers to Bill's staff because he asked me to have Bill call him.

Send all of Ron Dellums' numbers also to Bill.

Did I write Kris Durmer? If so, pls remove.

Pls add to list:
Susan Berger
Mark Weiner
Pls take off:
Albright
Lavrov
Spindelegger
Clark (ask Amb. Morningstar to call him to discuss oil shale in Europe) Saudabayev Holbrooke

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, October 29, 2010 8:59 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: DAC Chair Election

Fyi

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D
To: 'jbatwood [redacted] B6
Sent: Fri Oct 29 20:58:36 2010
Subject: Re: DAC Chair Election

We are so thrilled, grateful and proud.

You will serve us and the global community well.

Cdm

----- Original Message -----
From: Brian Atwood [redacted]
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Fri Oct 29 15:58:15 2010
Subject: DAC Chair Election

Dear Cheryl,

The member states today confirmed unanimously my election to chair the Development Assistance Committee of OECD. This is a strong mandate and I would not have received it without your support. I look forward to receiving your good advice and counsel during my term of office-- and beyond. Many thanks.

Brian

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Lissa Muscatine
Sent: Friday, October 29, 2010 11:37 PM
To: H
Subject: Re: checking in

B6

Glad to hear that you're happy with the transition.

I'll keep you posted on what I'm hearing. In the meantime, good luck on the trip and one of these years we will get you to our Halloween party! xoxo

On Oct 29, 2010, at 10:48 PM, H wrote:

> He's w me in Vietnam right > now. So, altho I miss you, I think we're ok. Let me know what you > hear. Love to all--H
>
> ----- Original Message -----
> From: Lissa Muscatine
> To: H
> Sent: Mon Oct 25 00:18:27 2010
> Subject: checking in
>
> Just wanted to see if everything is going okay from your vantage point > with the speech team. I hear from each of them now and then but want > to make sure things are working out the way you want them to.

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, April 26, 2010 8:14 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Ahmadinejad to speak at RevCon

Very. [redacted] B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Apr 26 18:40:29 2010
Subject: FW: Ahmadinejad to speak at RevCon

Interesting.

From: Einhorn, Robert J
Sent: Monday, April 26, 2010 5:33 PM
To: Burns, William J; Sullivan, Jacob J; Tauscher, Ellen O; 'Ryu, Rexon Y.'; Samore, Gary S.; Magsamen, Kelly E.; Crowley, Philip J; Steinberg, James B; Mills, Cheryl D; Chollet, Derek H; Mull, Stephen D
Subject: Ahmadinejad to speak at RevCon

UN Secretariat informed us a few minutes ago that Iran says Ahmadinejad will give Iran's speech at the RevCon on Monday. Because of seniority, he may speak first.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, April 26, 2010 8:18 PM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'; 'JilotyLC@state.gov'; 'Russorv@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Bad news

Pls send a letter and add her to call list. I called yesterday and spoke w her son-in-law.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Apr 24 20:32:21 2010
Subject: Fw: Bad news

B6

----- Original Message -----
From: Doug Band
To: 'jpodesta Mills, Cheryl D; Abedin, Huma; Hannah Richert ; Justin Cooper
Sent: Sat Apr 24 20:30:32 2010
Subject: Re: Bad news

Terrible news
Thx for letting us know

----- Original Message -----
From: John Podesta
To: 'dband millscd@state.gov' <millscd@state.gov>
Sent: Sat Apr 24 20:09:37 2010
Subject: Bad news

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, October 30, 2010 5:52 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (AP) China, Japan leaders meet amid row

From: Virgil, Lynn C
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_Shift-I
Sent: Sat Oct 30 05:35:20 2010
Subject: (AP) China, Japan leaders meet amid row

HANOI (AP) - A Southeast Asian official said the leaders of Japan and China have held an informal meeting at a regional summit amid a diplomatic row that has overshadowed the gathering. Surin Pitsuwan, secretary-general of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, confirmed that Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao and Japanese Prime Minister Naoto Kan met Saturday on the sidelines of the summit of East Asian leaders in Hanoi, Vietnam. There had been speculation they would not meet at all because of a dispute over a maritime territorial dispute that plunged relations to a five-year low.

Lynn Virgil
Watch Officer
Operations Center
202-647-1512

RELEASE IN PART
B1,1.4(D),B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, April 26, 2010 8:23 PM
To: 'mchaleja@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Update on your trip to Doha

Travel well. I'll look forward to hearing your report.

----- Original Message -----
From: McHale, Judith A <McHaleJA@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>; Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>; DiMartino, Kitty <DiMartinoK@state.gov>; Douglas, Walter T <DouglasWT@state.gov>; Macmanus, Joseph E <MacmanusJE@state.gov>
Sent: Mon Apr 26 15:09:15 2010
Subject: FW: Update on your trip to Doha

FYI, I will be going to Doha this weekend to meet with Al Jazeera. Also plan to meet with CENTCOM and then onto Kabul for two days of meetings. Back next Thursday.

jm

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 04/25/2035

From: Somerset, Ann D
Sent: Monday, April 26, 2010 3:04 PM
To: McHale, Judith A
Cc: Douglas, Walter T; DiMartino, Kitty; Davidson, Mark J; Mellott, Joseph; Sreebny, Daniel
Subject: Update on your trip to Doha

Judith,

Below is a rough outline of your trip to Doha, as it currently stands.

LOGISTICS:

You are currently scheduled to arrive in Doha on May 1 at 6:30 and depart May 2 at 7 pm. Traveling with you will be Kitty DiMartino, Joe Mellott, Mark Davidson, and GSEC's LTC Eric Schoennauer. Dana Smith will fly in from the Media Hub in Dubai to meet you in Doha.

Key events:

Dinner with Al Jazeera (AJ) staff: AJ Director General Wadah Khanfar will host a dinner on May 1 with senior AJ staff, including AJ English Managing Director Tony Burman. We expect 7 people on the AJ side and 6 on ours. (The dinner is schedule for 8pm in a private room in the Four Seasons; post is making reservations for the party to stay in the same hotel.)

Meeting with AJ Board Members at AJ Headquarters: This will give you an opportunity to engage the Qatari leadership of the network. Discussions topics should include the mid-May Washington visit by some AJ Board representatives. We expect Wadah Khanfar to also participate in this meeting.

(TBC) Meeting with Prime Minister Hamad bin Jasim bin Jabir al-Thani (HBJ): As PM, HBJ is the ultimate Qatari authority on AJ. The meeting will also allow you to raise bi-lateral engagement issues as necessary. We expect to know in a few days if HBJ will be available.

Meetings with CENTCOM: You will meet with CENTCOM staff at Al Udeid airbase just outside of Doha. They will brief you on their [redacted] within their AOR, but with particular focus on activities in [redacted]

B1
1.4(D)

MEDIA:

Feature on AJ Arabic: 15 minute "feature" piece filmed at AJ Studios on the Administration's commitment to engagement with Muslim communities worldwide. This will be a good opportunity to highlight the Entrepreneurship Summit. We can expect you to also get questions on PD programs in Afghanistan, Pakistan, and Iraq. You will be interviewed by one of AJ's "top" journalists; exactly who is still to be determined. The interview will be in English with simultaneous interpretation into Arabic. It will likely air a number of times on AJ.

Feature on AJ English: This would be a second 15 minute "feature" piece similar to the one for AJ Arabic. If we are pressed for time we can consider just doing the AJ Arabic feature.

Roundtable with local Qatari media: This will include journalists from a number of local Qatari media outlets. This is another opportunity to talk about the Administration's commitment to engagement, but with a more targeted focus on bilateral engagement and exchange programs.

Note – Wadah Khanfar has been closely engaged on, if not driving, the portions of your program that deal with AJ. Post reports that he is very pleased to have this opportunity for you to engage with AJ leadership in Doha.

Best,

Ann

Ann Somerset

Special Assistant

Office of the Under Secretary of State for Public Diplomacy and Public Affairs (R)

U.S. Department of State

2201 C St, NW Rm 5932

W: 202.647.9130| M: [redacted] | *: SomersetAD@state.gov B6

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, April 26, 2010 8:42 PM
To: 'preines[redacted] B6
Subject: Nice picture!

Just saw the WaPo article w your photo and wondered whether that was on your list?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, April 28, 2010 7:04 AM
To: Huma Abedin; 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Dai

Am I talking w him at 7:30?

RELEASE IN PART
B1,1.4(B),1.4(D),B6

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, October 30, 2010 6:08 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Jake---just back from Kabul. Very successful trip. Since we won't see each other for a while, some short takes for H and you--and, please, no one else:

Fyi - some interesting nuggets in here.

----- Original Message -----
From: Holbrooke, Richard
To: 'jake.sullivan Sullivan, Jacob J B6
Sent: Sat Oct 30 05:01:41 2010
Subject: Jake---just back from Kabul. Very successful trip. Since we won't see each other for a while, some short takes for H and you--and, please, no one else:

1.4(B)
1.4(D)
B1

To emphasize this latter point. Zardari sent his Commerce Min to Kabul while I was there to formally sign the Transit Trade agreemdnt in a big ceremony Un which both sides praised the US for making it possible. Lots of pro-US media.

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 10/30/2020

1.4(D)
B1

9) I field tested this with the press twice--in Kabul Thursday and DC Friday. Will see NYTimes Ed Board monday to continue this "shaping campaign" ahead of Lisbon.

11) Aftrr looking closely at Lisbon sched, I see no reason to go. I have to be in I'bad 2 days earlier, and am way iver-travelled right now.

1.4(B)
1.4(D)
B1

12) Tom is replacing Aneesh Ghoul for india. A leading contender appears to be jonah Blank.

13) Tom still looking for a woman to replace Luz S-R, ivo is helping with the search.

14) Dinner with Mullen tonight. Tom has apparently not yet asked him formally for a senior mil advisor, but I assume he will.
Discussed his succesor drama.

15) Ruggiero and Lute still in region.

16) Massive 2011 personnel issues in Kabul at every level, which I am trying to sort out.

17) Enjoy Hanoi. Best to all.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, October 30, 2010 9:14 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (AP) Iran acknowledges sanctions driving up costs

From: Casteel, Ezra A
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_Shift-II; SES-O_OS
Sent: Sat Oct 30 07:56:05 2010
Subject: (AP) Iran acknowledges sanctions driving up costs

TEHRAN (AP) - Iranian officials are acknowledging international sanctions imposed on the country over its nuclear program have dramatically increased the cost of living, but the penalties will ultimately prove futile. Commerce Minister Mahdi Ghazanfari said if the sanctions were really having an impact, then the UN would not have had to impose four sets of penalties. Chamber of Commerce President Mohammad Nahavandian did say the sanctions have driven up the cost of imports by 30 percent.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, October 30, 2010 10:36 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Reuters) UK says bomb could have brought down a plane

From: Casteel, Ezra A
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_Shift-II; SES-O_OS
Sent: Sat Oct 30 10:34:21 2010
Subject: (Reuters) UK says bomb could have brought down a plane

LONDON (Reuters) - A bomb found on a U.S.-bound cargo plane in Britain was "viable" and could have brought down an aircraft if it had exploded, British interior minister Theresa May said. In response, Britain will act immediately to stop the movement of all unaccompanied air freight from Yemen into or through Britain, she told reporters.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, October 30, 2010 10:47 AM
To: H
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Fw: visit by HRC

Fyi re reaction to your words B6

---

From: Dunn, David
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Cc: Luzzatto
Sent: Sat Oct 30 08:21:01 2010
Subject: Re: David Dunn's and Herb Miller's Hainan Island visit coincides with visit by HRC

Cheryl, Tamara: Have heard from Huma and we know it is only an airport stop. You were both so kind to take the time to respond.

FYI We have an american friend translating for us so we get unedited version of private comments of elites we see. Would like to pass on following:

Listening to translation of our more senior Chinese hosts commentary on her visit, she is clearly seen here as a figure of extraordinary influence on the global stage.
Her words on regional issues, whether praising or questioning, provoke extensive commentary. Complete sentences parsed and discussed. Fascinating juxtaposition vs back in US.

David E. Dunn

---

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: Dunn, David; Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>; albond
Cc: Luzzatto
Sent: Sat Oct 30 06:50:54 2010
Subject: Re: David Dunn's and Herb Miller's Hainan Island visit coincides with visit by HRC

Hello David - I wish we could figure something out but unfortunately we are super late, we are about to land at the airport, doing an official meeting and has to leave asap. Isn't even getting off airport grounds. So sorry, its just such a fly by night stop.

---

From: Dunn, David
To: Mills, Cheryl D; albond
Cc: luzzatto Abedin, Huma
Sent: Sat Oct 30 05:29:13 2010
Subject: Re: David Dunn's and Herb Miller's Hainan Island visit coincides with visit by HRC

Huma: We are very proud of our friend the Secretary and the job she is doing. But your foreign trip logistics are hard enough. Seeing old friends should hold no priority in relation to her important work, notwithstanding the coincidence of our weekend visit to Hainan.

If she'd like a short reprieve from official duties, and logistics permit, we would of course love to say hello.

(Herb Miller and I are invited by Hainan officials for Monday morning, hosted by fmr Vice Chmn of China Agricultural Bank. We are here in relation to Central Committee plans for Hainan becoming a leading international tourism destination.)

All the Best,

David E. Dunn

B6

---

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: albond
Cc: Dunn, David; luzzatto; Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sat Oct 30 04:19:40 2010
Subject: Re: David Dunn's and Herb Miller's Hainan Island visit coincides with visit by HRC

Amy

So nice to hear from you.

I am not certain what her sked permits but I know how much she thinks of you and David.

I am adding Huma who is traveling w/ S to advise as to her availability for a hello given her trip commitments.

Thanks for reaching out.

All the best.

Cdm

---

From: Amy Bondurant
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Cc: Dunn, David; luzzatto
Sent: Fri Oct 29 23:41:21 2010
Subject: David Dunn's and Herb Miller's Hainan Island visit coincides with visit by HRC

Dear Cheryl,
I hope all is well with you. We are all thrilled about the perception of HRC and the job she has been doing for us all. Makes me miss my old ambassadorial days working with State.

As you can see by the below email to me, husband David Dunn (a lawyer/not lobbiest at Patton Boggs, and an old friend of Hillary's) and another Hillary friend, Herb Miller, will be on Hainan Island on Sat. and Sun. Oct 30 and 31 (already Sat. morning there now) to go to the city of Sanya to visit the Mayor. They are there to commit to a major commercial mall project in Sanya with their Chinese partners, Huinong Capital.

They believe that HRC will be visiting Sanya as well in the same time frame and will meet with officials there.

They would love to say hello to HRC to show US businessmen committed to expanded US China trade relations if convenient for her and not an interference. David can be reached at Thanks Cheryl.

Warmly,
Amy Bondurant

B6

---

From: Dunn, David
Sent: Friday, October 29, 2010 11:28 PM
To: albond
Subject: Our Hainan Island visit coincides with visit by HRC

Herb Miller and I arrive Hainan Island for Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 30 and 31 visit to city of Sanya to see the Mayor. We are there to commit to major commercial mall project in Sanya with our Chinese partners, Huinong Capital.
HRC will be visiting Sanya as well then and will meet with officials to prepare Pres. Hu visit to US in January.

If not an interference we would love to say hello to HRC to show US businessmen committed to expanded US China trade relations.
David E. Dunn

DISCLAIMER:
This e-mail message contains confidential, privileged information intended solely for the addressee. Please do not read, copy, or disseminate it unless you are the addressee. If you have received it in error, please call us (collect) at (202) 457-6000 and ask to speak with the message sender. Also, we would appreciate your forwarding the message back to us and deleting it from your system. Thank you.

This e-mail and all other electronic (including voice) communications from the sender's firm are for informational purposes only. No such communication is intended by the sender to constitute either an electronic record or an electronic signature, or to constitute any agreement by the sender to conduct a transaction by electronic means. Any such intention or agreement is hereby expressly disclaimed unless otherwise specifically indicated. To learn more about our firm, please visit our website at http://www.pattonboggs.com.

DISCLAIMER:
This e-mail message contains confidential, privileged information intended solely for the addressee. Please do not read, copy, or disseminate it unless you are the addressee. If you have received it in error, please call us (collect) at (202) 457-6000 and ask to speak with the message sender. Also, we would appreciate your forwarding the message back to us and deleting it from your system. Thank you.

This e-mail and all other electronic (including voice) communications from the sender's firm are for informational purposes only. No such communication is intended by the sender to constitute either an electronic record or an electronic signature, or to constitute any agreement by the sender to conduct a transaction by electronic means. Any such intention or agreement is hereby expressly disclaimed unless otherwise specifically indicated. To learn more about our firm, please visit our website at http://www.pattonboggs.com.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, October 30, 2010 1:51 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Reuters) Yemen says forces surround house with parcel suspect

From: Casteel, Ezra A
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_Shift-II; SES-O_OS
Sent: Sat Oct 30 13:10:31 2010
Subject: (Reuters) Yemen says forces surround house with parcel suspect

SANAA (Reuters) - Yemen security forces have surrounded a house where a suspect believed to have sent explosive packages headed to the United States is hiding, Yemen's president said. "National security are sealing off a house in which there is a woman believed to have sent the packages," Ali Abdullah Saleh told a news conference, but he did not give the location of the house or any further details.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Russo, Robert V <RussoRV@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, October 30, 2010 9:50 PM
To: H
Subject: Re: Baby [redacted] B6

I've already got it ready for your return. Safe travels!

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Russo, Robert V
Sent: Sat Oct 30 20:10:33 2010
Subject: Fw: Baby [redacted]

Pls do congrats.

----- Original Message -----
From: Miguel Rodriguez [redacted]
To: Traci Rodriguez [redacted]
Sent: Thu Oct 28 13:18:30 2010
Subject: Baby [redacted]

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, October 30, 2010 11:34 PM
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma
Subject: QDDR

I hope you don't read any of this but I've given Huma a complete draft of QDDR plus four key docs:

The first is the decision memo you asked for; second is recommendations for reforming rather than eliminating IO bureau; third and fourth are two alternative approaches to the major development initiatives (one is the standard approach; the other is Cheryl's that she'd like to discuss with you).

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, October 31, 2010 12:08 AM
To: H
Subject: IMG00068-20101031-1132.jpg
Attachments: IMG00068-20101031-1132.jpg

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, October 31, 2010 1:08 AM
To: H
Subject: IMG00072-20101031-1141.jpg
Attachments: IMG00072-20101031-1141.jpg

B6

RELEASE IN FULL

---

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, October 31, 2010 4:46 AM
To: H
Subject: IMG00083-20101031-1645.jpg
Attachments: IMG00083-20101031-1645.jpg

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, October 31, 2010 7:30 AM
To: H
Subject: Fyi

B6

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, October 31, 2010 7:58 AM
To: H
Subject: Re: QDDR

Ready to talk at your convenience. Timing is somewhat flexible - we have to circulate to interagency on the 19th - but the sooner we nail down decisions the better.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sun Oct 31 07:40:08 2010
Subject: Re: QDDR

This is a challenge. I'll be ready to talk either later tonight or tomorrow. What's our time frame?

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sat Oct 30 23:34:03 2010
Subject: QDDR

I hope you don't read any of this but I've given Huma a complete draft of QDDR plus four key docs:

The first is the decision memo you asked for; second is recommendations for reforming rather than eliminating IO bureau; third and fourth are two alternative approaches to the major development initiatives (one is the standard approach; the other is Cheryl's that she'd like to discuss with you).

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, October 31, 2010 8:34 AM
To: H
Subject: Re: QDDR

Yep - can do.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sun Oct 31 08:22:10 2010
Subject: Re: QDDR

Can you come to my room btw 10-10:30?

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Oct 31 07:57:59 2010
Subject: Re: QDDR

Ready to talk at your convenience. Timing is somewhat flexible - we have to circulate to interagency on the 19th - but the sooner we nail down decisions the better.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sun Oct 31 07:40:08 2010
Subject: Re: QDDR

This is a challenge. I'll be ready to talk either later tonight or tomorrow. What's our time frame?

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sat Oct 30 23:34:03 2010
Subject: QDDR

I hope you don't read any of this but I've given Huma a complete draft of QDDR plus four key docs:

The first is the decision memo you asked for; second is recommendations for reforming rather than eliminating IO bureau; third and fourth are two alternative approaches to the major development initiatives (one is the standard approach; the other is Cheryl's that she'd like to discuss with you).

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, October 31, 2010 11:12 AM
To: H

Happy to come over if you'd like

RELEASE IN PART
B6

B6

From: Mitchell, George
Sent: Sunday, October 31, 2010 11:36 AM
To: H
Subject: Re: Personal--see below message from

OK, will do.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: 'ldavis
Cc: Mitchell, George;
Sent: Sun Oct 31 06:56:44 2010
Subject: Re: Personal--see below message from

Dear Lanny,

I'm in Asia for the next ten days, so I'm copying George and asking him to read your email below and then contact you to discuss your ideas. Thx for your concern, and thx also to George for following up w you. Hillary

----- Original Message -----
From: Lanny J. Davis
To: H
Sent: Thu Oct 21 07:59:20 2010
Subject: Personal--see below message from

Dear H: A message from my soulmate who, like me, agreed with every word of your speech.

"The Secretary did a SUPERP job and the audience responded with a standing ovation. They loved her. I am grateful and relieved. We heard many compliments.

Now I believe we can be helpful through the back door in breaking the stalemate.

We have an idea. Off the record - and you know I have never violated my word to you that only you know of my and efforts at the time of the suspension of the settlements moratorium - we have an idea. But must remain back door and only becomes official when principals propose and agree.
You said you could put me in touch with someone we both can trust to hear what we see as a way to break the stalemate.

I have two suggestions for us to talk to - old friends who know me and whom you trust:

1) Geo Mitchell - did you know Geo was my first "boss" in 1971 in a presidential campaign - Ed Muskie's? (I was the "national youth coordinator" when every "youth" I knew, including Hillary Rodham and Bill Clinton, was for George McGovern)

2) Jim Steinberg - my buddy from my WH days.

Or whoever you suggest. We want to meet off-the-record, no one can know, to share this idea.

As to your speech - it must get wider circulation.

I am going to write about it in my Hill column next week (also appears on Huffington and Daily Caller). Can you have someone send I to me ASAP?)

My heart truly was filled with gratitude and admiration for the courage you showed last night - courage because your words were tough love equally for both sides.

Tough love for both sides.

Isn't that what you have done all your political life - fact-based policies and positions, whether offending purists on either side -- or both?

Best,

Lanny

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, June 6, 2010 4:08 PM
To: 'slaughtera@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Larger impact of hard work on Haiti

That's gratifying. Now we just have to make the rebuilding work--no easy task.

----- Original Message -----
From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
To: H; Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Sat Jun 05 16:20:47 2010
Subject: Larger impact of hard work on Haiti

From an INR report just released:

Western Europe: Publics Credit U.S. for Relief to Haiti

Britons, French, Germans, Italians, and Spaniards say the United States has done more than other countries to assist Haiti following the devastating January earthquake. Though relief efforts in Haiti have not themselves directly impacted opinion of the United States, the belief that the United States generally assists disaster-stricken countries does positively affect U.S. image.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Ebeling, Betsy [redacted] B6
Sent: Sunday, October 31, 2010 1:18 PM
To: H
Subject: RE: Very scare sign of the times

Just read in the Sunday paper that the library was given a reprieve and will last until the end of the Des Plaines fiscal year. Tuesday will be such a telling day. On paper there is a co-ordinated Democratic campaign in Illinois--however, it is ghostlike--sort of shimmering in the distance. When WJC was here the other day, they all turned out: Dubrin and "the other guy", Speaker Madigan, President Cullerton, many electeds and all gathered to have their photos taken with him. What an assembly of power going nowhere--just finger pointing and hiding. Of course, they all smiled for WJC and said they were working hard for the party.....Is WJC the only one trying? Must be exhausting for him,,,and you. Safe travels. Awaiting the trick or treaters. It's a beautiful day for it. Love you, B

---

From: H [mailto:HDR22@clintonemail.com]
Sent: Sat 10/30/2010 8:44 PM
To: Ebeling, Betsy
Subject: Re: Very scare sign of the times

That is a sad sign and I'm afraid more to come.

Happy Halloween from Angkor Wat!

----- Original Message -----
From: Ebeling, Betsy [redacted]
To: H
Sent: Thu Oct 28 11:24:10 2010
Subject: Very scare sign of the times

The Des Plaines Public Library Board Tuesday approved closing the library on Dec. 5 if the city of Des Plaines does not cosign a bank loan of up to $1.5 million and Cook County property tax receipts are delayed.

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, June 6, 2010 4:16 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Cc: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Re: Brief memo for Cheryl Mills on Colombia - for Secretary Clinton

[redacted] B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Thu Jun 03 13:48:20 2010
Subject: FW: Brief memo for Cheryl Mills on Colombia - for Secretary Clinton

fyi

From: Brownfield, William R
Sent: Thursday, June 03, 2010 10:41 AM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: RE: Brief memo for Cheryl Mills on Colombia - for Secretary Clinton

Cheryl

[redacted] B5

Feel free to share if you wish.

WRB

From: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Thursday, June 03, 2010 7:33 AM
To: Sullivan, Jacob J; Posner, Michael H
Cc: Abedin, Huma; Kelly, Craig A; Brownfield, William R; Fuchs, Michael H; Baer, Daniel B; Reines, Philippe I
Subject: FW: Brief memo for Cheryl Mills on Colombia - for Secretary Clinton

See b/l re travel to columbia

From: Buhl, Cindy [mailto:Cindy.Buhl@mail.house.gov]
Sent: Wednesday, June 02, 2010 3:49 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Cc: Buhl, Cindy
Subject: Brief memo for Cheryl Mills on Colombia - for Secretary Clinton

Dear Cheryl –

In my last email (Friday, 5/28), I attached the letter from the bipartisan Co-Chairs and Executive Committee members of the Tom Lantos Human Rights Commission sent to Assistant Secretary Mike Posner expressing grave concern about the recent rise in death threats, attacks and murders of Colombian human rights defenders, religious, community and other NGO leaders. Congressman McGovern also strongly encouraged the Secretary to meet with representatives of those organizations and individuals being threatened, with a particularly effort to reach out to and invite the Bishops of Tumaco (Nariño), Barrancabermeja/Medio Magdalena (Santander), and we would now add Putumayo, since the Colombian Catholic Church just advised us yesterday of increased death threats against religious workers there. In addition, we recommended inviting Monseñor Hector Fabio Henao, director of Pastoral Social, at the Archdiocese in Bogotá, who represents all the pastoral work of the Church throughout the country, as well as representatives from the Mennonite and Lutheran churches, in particular.

While in Colombia, the most important thing the Secretary can do is avoid effusive praise for President Álvaro Uribe, who leaves office in August. Inside Colombia, the visit by the Secretary is being described as focusing solely on the free trade agreement and continuing support of the counterdrug strategy/Plan Colombia. Without changes in the human rights situation and the culture of impunity, it is unlikely that anything the Secretary might say or do will alter the equation on Capitol Hill regarding the trade agreement. It should be noted that the October 2008 GAO report on the counter-drug operations in Colombia concluded that U.S. assistance was successful in increasing security in parts of the country, but a failure in the areas of counter-narcotics (GAO-09-71) , and a subsequent April 2009 USAID evaluation on U.S. aid for Plan Colombia for illegal crop reduction and Colombian counternarcotics policies actually contribute to increased coca production.

The Colombian president has been a solid backer of U.S. policy and U.S. interests in the region, and has achieved some important improvements in the country's security situation. It is important to recognize that, but to do so without repeating the tone of Defense Secretary Gates' April visit, in which he called Uribe a "great hero" <http://www.defense.gov/news/newsarticle.aspx?id=58754> and failed even to mention any concerns.

These concerns are of critical importance, and while the Secretary need not list them all, at least some deserve public acknowledgement – some recognition that it is important to the United States that Colombia, including the current government and its successor, show the necessary political will to deal with them:

· A sharp rise in alleged military killings of civilians. In many cases, these are so-called "false positives": non-combatants murdered and later presented as members of armed groups killed in combat. These, notes <http://www.extrajudicialexecutions.org/colombia> UN Special Rapporter for Extrajudicial Executions Philip Alston, "began occurring with a disturbing frequency across Colombia from 2004." Citing prosecutors' and NGOs' reports, Alston indicates that Colombia's security forces may have killed 1,486 civilians during the first six years of Álvaro Uribe's presidency. Alston notes that the Defense Ministry only began to address the situation after the media broke the story of the false-positives and the subsequent negative publicity and horrified public outcry.

The prosecution of "false positives" is moving with excruciating slowness. In perhaps the most notorious case – the murders of about twenty young men from the poor Bogotá suburb of Soacha – nearly all of the accused soldiers and officers have been released from prison <http://www.ipsnews.net/news.asp?idnews=49968> , pending trial, as deadlines for timely prosecution have run out. Since their arrest in late 2008, their case has been prolonged by numerous delaying tactics by the defense, including attempts to have their cases tried in the military court system as "acts of service." Alston reports that the impunity rate on these extrajudicial murders by security forces may be as high as 98.5 percent.

· Mounting allegations that the President's intelligence service, the DAS, was put at the service <http://www.cipcol.org/?p=1123> of paramilitary leaders and narcotraffickers; used to spy on and intimidate <http://www.cipcol.org/?p=752> Supreme Court justices, opposition politicians, journalists and human rights defenders; and employed in a campaign of sabotage and smears <http://www.cipcol.org/?p=1467> against political opponents.

Prosecutors are alleging that the orders to have the DAS carry out wiretaps, surveillance and "political warfare" came from high up in the Colombian presidency <http://www.caracoltv.com/noticias/justicia/articulo168592-tres-asesores-de-uribe-son-investigados-chuzadas-ilegales> , though the question of "what President Uribe knew, and when he knew it" remains unanswered. Meanwhile efforts to reform or dissolve the DAS are stalled in Colombia's Congress.

· President Uribe's political coalition has also been hit by a scandal known in Colombia as "para-politics." This coalition has included dozens of political bosses from regions beyond the capital. Many are large landholders with ties to narcotrafficking, the same local leaders who created and fostered the brutal pro-government paramilitary groups that killed tens of thousands of non-combatants in the 1990s and early 2000s.

Evidence, much of it from former paramilitary leaders, has brought about 300 criminal investigations against legislators, governors, mayors and other local officials, nearly all of them Álvaro Uribe's political supporters, who made common cause with the far-right warlords. To date, of the 278 congresspeople and senators elected in 2006, 68 <http://www.nuevoarcoiris.org.co/sac/?q=node/64> are under official investigation, on trial, or convicted for paramilitary ties. Those embroiled in parapolitics include the President's cousin, Mario Uribe; the brother of his former foreign minister; and individuals whom the President had named to be Colombia's ambassadors to Chile, the Dominican Republic, and Canada.

The Colombian prosecutors, investigators, witnesses and non-governmental organizations trying to uncover the truth about these abuses are working under conditions of great personal risk. They, too, are heroes and would benefit greatly from a public expression of concern about the cases they are investigating, and a reminder that their work is legitimate and important to U.S. interests in Colombia.

At the same time, it is important to avoid appearing to endorse any candidate in the June 20 runoff elections. Between the first and second rounds of a country's presidential election is a politically awkward time for a high-level official visit. Though President Uribe's former defense minister, Juan Manuel Santos, is the overwhelming favorite given his margin of success in the May 30th first round of balloting over former Bogotá mayor Antanas Mockus, it is necessary at this stage to convey a sense of balance and a willingness to work closely with whoever wins. As a result, any kind words for one candidate should be balanced by praise for the other.

Finally, it would be helpful to remind the Colombian people that the United States supports a peaceful resolution of Bogotá's worsening differences with Venezuela. While President Chávez's behavior is a significant concern, it would be most unhelpful to be perceived on this trip as fanning the flames of conflict with Colombia – or playing into the Chavez rhetoric that the U.S. and Colombia have military aspirations in the region.

Hope this memo, along with last week's copy of the TLHRC letter to Assistant Secretary Posner, are helpful and useful materials for the Secretary as she plans her trip.

Very best wishes –

On behalf of Cong. Jim McGovern

Staff Contact: Cindy Buhl (202-225-6101 or cindy.buhl@mail.house.gov <mailto:cindy.buhl@mail.house.gov> )

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, June 7, 2010 4:20 PM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Can you see

Fyi

----- Original Message -----
From: H
To: Huma Abedin
Sent: Mon Jun 07 16:19:19 2010
Subject: Can you see

If staff of OAS can agree to tell SG Insulza that the lunch should be viewed as the bulk if the afternoon mtg since we have now discussed Honduras for 2 hours.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, June 7, 2010 4:33 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: confidential

Do you have an opinion about this?

----- Original Message -----
From: Cherie Blair [redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Mon Jun 07 09:56:45 2010
Subject: confidential

As you know I have good links to the Qataris. Sheikha Mosah's son is the 31/32 year old Crown Prince and she is keen that he starts to build a wider international profile. He has been appointed head of the Qatar National Food Security Programme which is designed to deal with Qatar's food security issues its a $30 billion programme. He is aware that food security is an issue you are majoring on and would love to meet with you in person to discuss this and to explore potential partnership areas between US and Qatar including possible participation in the US/World Bank Food Security Fund. He is also keen to talk more generally about US/Qatari cooperation and even suggested they could help out with the Oil spill problem. There is apparently a Arab Food Security Summit in October 2010 and he would like to discuss Us participation in that too.

IS a meeting possible he is more flexible on place and times than his mother! Or maybe we could set up an initial phone call.

Can you let me know if this appeals to you at all?

Cherie Blair

[redacted]

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, June 7, 2010 4:33 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: confidential

Do you have an opinion about this?

----- Original Message -----
From: Cherie Blair [redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Mon Jun 07 09:56:45 2010
Subject: confidential

As you know I have good links to the Qataris. Sheikha Mosah's son is the 31/32 year old Crown Prince and she is keen that he starts to build a wider international profile. He has been appointed head of the Qatar National Food Security Programme which is designed to deal with Qatar's food security issues its a $30 billion programme. He is aware that food security is an issue you are majoring on and would love to meet with you in person to discuss this and to explore potential partnership areas between US and Qatar including possible participation in the US/World Bank Food Security Fund. He is also keen to talk more generally about US/Qatari cooperation and even suggested they could help out with the Oil spill problem. There is apparently a Arab Food Security Summit in October 2010 and he would like to discuss Us participation in that too.

IS a meeting possible he is more flexible on place and times than his mother! Or maybe we could set up an initial phone call.

Can you let me know if this appeals to you at all?

Cherie Blair

[redacted]

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, April 28, 2010 10:34 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Number for cohns

Is this the number you got?

----- Original Message -----
From: Huma Abedin
To: H
Sent: Mon Apr 26 18:47:26 2010
Subject: Number for cohns

[redacted] B6

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, April 29, 2010 7:36 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re:

Thx. What did Mark Hyman tell you?

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Thu Apr 29 07:14:45 2010
Subject:

BEIJING, April 29 (Reuters) - A knife-wielding man injured 28 children, two teachers and a security guard in a kindergarten in eastern China, state media reported on Thursday, the fourth such stabbing case in recent weeks. Xu Yuyuan, 47, an unemployed local man, broke into a classroom in Taixing city of eastern Jiangsu province on Thursday morning, attacking the children with a 20 cm long knife, the official Xinhua news agency said. The injured children were all about four years old, and five are in critical condition, it added. Xu has been jobless since he was fired from a local insurance company in 2001, and then took part in pyramid selling schemes, Xinhua added. The attack is the fourth reported school stabbing in China in recent weeks, and the rash of violence has prompted public calls for more measures to protect students in a country where many couples only have one child. A man stabbed 16 students and a teacher at a primary school in southern China on Wednesday, the same day that a former doctor was executed for stabbing to death eight school children last month. "More concrete measures should be taken to make school the safest place," a commentary in today's Beijing News said, calling for more serve punishment for these killers. Some Chinese people have taken to the Internet to discuss the root causes of the increasing number of school tragedies

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, April 30, 2010 5:59 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: NAM lunch

Ok

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>; H
Sent: Thu Apr 29 22:23:51 2010
Subject: Re: NAM lunch

Hrc - we are going to extend invites tomorrow morning if ok with you?

---

From: Sullivan, Jacob J
To: 'HDR22@clintonemail.com' <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Thu Apr 29 19:28:10 2010
Subject: NAM lunch

Huma said you were asking about the goals and purposes of the NAM lunch Monday.

B5

B5

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, April 30, 2010 9:57 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Putin Tags Polar Bear in Arctic
Attachments: image001.jpg; image001.jpg

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Thu Apr 29 15:08:57 2010
Subject: FW: Putin Tags Polar Bear in Arctic

Pretty good stuff.

From: Russell, Daniel A
Sent: Thursday, April 29, 2010 3:08 PM
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Cc: Gordon, Philip H
Subject: Putin Tags Polar Bear in Arctic

Jake: This is the event to which Putin invited Bill Clinton during his meeting with HRC in Moscow.

Putin Tags Polar Bear in Russia's Arctic

Russian Prime Minister Helps Scientists Track Endangered Species, Calls for Removal of Russian Prime Minister Vladimir Putin, right, fixes a radio beacon on a neck of a polar bear, which was anaesthetized, during a visit to a research institute at the Franz Josef Land archipelago in the Arctic Ocean on Thursday. (AP Photo/RIA Novosti, pool)

(AP) Updated at 1:29 p.m. ET

Prime Minister Vladimir Putin played the eco-warrior in Russia's Arctic on Thursday, helping scientists track endangered polar bears and calling for a cleanup of the region.

Putin traveled to Franz Josef Land, an archipelago in the Arctic Ocean off the northwest coast of Russia's mainland in his latest display of adventuring prowess to highlight the country's guardianship of the resource-rich region.

Wearing a bright red coat and cap, the 57-year-old premier kneeled at the head of a tranquilized polar bear to attach a satellite-tracking collar, then helped elevate the beast for weighing. The images were broadcast nationally.

Putin helped measure the bear and roll it onto its side.

On his departure, he shook its paw and uttered the words: "Be well."

"The paw is heavy. This is the master of the Arctic, you can feel that straight away," Putin said.

Of a total 25,000 polar bears remaining in the wild, about 6,000 are in Russia's Arctic territory, Russian news agencies quoted officials as saying.

Putin also called for "a general cleanup of the Arctic," ordering the removal of thousands of barrels of fuel buried in the snow that had been left unused by a Soviet-era military base.

He has been spearheading Russia's re-emergence as a regional power, including the country's claims over the Arctic's formidable natural resources. Some 90 billion barrels of oil and one-third of the world's undiscovered natural gas lie hidden in the Arctic region, the U.S. Geological Survey estimates.

"Geopolitically, Russia's deepest interests are linked to the Arctic," Putin said. "Here Russia's security and defense capabilities is provided for. Here there are vitally important transport communications."

Canada, the U.S., Russia and Denmark have competing claims before a United Nations commission regarding extend their undersea boundaries into areas previously blocked by Arctic ice.

Moscow dramatically staked its claim to the region by dropping a flag on the ocean floor at the North Pole in 2007.

Since then, all four countries have agreed to cool their rhetoric and allow scientists to finish their surveys.

Putin adores the media spotlight when it accentuates his macho side. He has been photographed fishing bare-chested in Russia's Altai region, and was shown on television diving into an icy river and swimming the butterfly stroke.

He has also tackled predators in the wild before, shooting a tiger with a tranquilizer gun and releasing leopards.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, April 30, 2010 10:04 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Cc: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Mini Schedule 4/30/10 Friday

Correct to reflect Kuwaiti not Qatari FM.

----- Original Message -----
From: Jiloty, Lauren C <JilotyLC@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Fri Apr 30 07:40:34 2010
Subject: Mini Schedule 4/30/10 Friday

7:45 am PHONE CALL w/PHILIPPE *Private Residence

8:30 am DEPART Private Residence *En route NBC Studio

8:50 am ARRIVE NBC Studio

9:00 am TAPED INTERVIEW w/NBC MEET THE PRESS' DAVID GREGORY

9:20 am NBC Studio

9:25 am DEPART NBC Studio *En route State Department

9:40 am ARRIVE State Department

9:55 am RECEPTION TO CELEBRATE THE OPENING OF THE USA

10:20 am PAVILLION AT THE 2010 SHANGHAI WORLD EXPO

Benjamin Franklin Room, 8th Floor

10:30 am BILATERAL w/KUWAITI DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER/FOREIGN

11:00 am MINISTER DR. MOHAMMAD SABAH AL-SALEM AL SABAH

Secretary's Conference Room *Official photo in East Hall preceding.

11:00 am PRESS PRE-BRIEF

11:05 am Secretary's Office

11:05 am JOINT PRESS AVAILABILITY w/QATARI PRIME MINISTER AND

11:20 am FM DR. MOHAMMAD al-SABAH al-SALEM AL SABAH Treaty Room

11:30 am OFFICE TIME

12:45 pm Secretary's Office

12:45 pm PRE-BRIEF MEETING

1:15 pm Secretary's Office

1:15 pm BILATERAL w/SPANISH FM MIGUEL ANGEL MORATINOS

1:45 pm Secretary's Conference Room *Camera Spray in Treaty Room preceding.

2:00 pm ONE-ON-ONE MEETING w/AFGHAN PRESIDENTIAL ADVISOR

2:30 pm ASHRAF GHANI Secretary's Office

2:50 pm VIDEOS (4)

3:05 pm George Marshall Room, 7th Floor

3:10 pm 152ND FOREIGN SERVICE OFFICER ORIENTATION CLASS

3:25 pm SWEARING-IN CEREMONY Dean Acheson Auditorium, First Floor

3:30 pm OFFICE TIME

4:15 pm Secretary's Office

4:20 pm DEPART State Department *En route Washington National Airport

4:40 pm ARRIVE Washington National Airport

5:00 pm DEPART Washington National Airport via US Airways Shuttle #2180

En route New York, NY

6:25 pm ARRIVE LaGuardia Airport

6:35 pm DEPART LaGuardia Airport *En route Private Residence ###

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, April 30, 2010 5:13 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Maternal health and abortion

Can you fax it to my DC house?

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Fri Apr 30 17:10:19 2010
Subject: Maternal health and abortion

Attached is a memo from Melanne, Jen, and Rachel on maternal health and abortion.

From: Klein, Jennifer L
Sent: Friday, April 30, 2010 4:04 PM
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Cc: Vogelstein, Rachel; Verveer, Melanne S
Subject: Sorry, noticed a typo

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, April 30, 2010 6:04 PM
To: 'preines [redacted] B6
Subject: Oil spill

I'm worried that by Sunday my answer will seem too calm under the circumstances.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, April 30, 2010 7:18 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: Shuttle

Lona---Pls cancel the 9 and I'll let you know about tomorrow. I may have to take a later shuttle or even wait until Sunday. Just not sure yet. Thx.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, April 30, 2010 9:44 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Cc: Huma Abedin
Subject: Shuttle schedule

Pls cancel the 8am but what are the times later and are any of them the large planes instead of the new littler ones?

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, June 10, 2010 4:06 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: To Turkish PM Erdogan: Time to Consider all the Facts

Pls read and discuss.

----- Original Message -----
From: Lanny Davis [redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Thu Jun 10 14:36:23 2010
Subject: To Turkish PM Erdogan: Time to Consider all the Facts

If you are having trouble viewing this message, please go to http://community.icontact.com/p/wwwlannyjdaviscom/newsletters/blogs/posts/to-turkish-pm-erdogan-time-to-consider-all-the-facts

Purple Nation

June 10, 2010

To Turkish PM Erdogan: Time to Consider all the Facts By Lanny J. Davis http://thehill.com/opinion/columnists/lanny-davis/102357-message-to-turkish-pm-erdogan

When several years ago I first met Turkish Prime Minister Recep Tayyip Erdogan and had the pleasure to have two private conversations with him, he immediately struck me as the ultimate "purple" leader. As The Washington Post wrote recently, "Erdogan's Justice and Development Party has religious roots, but it also draws conservative entrepreneurs and liberals with its free-market policies."

But Erdogan has recently appeared to be hostile not only to Israel, but also to the U.S. — flirting with Holocaust denier Mahmoud Ahmadinejad and undermining (apparently unintentionally) the world's efforts to prevent Iran from developing a nuclear weapon.

Concerning the recent flotilla incident, there is no question Israel made serious mistakes in planning, intelligence and execution and the onboard deaths were horrible and tragic. But Erdogan's harsh criticism struck many people, even friends of Turkey, as way over the top, ignoring basic facts.

So I ask Prime Minister Erdogan, who I still believe has a good heart and wants to do the right thing, to assume that he faced the following purely hypothetical facts as leader of his country:

Suppose for years Greek Cypriots were shooting rockets intentionally aimed at Turkish Cypriot civilians, causing many deaths and injuries, and as a result, Turkey instituted a blockade, insisting on searching all ships for armaments;

Suppose that you learned there was a flotilla of ships leaving Greek ports destined for Greek Cyprus, called the "Free Turkish Cyprus" flotilla and sponsored by a Greek organization with leaders hostile to Turkey and with associations with an anti-Turkish terrorist organization;

Suppose that after you ordered that these ships be inspected for armaments and the leaders of the ships refused, your soldiers boarding the ships were accosted by people with pipes, iron bars and long knives, putting the Turkish soldiers in mortal danger; and your soldiers, seeing their brothers and sisters in such danger, reacted instinctively by shooting live ammunition, tragically killing nine people, some of whom were members of the same organization linked to an anti-Turkish terrorist organization.

Mr. Prime Minister: If all of the above were true — and in fact, each of the above "hypotheticals" precisely tracks the circumstances Israel faced — what would you and Turkey have done?

Now, you and your Turkish colleagues may argue that the big difference is that Israel is "occupying" the West Bank. Oh, really? An awful lot of Greeks and much of the rest of the world believe, rightly or wrongly, that Turkey is occupying one-half of Cyprus after a military invasion years ago. I know you and your fellow Turks feel that Turkey intervened to protect Turk Cypriots.

A lot of Turkish Muslims somehow believe that there is religious sacrilege by Israel in "occupying" holy sites in East Jerusalem and on the West Bank. Oh, really? Tens of millions of Orthodox Christians throughout Russia, Greece, Romania and Eastern Europe would remind you that in 1453, the Turks not only occupied the holiest site in all of Orthodox Christendom — the Holy Agia Sophia Church, which is to Orthodox Christians what St. Peter's and the Vatican are to Roman Catholics — but also continue to this day to desecrate that site, which Turkey retains as a museum, with the priceless religious frescoes obscenely painted over and icons smashed, and refuse to allow the restoration of Agia Sophia to the Orthodox Church.

Compare what the Turks did to Agia Sophia to Israel's protection of the sanctity and guaranteed absolute access by Muslims to the holy sites on the ancient Temple Mount of the al-Aqsa Mosque facing Mecca and the Dome of the Rock ever since Israel regained control over Jerusalem in 1967. These are facts, Mr. Prime Minister. Do you deny them?

I am hoping that once you discover the entire truth about the risks to Israel's safety and security represented by these Gaza-bound ships, and recognize that Turkey's history and role in being an occupier is not free from criticism, you will find a way to re-engage your prior friendship and relationship with Israel, especially with regard to the peace process, and open discussions with Israeli leaders, who I know appreciated the constructive role you have played over the years.

Even if publicly you cannot do this, I am hoping that you can privately — which would be consistent with my impression of the man I came to know and admire after just two meetings. I can only hope and pray that you do so, and that the world doesn't lose you as a peacemaker in the Middle East and elsewhere.

######

This piece appears today, June 10, 2010, in Mr. Davis's regular weekly column in The Hill "Purple Nation" and "The Daily Caller" an online political website.

Mr. Davis, with his own Washington firm, Lanny J. Davis & Associates PLLC, served as special counsel to President Bill Clinton from 1996-98 and was a member of President George W. Bush's Privacy and Civil Liberties Oversight Board in 2006-07. He is the author of Scandal: How "Gotcha" Politics Is Destroying America (Palgrave MacMillan 2006).
This message was sent by: Lanny J. Davis & Associates LLC, 600 13th Street, NW Suite 600, Washington, DC 20005

Manage your subscription:
http://app.icontact.com/icp/mmail-mprofile.pl?r=22964424&l=11768&s=KDCU&m=49033&c=719746

Comment on this message in the iContact Community:
http://community.icontact.com/p/wwwlannyjdaviscom/newsletters/blogs/posts/to-turkish-pm-erdogan-time-to-consider-all-the-facts#commentform

Receive our messages as an RSS feed:

http://community.icontact.com/p/wwwlannyjdaviscom/newsletters/blogs/rss.xml?r=22964424&l=11768&s=KDCU&m=49033&c=719746

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, June 11, 2010 8:28 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Rich wants to talk before u see dodd/berman

I tried calling.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri Jun 11 08:04:01 2010
Subject: Rich wants to talk before u see dodd/berman

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, May 15, 2010 1:46 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Can you call me thru ops?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, May 15, 2010 8:39 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Eikenberry

Do you have Jack's notes for the call?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, May 16, 2010 2:05 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Cc: Huma Abedin
Subject: Dalton Hatfield

Do you have a copy of the letter he sent me? I can't find my copy. Thx.

RELEASE IN PART B5,B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, May 16, 2010 6:11 PM
To: 'preines [redacted] B6
Cc: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: AFP

[redacted] B5

----- Original Message -----
From: PIR <preines [redacted] B6
To: H
Cc: Jake Sullivan <sullivanjj@state.gov>
Sent: Sun May 16 17:06:46 2010
Subject: AFP

'Inept' US cannot fix Afghanistan: top Saudi prince Sun, May 16, 2010

RIYADH (AFP) – An "inept" United States cannot fix Afghanistan's problems and should simply focus on "chasing the terrorists" there, former Saudi intelligence chief Prince Turki al-Faisal said on Saturday.

The ex-ambassador to the United States also challenged Washington to produce results in just-started Middle East peace talks, and accused US Secretary of State Hillary Clinton of undermining efforts to make the region nuclear-free.

AFP – Saudi Arabia's former intelligence chief Prince Turki al-Faisal delivers a speech during a conference ...

In a speech in Riyadh before diplomats, Turki said US-led NATO troops had irrevocably alienated the Afghan people and had no hope of rebuilding the country.

"What Afghanistan needs now is a shift from nation-building to effectively countering terrorists," Turki told the Arab News conference.

US President Barack Obama "should not be misdirected into believing that he can fix Afghanistan's ills by military means."

"Hunt down the terrorists on both sides of the Afghan-Pakistan border, arrest them or kill them, and get out, and let the Afghan people deal with their problems.

"As long as GI boots remain on Afghan soil, they remain targets of resistance for the Afghan people and ideological mercenaries."

Turki, who has long served a central role in Saudi-Afghan relations, scolded Washington's handling of relations with Kabul.

"The inept way in which this administration has dealt with President (Hamid) Karzai beggars disbelief and amazement.

"Both sides are now filled with resentment and a sour taste in their mouths," he said. "How can they both get out of that situation? I don't know."

The chairman of the King Faisal Center For Research and Islamic Studies, Turki has no official position but is believed to often reflect high level thinking in the Saudi government.

He is the brother of Foreign Minister Prince Saud al-Faisal, and analysts speculate he could become foreign minister when Saud retires.

Turki said Arab states have given Washington four months to show progress in US-guided Palestinian-Israeli peace talks.

"The Arab world has given Obama until September to get things done," said Turki.

"It is not enough to talk the talk. He has to walk the walk.

"If he does not succeed... then I (will) ask President Obama to do the morally decent gesture and recognise the Palestinian state that he so ardently wishes to exist.

"He can then pack up and leave us in peace and let the Palestinians, Syrians and Lebanese negotiate directly with the Israelis. No more platitudes and good wishes and visions, please."

Turki also faulted the US and European approach in trying to halt Iran's alleged efforts to build a nuclear weapon.

"The discussions on Iran's nuclear ambitions started off on the wrong foot. The carrot and stick approach does not work," he said.

For one, he said, the US and Europe have had double-standards in dealing with Iran on the one hand, and other nuclear countries on the other.

"You cannot ask Iran to play on one level while you allow Israel, India, Pakistan, and North Korea to play on other levels."

Turki said a successful strategy toward Iran requires even-handedness, a "universal nuclear security umbrella" for the countries in the area, and "a good military option" against any regional country which does not cooperate.

He said Clinton had undermined efforts to move toward a regional nuclear-free zone, after the UN Security Council's five permanent members recently expressed support for the idea.

"Alas... Clinton then voided the issue of its value by stating that the conditions do not yet exist for establishing the zone," he said.

"Why, then, did she join the other members of the P5 in issuing their statement?"

Turki said he hoped Obama "will find the way to correct his secretary of state's nullification of making our area free of weapons of mass destruction."

Turki also warned of rising violence in Iraq after the pullout of US troops next year, warning both internal and external groups seek to carve up the country.

"Imagine what will happen once internal strife and fighting escalates" following the US pullout, he said.

Without a UN Security Council effort to protect Iraq's current borders, the consequence could be "regional conflict on a scale not seen since the Ottoman-Safavid wars of the 17th and 18th centuries," he warned.

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, May 16, 2010 7:00 PM
To: 'Betsy.Ebeling
Subject: Re:

B6

I'm more worried about whether Amb CM behaved! I told her no table-dancing or karoake singing. How'd she do? It's a great idea and Chicago was the perfect place to start. Has spring finally come or are you still covering plants and worrying about the frost? I'll try calling later for an update. xxoo

----- Original Message -----
From: Ebeling, Betsy
To: H
Sent: Thu May 13 14:44:34 2010
Subject:

Attended Ambassador Capricia's event last night at the Art Institute. It was a magical evening. We sat with the ambassador from Guyana and the ambassador from the Philippines. Lovely people. A staff from the Dept of State sat with us: Gladys ; hope she would report that we behaved. A lovely idea this field trip for the big guys/gals. —ambassadors pretending that they were more excited about going to the Merc. Rick's group doing a great job. Now if only the weather would cooperate. We had 2 ½ inches of rain this morning.

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, May 16, 2010 9:21 PM
To: 'capriciamarshall[redacted] Huma Abedin B6
Subject: Re: Fwd: Tribute to Hillary Rodham Clinton

What is it?

----- Original Message -----
From: Capricia Marshall <[redacted] B6
To: H; Huma Abedin
Sent: Sun May 16 21:03:26 2010
Subject: Fwd: Tribute to Hillary Rodham Clinton

Have you all seen this?

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: <NBeang[redacted] B6
Date: Sat, May 15, 2010 at 2:27 PM
Subject: Tribute to Hillary Rodham Clinton
To: capriciamarshall[redacted] B6

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=QjWOk_jvlmY

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, May 17, 2010 5:52 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: H: Must read when you can. Sid

Pls print 3 copies.

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop [redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Sun May 16 23:58:51 2010
Subject: H: Must read when you can. Sid

H: I'm sure you are preoccupied with the adventures of Lula, et al. Nonetheless, the article below, just posted by the NY Review, soon to be published, is a breakthrough piece that will have a large impact. It's worth reading, not least for Frank Luntz's poll numbers. The hysterical tone of much of the Israeli leadership and US Jewish community is partly rooted in this long-term and profound development. Sid http://www.nybooks.com/articles/archives/2010/jun/10/failure-american-jewish-establishment/

The Failure of the American Jewish Establishment

June 10, 2010 <http://www.nybooks.com/issues/2010/jun/10/>

by Peter Beinart <http://www.nybooks.com/contributors/peter-beinart/>

E-mail <http://www.nybooks.com/mail_friend/5/23934/> Single Page
<http://www.nybooks.com/articles/archives/2010/jun/10/failure-american-jewish-establishment/?pagination=false>
Share <http://www.addthis.com/bookmark.php> More by Peter Beinart
<http://www.nybooks.com/contributors/peter-beinart/>
<http://www.nybooks.com/galleries/john-springs-illustrator/2009/jun/11/benjamin-netanyahu/>
Benjamin Netanyahu; drawing by John Springs In 2003, several prominent Jewish philanthropists hired Republican pollster Frank Luntz to explain why American Jewish college students were not more vigorously rebutting campus criticism of Israel. In response, he unwittingly produced the most damning indictment of the organized American Jewish community that I have ever seen.

The philanthropists wanted to know what Jewish students thought about Israel. Luntz found that they mostly didn't. "Six times we have brought Jewish youth together as a group to talk about their Jewishness and connection to Israel," he reported. "Six times the topic of Israel did not come up until it was prompted. Six times these Jewish youth used the word 'they' rather than 'us' to describe the situation."

That Luntz encountered indifference was not surprising. In recent years, several studies have revealed, in the words of Steven Cohen of Hebrew Union College and Ari Kelman of the University of California at Davis, that "non-Orthodox younger Jews, on the whole, feel much less attached to Israel than their elders," with many professing "a near-total absence of positive feelings." In 2008, the student senate at Brandeis, the only nonsectarian Jewish-sponsored university in America, rejected a resolution commemorating the sixtieth anniversary of the Jewish state.

Luntz's task was to figure out what had gone wrong. When he probed the students' views of Israel, he hit up against some firm beliefs. First, "they reserve the right to question the Israeli position." These young Jews, Luntz explained, "resist anything they see as 'group think.'" They want an "open and frank" discussion of Israel and its flaws. Second, "young Jews desperately want peace." When Luntz showed them a series of ads, one of the most popular was entitled "Proof that Israel Wants Peace," and listed offers by various Israeli governments to withdraw from conquered land. Third, "some empathize with the plight of the Palestinians." When Luntz displayed ads depicting Palestinians as violent and hateful, several focus group participants criticized them as stereotypical and unfair, citing their own Muslim friends. Most of the students, in other words, were liberals, broadly defined. They had imbibed some of the defining values of American Jewish political culture: a belief in open debate, a skepticism about military force, a commitment to human rights. And in their innocence, they did not realize that they were supposed to shed those values when it came to Israel. The only kind of Zionism they found attractive was a Zionism that recognized Palestinians as deserving of dignity and capable of peace, and they were quite willing to condemn an Israeli government that did not share those beliefs. Luntz did not grasp the irony. The only kind of Zionism they found attractive was the kind that the American Jewish establishment has been working against for most of their lives.

Among American Jews today, there are a great many Zionists, especially in the Orthodox world, people deeply devoted to the State of Israel. And there are a great many liberals, especially in the secular Jewish world, people deeply devoted to human rights for all people, Palestinians included. But the two groups are increasingly distinct. Particularly in the younger generations, fewer and fewer American Jewish liberals are Zionists; fewer and fewer American Jewish Zionists are liberal. One reason is that the leading institutions of American Jewry have refused to foster—indeed, have actively opposed—a Zionism that challenges Israel's behavior in the West Bank and Gaza Strip and toward its own Arab citizens. For several decades, the Jewish establishment has asked American Jews to check their liberalism at Zionism's door, and now, to their horror, they are finding that many young Jews have checked their Zionism instead.

Morally, American Zionism is in a downward spiral. If the leaders of groups like AIPAC and the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations do not change course, they will wake up one day to find a younger, Orthodox-dominated, Zionist leadership whose naked hostility to Arabs and Palestinians scares even them, and a mass of secular American Jews who range from apathetic to appalled. Saving liberal Zionism in the United States—so that American Jews can help save liberal Zionism in Israel—is the great American Jewish challenge of our age. And it starts where Luntz's students wanted it to start: by talking frankly about Israel's current government, by no longer averting our eyes.

Since the 1990s, journalists and scholars have been describing a bifurcation in Israeli society. In the words of Hebrew University political scientist Yaron Ezrahi, "After decades of what came to be called a national consensus, the Zionist narrative of liberation [has] dissolved into openly contesting versions." One version, "founded on a long memory of persecution, genocide, and a bitter struggle for survival, is pessimistic, distrustful of non-Jews, and believing only in Jewish power and solidarity." Another, "nourished by secularized versions of messianism as well as the Enlightenment idea of progress," articulates "a deep sense of the limits of military force, and a commitment to liberal-democratic values." Every country manifests some kind of ideological divide. But in contemporary Israel, the gulf is among the widest on earth.

As Ezrahi and others have noted, this latter, liberal-democratic Zionism has grown alongside a new individualism, particularly among secular Israelis, a greater demand for free expression, and a greater skepticism of coercive authority. You can see this spirit in "new historians" like Tom Segev who have fearlessly excavated the darker corners of the Zionist past and in jurists like former Supreme Court President Aharon Barak who have overturned Knesset laws that violate the human rights guarantees in Israel's "Basic Laws." You can also see it in former Prime Minister Ehud Barak's apparent willingness to relinquish much of the West Bank in 2000 and early 2001.

But in Israel today, this humane, universalistic Zionism does not wield power. To the contrary, it is gasping for air. To understand how deeply antithetical its values are to those of Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's government, it's worth considering the case of Effi Eitam. Eitam, a charismatic ex–cabinet minister and war hero, has proposed ethnically cleansing Palestinians from the West Bank. "We'll have to expel the overwhelming majority of West Bank Arabs from here and remove Israeli Arabs from [the] political system," he declared in 2006. In 2008, Eitam merged his small Ahi Party into Netanyahu's Likud. And for the 2009–2010 academic year, he is Netanyahu's special emissary for overseas "campus engagement." In that capacity, he visited a dozen American high schools and colleges last fall on the Israeli government's behalf. The group that organized his tour was called "Caravan for Democracy."

Israeli Foreign Minister Avigdor Lieberman once shared Eitam's views. In his youth, he briefly joined Meir Kahane's now banned Kach Party, which also advocated the expulsion of Arabs from Israeli soil. Now Lieberman's position might be called "pre-expulsion." He wants to revoke the citizenship of Israeli Arabs who won't swear a loyalty oath to the Jewish state. He tried to prevent two Arab parties that opposed Israel's 2008–2009 Gaza war from running candidates for the Knesset. He said Arab Knesset members who met with representatives of Hamas should be executed. He wants to jail Arabs who publicly mourn on Israeli Independence Day, and he hopes to permanently deny citizenship to Arabs from other countries who marry Arab citizens of Israel.

You don't have to be paranoid to see the connection between Lieberman's current views and his former ones. The more you strip Israeli Arabs of legal protection, and the more you accuse them of treason, the more thinkable a policy of expulsion becomes. Lieberman's American defenders often note that in theory he supports a Palestinian state. What they usually fail to mention is that for him, a two-state solution means redrawing Israel's border so that a large chunk of Israeli Arabs find themselves exiled to another country, without their consent.

Lieberman served as chief of staff during Netanyahu's first term as prime minister. And when it comes to the West Bank, Netanyahu's own record is in its way even more extreme than his protégé's. In his 1993 book, A Place among the Nations, Netanyahu not only rejects the idea of a Palestinian state, he denies that there is such a thing as a Palestinian. In fact, he repeatedly equates the Palestinian bid for statehood with Nazism. An Israel that withdraws from the West Bank, he has declared, would be a "ghetto-state" with "Auschwitz borders." And the effort "to gouge Judea and Samaria [the West Bank] out of Israel" resembles Hitler's bid to wrench the German-speaking "Sudeten district" from Czechoslovakia in 1938. It is unfair, Netanyahu insists, to ask Israel to concede more territory since it has already made vast, gut-wrenching concessions. What kind of concessions? It has abandoned its claim to Jordan, which by rights should be part of the Jewish state.

On the left of Netanyahu's coalition sits Ehud Barak's emasculated Labor Party, but whatever moderating potential it may have is counterbalanced by what is, in some ways, the most illiberal coalition partner of all, Shas, the ultra-Orthodox party representing Jews of North African and Middle Eastern descent. At one point, Shas—like some of its Ashkenazi ultra-Orthodox counterparts—was open to dismantling settlements. In recent years, however, ultra-Orthodox Israelis, anxious to find housing for their large families, have increasingly moved to the West Bank, where thanks to government subsidies it is far cheaper to live. Not coincidentally, their political parties have swung hard against territorial compromise. And they have done so with a virulence that reflects ultra-Orthodox Judaism's profound hostility to liberal values. Rabbi Ovadia Yosef, Shas's immensely powerful spiritual leader, has called Arabs "vipers," "snakes," and "ants." In 2005, after Prime Minister Ariel Sharon proposed dismantling settlements in the Gaza Strip, Yosef urged that "God strike him down." The official Shas newspaper recently called President Obama "an Islamic extremist."

Hebrew University Professor Ze'ev Sternhell is an expert on fascism and a winner of the prestigious Israel Prize. Commenting on Lieberman and the leaders of Shas in a recent Op-Ed in Haaretz, he wrote, "The last time politicians holding views similar to theirs were in power in post–World War II Western Europe was in Franco's Spain." With their blessing, "a crude and multifaceted campaign is being waged against the foundations of the democratic and liberal order." Sternhell should know. In September 2008, he was injured when a settler set off a pipe bomb at his house.

Israeli governments come and go, but the Netanyahu coalition is the product of frightening, long-term trends in Israeli society: an ultra-Orthodox population that is increasing dramatically, a settler movement that is growing more radical and more entrenched in the Israeli bureaucracy and army, and a Russian immigrant community that is particularly prone to anti-Arab racism. In 2009, a poll by the Israel Democracy Institute found that 53 percent of Jewish Israelis (and 77 percent of recent immigrants from the former USSR) support encouraging Arabs to leave the country. Attitudes are worst among Israel's young. When Israeli high schools held mock elections last year, Lieberman won. This March, a poll found that 56 percent of Jewish Israeli high school students—and more than 80 percent of religious Jewish high school students—would deny Israeli Arabs the right to be elected to the Knesset. An education ministry official called the survey "a huge warning signal in light of the strengthening trends of extremist views among the youth."

You might think that such trends, and the sympathy for them expressed by some in Israel's government, would occasion substantial public concern—even outrage—among the leaders of organized American Jewry. You would be wrong. In Israel itself, voices from the left, and even center, warn in increasingly urgent tones about threats to Israeli democracy. (Former Prime Ministers Ehud Olmert and Ehud Barak have both said that Israel risks becoming an "apartheid state" if it continues to hold the West Bank. This April, when settlers forced a large Israeli bookstore to stop selling a book critical of the occupation, Shulamit Aloni, former head of the dovish Meretz Party, declared that "Israel has not been democratic for some time now.") But in the United States, groups like AIPAC and the Presidents' Conference patrol public discourse, scolding people who contradict their vision of Israel as a state in which all leaders cherish democracy and yearn for peace.

The result is a terrible irony. In theory, mainstream American Jewish organizations still hew to a liberal vision of Zionism. On its website, AIPAC celebrates Israel's commitment to "free speech and minority rights." The Conference of Presidents declares that "Israel and the United States share political, moral and intellectual values including democracy, freedom, security and peace." These groups would never say, as do some in Netanyahu's coalition, that Israeli Arabs don't deserve full citizenship and West Bank Palestinians don't deserve human rights. But in practice, by defending virtually anything any Israeli government does, they make themselves intellectual bodyguards for Israeli leaders who threaten the very liberal values they profess to admire.

After Israel's elections last February, for instance, Malcolm Hoenlein, executive vice-chairman of the Presidents' Conference, explained that Avigdor Lieberman's agenda was "far more moderate than the media has presented it." Insisting that Lieberman bears no general animus toward Israeli Arabs, Abraham Foxman, national director of the Anti-Defamation League, told the Jewish Telegraphic Agency that "He's not saying expel them. He's not saying punish them." (Permanently denying citizenship to their Arab spouses or jailing them if they publicly mourn on Israeli Independence Day evidently does not qualify as punishment.) The ADL has criticized anti-Arab bigotry in the past, and the American Jewish Committee, to its credit, warned that Lieberman's proposed loyalty oath would "chill Israel's democratic political debate." But the Forward summed up the overall response of America's communal Jewish leadership in its headline "Jewish Leaders Largely Silent on Lieberman's Role in Government."

Not only does the organized American Jewish community mostly avoid public criticism of the Israeli government, it tries to prevent others from leveling such criticism as well. In recent years, American Jewish organizations have waged a campaign to discredit the world's most respected international human rights groups. In 2006, Foxman called an Amnesty International report on Israeli killing of Lebanese civilians "bigoted, biased, and borderline anti-Semitic." The Conference of Presidents has announced that "biased NGOs include Amnesty International, Human Rights Watch, Christian Aid, [and] Save the Children." Last summer, an AIPAC spokesman declared that Human Rights Watch "has repeatedly demonstrated its anti-Israel bias." When the Obama administration awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom to Mary Robinson, former UN high commissioner for human rights, the ADL and AIPAC both protested, citing the fact that she had presided over the 2001 World Conference Against Racism in Durban, South Africa. (Early drafts of the conference report implicitly accused Israel of racism. Robinson helped expunge that defamatory charge, angering Syria and Iran.) Human Rights Watch and Amnesty International are not infallible. But when groups like AIPAC and the Presidents' Conference avoid virtually all public criticism of Israeli actions—directing their outrage solely at Israel's neighbors—they leave themselves in a poor position to charge bias. Moreover, while American Jewish groups claim that they are simply defending Israel from its foes, they are actually taking sides in a struggle within Israel between radically different Zionist visions. At the very moment the Anti-Defamation League claimed that Robinson harbored an "animus toward Israel," an alliance of seven Israeli human rights groups publicly congratulated her on her award. Many of those groups, like B'Tselem, which monitors Israeli actions in the Occupied Territories, and the Israeli branch of Physicians for Human Rights, have been at least as critical of Israel's actions in Lebanon, Gaza, and the West Bank as have Amnesty International and Human Rights Watch.

All of which raises an uncomfortable question. If American Jewish groups claim that Israel's overseas human rights critics are motivated by anti- Israeli, if not anti-Semitic, bias, what does that say about Israel's domestic human rights critics? The implication is clear: they must be guilty of self-hatred, if not treason. American Jewish leaders don't generally say that, of course, but their allies in the Netanyahu government do. Last summer, Israel's vice prime minister, Moshe Ya'alon, called the anti-occupation group Peace Now a "virus." This January, a right-wing group called Im Tirtzu accused Israeli human rights organizations of having fed information to the Goldstone Commission that investigated Israel's Gaza war. A Knesset member from Netanyahu's Likud promptly charged Naomi Chazan, head of the New Israel Fund, which supports some of those human rights groups, with treason, and a member of Lieberman's party launched an investigation aimed at curbing foreign funding of Israeli NGOs.

To their credit, Foxman and other American Jewish leaders opposed the move, which might have impaired their own work. But they are reaping what they sowed. If you suggest that mainstream human rights criticism of Israel's government is motivated by animus toward the state, or toward Jews in general, you give aid and comfort to those in Israel who make the same charges against the human rights critics in their midst.

In the American Jewish establishment today, the language of liberal Zionism—with its idioms of human rights, equal citizenship, and territorial compromise—has been drained of meaning. It remains the lingua franca in part for generational reasons, because many older American Zionists still see themselves as liberals of a sort. They vote Democratic; they are unmoved by biblical claims to the West Bank; they see average Palestinians as decent people betrayed by bad leaders; and they are secular. They don't want Jewish organizations to criticize Israel from the left, but neither do they want them to be agents of the Israeli right.

These American Zionists are largely the product of a particular era. Many were shaped by the terrifying days leading up to the Six-Day War, when it appeared that Israel might be overrun, and by the bitter aftermath of the Yom Kippur War, when much of the world seemed to turn against the Jewish state. In that crucible, Israel became their Jewish identity, often in conjunction with the Holocaust, which the 1967 and 1973 wars helped make central to American Jewish life. These Jews embraced Zionism before the settler movement became a major force in Israeli politics, before the 1982 Lebanon war, before the first intifada. They fell in love with an Israel that was more secular, less divided, and less shaped by the culture, politics, and theology of occupation. And by downplaying the significance of Avigdor Lieberman, the settlers, and Shas, American Jewish groups allow these older Zionists to continue to identify with that more internally cohesive, more innocent Israel of their youth, an Israel that now only exists in their memories.

But these secular Zionists aren't reproducing themselves. Their children have no memory of Arab armies massed on Israel's border and of Israel surviving in part thanks to urgent military assistance from the United States. Instead, they have grown up viewing Israel as a regional hegemon and an occupying power. As a result, they are more conscious than their parents of the degree to which Israeli behavior violates liberal ideals, and less willing to grant Israel an exemption because its survival seems in peril. Because they have inherited their parents' liberalism, they cannot embrace their uncritical Zionism. Because their liberalism is real, they can see that the liberalism of the American Jewish establishment is fake.

To sustain their uncritical brand of Zionism, therefore, America's Jewish organizations will need to look elsewhere to replenish their ranks. They will need to find young American Jews who have come of age during the West Bank occupation but are not troubled by it. And those young American Jews will come disproportionately from the Orthodox world.

Because they marry earlier, intermarry less, and have more children, Orthodox Jews are growing rapidly as a share of the American Jewish population. According to a 2006 American Jewish Committee (AJC) survey, while Orthodox Jews make up only 12 percent of American Jewry over the age of sixty, they constitute 34 percent between the ages of eighteen and twenty-four. For America's Zionist organizations, these Orthodox youngsters are a potential bonanza. In their yeshivas they learn devotion to Israel from an early age; they generally spend a year of religious study there after high school, and often know friends or relatives who have immigrated to Israel. The same AJC study found that while only 16 percent of non-Orthodox adult Jews under the age of forty feel "very close to Israel," among the Orthodox the figure is 79 percent. As secular Jews drift away from America's Zionist institutions, their Orthodox counterparts will likely step into the breach. The Orthodox "are still interested in parochial Jewish concerns," explains Samuel Heilman, a sociologist at the City University of New York. "They are among the last ones who stayed in the Jewish house, so they now control the lights."

But it is this very parochialism—a deep commitment to Jewish concerns, which often outweighs more universal ones—that gives Orthodox Jewish Zionism a distinctly illiberal cast. The 2006 AJC poll found that while 60 percent of non-Orthodox American Jews under the age of forty support a Palestinian state, that figure drops to 25 percent among the Orthodox. In 2009, when Brandeis University's Theodore Sasson asked American Jewish focus groups about Israel, he found Orthodox participants much less supportive of dismantling settlements as part of a peace deal. Even more tellingly, Reform, Conservative, and unaffiliated Jews tended to believe that average Palestinians wanted peace, but had been ill-served by their leaders. Orthodox Jews, by contrast, were more likely to see the Palestinian people as the enemy, and to deny that ordinary Palestinians shared any common interests or values with ordinary Israelis or Jews.

Orthodox Judaism has great virtues, including a communal warmth and a commitment to Jewish learning unmatched in the American Jewish world. (I'm biased, since my family attends an Orthodox synagogue.) But if current trends continue, the growing influence of Orthodox Jews in America's Jewish communal institutions will erode even the liberal-democratic veneer that today covers American Zionism. In 2002, America's major Jewish organizations sponsored a large Israel solidarity rally on the Washington Mall. Up and down the east coast, yeshivas shut down for the day, swelling the estimated Orthodox share of the crowd to close to 70 percent. When the then Deputy Secretary of Defense Paul Wolfowitz told the rally that "innocent Palestinians are suffering and dying as well," he was booed.

America's Jewish leaders should think hard about that rally. Unless they change course, it portends the future: an American Zionist movement that does not even feign concern for Palestinian dignity and a broader American Jewish population that does not even feign concern for Israel. My own children, given their upbringing, could as easily end up among the booers as among Luntz's focus group. Either prospect fills me with dread.

In 2004, in an effort to prevent weapons smuggling from Egypt, Israeli tanks and bulldozers demolished hundreds of houses in the Rafah refugee camp in the southern Gaza Strip. Watching television, a veteran Israeli commentator and politician named Tommy Lapid saw an elderly Palestinian woman crouched on all fours looking for her medicines amid the ruins of her home. He said she reminded him of his grandmother.

In that moment, Lapid captured the spirit that is suffocating within organized American Jewish life. To begin with, he watched. In my experience, there is an epidemic of not watching among American Zionists today. A Red Cross study on malnutrition in the Gaza Strip, a bill in the Knesset to allow Jewish neighborhoods to bar entry to Israeli Arabs, an Israeli human rights report on settlers burning Palestinian olive groves, three more Palestinian teenagers shot—it's unpleasant. Rationalizing and minimizing Palestinian suffering has become a kind of game. In a more recent report on how to foster Zionism among America's young, Luntz urges American Jewish groups to use the word "Arabs, not Palestinians," since "the term 'Palestinians' evokes images of refugee camps, victims and oppression," while "'Arab' says wealth, oil and Islam."

Of course, Israel—like the United States—must sometimes take morally difficult actions in its own defense. But they are morally difficult only if you allow yourself some human connection to the other side. Otherwise, security justifies everything. The heads of AIPAC and the Presidents' Conference should ask themselves what Israel's leaders would have to do or say to make them scream "no." After all, Lieberman is foreign minister; Effi Eitam is touring American universities; settlements are growing at triple the rate of the Israeli population; half of Israeli Jewish high school students want Arabs barred from the Knesset. If the line has not yet been crossed, where is the line?

What infuriated critics about Lapid's comment was that his grandmother died at Auschwitz. How dare he defile the memory of the Holocaust? Of course, the Holocaust is immeasurably worse than anything Israel has done or ever will do. But at least Lapid used Jewish suffering to connect to the suffering of others. In the world of AIPAC, the Holocaust analogies never stop, and their message is always the same: Jews are licensed by their victimhood to worry only about themselves. Many of Israel's founders believed that with statehood, Jews would rightly be judged on the way they treated the non-Jews living under their dominion. "For the first time we shall be the majority living with a minority," Knesset member Pinchas Lavon declared in 1948, "and we shall be called upon to provide an example and prove how Jews live with a minority."

But the message of the American Jewish establishment and its allies in the Netanyahu government is exactly the opposite: since Jews are history's permanent victims, always on the knife-edge of extinction, moral responsibility is a luxury Israel does not have. Its only responsibility is to survive. As former Knesset speaker Avraham Burg writes in his remarkable 2008 book, The Holocaust Is Over; We Must Rise From Its Ashes, "Victimhood sets you free."

This obsession with victimhood lies at the heart of why Zionism is dying among America's secular Jewish young. It simply bears no relationship to their lived experience, or what they have seen of Israel's. Yes, Israel faces threats from Hezbollah and Hamas. Yes, Israelis understandably worry about a nuclear Iran. But the dilemmas you face when you possess dozens or hundreds of nuclear weapons, and your adversary, however despicable, may acquire one, are not the dilemmas of the Warsaw Ghetto. The year 2010 is not, as Benjamin Netanyahu has claimed, 1938. The drama of Jewish victimhood—a drama that feels natural to many Jews who lived through 1938, 1948, or even 1967—strikes most of today's young American Jews as farce.

But there is a different Zionist calling, which has never been more desperately relevant. It has its roots in Israel's Independence Proclamation, which promised that the Jewish state "will be based on the precepts of liberty, justice and peace taught by the Hebrew prophets," and in the December 1948 letter from Albert Einstein, Hannah Arendt, and others to The New York Times, protesting right-wing Zionist leader Menachem Begin's visit to the United States after his party's militias massacred Arab civilians in the village of Deir Yassin. It is a call to recognize that in a world in which Jewish fortunes have radically changed, the best way to memorialize the history of Jewish suffering is through the ethical use of Jewish power.

For several months now, a group of Israeli students has been traveling every Friday to the East Jerusalem neighborhood of Sheikh Jarrah, where a Palestinian family named the Ghawis lives on the street outside their home of fifty-three years, from which they were evicted to make room for Jewish settlers. Although repeatedly arrested for protesting without a permit, and called traitors and self-haters by the Israeli right, the students keep coming, their numbers now swelling into the thousands. What if American Jewish organizations brought these young people to speak at Hillel? What if this was the face of Zionism shown to America's Jewish young? What if the students in Luntz's focus group had been told that their generation faces a challenge as momentous as any in Jewish history: to save liberal democracy in the only Jewish state on earth?

"Too many years I lived in the warm embrace of institutionalized elusiveness and was a part of it," writes Avraham Burg. "I was very comfortable there." I know; I was comfortable there too. But comfortable Zionism has become a moral abdication. Let's hope that Luntz's students, in solidarity with their counterparts at Sheikh Jarrah, can foster an uncomfortable Zionism, a Zionism angry at what Israel risks becoming, and in love with what it still could be. Let's hope they care enough to try.

—May 12, 2010

Peter Beinart is Associate Professor of Journalism and Political Science at the City University of New York, a Senior Fellow at the New America Foundation, and Senior Political Writer for The Daily Beast. His new book, The Icarus Syndrome: A History of American Hubris, will be published in June.

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, May 17, 2010 5:52 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: H: also... Sid

Pls print 3 copies.

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop
To: H
Sent: Mon May 17 00:13:37 2010
Subject: H: also... Sid

B6

You may have been alerted to this incident: the barring of Noam Chomsky from Israel. His political views may be ridiculous or objectionable, though he is the greatest linguistic scholar in the world, but barring him for his political opinions has created a needless PR disaster, not least for the US, as he is, after all, a US citizen, and a very prominent one internationally. It is unfortunate on every level. And the US should not be a passive onlooker. He is a US citizen barred for his political views, after all. This story is splashed across the European press this morning. Not what anyone needs, yes, yes, like a hole in the head, and bone stupid, but the US effort on his behalf to gain entry should be part of the story. This incident can be profitable if Israel understands it should not be doing this to US or European critics in the future. This is a downward slope, bad news for everyone involved. S

The Lede - The New York Times News Blog <http://thelede.blogs.nytimes.com/>

<http://www.nytimes.com/adx/bin/adx_click.html?type=cookie&pos=Position1B>
May 16, 2010, 11:01 pm

Chomsky Barred From West Bank by Israel

By ROBERT MACKEY <http://thelede.blogs.nytimes.com/author/robert-mackey/>

Noam Chomsky, an American linguist and political thinker who has been critical of Israel, was denied entry into the West Bank on Sunday by Israeli immigration officials when he tried to cross into the Palestinian territory from Jordan to deliver a lecture.
Amira Hass of the Israeli newspaper Haaretz reported <http://www.haaretz.com/news/national/noam-chomsky-denied-entry-into-israel-and-west-bank-1.290701> :
No reason was initially given for the decision, but the Interior Ministry later said immigration officials at the Allenby Bridge border crossing from Jordan had misunderstood Chomsky's intentions thinking initially he was also due to visit Israel. Chomsky, who is on a speaking tour in the region, was scheduled to speak at Bir Zeit University in the West Bank on Monday.
A spokeswoman for Israel's interior ministry also told Reuters <http://www.reuters.com/article/idUSTRE64F23H20100516> that there had been a misunderstanding and "officials were trying to get clearance from the Israeli military, which controls access to the West Bank to allow Chomsky to enter."
In a television interview from Amman, Jordan, after he was rebuffed, Mr. Chomsky told Al Jazeera English, "the facts were completely clear to everyone; there was no basis for a misunderstanding." He explained that he was interrogated for several hours before being told that he would not be allowed to cross into the occupied Palestinian territory. The 81-year-old scholar added:

I can only say what was conveyed to me in the discussion with the official who was carrying out the interrogation — he was receiving instructions from the [Israeli] ministry of interior and relaying them. There were two basic points. One was that the government of Israel does not like the kinds of things I say — which puts them into the category of I suppose every other government in the world. The second was that they seemed upset about the fact that I was just taking an invitation from Bir Zeit and I had no plans to go on to speak in Israeli universities, as I have done many times in the past but not this time.

Mr. Chomsky had been invited to speak about American foreign and domestic policy by the philosophy department at the Palestinian university in Ramallah <http://www.birzeit.edu/news/21160/news> .

The renowned linguist was outspoken in his opposition to the Israeli offensive in Gaza <http://web.mit.edu/cis/eventposter_011309_chomsky.html> , which ended in January 2009 and has criticized Israel's occupation of Palestinian territory many times.

In an interview <http://www.nytimes.com/2003/11/02/magazine/way-we-live-now-11-02-03-questions-for-noam-chomsky-professorial-provocateur.html> with Deborah Solomon of The New York Times Magazine in 2003, Mr. Chomsky said, "I objected to the founding of Israel as a Jewish state. I don't think a Jewish or Christian or Islamic state is a proper concept. I would object to the United States as a Christian state." When Ms. Solomon pressed Mr. Chomsky on his opposition to Israel, saying, "Your father was a respected Hebraic scholar, and sometimes you sound like a self-hating Jew," he replied:

It is a shame that critics of Israeli policies are seen as either anti-Semites or self-hating Jews. It's grotesque. If an Italian criticized Italian policies, would he be seen as a self-hating Italian?

* Copyright 2010 <http://www.nytimes.com/ref/membercenter/help/copyright.html> The New York Times Company <http://www.nytco.com/>
* Privacy Policy <http://www.nytimes.com/privacy>
* NYTimes.com 620 Eighth Avenue New York, NY 10018 <http://www.nytimes.com/>

DCSIMG
<http://wt.o.nytimes.com/dcsym57yw10000s1s8g0boozt_9t1x/njs.gif?dcsuri=/nojavascript&WT.js=No&WT.tv=1.0.7>

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, May 17, 2010 8:36 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re:

Be sure I have most updated tps.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon May 17 08:19:07 2010
Subject:

Davutoglu called about iran. Wants to speak sometime this morning. We are working to schedule.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, May 17, 2010 8:05 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: re form - weren't able to make changes so call to discuss

Call me tonight.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon May 17 18:11:03 2010
Subject: re form - weren't able to make changes so call to discuss

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, May 17, 2010 8:18 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Posner

FOX is beating the heck out of Mike for what he said in his briefing on the China human rights dialogue about the Arizona law. Can you track down [redacted] B5

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, June 12, 2010 11:41 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Pls Clear: Anniversary of Iran's Disputed Presidential Election

B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Jun 12 11:27:02 2010
Subject: Fw: Pls Clear: Anniversary of Iran's Disputed Presidential Election

Are you okay w the below?

Go U.S.!

----- Original Message -----
From: Schwerin, Daniel B
To: Sullivan, Jacob J; Reines, Philippe I; Fuchs, Michael H; Adler, Caroline E
Sent: Sat Jun 12 11:24:33 2010
Subject: Pls Clear: Anniversary of Iran's Disputed Presidential Election

D and P have cleared on this:

STATEMENT BY SECRETARY CLINTON

Anniversary of Iran's Disputed Presidential Election

B5

B5

###

Drafted:NEA/IR: Cash McCracken ext 7-2569

Cleared:NEA/IRJBurns/SHorner ok
NEA/FOJLimbert ok
DRLJHutchings ok
D(S)GRana ok
PECatalano ok
S/PELacey ok
NSCK Magsamen info

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, May 18, 2010 9:20 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: B. KOUCHNER in Le Monde re Internet freedom

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Tue May 18 21:00:22 2010
Subject: FW: B. KOUCHNER in Le Monde re Internet freedom

fyi

---

From: Ross, Alec J
To: Steinberg, James B; Rivkin, Charles H; Mills, Cheryl D; Kennard, William E; Sullivan, Jacob J; Slaughter, Anne-Marie; Hormats, Robert D; Otero, Maria; Burns, William J; Cohen, Jared A
Sent: Tue May 18 17:40:17 2010
Subject: B. KOUCHNER in Le Monde re Internet freedom

The below by Kouchner is worth reading if you haven't seen it.

The Internet: a critical international policy issue, by Bernard Kouchner (May 10, 2010)

In 2015, three and a half billion people - half of mankind - will have access to the Internet. There has never been such a revolution in the freedom of communication and the freedom of expression. But how will this new medium be used? What new distortions and obstacles will the enemies of the Internet come up with?

Modern technology leads to the best and the worst. Extremist, racist and defamatory websites and blogs disseminate odious opinions in real time. They have made the Internet into a weapon of war and hate. Websites are attacked and Internet users are recruited through chatrooms for destructive plots. Violent movements are infiltrating social networks to spread propaganda and false information.

It is very hard for democracies to control them. I do not subscribe to the naïve belief that a new technology, however efficient and powerful it may be, is bound by nature to advance liberty on all fronts.

Yet, all the same, the distortions are the exception rather than the rule. The Internet is above all the most fantastic means of breaking down the walls and boundaries that close us off from each other. For the oppressed peoples, who have been deprived of their right to self-expression and the right to choose their own future, the Internet provides power beyond their wildest hopes. In minutes, news and images recorded on a telephone can be disseminated worldwide in cyberspace. It is increasingly difficult the hide a public demonstration, an act of repression or a violation of human rights.

In authoritarian and repressive countries, mobile telephones and the Internet have given rise to public opinion and civil society. They have also given citizens a critical means of expression, despite all the restrictions.

However, the temptation to repress free expression is always present. The number of countries that censor the Internet, that monitor web users and punish them for their opinions, is increasing at an alarming rate. The Internet can be used against citizens. It can be a formidable intelligence-gathering tool to spot potential dissidents. Some regimes are already acquiring increasingly sophisticated surveillance technology.

If all of those who are attached to human rights and democracy refused to compromise their principles and used the Internet to defend freedom of expression, this kind of repression would be much more difficult. I am not talking about absolute freedom that opens the door to all sorts of abuses. Nobody is promoting that. Instead, I'm talking about real freedom, which is based on the principle of respecting human dignity and human rights.

In the last few years, multilateral institutions, such as the Council of Europe, and non-governmental organisations, such as Reporters Without Borders, along with thousands of individuals around the world, have made a strong commitment to these issues. This is proof, if proof were needed, that this issue does not pit the West against the rest of the world. No fewer than 180 countries meeting for the World Summit on the Information Society acknowledged that the Universal Declaration of Human Rights applies fully to the Internet, especially Article 19, which establishes freedom of expression and freedom of opinion. And yet, some fifty countries fail to live up to their commitments.

For the occasion of World Press Freedom Day, I have brought together experts, NGO leaders, journalists, business people and intellectuals this week. Their discussions have confirmed my conviction that the path we want to take is the right one. I think that we should create an international instrument for monitoring the commitments that governments have made and for calling them to task when they fail to live up to them. I think we should provide assistance to cyberdissidents, who should get the same support as other victims of political repression, and of the need to show our solidarity with them publicly, in close collaboration with the NGOs working on these issues. I think that we should also discuss the wisdom of adopting a code of conduct regarding the export of technologies for censoring the Internet and tracking web users.

These issues, along with others, such as the protection of personal data on the Internet and the right of digital amnesty for everyone promoted by my colleague Nathalie Kosciusko-Morizet, should be addressed within a framework that brings together government, civil society and international experts.

Another project is close to my heart. It will be a long and difficult task to implement it, but it is critical. It is to give the Internet a legal status that reflects its universality. One that recognizes it as an international space, so that it will be more difficult for repressive governments to use the sovereignty argument against fundamental freedoms.

This is a critical issue. I think that the battle of ideas has started with, on one side, the advocates of a universal and open Internet, based on freedom of expression and freedom of association, on tolerance and respect for privacy and, on the other side, those who want to transform the Internet into a multitude of spaces that are closed off from each other to serve the purposes of a regime, propaganda and all forms of fanaticism.

Freedom of expression is "the foundation of all other freedoms". Without it, there are no "free nations", Voltaire said. This spirit of the Enlightenment, which is universal, should run through the new media. The defence of fundamental freedoms and human rights must be the priority for governance of the Internet. It is everyone's business.

Bernard Kouchner, Minister for Foreign and European Affairs

This email is UNCLASSIFIED.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, June 12, 2010 1:17 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Flotilla investigation

Jones did. Can you call me thru ops?

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Jun 12 13:15:24 2010
Subject: Flotilla investigation

Word is that we're going to announce our response to the Israeli flotilla investigation today. Did Jones or Ross speak with you about it?

RELEASE
IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, May 18, 2010 10:51 PM
To: 'capriciamarshall [redacted] B6
Subject: July 4

Do you remember the young people who came to the Dip Room event who wanted to have a July 4th party on the terrace to raise $ for the 8th floor? Pls call or see me tomorrow to discuss. Thx.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, June 12, 2010 7:30 PM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Calls tomorrow

Ok.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Jun 12 18:54:41 2010
Subject: Calls tomorrow

We have scheduled calls tomorrow with:
- Swedish Foreign Minister Bildt at 9:00 am
- Norwegian Foreign Minister Stoere at 10:45 am You have call sheets for both.
Ok?

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, June 12, 2010 9:53 PM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Calls tomorrow

I may have to do on blackberry [redacted] B6

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Jun 12 21:50:30 2010
Subject: Re: Calls tomorrow

We will connect calls to whitehaven. Unless u want to cancel?

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Sat Jun 12 19:29:58 2010
Subject: Re: Calls tomorrow

Ok.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Jun 12 18:54:41 2010
Subject: Calls tomorrow

We have scheduled calls tomorrow with:
- Swedish Foreign Minister Bildt at 9:00 am
- Norwegian Foreign Minister Stoere at 10:45 am You have call sheets for both.
Ok?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, May 20, 2010 7:46 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Mexican treatment of the undocumented

Another example of "you should take the log from your own eye before criticizing the speck in your neighbor's."

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Wed May 19 19:51:50 2010
Subject: Mexican treatment of the undocumented

FYI, from WHA:

Mexican law enforcement officials cannot stop individuals and require proof of migratory status. However, like SB1070, officials in the course of official "contact" (i.e. Traffic stops, investigations, hot pursuit) are authorized to request proof of migratory status. They do this in practice routinely. Frequently, individuals who cannot prove legal status are referred to INM (federal CBP-equivalent). In practice, GoM authorities at all levels engage in exploitative treatment of migrants, primarily Central Americans heading to the US. These abuses have been well documented by international human rights groups, as well as by multiple documentary and news media reports.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, June 12, 2010 10:31 PM
To: 'sbwhoeop [redacted] B6
Subject: Sean Wilentz

Is he at your house this weekend?

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, May 20, 2010 7:47 AM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'; 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Korea Expo --please read before you leave

I'm not doing this again.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Wed May 19 20:04:31 2010
Subject: Fw: Korea Expo --please read before you leave

See b/l as context fyi

---

From: Pally, Maura M.
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D; Reines, Philippe I
Sent: Wed May 19 18:11:36 2010
Subject: Korea Expo --please read before you leave

Jake-

I have been trying unsuccessfully to get a memo up to S on Korea's invitation to participation in the 2012 expo.

B5

B5

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, May 20, 2010 7:54 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'; 'preines [redacted] B6
Subject: Pls remind me to discuss a matter w you both

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, June 12, 2010 10:34 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Cc: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: S-Saudabayev call

I'll do [redacted] B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sat Jun 12 21:49:40 2010
Subject: Fw: S-Saudabayev call

Fyi. I think this call makes sense.

----- Original Message -----
From: Wells, Alice G
To: Sullivan, Jacob J; Krol, George A
Cc: Holmes, David A
Sent: Sat Jun 12 20:30:36 2010
Subject: S-Saudabayev call

Jake- [redacted] B5

Thx

Alice G. Wells

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, June 13, 2010 11:50 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: S-Saudabayev call

Ok. I'll plan for cal tomorrow.

Also, I'd like to talk w you before your mtg w Denis and Ben about future ideas. Can you talk tonight? what times would be best?

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sun Jun 13 10:50:39 2010
Subject: Re: S-Saudabayev call

B5

Will keep you posted.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Cc: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Sat Jun 12 22:33:53 2010
Subject: Re: S-Saudabayev call

I'll do B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sat Jun 12 21:49:40 2010
Subject: Fw: S-Saudabayev call

Fyi. I think this call makes sense.

----- Original Message -----
From: Wells, Alice G

To: Sullivan, Jacob J; Krol, George A
Cc: Holmes, David A
Sent: Sat Jun 12 20:30:36 2010
Subject: S-Saudabayev call

Jake-

B5

Thx

Alice G. Wells

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, June 13, 2010 1:09 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: S-Saudabayev call

Could you talk now?

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Jun 13 12:56:17 2010
Subject: Re: S-Saudabayev call

I can talk tonight - whenever is convenient for you.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sun Jun 13 11:50:23 2010
Subject: Re: S-Saudabayev call

Ok. I'll plan for cal tomorrow.

Also, I'd like to talk w you before your mtg w Denis and Ben about future ideas. Can you talk tonight? what times would be best?

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sun Jun 13 10:50:39 2010
Subject: Re: S-Saudabayev call

B5

Will keep you posted.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Cc: Abedin, Huma

Sent: Sat Jun 12 22:33:53 2010
Subject: Re: S-Saudabayev call

I'll do [redacted] B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sat Jun 12 21:49:40 2010
Subject: Fw: S-Saudabayev call

Fyi. I think this call makes sense.

----- Original Message -----
From: Wells, Alice G
To: Sullivan, Jacob J; Krol, George A
Cc: Holmes, David A
Sent: Sat Jun 12 20:30:36 2010
Subject: S-Saudabayev call

Jake- [redacted] B5

Thx

Alice G. Wells

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, June 13, 2010 3:35 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Just leaving the pool and seeing your mssges - can you talk at 430pm?

No. Are you free after 9pm?

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Jun 13 15:23:53 2010
Subject: Just leaving the pool and seeing your mssges - can you talk at 430pm?

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, June 13, 2010 9:28 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Just tried you. Am on cell [redacted] B6

I was just told your number was not in service!? Pls call me at home in DC.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Jun 13 21:03:51 2010
Subject: Just tried you. Am on cell [redacted] B6

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, June 14, 2010 9:24 PM
To: 'slaughtera@state.gov'
Cc: 'millscd@state.gov'; 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: From Amory Lovins

I don't recall hearing about this particular project before. Can you do a quick analysis before I follow up?

----- Original Message -----
From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>; Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Mon Jun 14 17:04:52 2010
Subject: From Amory Lovins

Am passing on as requested. I will also follow up with Maura O'Neill – I have followed this up before at Amory's request.
AM

From: Amory B. Lovins [mailto [redacted] B6
Sent: Saturday, June 12, 2010 12:54 PM
To: Slaughter, Anne-Marie
Cc: McAuliffe, Marisa S; Rasmussen Eric
Subject: please share also with Secretary Clinton -- thanks!

Dear Hillary and Anne-Marie,

For several months I've been advising on a project to take the rainforest restoration work of Dr. Willie Smits, an Indonesian agroforester, to scale on Borneo. That Smits Model effort now has an economically sustainable design with multiple benefits for the local forest population, the nation of Indonesia, and the planet. The business plan has been developed by an experienced and highly reputable investment group that serves in an Advisory role to the Prince of Wales's Trust, and the business plan has already engaged the interest of the P8, a group of the eight largest global pension funds.

The core goals of the Arenga Reforestation Project include greenhouse gas reduction, habitat restoration, rainforest remediation, deforestation protection, biofuel production that is non-food and carbon-positive, and poverty alleviation for some of the most vulnerable populations on the planet. The Internal Rate of Return, on a fairly mature business model and seven years of module testing, calculates to about 34% -- a decent investment return for almost any industry.

You can watch Willie Smits describe the possibilities at TED (to a standing ovation) here:
http://www.ted.com/talks/willie_smits_restores_a_rainforest.html

The State Department has been on the periphery of the concept development through Moira O'Neill, a Haas Professor of Business on loan to USAID from Cal. She has kept the conversation going with the White House, USAID, and State, but is extremely busy with a range of other obligations and may not have the cycles to follow this to a conclusion.

In my view this effort, the Arenga Reforestation Project, is the leading contender for an economically sustainable tropical reforestation program, and has an unprecedented climate mitigation potential (Indonesia is the world's #4 greenhouse-gas emitter, due largely to the burning and composting of the southern Kalimantan peat swamps and to rapid destruction of rainforest, both of which the Smits Model can reverse). In Aug 08 I spent 11 days visiting key sites of this project in Borneo, largely with Dr. Smits, whom I've known for about 20 years. In my opinion, and that of many others, this is the world's most sophisticated and powerful model for integrated ecological and economic restoration, with exciting prospects for much of the tropics. I can also vouch for the quality and integrity of the key people involved.

To make the impact even more noteworthy, the Minister of Forestry in Indonesia has now agreed to a 1:1 acreage match between Smits Model reforestation and the protection of virgin rainforest in perpetuity as national park. For every 30,000 hectares of Smits Model reforestation, the Ministry will designate 30,000 hectares (about 116 square miles) of virgin rainforest a National Park, and they have agreed to external monitoring by international NGOs for compliance. Since this Smits Model can scale to a million hectares, or ten million, with continually increasing economic, social, and environmental benefits, the two-fer impact is perhaps unprecedented.

It would be worthwhile for you to have someone from your staff take a look at this. In my carefully considered view, the political, social, and REDD benefits could be very substantial, and the possibility of a Public-Private Partnership is worth consideration.

The primary source for information on the project in the US is my friend and Senior Fellow at RMI, the remarkable Eric Rasmussen, MD, MDM, FACP -- CEO of the Google-founded humanitarian NGO called InSTEDD. He's leading, pro bono, the team developing the business plan, and can be reached at [redacted] or on cell at [redacted] B6
Pacific Time Zone.

With warmest regards -- ABL

Amory B. Lovins

Chairman and Chief Scientist

Rocky Mountain Institute

1739 Snowmass Creek Road

Snowmass CO 81654, USA

[redacted]

[redacted] fax 4178, desk [redacted] (on vacation through 15 Jul), cell [redacted]

Executive Assistant (Megan Shean) + [redacted], [redacted]

Chief of Staff (Lionel Bony) - [redacted]

Special Aide (Bennett Cohen) [redacted]

B6

RELEASE
IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, May 23, 2010 10:25 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Further on statement

Should I mention the cabinet and other high rankers like Ex-Im?

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, May 23, 2010 10:37 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: [redacted] B6

Ok. I also emailed her. Can I get a full list of us participants w the full names of agencies--i don't know what USDTA is!

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun May 23 10:34:09 2010
Subject: Re: [redacted]

Hmm, she just emailed.
Also, kurt and jeff went to press to talk to them briefly since it was already set up. Jake talked to them about it.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Sun May 23 10:29:53 2010
Subject: Re: [redacted]

I tried but got vm.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun May 23 10:25:51 2010
Subject: [redacted]

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, May 23, 2010 10:41 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re:

B6

I can't stay awake any longer. See you in am.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun May 23 10:39:45 2010
Subject: Re:

Yes I asked for the same

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Sun May 23 10:36:55 2010
Subject: Re:

Ok. I also emailed her. Can I get a full list of us participants w the full names of agencies--i don't know what USDTA is!

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun May 23 10:34:09 2010
Subject: Re:

Hmm, she just emailed.
Also, kurt and jeff went to press to talk to them briefly since it was already set up. Jake talked to them about it.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Sun May 23 10:29:53 2010
Subject: Re:

I tried but got vm.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun May 23 10:25:51 2010
Subject:

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, May 24, 2010 6:36 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Carlos Pascual

BINGO! Thx--I thought we were losing our memories.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H; Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Mon May 24 06:34:43 2010
Subject: Carlos Pascual

Mexico

And there is some Judith McHale component to it because she is going down there to consult on this spreadsheet

RELEASE
IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, May 25, 2010 4:34 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: HRC University. A quick thought

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: Roy Spence
To: H
Sent: Wed May 19 07:15:44 2010
Subject: HRC University. A quick thought

B6

HRC University.

Purpose:

To empower people everywhere with knowledge, purpose and passion so that they are destined-not lucky-to fully develop their God-given talents

We are in the Full Potential Business-here and around the world.

Love Rs

Ride at Dawn

This e-mail is intended only for the named person or entity to which it is addressed and contains valuable business information that is proprietary, privileged, confidential and/or otherwise protected from disclosure. If you received this email in error, any review, use, dissemination, distribution or copying of this email is strictly prohibited. Please notify us immediately of the error via email to disclaimerinquiries@ideacity.com and please delete the email from your system, retaining no copies in any media. We appreciate your cooperation.
----------ideacity.legal.disclaimer.01112008

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, May 26, 2010 10:48 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Assessing our progress to date and proposing possible ways to create more leverage

Do you have these papers?

----- Original Message -----
From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>; Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Wed May 26 09:04:23 2010
Subject: Assessing our progress to date and proposing possible ways to create more leverage

For your reading pleasure on the way home, S/P has been working on a project that I discussed with Jake a while back -- aimed at figuring out where we could do better and above all create more leverage to achieve our goals. The papers are blunter than anything you would see from the bureaus -- they should not necessarily be read as policy blueprints but rather as illustrations of alternative strategies. We have made sure that the special assistants have them on the plane. I will also share the individual papers with the relevant assistant secretaries. We will then be happy to take the project further if you approve.

You will be happy to know that rain has stopped at the Expo!
AM

RELEASE
IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, May 26, 2010 6:45 PM
To: 'hanleymr@state.gov'
Subject: How's [redacted] B6

I just landed at Andrews.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, May 27, 2010 7:08 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Tonight or tomorrow

Ok.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Thu May 27 16:33:51 2010
Subject: Re: Tonight or tomorrow

Tomorrow you and I have office time at 230pm for 45 min

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D
To: 'hdr22@clintonemail.com' <hdr22@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thu May 27 13:22:34 2010
Subject: Tonight or tomorrow

I can do 830pm at your house(or anytime tomorrow)

Cdm

RELEASE
IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, May 27, 2010 7:11 PM
To: 'vermarr@state.gov'
Subject: Re:

How long can a recess appointee serve and can one be reappointed?

----- Original Message -----
From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Thu May 27 18:40:05 2010
Subject:

FYI – the Senate is likely to pass the supp tonight. And, no nominees from any government agency will be confirmed tonight or tomorrow. Would like to discuss the potential for recess appointments with you and Cheryl.

The Brookings event, especially your opening remarks, were excellent. Very thoughtful, with lots of real-life examples. We have gotten lots of positive feedback.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, May 27, 2010 7:14 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Tonight or tomorrow

Are you back?

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Thu May 27 16:33:51 2010
Subject: Re: Tonight or tomorrow

Tomorrow you and I have office time at 230pm for 45 min

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D
To: 'hdr22@clintonemail.com' <hdr22@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thu May 27 13:22:34 2010
Subject: Tonight or tomorrow

I can do 830pm at your house(or anytime tomorrow)

Cdm

RELEASE
IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, May 27, 2010 7:17 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'; 'preines [redacted] B6
Subject: Brookings

Are you getting any feedback? How soon will FOX attack me for my "tax the rich" comments?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, May 27, 2010 10:10 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'; 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: Engel meeting

Why is there no rep from WHA in my meeting w Engel and Mack tomorrow?

RELEASE
IN PART B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Thursday, May 27, 2010 10:15 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'; 'vermarr@state.gov'
Subject: Loretta Sanchez

B5

RELEASE
IN PART B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, May 28, 2010 7:28 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: 6PT/Revcon

Let's discuss at am mtg.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri May 28 07:14:32 2010
Subject: 6PT/Revcon

The current revcon document includes a paragraph on North Korea.

B5

How would you like to proceed?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, May 28, 2010 7:55 AM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Schedule

When and where is the next AGOA Conference?

Sometime in June I want to schedule the following meeting for an hour w top leadership:

Consular Affairs

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, May 28, 2010 8:29 AM
To: 'hanleymr@state.gov'
Cc: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: Re: mini schedule, 5/28/10, friday

Am I meeting w Cheryl?

----- Original Message -----
From: Hanley, Monica R <HanleyMR@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>; Jiloty, Lauren C <JilotyLC@state.gov>
Sent: Fri May 28 07:57:26 2010
Subject: mini schedule, 5/28/10, friday

8:15 am DEPART Private Residence *En route State Department

8:25 am ARRIVE State Department

8:25 am PRESIDENTIAL DAILY BRIEFING

8:30 am Secretary's Office

8:30 am DAILY SMALL STAFF MEETING

8:45 am Secretary's Office

8:45 am DAILY SENIOR STAFF MEETING

9:15 am Secretary's Conference Room

9:30 am (t) PHONE CALL w/UN AMBASSADOR SUSAN RICE (T)

10:00 am Secretary's Office

10:00 am BILATERAL w/SRI LANKAN MINISTER OF EXTERNAL

10:30 am AFFAIRS G.L. PEIRIS

10:30 am PRESS PRE-BRIEF

10:35 am Secretary's Office

10:35 am JOINT PRESS AVAILABILITY w/SRI LANKA FM PEIRIS

10:50 am Treaty Room, 7th Floor

11:00 am MEETING w/QUINN MEACHAM

11:30 am Secretary's Office

11:30 am MEETING w/CONGRESSMEN ELIOT ENGEL AND CONNIE MACK

12:00 pm Secretary's Outer Office

12:00 pm OFFICE TIME

12:30 pm Secretary's Office

12:30 pm MEETING w/SPECIAL ENVOY SCOTT GRATION

1:00 pm Secretary's Office

1:00 pm MEETING w/CONGRESSWOMAN LORETTA SANCHEZ

1:30 pm Secretary's Outer Office

1:30 pm WEEKLY DEVELOPMENT MEETING

2:30 pm Secretary's Outer Office

2:30 pm OFFICE TIME

3:15 pm Secretary's Office

3:30pm MEETING w/DENNIS ROSS

4:15pm Secretary's Office

TBD DEPART State Dept *En Route Private Residence

TBD ARRIVE Private Residence

###

RELEASE
IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, May 28, 2010 8:15 PM
To: 'marshallcp@state.gov'
Subject: Re:

B6

----- Original Message -----
From: Marshall, Capricia P <MarshallCP@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri May 28 17:02:50 2010
Subject:

RELEASE IN PART B5,B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, May 28, 2010 8:19 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'; 'preines [redacted] B6
Subject: Posner

O'Reilly is still going after Mike over the Chinese/ Arizona law comment. [redacted] B5

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, May 29, 2010 9:14 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Musa kusa trip canceled.

Can you call me?

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat May 29 09:12:02 2010
Subject: Musa kusa trip canceled.

RELEASE
IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, May 29, 2010 10:25 AM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: [redacted] is monday better? B6

[redacted] Monday is good too if better for you. B6

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat May 29 09:55:24 2010
Subject: [redacted] is monday better? B6

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, May 30, 2010 7:23 AM
To: 'valenzuelaaa@state.gov'
Subject: Bolivia and Cuba

Arturo--

Huma forwarded your email and I agree with your plans to visit Bolivia and for us to talk w Sen, Menendez. We should discuss how best to do that after your return later this week. Safe travels--H

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, May 30, 2010 7:25 PM
To: 'sberger[redacted] B6
Subject: Re: SRB op-ed in Wash Post Outlook section Sunday

Thanks for this very clear and fair analysis of the NSS. As you know so well, it's always easier said than done. Happy Holiday to you and Susan,[redacted] Let's visit soon. All best, H B6

----- Original Message -----
From: Samuel Berger <sberger[redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Sat May 29 14:08:11 2010
Subject: FW: SRB op-ed in Wash Post Outlook section Sunday

HRC: Below is an oped on the National Security Strategy I wrote for tomorrow's Outlook.

Unfortunately, they give it a horrible title, but I think the piece turned out alright.

Best, Sandy

By Samuel R. Berger

Samuel R. Berger, chair of the global strategy firm Albright Stonebridge Group, served as national security advisor to President Clinton from 1997 to 2001.

President Obama's National Security Strategy, released by the White House on Thursday, tackles a delicate but unavoidable question: How do we respond to new and old security challenges in an era of financial distress at home and a reordering of political power abroad?

For some time now, it has been clear that the definition of U.S. national security strategy needs rethinking. The September 11 attacks, global economic crisis, cyber-terror threats and even the environmental catastrophe in the Gulf underscore that the challenges America faces in 2010 have changed even from just a decade ago. And while America's military supremacy is certainly not at risk, new international arrangements - such as the shift from the G-7 club of powerful nations to the G-20, which incorporates emerging nations from China to Brazil - are needed so that the costs and benefits of a stable international order are shared. The United States cannot solve most global threats without others, nor should we bear the burden alone.

Enter the National Security Strategy. In my experience, these congressionally mandated documents can easily become laborious and impenetrable, or mere compendiums of bureaucratic pleading from various parts of the government. (Make sure you do right by Japan! Don't step on the Pentagon!) The challenge, which President Clinton insisted upon to me and his other advisers, is to provide a strategic framework that is clarifying to the rest of the world and informs administration decision makers up and down the line. It's not a blueprint for action, but a means to convey the president's principles and priorities.

In Obama's case, the new sober and comprehensive 52-page strategy incorporates the new realities and breaks with past strategies in several key respects. But it also reflects an understanding that we face enduring challenges - nuclear proliferation, terrorism and regional conflicts - for which the best response is a return to fundamentals.

One such fundamental is the strength of our economy. At a time when the after-effects of a financial crisis and the fiscal burden of two long wars have raised fears of an overextended America, the administration makes a case for economic and technological renewal as a crucial underpinning of U.S. security. The president made this case in his West Point speech last weekend. "At no time in human history," he said, "has a nation of diminished economic vitality maintained its military and political primacy."

Another fundamental challenge is arms control and nuclear proliferation. By seeking strategic arms cuts with Russia, the president has returned to a long bipartisan tradition that languished during the prior administration. And by convening a global summit on securing nuclear material this spring, Obama has given new urgency and global purchase to the effort started in 1991 when Sens. Sam Nunn and Richard Lugar first initiated a program to lock down nuclear materials.

On terrorism, the strategy builds on the past, but breaks with it as well. Presidents Clinton, Bush and Obama each have deployed all of America's tools: military power, homeland defense, law enforcement, sanctions, intelligence and vigorous efforts to cut off terrorist financing. But the critical difference in the Obama strategy is that it rejects the Global War on Terror lens through which the prior administration viewed the challenge. "This is not a global war against a tactic - terrorism - or a religion - Islam," the new strategy says. "We are at war with a specific network, al-Qaeda and its terrorist affiliates."

This sharper focus avoids alienating many in the Muslim world, ensures the support of key allies who never accepted the broader construct and avoids the overreactions that led us to forsake the fight against al-Qaeda fight in Afghanistan and turn our efforts to the unrelated threat from Saddam Hussein's Iraq.

In perhaps the most dramatic departure from the strategy of its predecessor, the Obama administration has restored a less provocative policy on the use of military force. In the 2002 national security strategy, President Bush articulated the rationale for preemptive war just weeks before seeking a U.N. resolution to invade Iraq. The new strategy restores the principles that have guided administrations for decades: the use of force should be a last resort, should weigh all the costs and benefits, and should have as much international support as possible. The administration reserves the right to act unilaterally - for example against al-Qaeda and its allies - but resurrects the principle President Clinton often described as "together where possible, alone where necessary."

President Obama's critics have focused on his diplomatic engagement with hostile states like Iran and North Korea. The President sets forth his rationale: "to create opportunities to resolve differences, strengthen the international community's support for our actions, learn about the intentions and nature of closed regimes, and plainly demonstrate to the public within those nations that their governments are to blame for their isolation."
In the case of Iran, Washington's outstretched hand has not resulted in Iran's compliance. But attempts to engage have helped ensure that the world's attention is focused on Iran's intransigence rather than Washington's refusal to negotiate.

Without a doubt, there are gaps between principle and practice. Despite the Obama administration's stated goal of doubling exports in the next five years, it has not put its muscle behind trade agreements with South Korea, Panama and Colombia. And the clarity of its call to respect human rights has at times been muted in the face of tough realities. Sixteen months into this administration there has been much progress, but many of the true tests of this strategy lie ahead.

In the strategy's conclusions, the Obama administration evokes an even earlier era, calling for both political parties to restore the cooperation and common purpose so crucial to our success during the dark days of the Cold War. Despite the intense debates at the time over nuclear arms control, Central America and détente, nearly all American supported the containment of communism.

In that same spirit, the administration's framework deserves broad bipartisan support. We can and should argue out our differences over detention of prisoners, methods to disarm dangerous states, how hard to push for democratic rights, or the costs of climate change legislation. But at the same time, we can rally around the overriding U.S. foreign policy goals spelled out in the strategy: renewing our economy at home to ensure leadership abroad; defeating al-Qaeda; succeeding in Afghanistan; preventing nuclear proliferation; curbing climate change; and promoting an international order of enlightened self-interest, economic prosperity and the fundamental values upon which America is based.

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, May 30, 2010 7:33 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Cc: 'Russorv@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Graduation ceremony - Friday, June 11th at 630pm at Shaw Campus

I'm copying Rob so a note can be prepared.

B6

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri May 28 21:54:31 2010
Subject: FW: Graduation ceremony - Friday, June 11th at 630pm at Shaw Campus

FYI - will get Rob to write him a note unless you already did one for his own graduation.

-----Original Message-----
From: David Domenici [mailto:

B6

Sent: Friday, May 28, 2010 9:05 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Cc: Laszczych, Joanne
Subject: Graduation ceremony - Friday, June 11th at 630pm at Shaw Campus

Cheryl:

Graduation Ceremony for Academy kids is Friday, June 11th, at 630pm. At our Shaw Campus. 1851 9th Street, NW

You might want to let the Secretary know that is going to be the graduation speaker. My guess is she can't come, but maybe she'd want to drop him a note. If so, let me know, I'll draft something for.

B6

d

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, May 31, 2010 10:40 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Ehud barak

I will talk w him anytime. I'm on way to Memorial Day parade but will obviously step out to talk.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon May 31 10:38:38 2010
Subject: Ehud barak

He called for you. Wants to discuss situation in israel and trip cancellation. Says he's flexible time wise. Phil gordon and jeff feltman obviously following situation. We don't have a formal talking points yet.

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, May 31, 2010 12:57 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: H: Several observations on the Israeli raid. Sid

Fyi and itys

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop [redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Mon May 31 12:12:58 2010
Subject: H: Several observations on the Israeli raid. Sid

First observation: Bibi's Entebbe in reverse. The father, Benzion Netanyahu, 100 years old, secretary to Jabotinsky, and denounced as too radical by Begin, adored his son Yoni, heroically killed at Entebbe. Benyamin has never measured up. Benzion has constantly criticized him in public for his deviations from the doctrine of Greater Israel. Bibi desperately seeks his father's approbation and can never equal his dead brother. See Benzion's most recent scathing undermining of his son Bibi and Bibi's tearful tribute to his brother just last month. The raid on the ship to Gaza resembles the raid on Entebbe, except that there are no hostages, no guns, it's not in Africa, and it's a fiasco; otherwise, it's Entebbe. (Then, there's Ehud Barak reliving his youth as a raider killing Palestinians in Lebanon, a feat memorialized in Spielberg's film, Munich. Ultimately, it didn't work out well that time either. The film captures the moral quandaries, which appear to have escaped the participants.) Further observation: The international press will inquire whether the Obama administration gave a wink or nod as the Bush administration did for the Lebanon and Gaza incursions. Be prepared.
Further: Of course, the consequences for US foreign policy and national security are negative across the board: from the analogy of the North Korean ship sinking and the Chinese posture to support for Iranian sanctions, etc., etc. Did the Israelis not hear Petraeus's testimony?
Further: Of course, whatever the outcome of such a raid, one of the inevitable ones would be the death of the peace process, such as it is, on the very eve of Bibi's scheduled visit to Obama, which would have been, under any circumstance, in light of the raid, profoundly humiliating for the president. Or are the Israelis bone stupid? I don't think so.
Cheers,
Sid

Like Father, Like Son? Netanyahu's Father Says Son Not Serious About Two-State Solution.

July 8, 2009 · 1 Comment <http://roiword.wordpress.com/2009/07/08/like-father-like-son-netanyahus-father-syays-son-not-serious-about-two-state-solution/#comments>

<http://www.thecornerreport.com/media/blogs/links/nethu.jpg>
In a controversial interview with Israel's Channel II News, the father of Prime Minister Netanyahu, Professor Benzion <http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Benzion_Netanyahu> Netanyahu, says that his son does not support a Palestinian state. The elder Netanyahu, claims that the prime Minister told him he deliberately placed impossible conditions before the Palestinians.
Here are excerpts from the interview <http://www.mako.co.il/news-military/politics/Article-77cd5b4ae4b5221006.htm&sCh=3d385dd2dd5d4110&pId=978777604> . When asked if his son really changed his position concerning a Palestinian state, the 100 year-old historian unequivocally answered: (translation mine)

"He does not support. He supports such conditions that they (the Arabs) will never accept it. That is what I heard from him. I didn't propose these conditions, he did. They will never accept these conditions. Not one of them."

When asked about his own personal opinion about a Palestinian state, the senior Netanyahu stated:

Herzl <http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Theodor_Herzl> and Nordau <http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Max_Nordau> (fathers of zionist movement) did not labor to create a Palestinian state. This land is Jewish land and not a land for the Arabs. There is no place here for Arabs, and there wont be a place here for the Arabs. They will never agree to the conditions.

Published: 04/18/10, 9:03 AM / Last Update: 04/18/10, 9:21 AM

Netanyahu Visits Grave of Brother Who Fell in Entebbe Rescue

by Tzvi Ben Gedalyahu
Follow Israel news on Twitter <http://twitter.com/IsraelNewsStory> and Facebook <http://www.facebook.com/pages/IsraelNationalNews/102510354100> .

On Saturday night, Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu visited the grave of his brother Yoni, who fell during the daring rescue of hijacked Israelis in Entebbe <http://www.yoni.org.il/en/jonathan.php> , Uganda in 1976.

<http://info.a7.org/php_en/c.php?b=1816&z=17&clientid=1352&dest=http://www.bneiaish.com>
He and his wife Sarah decided to go to the gravesite on Mount Herzl 24 hours before the beginning of Remembrance Day for Fallen Soldiers in order to prevent security tie-ups for thousands of other Israelis who will visit the cemetery Sunday night and Monday.
The Netanyahus were moved emotionally after seeing for the first time a commemorative decoration that the IDF carved into the gravestone of Yoni, who led the rescue operation and was the only soldier to die in the maneuver. One of his less known heroic deeds is his saving a soldier from across Syrian lines in the Yom Kippur War in 1973.
Sirens will sound throughout Israel for one minute at 8 p.m. (1 p.m. EDT) Sunday night to mark the beginning of Memorial Day for 22,682 Fallen Soldiers and 2,431 victims <http://www.israelnationalnews.com/News/News.aspx/137050> of Arab terrorist attacks following the re-establishment of the State of Israel after 2,000 years. Another 1,500 civilians were killed between 1860 and the 1948 War for Independence, when seven Arab nations attacked the fledging, newly declared state just three years after the Holocaust ended.
On Monday morning, a two-minute siren will sound at 11 a.m. (4 a.m. EDT). (IsraelNationalNews.com)

RELEASE
IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, May 31, 2010 12:58 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: H: this report appeared in Maariv, major Israeli daily, on May 27, fyi, Sid

More fyi.

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop [redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Mon May 31 12:49:21 2010
Subject: H: this report appeared in Maariv, major Israeli daily, on May 27, fyi, Sid

Netanyahu pleased: I didn't capitulate
Ben Caspit, Maariv, May 27 2010 [page 2 with front page lead; Hebrew original here <http://www.scribd.com/doc/32038200/Maariv-May27-10-Netanyahu-Says-He-Beat-Obama> and at bottom of post] In the course of intimate conversations over the past few weeks with top political officials and civil servants, Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu has said, according to his interlocutors, that he managed to defeat the US administration. Netanyahu is pleased by the fact that the Americans failed, so he said, to twist his arm and that ultimately, in the duel between him and the Obama administration, he was the one who emerged with the upper hand. We did not make concessions on our red lines and they failed to make us fold and to drag us to places we didn't want to go, said Netanyahu, according to people who heard him speak.
Netanyahu is convinced that he is not going to be forced to extend the settlement construction freeze, which is due to expire in September. According to senior officials in Jerusalem, an agreement has already been reached with the administration that the Israeli government will not announce an extension of the construction freeze in the territories, and the Americans will "make sure" that the Palestinians do not withdraw from the talks. Israel, however, will not take "aggressive" action and construction will be resumed only in areas that are clearly within the consensus inside the settlement blocs.
The Prime Minister's Bureau vigorously denied the above report. "The statements attributed to the prime minister are incorrect," said a spokesman in the Prime Minister's Bureau. "They were not said by Netanyahu in any forum. The reason is simple: the prime minister does not think that, Prime Minister Netanyahu holds in great esteem the commitment by President Obama and the administration to Israel's security and their efforts to renew the peace process in our region."
Eli Bardenstein adds: The formal invitation that Netanyahu received yesterday to meet with President Obama next week might attest to a radical change in the White House's attitude towards him. Political sources in Israel described the planned meeting as "the peak of the campaign for Israel and the Jews that has been pursued by the Obama administration in the past number of weeks." The sources said that the meeting was geared to put an end to the grave crisis that erupted some two months ago between the Obama administration and Netanyahu over the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and particularly over the continued construction in East Jerusalem, and to mend the mistaken impression that was received as if Israel was "no longer an absolute ally of the United States."
That crisis, which was initiated by the Americans, elicited fierce criticism in the United States, and sparked a desire among members of the Obama administration to rectify the situation. Another reason for the administration's desire to end the crisis is the fear of failure in the upcoming Congressional elections in November. "The Democratic Party's coffers are empty. Many Democrat members of Congress and Senators have complained that if the hazing of Israel were to continue, they would be unable to obtain donations from Jews and were liable to lose the elections," said one source in Washington.

The prevalent assessment is that Netanyahu will be received far more warmly in Washington next week than he was two months ago. This time the meeting will be covered by the media and the two leaders are expected to have their picture taken together and to give statements to the media.

That said, sources in Washington noted that "Netanyahu is leery of the meeting with Obama and of walking into a trap once again. He knows that the smiles notwithstanding, behind closed doors he is going to have to give answers to very difficult questions, like 'how do you envision the end of the negotiations with the Palestinians.'"

Netanyahu is to begin his political travels today in Paris, where he is to attend the ceremony in honor of Israel's acceptance into the OECD. The prime minister will be arriving in a city that is on strike, which is liable to impede his movement through the city streets to the center of Paris for his meetings.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, May 31, 2010 1:34 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Shuttle

The Service still has me leaving at 6am tomorrow. Is that right?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, May 31, 2010 1:47 PM
To: Huma Abedin; 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Shuttle

Ok but I'm confused since I remember talking w Lona about changing to 8 tonight.

----- Original Message -----
From: Huma Abedin
To: H; 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov' <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>
Sent: Mon May 31 13:36:41 2010
Subject: Re: Shuttle

That is correct. We are set on 6.
Isabelle coming at 7:30 to whitehaven.

----- Original Message -----
From: H
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov' <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>; Huma Abedin
Sent: Mon May 31 13:34:26 2010
Subject: Shuttle

The Service still has me leaving at 6am tomorrow. Is that right?

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, May 31, 2010 2:53 PM
To: Huma Abedin; 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Shuttle

Let's just stay w 6am tomorrow now. Thx.

----- Original Message -----
From: Huma Abedin
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov' <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>; H
Sent: Mon May 31 14:13:18 2010
Subject: Re: Shuttle

Oh sorry. I didn't know you wanted to change to tonite for sure.

----- Original Message -----
From: Valmoro, Lona J <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>
To: H; Huma Abedin
Sent: Mon May 31 14:08:38 2010
Subject: Re: Shuttle

We have a reservation for tonight's 9pm (the last one). I can move to the 8pm if that's what we would like to do.

Lona Valmoro
Special Assistant to the Secretary of State
redacted B6

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Huma Abedin <Huma@clintonemail.com>; Valmoro, Lona J
Sent: Mon May 31 13:46:59 2010
Subject: Re: Shuttle

Ok but I'm confused since I remember talking w Lona about changing to 8 tonight.

----- Original Message -----
From: Huma Abedin
To: H; 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov' <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>
Sent: Mon May 31 13:36:41 2010
Subject: Re: Shuttle

That is correct. We are set on 6.
Isabelle coming at 7:30 to whitehaven.

----- Original Message -----
From: H
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov' <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>; Huma Abedin
Sent: Mon May 31 13:34:26 2010
Subject: Shuttle

The Service still has me leaving at 6am tomorrow. Is that right?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, May 31, 2010 4:01 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Remarks by Ambassador Alejandro Wolff, Deputy Permanent U.S. Representative to the United Nations, at an Emergency Session of the Security Council, May 31, 2010

Are you back yet? If so, pls call me thru Ops.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon May 31 15:51:38 2010
Subject: Fw: Remarks by Ambassador Alejandro Wolff, Deputy Permanent U.S. Representative to the United Nations, at an Emergency Session of the Security Council, May 31, 2010

FYI

---

From: Barks-Ruggles, Erica J
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Mon May 31 15:45:40 2010
Subject: Fw: Remarks by Ambassador Alejandro Wolff, Deputy Permanent U.S. Representative to the United Nations, at an Emergency Session of the Security Council, May 31, 2010

Jake -

FYI - here is the final as released. - Erica

Sent from my Blackberry - apologies for typos and brevity.

---

From: USUN, PRESS
To: USUN, PRESS
Sent: Mon May 31 15:40:41 2010
Subject: Remarks by Ambassador Alejandro Wolff, Deputy Permanent U.S. Representative to the United Nations, at an Emergency Session of the Security Council, May 31, 2010

United States Mission to the United Nations Office of Press and Public Diplomacy
140 East 45th Street
New York, NY 10017
(212) 415-4050
http://www.usun.state.gov <http://www.usun.state.gov/>

Follow us on <http://twitter.com/AmbassadorRice> and <http://www.facebook.com/AmbassadorRice>

USUN PRESS RELEASE #109 May 31, 2010
AS DELIVERED

Remarks by Ambassador Alejandro Wolff, Deputy Permanent U.S. Representative to the United Nations, at an Emergency Session of the Security Council, May 31, 2010

Thank you, Mr. President and thank you, Assistant Secretary-General Fernandez-Taranco.

The United States is deeply disturbed by the recent violence and regrets the tragic loss of life and injuries suffered among those involved in the incident last night aboard the Gaza-bound ships. We are working to ascertain the facts. We expect a credible and transparent investigation and strongly urge the Israeli government to investigate the incident fully.

As I stated in the Chamber in December 2008, when we were confronted by a similar situation, mechanisms exist for the transfer of humanitarian assistance to Gaza by member states and groups that want to do so. These non-provocative and non-confrontational mechanisms should be the ones used for the benefit of all those in Gaza. Direct delivery by sea is neither appropriate nor responsible, and certainly not effective, under the circumstances.

The United States remains deeply concerned by the suffering of civilians in Gaza, and the deterioration of the situation there, including the humanitarian and human rights situation. We continue to believe the situation is unsustainable and is not in the interests of any of those concerned. We will continue to engage the Israelis on a daily basis to expand the scope and type of goods allowed into Gaza to address the full range of the population's humanitarian and recovery needs. Hamas' interference with international assistance shipments and the work of nongovernmental organizations complicates efforts in Gaza. Its continued arms smuggling and commitment to terrorism undermines security and prosperity for Palestinians and Israelis alike.

We will continue to work closely with the Government of Israel and the Palestinian Authority, along with international NGOs and the UN, to provide adequate access for humanitarian goods, including reconstruction materials, through the border crossings, while bearing in mind the Government of Israel's legitimate security concerns.

Ultimately, this incident underscores the need to move ahead quickly with negotiations that can lead to a comprehensive peace in the region. The only viable solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict is an agreement, negotiated between the parties, that ends the occupation that began in 1967 and fulfills the aspirations of both parties for independent homelands through two states for two peoples, Israel and an independent, contiguous, and viable state of Palestine, living side by side in peace and security. We call again on our international partners – both inside and outside this Council – to promote an atmosphere of cooperation between the parties and throughout the entire region.

Thank you, Mr. President.

###

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, May 31, 2010 6:10 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Schedule

Yes, I would.

----- Original Message -----
From: Valmoro, Lona J <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>
To: H; Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Mon May 31 18:08:33 2010
Subject: Schedule

MS, tomorrow you were scheduled to have a pre-brief prior to the Netanyahu meeting which included Senator Mitchell. Would you like to still see him (he was scheduled around 12:30pm)?
Lona Valmoro
Special Assistant to the Secretary of State
redacted

B6

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, May 31, 2010 6:14 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Schedule

Also, did Jake reach you about moving the Dav'ou mtg back so we can be better prepared?

----- Original Message -----
From: Valmoro, Lona J <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon May 31 18:11:59 2010
Subject: Re: Schedule

Sounds good, ty.

Lona Valmoro
Special Assistant to the Secretary of State
(direct) B6

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Valmoro, Lona J
Sent: Mon May 31 18:10:13 2010
Subject: Re: Schedule

Yes, I would.

----- Original Message -----
From: Valmoro, Lona J <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>
To: H; Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Mon May 31 18:08:33 2010
Subject: Schedule

MS, tomorrow you were scheduled to have a pre-brief prior to the Netanyahu meeting which included Senator Mitchell. Would you like to still see him (he was scheduled around 12:30pm)?
Lona Valmoro
Special Assistant to the Secretary of State
(direct)

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 1, 2010 3:00 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Reuters) Russia's Putin warns West over missile defense

From: Vu, Anny T
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_Shift-I
Sent: Wed Dec 01 02:51:42 2010
Subject: (Reuters) Russia's Putin warns West over missile defense

MOSCOW (Reuters) – Prime Minister Putin told CNN television that Russia will deploy nuclear weapons and "strike forces" if it is shut out of a Western missile defense system, echoing a warning from President Medvedev. In an interview with Larry King, Putin said missile threats against Europe must be tackled jointly -- a reference to an agreement reached at a Russia-NATO summit this month to cooperate on missile defense. But if Russia's proposals are rejected and new threats appear along its borders, "Russia will have to ensure its own security," Putin said. Russia would "put in place new strike forces...against the new threats which will have been created along our borders," Putin said. "New missile, nuclear technologies will be put in place." Putin said Russia does not want this to happen and is not threatening the West, but the remarks underscored the Kremlin's insistence on a significant role in a missile defense system and suggested ties could sour badly if agreement is not reached.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 1, 2010 6:12 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Reuters) Afghanistan announces last set of election results

From: Vu, Anny T
To: NEWS-Mahogany; NEWS-Afghanistan
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_Shift-I
Sent: Wed Dec 01 06:02:37 2010
Subject: (Reuters) Afghanistan announces last set of election results

KABUL (Reuters) – Afghanistan announced on December 1 the final batch of results from a September 18 parliamentary election, with poll organizers aiming to wrap up a vote marred by widespread fraud and pave the way for a new parliament. The Independent Election Commission (IEC) said preliminary winners would hold their seats in southeastern Ghazni province. Election officials released results for Afghanistan's other 33 provinces and for Kuchi nomads a week ago but delayed Ghazni because of technical issues and irregularities.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

---

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, June 14, 2010 9:25 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: From Amory Lovins

Pls print for me.

----- Original Message -----
From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>; Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Mon Jun 14 17:04:52 2010
Subject: From Amory Lovins

Am passing on as requested. I will also follow up with Maura O'Neill – I have followed this up before at Amory's request.
AM

From: Amory B. Lovins [mailto: ] B6
Sent: Saturday, June 12, 2010 12:54 PM
To: Slaughter, Anne-Marie
Cc: McAuliffe, Marisa S; Rasmussen Eric
Subject: please share also with Secretary Clinton -- thanks!

Dear Hillary and Anne-Marie,

For several months I've been advising on a project to take the rainforest restoration work of Dr. Willie Smits, an Indonesian agroforester, to scale on Borneo. That Smits Model effort now has an economically sustainable design with multiple benefits for the local forest population, the nation of Indonesia, and the planet. The business plan has been developed by an experienced and highly reputable investment group that serves in an Advisory role to the Prince of Wales's Trust, and the business plan has already engaged the interest of the P8, a group of the eight largest global pension funds.

The core goals of the Arenga Reforestation Project include greenhouse gas reduction, habitat restoration, rainforest remediation, deforestation protection, biofuel production that is non-food and carbon-positive, and poverty alleviation for some of the most vulnerable populations on the planet. The Internal Rate of Return, on a fairly mature business model and seven years of module testing, calculates to about 34% -- a decent investment return for almost any industry.

You can watch Willie Smits describe the possibilities at TED (to a standing ovation) here:
http://www.ted.com/talks/willie_smits_restores_a_rainforest.html

The State Department has been on the periphery of the concept development through Moira O'Neill, a Haas Professor of Business on loan to USAID from Cal. She has kept the conversation going with the White House, USAID, and State, but is extremely busy with a range of other obligations and may not have the cycles to follow this to a conclusion.

In my view this effort, the Arenga Reforestation Project, is the leading contender for an economically sustainable tropical reforestation program, and has an unprecedented climate mitigation potential (Indonesia is the world's #4 greenhouse-gas emitter, due largely to the burning and composting of the southern Kalimantan peat swamps and to rapid destruction of rainforest, both of which the Smits Model can reverse). In Aug 08 I spent 11 days visiting key sites of this project in Borneo, largely with Dr. Smits, whom I've known for about 20 years. In my opinion, and that of many others, this is the world's most sophisticated and powerful model for integrated ecological and economic restoration, with exciting prospects for much of the tropics. I can also vouch for the quality and integrity of the key people involved.

To make the impact even more noteworthy, the Minister of Forestry in Indonesia has now agreed to a 1:1 acreage match between Smits Model reforestation and the protection of virgin rainforest in perpetuity as national park. For every 30,000 hectares of Smits Model reforestation, the Ministry will designate 30,000 hectares (about 116 square miles) of virgin rainforest a National Park, and they have agreed to external monitoring by international NGOs for compliance. Since this Smits Model can scale to a million hectares, or ten million, with continually increasing economic, social, and environmental benefits, the two-fer impact is perhaps unprecedented.

It would be worthwhile for you to have someone from your staff take a look at this. In my carefully considered view, the political, social, and REDD benefits could be very substantial, and the possibility of a Public-Private Partnership is worth consideration.

The primary source for information on the project in the US is my friend and Senior Fellow at RMI, the remarkable Eric Rasmussen, MD, MDM, FACP -- CEO of the Google-founded humanitarian NGO called InSTEDD. He's leading, pro bono, the team developing the business plan, and can be reached at [redacted] or on cell at [redacted], B6
Pacific Time Zone.

With warmest regards -- ABL

Amory B. Lovins

Chairman and Chief Scientist

Rocky Mountain Institute

1739 Snowmass Creek Road

Snowmass CO 81654, USA

[redacted]

[redacted] fax 4178, desk [redacted] (on vacation through 15 Jul), cell [redacted]

Executive Assistant (Megan Shean) [redacted]

Chief of Staff (Lionel Bony) [redacted] B6

Special Aide (Bennett Cohen), [redacted]

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 1, 2010 8:17 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Reuters) Hamas would honor referendum on peace with Israel

From: Simmons, Krista M
To: NEWS-Mahogany; NEWS-NEA
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_Shift-II
Sent: Wed Dec 01 08:13:22 2010
Subject: (Reuters) Hamas would honor referendum on peace with Israel

GAZA (Reuters) - The Islamist Hamas movement, whose charter advocates the elimination of Israel, would accept the outcome of a Palestinian referendum on a future peace treaty with the Jewish state, its Gaza leader said on December 1.

Ismail Haniyeh, addressing a rare news conference in the Israeli-blockaded enclave, signaled a softening of Hamas's long-standing position prohibiting the ceding of any part of the land of what was British-mandated Palestine until 1948.

"We accept a Palestinian state on the borders of 1967, with Jerusalem as its capital, the release of Palestinian prisoners, and the resolution of the issue of refugees," Haniyeh said, referring to the year of Middle East war in which Israel captured East Jerusalem and the Palestinian territories.

"Hamas will respect the results (of a referendum) regardless of whether it differs with its ideology and principles," he said, provided it included all Palestinians in Gaza, the West Bank and the diaspora.

The Hamas charter, drafted in 1988, regards all of the land of Palestine, including what is now Israel, as the heritage of Muslims. The idea of a referendum on a future peace accord with Israel was rejected by some Hamas leaders when it was proposed by Palestinian President Abbas several months ago.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 1, 2010 8:57 AM
To: H
Subject: Re: (Reuters) Hamas would honor referendum on peace with Israel

Yes.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Wed Dec 01 08:55:46 2010
Subject: Re: (Reuters) Hamas would honor referendum on peace with Israel

B6

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Wed Dec 01 08:17:09 2010
Subject: Fw: (Reuters) Hamas would honor referendum on peace with Israel

---

From: Simmons, Krista M
To: NEWS-Mahogany; NEWS-NEA
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_Shift-II
Sent: Wed Dec 01 08:13:22 2010
Subject: (Reuters) Hamas would honor referendum on peace with Israel

GAZA (Reuters) - The Islamist Hamas movement, whose charter advocates the elimination of Israel, would accept the outcome of a Palestinian referendum on a future peace treaty with the Jewish state, its Gaza leader said on December 1.

Ismail Haniyeh, addressing a rare news conference in the Israeli-blockaded enclave, signaled a softening of Hamas's long-standing position prohibiting the ceding of any part of the land of what was British-mandated Palestine until 1948.

"We accept a Palestinian state on the borders of 1967, with Jerusalem as its capital, the release of Palestinian prisoners, and the resolution of the issue of refugees," Haniyeh said, referring to the year of Middle East war in which Israel captured East Jerusalem and the Palestinian territories.

"Hamas will respect the results (of a referendum) regardless of whether it differs with its ideology and principles," he said, provided it included all Palestinians in Gaza, the West Bank and the diaspora.

The Hamas charter, drafted in 1988, regards all of the land of Palestine, including what is now Israel, as the heritage of Muslims. The idea of a referendum on a future peace accord with Israel was rejected by some Hamas leaders when it was proposed by Palestinian President Abbas several months ago.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

B6

From: sbwhoeop
Sent: Wednesday, December 1, 2010 9:20 AM
To: H
Subject: H: Les Gelb makes the points. Sid

H:
Les Gelb, who oversaw the writing of the Pentagon Papers, makes the points that Wikileaks show US today trying to solve difficult international problems, telling the truth and diplomats acting professionally.

WikiLeaks Accidentally Helps U.S.

by Leslie H. Gelb

November 30, 2010 | 10:42pm

Julian Assange clearly intended the State Dept. cable leaks to smear the U.S. as evil and selfish. Leslie H. Gelb on how he inadvertently proved the opposite.

The Wikileakers dumped a vast pile of secrets to prove that the United States was selfish, stupid and wicked–but their revelations proved just the opposite. When you remove the gossip and obvious trivia that mesmerized the press, you clearly see what the Wikileakers never expected: A United States seriously and professionally trying to solve the most dangerous problems in a frighteningly complicated world, yet lacking the power to dictate solutions. U.S. policymakers and diplomats are shown, quite accurately, doing what they are supposed to do: ferreting out critical information from foreign leaders, searching for paths to common action, and struggling with the right amount of pressure to apply on allies and adversaries. And in most cases, the villain is not Washington, but foreign leaders escaping common action with cowardice and hypocrisy.

Don't think for a New York minute that Julian Assange, the Wikileaker, unloaded this trove to save humankind. Why did he toss in those cables about Italy's leader being a rake and Germany's chancellor being a cautious fuddy-duddy, and President Hamid Karzai of Afghanistan being "paranoid"? To save the world? Not a chance. He did it to get attention, and he got attention from a drooling press, which then went on to call the very material they were highlighting trivial. Did Assange leak critical conversations with Chinese or Arab leaders to help solve the problems in Korea and Iran? Not by the hair on your chinny chin chin. He did it to show that he could do it–and for the attention. Anyone who is not a hopeless left-wing ideologue knows that such leaks will crush future serious conversations with those leaders for some time to come. Just think: if you told someone a serious and critical confidence about someone else, and your confidant went out and told others, would you soon repeat that mistake? Assange did not leak these cables to help solve world problems. These leaks were absolutely gratuitous and served only the purpose of making him a media marvel.

When you actually read the cables, here's what you see: American leaders and American diplomats trying to solve crucial world In explaining his deed publicly, Assange suggests that what he's doing is uncovering American misdeeds and lies. His aim, he says, is to inform citizens of democracies and peoples around the world about what their leaders are really doing. Assange also insists he did this for transparency's sake. Yet when he got to look inside, he didn't see what was plain: that our diplomats were doing a good job. Indeed, when you turn off his nonsense and stop listening to the strange commentary on cable news and even on the front pages of great newspapers, when you actually read the cables, here's what you see: American leaders and American diplomats trying to solve crucial world problems.

But when you turn off his nonsense and stop listening to the strange commentary on cable news and even on the front pages of great newspapers, when you actually read the cables, here's what you see: American leaders and American diplomats trying to solve crucial world problems.

–Washington needs China's help in bolstering sanctions against Iran, and China balks for fear of jeopardizing its oil and gas flow from that country. The Obama team arranges for Saudi Arabia to guarantee any loss in supply to China. If the world wants to slow or even prevent Iran's march to nuclear weaponry, this is a key path to doing so.

–The U.S. discovers that North Korea has manufactured new medium-range missiles and is trying to deliver them to Iran through China. The Obama team discovers this, informs Beijing, and asks Beijing to stop the transfer. Beijing declines. Really creepy.

–Yemen's leader takes public responsibility for American missile attacks against Al Qaeda in Yemen. He wants to diminish the power of these terrorists, as do Americans and most others in the world. The "lie" by the Yemeni president is a harmless way to get a critical job done–that is, the job of fighting international terrorism. Wikileaks tears away the political cover of Yemen's leaders.

–No country has anywhere near as much influence over nutty North Korea as China. So, U.S. diplomats are searching desperately to figure out Chinese thinking about North Korea in order to compose a plan for avoiding war on the Korean Peninsula. So, the Wikileakers expose some Chinese leaders who are actually trying to give us some insight into Chinese thinking about North Korean craziness. They won't do that again soon.

Time and again, as one actually reads these cables, one has to be heartened by the professionalism and the insights of U.S. diplomats. What are they doing? They are not lying, and U.S. leaders are not lying. They are actually, believe it or not, trying to solve problems. That seriousness of purpose and the professionalism to execute it is what jumps out at you in these materials.

So, the naïve say, it's good to show the effectiveness of our diplomats. Give me a break. Ask any American diplomat to choose between looking intelligent in leaked cables and making progress toward avoiding war.

None of this is to say that there should not be leaks, or that the press should not pursue classified information that is necessary or very helpful to a sensible public debate on policy. If a U.S. administration is lying, or distorting the facts, or telling one story to the public and another to itself, then by all means, let's have it out in public. If the U.S. government is concocting intelligence in order to justify wars, let's hope an enterprising reporter finds it out for the rest of us.

But the Wikileaks dump is not about providing essential information to Americans or to others–information they need for serious policy discussion. This massive trashing by Wikileaks of a legitimate effort by the U.S. government to preserve confidentiality is the very least a shame and at the most, a crime.

Leslie H. Gelb, a former New York Times columnist and senior government official, is author of Power Rules: How Common Sense Can Rescue American Foreign Policy (HarperCollins 2009), a book that shows how to think about and use power in the 21st century. He is president emeritus of the Council on Foreign Relations.

Like The Daily Beast on Facebook and follow us on Twitter for updates all day long.
For inquiries, please contact The Daily Beast at editorial@thedailybeast.com.

URL: http://www.thedailybeast.com/blogs-and-stories/2010-11-30/wikileaks-helps-america-how-julian-assange-proved-us-working-hard-on-policy-problems/p/

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, June 14, 2010 9:30 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Strider, Huffington Post: Big Daddy's Rules for the 2010 Campaign Trail

Pls print for me.

----- Original Message -----
From: Burns Strider <
To: H
Sent: Fri Jun 11 12:51:45 2010
Subject: Strider, Huffington Post: Big Daddy's Rules for the 2010 Campaign Trail

B6

http://www.huffingtonpost.com/burns-strider/big-daddys-rules-for-the_b_609004.html

"Sarah Palin's brand of politics, for example, defining some Americans as being from "real America" and others as wherever it is she thinks they are from (a city, perhaps?) is bad for America. Such political warmongering implodes our core values...

Our first calling, in politics, is to protect, honor and leave better our American system...

If we tear down the American political process by doing and saying anything to win then we have failed that calling before we ever begin...

The campaign cycle of 2010 has had a tumultuous start. Tea Party libertarians screaming from street corners, unhappy workers taking on incumbents, disgruntled faithful praying that the administration will keep its promises, Birthers repelling from black helicopters into the American mainstream and town hall meetings resembling Three Stooges re-runs have been forever social networked into our national psyche. Something is askew!"

THE RULES FOR 2010... http://www.huffingtonpost.com/burns-strider/big-daddys-rules-for-the_b_609004.html

Burns Strider

Founding Partner

The Eleison Group

Join Me on Facebook <http://www.facebook.com/profile.php?id=1279552305&ref=name>

Follow Me on Twitter <http://twitter.com/BStrider>

Visit The Eleison Group Website <http://www.eleisongroup.com/>

Visit Pea Ridge Confidential, My Personal Blog <http://pearidgeconfidential.blogspot.com/>

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 1, 2010 9:38 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Reuters) Egypt Islamists pull out of "rigged" election -TV

From: Simmons, Krista M
To: NEWS-Mahogany; NEWS-NEA
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_Shift-II
Sent: Wed Dec 01 09:34:51 2010
Subject: (Reuters) Egypt Islamists pull out of "rigged" election -TV

CAIRO (Reuters) - Egypt's opposition Muslim Brotherhood, which held a fifth of seats in the outgoing parliament, has pulled out of an election race after winning no seats in the first round, al-Arabiya television reported.

The group, which runs candidates as independents to skirt a ban on religious parties, said the vote was rigged in favor of President Mubarak's ruling party.

Al-Arabiya said the group was pulling out of a run-off to be held on December 5. The group said 26 of its candidates had made it through to the run-off. A senior Brotherhood official told Reuters an announcement would be made later on December 1.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, June 14, 2010 9:35 PM
To: 'cb[redacted] B6
Subject: Re: confidential

I would be happy to meet w him. How should I follow up to arrange a mutually agreeable time? All the best to you.

----- Original Message -----
From: Cherie Blair [redacted]
To: H
Sent: Mon Jun 07 09:56:45 2010
Subject: confidential

As you know I have good links to the Qataris. Sheikha Mosah's son is the 31/32 year old Crown Prince and she is keen that he starts to build a wider international profile. He has been appointed head of the Qatar National Food Security Programme which is designed to deal with Qatar's food security issues its a $30 billion programme. He is aware that food security is an issue you are majoring on and would love to meet with you in person to discuss this and to explore potential partnership areas between US and Qatar including possible participation in the US/World Bank Food Security Fund. He is also keen to talk more generally about US/Qatari cooperation and even suggested they could help out with the Oil spill problem. There is apparently a Arab Food Security Summit in October 2010 and he would like to discuss Us participation in that too.

IS a meeting possible he is more flexible on place and times than his mother! Or maybe we could set up an initial phone call.

Can you let me know if this appeals to you at all?

Cherie Blair

[redacted]

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, June 14, 2010 9:36 PM
To: 'stalbott [redacted] B6
Subject: Re: follow up on Afghan matter

Thx so much for your quick and thorough followup. I'm not surprised that he believes he has to wait awhile. Let's aim for a time to catch up. When will you be back in DC?

----- Original Message -----
From: Strobe Talbott [redacted] B6
To: H
Cc: 'Cheryl Mills' [redacted] Jake Sullivan (DOS) <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Wed Jun 02 18:20:34 2010
Subject: follow up on Afghan matter

Hillary, as promised, I connected with Bruce Jones at NYU about Spanta. Bruce got in touch offered to help Spanta put together an arrangement at NYU that might have a Brookings offshoot. Spanta said he needed to decide with Karzai whether in fact the timing was right for him to leave. He just got back in touch with Bruce saying he's decided to stay on a bit longer. That said, he's agreed to participate in some Track II regional work that Bruce has underway. All in all, it sounds as though this has ended up in the right place for now. Bruce, Martin and I will be open to other NY/DC possibilities down the road when Spanta's situation changes. Thanks again for the truly terrific event at Brookings. Regards, Strobe

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, June 14, 2010 9:39 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: HRC University. A quick thought

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: Roy Spence
To: H
Sent: Wed May 19 07:15:44 2010
Subject: HRC University. A quick thought

B6

HRC University.

Purpose:

To empower people everywhere with knowledge, purpose and passion so that they are destined-not lucky-to fully develop their God-given talents

We are in the Full Potential Business-here and around the world.

Love Rs

Ride at Dawn

This e-mail is intended only for the named person or entity to which it is addressed and contains valuable business information that is proprietary, privileged, confidential and/or otherwise protected from disclosure. If you received this email in error, any review, use, dissemination, distribution or copying of this email is strictly prohibited. Please notify us immediately of the error via email to disclaimerinquiries@ideacity.com and please delete the email from your system, retaining no copies in any media. We appreciate your cooperation.
----------ideacity.legal.disclaimer.01112008

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, June 16, 2010 8:59 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: confidential

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: Cherie Blair
To: H
Sent: Tue Jun 15 09:38:26 2010
Subject: RE: confidential

How about arranging a phone call between the two of you first to discuss the issues briefly then you could agree mutually when to meet.
If you give me a time when you can take a quick phone call from the Crown Prince I will get the number for you to ring.

Cherie Blair

B6

-----Original Message-----
From: H [mailto:HDR22@clintonemail.com]
Sent: 15 June 2010 02:35
To: Cherie Blair
Subject: Re: confidential

I would be happy to meet w him. How should I follow up to arrange a mutually agreeable time? All the best to you.

----- Original Message -----
From: Cherie Blair
To: H
Sent: Mon Jun 07 09:56:45 2010
Subject: confidential

B6

As you know I have good links to the Qataris. Sheikha Mosah's son is the 31/32 year old Crown Prince and she is keen that he starts to build a wider international profile. He has been appointed head of the Qatar National Food Security Programme which is designed to deal with Qatar's food security issues its a $30 billion programme. He is aware that food security is an issue you are majoring on and would love to meet with you in person to discuss this and to explore potential partnership areas between US and Qatar including possible participation in the US/World Bank Food Security Fund. He is also keen to talk more generally about US/Qatari cooperation and even suggested they could help out with the Oil spill problem. There is apparently a Arab Food Security Summit in October 2010 and he would like to discuss Us participation in that too.

IS a meeting possible he is more flexible on place and times than his mother! Or maybe we could set up an initial phone call.

Can you let me know if this appeals to you at all?

Cherie Blair

B6

This message has been scanned by MailController - www.MailController.altohiway.com

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 1, 2010 9:58 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Les Gelb's Daily Beast Blog, 12/1/2010

Good stuff.

----- Original Message -----
From: Leslie H. Gelb [redacted] B6
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Wed Dec 01 09:48:41 2010
Subject: Les Gelb's Daily Beast Blog, 12/1/2010

Dear Mr. Sullivan:

Intending to expose U.S. government lies, the latest Wikileaks only prove U.S. diplomats' professionalism, writes Les Gelb in his latest blog.

The full text of the piece is included below.

http://www.thedailybeast.com/blogs-and-stories/2010-11-30/wikileaks-helps-america-how-julian-assange-proved-us-working-hard-on-policy-problems/

Sincerely,

Jonathan E. Hillman
Research Associate for Leslie H. Gelb
Council on Foreign Relations
58 East 68th Street, New York, New York 10065
tel 212.434.9742 fax 212.434.9813
[redacted] B6

Wikileaks Accidentally Helps U.S.
by Leslie H. Gelb
November 30, 2010 | 10:42pm

Julian Assange clearly intended the State Dept. cable leaks to smear the U.S. as evil and selfish. Leslie H. Gelb on how he inadvertently proved the opposite.

The Wikileakers dumped a vast pile of secrets to prove that the United States was selfish, stupid and wicked-but their revelations proved just the opposite. When you remove the gossip and obvious trivia that mesmerized the press, you clearly see what the Wikileakers never expected: A United States seriously and professionally trying to solve the most dangerous problems in a frighteningly complicated world, yet lacking the power to dictate solutions. U.S. policymakers and diplomats are shown, quite accurately, doing what they are supposed to do: ferreting out critical information from foreign leaders, searching for paths to common action, and struggling with the right amount of pressure to apply on allies and adversaries. And in most cases, the villain is not Washington, but foreign leaders escaping common action with cowardice and hypocrisy.

Don't think for a New York minute that Julian Assange, the Wikileaker, unloaded this trove to save humankind. Why did he toss in those cables about Italy's leader being a rake and Germany's chancellor being a cautious fuddy-duddy, and President Hamid Karzai of Afghanistan being "paranoid"? To save the world? Not a chance. He did it to get attention, and he got attention from a drooling press, which then went on to call the very material they were highlighting trivial. Did Assange leak critical conversations with Chinese or Arab leaders to help solve the problems in Korea and Iran? Not by the hair on your chinny chin chin. He did it to show that he could do it-and for the attention. Anyone who is not a hopeless left-wing ideologue knows that such leaks will crush future serious conversations with those leaders for some time to come. Just think: if you told someone a serious and critical confidence about someone else, and your confidant went out and told others, would you soon repeat that mistake? Assange did not leak these cables to help solve world problems. These leaks were absolutely gratuitous and served only the purpose of making him a media marvel.

In explaining his deed publicly, Assange suggests that what he's doing is uncovering American misdeeds and lies. His aim, he says, is to inform citizens of democracies and peoples around the world about what their leaders are really doing. Assange also insists he did this for transparency's sake. Yet when he got to look inside, he didn't see what was plain: that our diplomats were doing a good job. Indeed, when you turn off his nonsense and stop listening to the strange commentary on cable news and even on the front pages of great newspapers, when you actually read the cables, here's what you see: American leaders and American diplomats trying to solve crucial world problems.

But when you turn off his nonsense and stop listening to the strange commentary on cable news and even on the front pages of great newspapers, when you actually read the cables, here's what you see: American leaders and American diplomats trying to solve crucial world problems.

-Washington needs China's help in bolstering sanctions against Iran, and China balks for fear of jeopardizing its oil and gas flow from that country. The Obama team arranges for Saudi Arabia to guarantee any loss in supply to China. If the world wants to slow or even prevent Iran's march to nuclear weaponry, this is a key path to doing so.

-The U.S. discovers that North Korea has manufactured new medium-range missiles and is trying to deliver them to Iran through China. The Obama team discovers this, informs Beijing, and asks Beijing to stop the transfer. Beijing declines. Really creepy.

-Yemen's leader takes public responsibility for American missile attacks against Al Qaeda in Yemen. He wants to diminish the power of these terrorists, as do Americans and most others in the world. The "lie" by the Yemeni president is a harmless way to get a critical job done-that is, the job of fighting international terrorism. Wikileaks tears away the political cover of Yemen's leaders.

-No country has anywhere near as much influence over nutty North Korea as China. So, U.S. diplomats are searching desperately to figure out Chinese thinking about North Korea in order to compose a plan for avoiding war on the Korean Peninsula. So, the Wikileakers expose some Chinese leaders who are actually trying to give us some insight into Chinese thinking about North Korean craziness. They won't do that again soon.

Time and again, as one actually reads these cables, one has to be heartened by the professionalism and the insights of U.S. diplomats. What are they doing? They are not lying, and U.S. leaders are not lying. They are actually, believe it or not, trying to solve problems. That seriousness of purpose and the professionalism to execute it is what jumps out at you in these materials.

So, the naïve say, it's good to show the effectiveness of our diplomats. Give me a break. Ask any American diplomat to choose between looking intelligent in leaked cables and making progress toward avoiding war.

None of this is to say that there should not be leaks, or that the press should not pursue classified information that is necessary or very helpful to a sensible public debate on policy. If a U.S. administration is lying, or distorting the facts, or telling one story to the public and another to itself, then by all means, let's have it out in public. If the U.S. government is concocting intelligence in order to justify wars, let's hope an enterprising reporter finds it out for the rest of us.

But the Wikileaks dump is not about providing essential information to Americans or to others-information they need for serious policy discussion. This massive trashing by Wikileaks of a legitimate effort by the U.S. government to preserve confidentiality is the very least a shame and at the most, a crime.

Leslie H. Gelb, a former New York Times columnist and senior government official, is author of Power Rules: How Common Sense Can Rescue American Foreign Policy (HarperCollins 2009), a book that shows how to think about and use power in the 21st century. He is president emeritus of the Council on Foreign Relations.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 2, 2010 1:51 AM
To: H
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Fw: Any news?

Update from phil

----- Original Message -----
From: Gordon, Philip H
To: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Thu Dec 02 01:21:52 2010
Subject: Re: Any news?

After more back and forth with Russians we've concluded that we will not reach agreement on conflict language. Trying to work w/ Kazakhs to drop the Action Plan settle on the commemoration. Will let you know if we succeed...

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma
To: Gordon, Philip H
Sent: Thu Dec 02 00:59:40 2010
Subject: Any news?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 2, 2010 6:20 AM
To: H
Cc: Verma, Richard R
Subject: FW: The Republican case for ratifying New START

Here is the Republican former Secretaries of State op ed, which ran in today's wash post.

The Republican case for ratifying New START

http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2010/12/01/AR2010120104598.html?hpid=topnews

By Henry A. Kissinger, George P. Shultz, James A. Baker III, Lawrence S. Eagleburger and Colin L. Powell
Thursday, December 2, 2010;

Republican presidents have long led the crucial fight to protect the United States against nuclear dangers. That is why Presidents Richard Nixon, Ronald Reagan and George H.W. Bush negotiated the SALT I, START I and START II agreements. It is why President George W. Bush negotiated the Moscow Treaty. All four recognized that reducing the number of nuclear arms in an open, verifiable manner would reduce the risk of nuclear catastrophe and increase the stability of America's relationship with the Soviet Union and, later, the Russian Federation. The world is safer today because of the decades-long effort to reduce its supply of nuclear weapons.

As a result, we urge the Senate to ratify the New START treaty signed by President Obama and Russian President Dmitry Medvedev. It is a modest and appropriate continuation of the START I treaty that expired almost a year ago. It reduces the number of nuclear weapons that each side deploys while enabling the United States to maintain a strong nuclear deterrent and preserving the flexibility to deploy those forces as we see fit. Along with our obligation to protect the homeland, the United States has responsibilities to allies around the world. The commander of our nuclear forces has testified that the 1,550 warheads allowed under this treaty are sufficient for all our missions - and seven former nuclear commanders agree. The defense secretary, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the head of the Missile Defense Agency - all originally appointed by a Republican president - argue that New START is essential for our national defense.

We do not make a recommendation about the exact timing of a Senate ratification vote. That is a matter for the administration and Senate leaders. The most important thing is to have bipartisan support for the treaty, as previous nuclear arms treaties did.

Although each of us had initial questions about New START, administration officials have provided reasonable answers. We believe there are compelling reasons Republicans should support ratification.

First, the agreement emphasizes verification, providing a valuable window into Russia's nuclear arsenal. Since the original START expired last December, Russia has not been required to provide notifications about changes in its strategic nuclear arsenal, and the United States has been unable to conduct on-site inspections. Each day, America's understanding of Russia's arsenal has been degraded, and resources have been diverted from national security tasks to try to fill the gaps. Our military planners increasingly lack the best possible insight into Russia's activity with its strategic nuclear arsenal, making it more difficult to carry out their nuclear deterrent mission.

Second, New START preserves our ability to deploy effective missile defenses. The testimonies of our military commanders and civilian leaders make clear that the treaty does not limit U.S. missile defense plans. Although the treaty prohibits the conversion of existing launchers for intercontinental and submarine-based ballistic missiles, our military leaders say they do not want to do that because it is more expensive and less effective than building new ones for defense purposes.

Finally, the Obama administration has agreed to provide for modernization of the infrastructure essential to maintaining our nuclear arsenal. Funding these efforts has become part of the negotiations in the ratification process. The administration has put forth a 10-year plan to spend $84 billion on the Energy Department's nuclear weapons complex. Much of the credit for getting the administration to add $14 billion to the originally proposed $70 billion for modernization goes to Sen. Jon Kyl, the Arizona Republican who has been vigilant in this effort. Implementing this modernization program in a timely fashion would be important in ensuring that our nuclear arsenal is maintained appropriately over the next decade and beyond.

Although the United States needs a strong and reliable nuclear force, the chief nuclear danger today comes not from Russia but from rogue states such as Iran and North Korea and the potential for nuclear material to fall into the hands of terrorists. Given those pressing dangers, some question why an arms control treaty with Russia matters. It matters because it is in both parties' interest that there be transparency and stability in their strategic nuclear relationship. It also matters because Russia's cooperation will be needed if we are to make progress in rolling back the Iranian and North Korean programs. Russian help will be needed to continue our work to secure "loose nukes" in Russia and elsewhere. And Russian assistance is needed to improve the situation in Afghanistan, a breeding ground for international terrorism.

Obviously, the United States does not sign arms control agreements just to make friends. Any treaty must be considered on its merits. But we have here an agreement that is clearly in our national interest, and we should consider the ramifications of not ratifying it.

Whenever New START is brought up for debate, we encourage all senators to focus on national security. There are plenty of opportunities to battle on domestic political issues linked to the future of the American economy. With our country facing the dual threats of unemployment and a growing federal debt bomb, we anticipate significant conflict between Democrats and Republicans. It is, however, in the national interest to ratify New START.

The writers were secretaries of state for the past five Republican presidents.

---

Unsubscribe

The White House · 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW · Washington DC 20500 · 202-456-1111

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, June 18, 2010 7:30 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: H: Memo on urgent Kyrgyzstan crisis, first hand report and recommendations. Sid
Attachments: horton memo kyrgyzstan 061710.docx; horton memo kyrgyzstan 061710.docx

Pls make 3 copies.

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop <sbwhoeop
To: H
Sent: Thu Jun 17 16:46:31 2010
Subject: H: Memo on urgent Kyrgyzstan crisis, first hand report and recommendations. Sid

B6

CONFIDENTIAL

For: Hillary
From: Sid
Re: Kyrgyzstan crisis, report and recommendations

Scott Horton has just returned from a week in Kyrgyzstan, where he held lengthy private conversations with a range of leaders. He has sent me his confidential report. In light of the crisis there—the pogroms that have created perhaps as many as 450,000 refugees, according to the U.N.—and on the eve of the June 27 constitutional referendum—he explains why and how this is an opportunity for joint U.S.-Russian action and other U.S. initiatives. His policy recommendations follow his report.

To: Sid Blumenthal

From: Scott Horton

Date: June 17, 2010

Subj: Developments in Kyrgyzstan

I was in Kyrgyzstan from June 1 – 6, during which time I met with almost all the members of the interim government, with special focus on foreign relations, security and legal issues. Here are major points that emerged from my visit:

1. Crisis in the South. Although I departed before the pogroms had commenced in Osh, I found that the interim government fully expected violence to break out there but did not anticipate the inter-ethnic element. Several candidly acknowledged that the government's grip on the south, particularly Osh and Djalalabad provinces, was extremely tenuous. They said they had severe "loyalty" problems with key figures in the police and military. When I pressed on what they meant by "loyalty," I was told that the Bakiyev family had "its people" in key positions in the police and army and that they had intercepted communications between Janysh Bakiyev and a number of key security officers in the south. "Something is being planned to disrupt the referendum," I was told. Beknazarov told me he believed that, following the pattern of the last two revolutions, they anticipated that there would be an attack on administrative offices in the south, following quickly within a few days by attacks in Bishkek. Government leaders I spoke with over the weekend told me they now recognize they had misassessed the data they had, that the Bakiyev plan was obviously to instigate inter-ethnic violence.

Precisely what led to the tragedy in and around Osh is still unclear and requires careful investigation, but people I have spoken with in Osh describe police and army leaders directing the pogroms, and they were able to identify some of these individuals as persons close to the Bakiyevs. Moreover, the timing and some of the specific descriptions of events support this thesis—Bakiyev was the only person who clearly had something to gain from the violence. If that is so, then Bakiyev adopted an extremely cynical, indeed criminal strategy. His objectives would have been to derail the referendum, demonstrate the weakness of the interim government, and fuel calls for an iron-fisted central government through the resurrection of his presidency. The tactics used bear comparison with those used by Slobodan Milosević and Radovan Karadžić as Yugoslavia disintegrated or by the Soviet MVD in the waning days of the Soviet empire in programs like "Operation Koltso." If the government's charges bear out, serious crimes were committed by the Bakiyev faction.

While Otunbayeva publicly states that order has been restored in the south and that foreign intervention is no longer needed, I am not persuaded that this is what she actually thinks. She is anxious to build public confidence in her government and its abilities. Confidentially she acknowledges that the interim government's grip over the situation in the south is extremely weak and that the government does not feel it can necessarily count on the local police and military there, whose loyalties are plainly divided. This in turn suggests that the international community should give active consideration to both the humanitarian and the security dimensions of the situation in the south. My sense remains that Otunbayeva would strongly welcome such an initiative.

2. Internal Workings of the Interim Government. The interim government verges on being completely dysfunctional. It operates as a collection of individual fiefdoms, with leaders engaged in constant squabbles over patronage appointments. Career civil service personnel report being terrorized and extorted. I spent the better part of three days inside the current government headquarters on Staraya Ploshchod and was able to directly observe primitive horse-trading, threats and counterthreats between key government functionaries, sometimes in agitated voices. Roza Otunbayeva and a handful of figures closest to her were exceptions in this process—admonishing others about the unseemliness of their conduct, urging moderation and restraint. But Otunbayeva also acknowledges that the limitations on her own authority and states that she "has to put up with it," at least for the moment. Three government members advised me during meetings of their intention to resign before the end of the month in order to start running for parliament. Significantly, I sense sharp rifts within the government—between Atembayev and Beknazarov, for instance, who could not refrain from criticizing one another in my interviews with them, or between Sariyev and Beknazarov.

Only Otunbayeva (and to a lesser extent her close ally Elmira Ibraimova) appear to be the glue that holds things together, commanding the respect of the other government members. I found that the admiration for Otunbayeva was almost universal—she appears to be the only figure in the government emerging from the interim period with an untarnished reputation. Still the special order under which she has assumed power as "president of the interim government" presents some clear problems for her authority. She has a fixed term into 2011, but she will have no democratic mandate. After the new government is formed, based on the parliamentary elections, they will have democratic legitimacy and she will not—this sets up a situation in which her authority may well be eclipsed or at least made more narrow. Still, all the members of the current government recognize that she has essential skills that they do not—particularly her ability to conciliate and her ability to reach out to other leaders on the international stage.

There is an expectation that the parliamentary elections will result in a weeding out of the government. The next government is expected to be formed through a parliamentary coalition. But only two or perhaps three of the current seven factions will survive. Much of the bickering and instability in the current government is keyed to the coming game of parliamentary moving chairs—there is an intense struggle now to secure personal loyalty and funds to use in the parliamentary elections; the entire process has an aura of sink or swim about it. Ironically the immediate prospect of parliamentary elections and the sense that they will be genuinely open and fair thus contributes to the ineptness and near chaotic appearance of the current government.

3. Constitution and Referendum. Under the guidance of Tekebayev, the government put forward a proposed new constitution, which it seeks to have confirmed through a referendum vote on June 27. The constitution itself does shift the country further in the direction of a parliamentary democracy, and it contains unusual protection for parliamentary minority factions. Government leaders told me that Kazakh president Nursultan Nazarbayev had waded in on the question of the constitution directly, pressing them to retain a "strong president" system. They say this was coupled with not-very-subtle threats, and that the frontier between Kyrgyzstan and Kazakhstan remains closed, with harmful consequences for the Kyrgyz economy. A major question exists about holding the referendum as scheduled. The events in the south have resulted in the mass displacement of population and if held as planned, a large part of the population in the south would probably be disenfranchised. However, government leaders say that their current problems all come back to legitimacy, and they will not be able to form a government with democratic legitimacy without a new constitution and new elections. Accordingly, they resist any further delays and are even contemplating moving the date of the parliamentary election forward to the last week of August (it is now set for October 10). The crisis in the south presents a severe dilemma in this regards, and it seems that this would have been Bakiyev's objective in instigating it, if indeed he did.

4. Manas Transit Center. As expected, I discovered that the interim government is deeply fragmented on the question of MTC. One faction headed by Otunbayeva favors a "pragmatic solution" to the base issue under which it will be continued but placed on a more transparent basis in which the economic benefits to the government are clear. Otunbayeva argues that the base can only be accepted under circumstances in which it presents no friction for Kyrgyz-Russian relations; she seeks to have disputes surrounding fuel supply, for instance, resolved directly between the United States and Russia. Another faction, headed by Beknazarov, takes a more demagogic approach, denouncing the base and seeking its closing in internal meetings. Talking with Beknazarov, I had the clear impression that his attitudes were entirely opportunistic—he thinks this will be a good campaign issue to use on the hustings. He suggested rather strongly that he could accept a continued base presence under the right circumstances and that he views threats to close the base as a sort of stick to use to extort more money and other concessions from the Americans. In general, Beknazarov strikes me as hot-headed and crass and an untrustworthy partner in any future discussions. Atembayev also has somewhat demagogic impulses, though they are mild by comparison. Otunbayeva, the third and most senior member of the government engaged on base issues, is the critical voice of reason in the process. My impression based on discussions with numerous figures is that Otunbayeva's views currently hold sway. However, all the government members are agreed that the economic deal struck by Bakiyev is unfavorable to the Kyrgyz state and that the base must rest on transparent economic concessions and there can be no more under-the-table dealings with political figures.

5. Resolving the Crisis in the South. I believe that two key points should be kept in mind when approaching the humanitarian crisis that has emerged in the south. First, the crisis probably has its origins in a raw struggle for power. The interim government's legitimacy deficit contributed to the problem, because it left the government with weak tools to control the situation in the south. A long-term solution to the problem must involve the creation of governments at the national (Bishkek) and regional (Osh, Djalalabad) levels that have an essential modicum of democratic legitimacy. Delaying this process may only hasten the entire country's continued descent into chaos. This highlights the need to conduct free, fair and open elections as quickly as possible. Second, the last thing the interim government needs is a "Sophie's choice" between the United States and Russian Federation. International assistance needs to reflect a joint U.S.-Russian approach and showcase U.S. and Russian leadership (not merely participation). With President Medvedev's visit to the White House now on the horizon, this would be a good opportunity to establish joint sponsorship of an international humanitarian initiative. Here, I believe, are the essential elements of a program that could achieve U.S.-Russian co-sponsorship:

- An Appeal for Restraint: Although the instigation of the conflict appears clearly to rest with ethnic Kyrgyz agitators, including a number in uniform and operating military equipment, at present both Uzbek and Kyrgyz armed groups are involved in random shootings designed to reinforce perceptions of their group being persecuted (rapes etc.) by another. Credible reports are suggesting that there has been political manipulation (including payment of money to drug and other criminal gangs) aimed at fomenting violence. The attack on a sports facility set up by a prominent Uzbek drug baron (murdered several years earlier) in Osh shortly before the violence started also suggests that criminal gangs involved in drug transshipment had another motivation for engaging in the violence. It may be that the violence was an initiative of the deposed president, but once it began, it provided cover for numerous incidents of score-settling and criminal mischief. In these circumstances, a strong appeal for restraint is appropriate and martial law rules including curfews may legitimately be imposed by the interim government. An imprimatur of support from the international community would help establish the authority of the interim government in this process.

- Exit Corridors for Civilians: Civilians who feel threatened must be allowed to leave the high risk zones, and access of humanitarian aid, and creation of a safe zone for humanitarian operation should be priorities at locations created to shelter them. The EU, OSCE and UN issued a statement on June 16 calling for a humanitarian corridor in the southern regions of Osh and Jalalabad provinces, as well as of ensuring the equitable distribution of humanitarian aid among those in need. The cooperation of the Uzbek government may be particularly important in this process.

- Peacekeeping/Policing Operation: The international community should support special arrangements with broad international legitimacy and participation to enhance peacekeeping and police operations in the affected area. As I noted, even though Otunbayeva made a public statement on June 15 to the effect that foreign military/police intervention was no longer needed, the situation remains precarious and in her confidential discussions Otunbayeva acknowledges the benefits in confidence building that would emerge from an qualified, professional and international presence in the region. Peacekeeping/policing operations should at a minimum include security for designated sheltering areas for refugees and internally displaced persons and monitoring operations in tandem with local police and military, to build confidence in their protective functions.

- Investigation of Events: a broad, credible, independent investigation should be undertaken into the events and their origin. The investigation should be under the aegis of an international organization, such as the Security Council or OSCE and it should be conducted by an individual of stature with strong credentials as a fact-finder and prosecutor. The investigation should particularly take cognizance of accusations that crimes against humanity were perpetrated, potentially including crimes of genocide. The involvement of persons exercising ostensible government authority—policemen, military figures, leaders of the civil administration—should be given special scrutiny in this process. The person commissioned to handle the investigation should be specifically empowered to recommend criminal charges be brought against individuals identified in his investigation—either by the criminal authorities of the Kyrgyz Republic or before an international body seized of proper jurisdiction.

- Effective Post-Conflict Reconstruction. UN authorities are estimating that as many as 450,000 persons may have been displaced by the current violence. The devastation in central Osh and in numerous villages is reported to be near total. There will be an intense housing shortage and a crisis with respect to food supply and healthcare. The international community under United States and Russian leadership should provide generous support to jumpstart the reconstruction process, prioritizing its assistance to benefit those most egregiously injured by the violence.

- The Referendum/Parliamentary Elections. In view of the disruption and violence, the interim government may well conclude that the constitutional referendum must be postponed. However, if it does not postpone the referendum, then extraordinary measures should be taken to insure that internally displaced persons and refugees are given an opportunity to vote—in both cases this will be a reemphasis of the bond of citizenship and a promise of inclusion in the democratic process that will be critical to the resolution of the crisis. The international community should also mobilize observers in connection with the parliamentary elections to help assure that candidates have fair access to the ballot and to media, that campaigns are permitted to proceed without unreasonable limitations and that voting occurs in a fair and free manner across the country. Special attention in this process should be given to the affected areas to insure that refugees and IDPs have a fair opportunity to vote and are freed from unreasonable limitations in the process.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 2, 2010 7:09 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Latest con't

Fyi

----- Original Message -----
From: Gordon, Philip H
To: Abedin, Huma; Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Thu Dec 02 06:02:14 2010
Subject: Latest con't

Deal is falling apart (predictably), as each delegation proposes to ad "just one thing." Best that can be said is that it won't be our fault. Will keep trying but looking grim.

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05776492 Date: 08/31/2015

RELEASE IN FULL

CONFIDENTIAL

For: Hillary
From: Sid
Re: Kyrgyzstan crisis, report and recommendations

Scott Horton has just returned from a week in Kyrgyzstan, where he held lengthy private conversations with a range of leaders. He has sent me his confidential report. In light of the crisis there—the pogroms that have created perhaps as many as 450,000 refugees, according to the U.N.—and on the eve of the June 27 constitutional referendum—he explains why and how this is an opportunity for joint U.S.-Russian action and other U.S. initiatives. His policy recommendations follow his report.

To: Sid Blumenthal

From: Scott Horton

Date: June 17, 2010

Subj: Developments in Kyrgyzstan

I was in Kyrgyzstan from June 1 – 6, during which time I met with almost all the members of the interim government, with special focus on foreign relations, security and legal issues. Here are major points that emerged from my visit:

1. Crisis in the South. Although I departed before the pogroms had commenced in Osh, I found that the interim government fully expected violence to break out there but did not anticipate the inter-ethnic element. Several candidly acknowledged that the government's grip on the south, particularly Osh and Djalalabad provinces, was extremely tenuous. They said they had severe "loyalty" problems with key figures in the police and military. When I pressed on what they meant by "loyalty," I was told that the Bakiyev family had "its people" in key positions in the police and army and that they had intercepted communications between Janysh Bakiyev and a number of key security officers in the south. "Something is being planned to disrupt the referendum," I was told. Beknazarov told me he believed that, following the pattern of the last two revolutions,

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05776492 Date: 08/31/2015

they anticipated that there would be an attack on administrative offices in the south, following quickly within a few days by attacks in Bishkek. Government leaders I spoke with over the weekend told me they now recognize they had misassessed the data they had, that the Bakiyev plan was obviously to instigate inter-ethnic violence.

Precisely what led to the tragedy in and around Osh is still unclear and requires careful investigation, but people I have spoken with in Osh describe police and army leaders directing the pogroms, and they were able to identify some of these individuals as persons close to the Bakiyevs. Moreover, the timing and some of the specific descriptions of events support this thesis—Bakiyev was the only person who clearly had something to gain from the violence. If that is so, then Bakiyev adopted an extremely cynical, indeed criminal strategy. His objectives would have been to derail the referendum, demonstrate the weakness of the interim government, and fuel calls for an iron-fisted central government through the resurrection of his presidency. The tactics used bear comparison with those used by Slobodan Milosević and Radovan Karadžić as Yugoslavia disintegrated or by the Soviet MVD in the waning days of the Soviet empire in programs like "Operation Koltso." If the government's charges bear out, serious crimes were committed by the Bakiyev faction.

While Otunbayeva publicly states that order has been restored in the south and that foreign intervention is no longer needed, I am not persuaded that this is what she actually thinks. She is anxious to build public confidence in her government and its abilities. Confidentially she acknowledges that the interim government's grip over the situation in the south is extremely weak and that the government does not feel it can necessarily count on the local police and military there, whose loyalties are plainly divided. This in turn suggests that the international community should give active consideration to both the humanitarian and the security dimensions of the situation in the south. My sense remains that Otunbayeva would strongly welcome such an initiative.

2. Internal Workings of the Interim Government. The interim government verges on being completely dysfunctional. It operates as a collection of individual fiefdoms, with leaders engaged in constant squabbles over patronage appointments. Career civil service personnel report being terrorized and extorted. I spent the better part of three days inside the current government headquarters on Staraya Ploshchod and was able to directly observe primitive horse-trading, threats and counterthreats between key government functionaries, sometimes in agitated voices. Roza Otunbayeva and a handful of figures closest to her were exceptions in this process—admonishing others about the unseemliness of their conduct, urging moderation and restraint. But Otunbayeva also acknowledges that the limitations on her own authority and states that she "has to put up with it," at least for the moment. Three government members advised me during meetings of their intention to resign before the end of the month in order to start running for parliament. Significantly, I sense sharp rifts within the government—between Atembayev and Beknazarov, for instance, who could not refrain from criticizing one another in my interviews with them, or between Sariyev and Beknazarov.

Only Otunbayeva (and to a lesser extent her close ally Elmira Ibraimova) appear to be the glue that holds things together, commanding the respect of the other government members. I found that the admiration for Otunbayeva was almost universal—she appears to be the only figure in the government emerging from the interim period with an untarnished reputation. Still the special order under which she has assumed power as "president of the interim government" presents some clear problems for her authority. She has a fixed term into 2011, but she will have no democratic mandate. After the new government is formed, based on the parliamentary elections, they will have democratic legitimacy and she will not—this sets up a situation in which her authority may well be eclipsed or at least made more narrow. Still, all the members of the current government recognize that she has essential skills that they do not—particularly her ability to conciliate and her ability to reach out to other leaders on the international stage.

There is an expectation that the parliamentary elections will result in a weeding out of the government. The next government is expected to be formed through a parliamentary coalition. But only two or perhaps three of the current seven factions will survive. Much of the bickering and instability in the current government is keyed to the coming game of parliamentary moving chairs—there is an intense struggle now to secure personal loyalty and funds to use in the parliamentary elections; the entire process has an aura of sink or swim about it. Ironically the immediate prospect of parliamentary elections and the sense that they will be genuinely open and fair thus contributes to the ineptness and near chaotic appearance of the current government.

3. Constitution and Referendum. Under the guidance of Tekebayev, the government put forward a proposed new constitution, which it seeks to have confirmed through a referendum vote on June 27. The constitution itself does shift the country further in the direction of a parliamentary democracy, and it contains unusual protection for parliamentary minority factions. Government leaders told me that Kazakh president Nursultan Nazarbayev had waded in on the question of the constitution directly, pressing them to retain a "strong president" system. They say this was coupled with not-very-subtle threats, and that the frontier between Kyrgyzstan and Kazakhstan remains closed, with harmful consequences for the Kyrgyz economy. A major question exists about holding the referendum as scheduled. The events in the south have resulted in the mass displacement of population and if held as planned, a large part of the population in the south would probably be disenfranchised. However, government leaders say that their current problems all come back to legitimacy, and they will not be able to form a government with democratic legitimacy without a new constitution and new elections. Accordingly, they resist any further delays and are even contemplating moving the date of the parliamentary election forward to the last week of August (it is now set for October 10). The crisis in the south presents a severe dilemma in this regards, and it seems that this would have been Bakiyev's objective in instigating it, if indeed he did.

4. Manas Transit Center. As expected, I discovered that the interim government is deeply fragmented on the question of MTC. One faction headed by Otunbayeva favors a "pragmatic solution" to the base issue under which it will be continued but placed on a more transparent basis in which the economic benefits to the government are clear.

Otunbayeva argues that the base can only be accepted under circumstances in which it presents no friction for Kyrgyz-Russian relations; she seeks to have disputes surrounding fuel supply, for instance, resolved directly between the United States and Russia. Another faction, headed by Beknazarov, takes a more demagogic approach, denouncing the base and seeking its closing in internal meetings. Talking with Beknazarov, I had the clear impression that his attitudes were entirely opportunistic—he thinks this will be a good campaign issue to use on the hustings. He suggested rather strongly that he could accept a continued base presence under the right circumstances and that he views threats to close the base as a sort of stick to use to extort more money and other concessions from the Americans. In general, Beknazarov strikes me as hot-headed and crass and an untrustworthy partner in any future discussions. Atembayev also has somewhat demagogic impulses, though they are mild by comparison. Otunbayeva, the third and most senior member of the government engaged on base issues, is the critical voice of reason in the process. My impression based on discussions with numerous figures is that Otunbayeva's views currently hold sway. However, all the government members are agreed that the economic deal struck by Bakiyev is unfavorable to the Kyrgyz state and that the base must rest on transparent economic concessions and there can be no more under-the-table dealings with political figures.

5. Resolving the Crisis in the South. I believe that two key points should be kept in mind when approaching the humanitarian crisis that has emerged in the south. First, the crisis probably has its origins in a raw struggle for power. The interim government's legitimacy deficit contributed to the problem, because it left the government with weak tools to control the situation in the south. A long-term solution to the problem must involve the creation of governments at the national (Bishkek) and regional (Osh, Djalalabad) levels that have an essential modicum of democratic legitimacy. Delaying this process may only hasten the entire country's continued descent into chaos. This highlights the need to conduct free, fair and open elections as quickly as possible. Second, the last thing the interim government needs is a "Sophie's choice" between the United States and Russian Federation. International assistance needs to reflect a joint U.S.-Russian approach and showcase U.S. and Russian leadership (not merely participation). With President Medvedev's visit to the White House now on the horizon, this would be a good opportunity to establish joint sponsorship of an international humanitarian initiative. Here, I believe, are the essential elements of a program that could achieve U.S.-Russian co-sponsorship:

- An Appeal for Restraint: Although the instigation of the conflict appears clearly to rest with ethnic Kyrgyz agitators, including a number in uniform and operating military equipment, at present both Uzbek and Kyrgyz armed groups are involved in random shootings designed to reinforce perceptions of their group being persecuted (rapes etc.) by another. Credible reports are suggesting that there has been political manipulation (including payment of money to drug and other criminal gangs) aimed at fomenting violence. The attack on a sports facility set up by a prominent Uzbek drug baron (murdered several years earlier) in Osh shortly before the violence started also suggests that criminal gangs involved in drug transshipment had another motivation for engaging in the violence. It may be that the violence was an initiative of the deposed president, but once it began, it provided cover for numerous incidents of score-settling and criminal mischief. In these circumstances, a strong appeal for restraint is appropriate and martial law rules including curfews may legitimately be imposed by the interim government. An imprimatur of support from the international community would help establish the authority of the interim government in this process.

- Exit Corridors for Civilians: Civilians who feel threatened must be allowed to leave the high risk zones, and access of humanitarian aid, and creation of a safe zone for humanitarian operation should be priorities at locations created to shelter them. The EU, OSCE and UN issued a statement on June 16 calling for a humanitarian corridor in the southern regions of Osh and Jalalabad provinces, as well as of ensuring the equitable distribution of humanitarian aid among those in need. The cooperation of the Uzbek government may be particularly important in this process.

- Peacekeeping/Policing Operation: The international community should support special arrangements with broad international legitimacy and participation to enhance peacekeeping and police operations in the affected area. As I noted, even though Otunbayeva made a public statement on June 15 to the effect that foreign military/police intervention was no longer needed, the situation remains precarious and in her confidential discussions Otunbayeva acknowledges the benefits in confidence building that would emerge from an qualified, professional and international presence in the region. Peacekeeping/policing operations should at a minimum include security for designated sheltering areas for refugees and internally displaced persons and monitoring operations in tandem with local police and military, to build confidence in their protective functions.

- Investigation of Events: a broad, credible, independent investigation should be undertaken into the events and their origin. The investigation should be under the aegis of an international organization, such as the Security Council or OSCE and it should be conducted by an individual of stature with strong credentials as a fact-finder and prosecutor. The investigation should particularly take cognizance of accusations that crimes against humanity were perpetrated, potentially including crimes of genocide. The involvement of persons exercising ostensible government authority—policemen, military figures, leaders of the civil administration—should be given special scrutiny in this process. The person commissioned to handle the investigation should be specifically empowered to recommend criminal charges be brought against individuals identified in his investigation—either by the criminal authorities of the Kyrgyz Republic or before an international body seized of proper jurisdiction.

- Effective Post-Conflict Reconstruction. UN authorities are estimating that as many as 450,000 persons may have been displaced by the current violence. The devastation in central Osh and in numerous villages is reported to be near total. There will be an intense housing shortage and a crisis with respect to food supply and healthcare. The international community under United States and Russian leadership should provide generous support to jumpstart the reconstruction process, prioritizing its assistance to benefit those most egregiously injured by the violence.

- The Referendum/Parliamentary Elections. In view of the disruption and violence, the interim government may well conclude that the constitutional referendum must be postponed. However, if it does not postpone the referendum, then extraordinary measures should be taken to insure that internally displaced persons and refugees are given an opportunity to vote—in both cases this will be a reemphasis of the bond of citizenship and a promise of inclusion in the democratic process that will be critical to the resolution of the crisis. The international community should also mobilize observers in connection with the parliamentary elections to help assure that candidates have fair access to the ballot and to media, that campaigns are permitted to proceed without unreasonable limitations and that voting occurs in a fair and free manner across the country. Special attention in this process should be given to the affected areas to insure that refugees and IDPs have a fair opportunity to vote and are freed from unreasonable limitations in the process.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 2, 2010 7:20 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: UPDATE: (Reuters) SWEDISH HIGH COURT DECIDES AGAINST HEARING APPEAL FROM WIKILEAKS FOUNDER ASSANGE

---

From: Jackson, Christine P
To: NEWS-WikiLeaks; NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_Shift-I; SES-O_OS
Sent: Thu Dec 02 05:49:24 2010
Subject: UPDATE: (Reuters) SWEDISH HIGH COURT DECIDES AGAINST HEARING APPEAL FROM WIKILEAKS FOUNDER ASSANGE

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) - Sweden's highest court has refused permission to Wikileaks founder Julian Assange to appeal against an arrest order issued over alleged sexual crimes, the court said on December 2. Assange's lawyer had this week appealed against an arrest warrant, which has also led to an Interpol notice. Assange has denied the allegations. The court decision means the domestic and international arrest warrants still stand.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 2, 2010 7:20 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Reuters) Egypt opposition party to abandon seats won in vote

From: Jackson, Christine P
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_Shift-I; SES-O_OS
Sent: Thu Dec 02 05:56:21 2010
Subject: FW: (Reuters) Egypt opposition party to abandon seats won in vote

CAIRO (Reuters) - Egypt's liberal Wafd party, which controls the second biggest opposition bloc in the outgoing parliament, said on December 2 it had withdrawn backing for two seats won in the first round of elections which it said was rigged. Wafd and the biggest opposition group, the Muslim Brotherhood, said they were quitting the election race before run-offs next week after a vote on November 28 they said was marred by ballot box stuffing, thuggery and dirty tricks.

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 2, 2010 7:18 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Latest

----- Original Message -----
From: Gordon, Philip H
To: Abedin, Huma; Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Thu Dec 02 04:21:08 2010
Subject: Latest

[redacted] B5

To quote Huma, I don't get paid enough.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 2, 2010 9:49 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (AP) Palestinians angered over new Israeli construction

From: Moore, Anna W
To: NEWS-NEA; NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_CMS; SES-O_Shift-II
Sent: Thu Dec 02 07:19:39 2010
Subject: (AP) Palestinians angered over new Israeli construction

JERUSALEM (AP) - Israel is moving ahead with a plan for 625 new homes in east Jerusalem, angering Palestinians as peace talks remain stuck over settlement construction. The plan received preliminary approval from a district planning committee, which published an announcement on November 25. Further approval is required and construction will not begin for about two years. Palestinian negotiator Saeb Erekat said December 2 the move showed Israel had chosen "settlements and not peace." The units are slated for Pisgat Zeev. While Israelis consider it a neighborhood of their capital, the Palestinians see it as a settlement.

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 2, 2010 4:13 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Rice/Baker

Fyi

From: Burns, William J
To: Sullivan, Jacob J; Verma, Richard R
Cc: Wells, Alice G
Sent: Thu Dec 02 15:43:43 2010
Subject: Rice/Baker

Spoke to both Condi Rice and Jim Baker this afternoon re START op-ed. Condi said she plans her own op-ed, arguing in favor of treaty ratification, due out in next few days. She asked that I tell the Secretary again that she'll be supportive.

B5

Baker said he agreed that things were breaking the right way on the Hill, and shared the view that ratification before the holidays is an increasing possibility. He was glad to have done the op-ed (even while complaining mildly about how much effort it took to "herd the cats" to get it out), and hopeful of its effect.

Bill

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 2, 2010 4:10 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Done

----- Original Message -----
From: Gordon, Philip H
To: Abedin, Huma; Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Thu Dec 02 12:44:31 2010
Subject: Done

We have just agreed the Astana Commemorative Declaration, which Nazerbayev should soon gavel into existence. Agony getting there but decent outcome -- Kazakhs pleased, Georgians defended, reset preserved, Liths reassured, osce alive. But let's agree no more summits for a while, ok?

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, June 18, 2010 8:37 AM
To: 'sbwhoeop[redacted] B6
Subject: Re: You get Kyrgyzstan memo?

I did and thank you. I'll try to call later.

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop[redacted] <sbwhoeop[redacted]
To: H
Sent: Fri Jun 18 07:24:29 2010
Subject: You get Kyrgyzstan memo?

Sent via Cingular Xpress Mail with Blackberry

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 2, 2010 5:53 PM
To: H
Subject: checking on you - getting on call in 8min (6pm est) for the next hour but then free

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, June 18, 2010 12:57 PM
To: 'vermarr@state.gov'
Subject: AIPAC?

What happened?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 2, 2010 6:18 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (AP) House votes to censure New York Rep. Rangel

From: Simmons, Krista M
To: NEWS-Mahogany; NEWS-H
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_Shift-III
Sent: Thu Dec 02 18:15:18 2010
Subject: (AP) House votes to censure New York Rep. Rangel

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Charles Rangel of New York has been censured by the House for financial and fundraising misconduct.

The vote December 2 was 333-79. It was only the 23rd time that the House invoked its most serious punishment short of expulsion.

The solemn procedure calls for Rangel to appear at the front of the chamber while Speaker Nancy Pelosi reads the censure resolution.

The 80-year-old Democrat has served in the House for 40 years.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 2, 2010 6:20 PM
To: H
Subject: call when you are up - remind me to discuss qddr, afgh, and our fav topic of the week

RELEASE IN PART
B6

B6

From: Huma Abedin
Sent: Thursday, December 2, 2010 7:02 PM
To: H; 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: The speech

Ok. No problem.
We leave at 10:45. They will be here 9:45.
Brief at 10:15 with jeff etc.

----- Original Message -----
From: H
To: Huma Abedin; 'abedinh@state.gov' <abedinh@state.gov>
Sent: Thu Dec 02 19:00:24 2010
Subject: The speech

I will need to see Jake and Megan in the am an hour before we leave.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 2, 2010 7:06 PM
To: H
Subject: FW: Special International Media Report on WikiLeaks, 1700, 12-02-10

From: Rapid-Response [mailto:Rapid-Response@state.gov]
Sent: Thursday, December 02, 2010 5:01 PM
To:
Subject: Special International Media Report on WikiLeaks, 1700, 12-02-10

Special Report
WikiLeaks
17:00; 12/2/10

Media coverage in many countries of WikiLeaks releases is decreasing, with new stories from wire services on Assanage and Interpol and the latest Russia reports. Reporting on specific cables is shifting to more local issues, such as US military use of Ireland's Shannon Airport or US interest in Iran's activities in Peru. Governments and many commentators assert US relationships will not be significantly damages, and there are frequent observations that the releases have not revealed "anything new." Anti-US writers and media continue to use the opportunity to skewer the United States.

Many of the items below are digests of more extensive Embassy reporting. Additional reporting is available from post email submissions.

AF:

Burundi
Swahili Bonesha FM radio broadcast a report that a Spanish official told Embassy Madrid that Russia, Belarus, and Chechnya had become a mafia states, and also mentioned anti-terrorism expert Russell Travers would investigate the leak. The story suggested the leaks have embarrassed US diplomats.

Mali
No local mention in print or broadcast media in Mali.

Niger
No local media coverage.

Zimbabwe
An online website reports Zimbabwean political parties in a fragile coalition government on Tuesday dismissed WikiLeaks revelations that a power sharing deal between them is doomed because of acute differences between rival politicians.

NEA:

Jordan

Most local newspapers carry wire reports on Assange's legal situation. Dailies also cited Assange calling for Secretary Clinton to if it's proved she ordered American diplomats to spy on U.N. officials. Local dailies focus on Iran's President Ahmadinejad saying "the documents lack the legality and the credibility and they will not affect on Iran's relations with other countries in the region." Dailies also focused on one alleged report that Syrian President Al-Asad's "is not convinced Iran is developing nuclear weapons." There is no mention of the Jordan-specific leaks in any print media.

A columnist writing for Al-Ghad contends the leaks will not harm the region or the US, although they could undermine trust. He sates the documents show that the positions of the US and Middle Eastern states on regional issues is clear. Another columnist writing for the same paper catalogues criticisms of international leaders and concludes by wondering "what will happen next."

EUR:

Azerbaijan
The only Azerbaijan-specific newspaper reporting is an article in opposition daily Yeni Musavat containing a denial by the Bank of Baku of an allegation that it is involved in Iran's sanction-busting. Wide coverage of a document comparing President Aliyev to both Sonny and Michael Corleone in the online news websites. TV maintains tone that Wikileaks is criminal conspiracy and that the documents are inaccurate.

Finland
Coverage continues, but much reduced. Focus has shifted to the refusal of Finnish authorities, notably President Halonen and FM Stubb, to comment on revelations about Finland that have emerged from the leaks. Much speculation has focused on suggestions in the leaked documents that China had pressured Finland not to accept Uigur prisoners being released by the U.S. from Guantanamo Bay. Finnish officials continue to assert publicly that the leaks will not affect relations with the United States. It was also reported that Finland has no plans to reassess its own policy on confidentiality. Commentary speculates about what may be revealed in the future, but expects little damage to relations.

Germany
Coverage is still primarily focused on the domestic impact of the leaks, particularly on the hunt for the young politician who allegedly provided the U.S. Embassy with confidential government documents. Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung and Sueddeutsche Zeitung said in a joint editorial that "those in Germany who thought North Korea was a dark empire but not a real threat have been proven wrong by the WikiLeaks revelations." Der Spiegel is continuing to publish new material on roughly the same timeline and topics as the New York Times; today's coverage focused on Russia and was substantively the same as the English-language reporting over the past few days.

Ireland
Media is focusing on specific revelations about the use of Shannon Airport by the U.S. military. According to the Irish Daily Mirror "it appears the (Irish) government was not serious about dealing with real concerns about the use of Shannon by the U.S. military on their way to Iraq and Afghanistan. Bloggers opine the Irish government felt conflicted – it liked the revenue it received from U.S. troops passing through, as well as the diplomatic benefits, but felt it had to placate the Irish public before the 2007 elections and publicly decry the use of Shannon. The Irish Examiner relied on an excerpt from TIME Magazine's interview with Assange. An analyst writing for the Irish Independent headlines "Diplomatic corps' horror is pure gold for historians," concluding that, ith 900 further Irish cables set to be published in the coming months, the trouble may only be starting for the mandarins of Iveagh House (Department of Foreign Affairs)."

Malta
Interest in Wikileaks continues in the online media, with comments on the more general revelations. There were no new pieces about Malta itself.

Montenegro
Over the course of the last two days, the Wikileaks story has moved from the cover pages and headlines of Montenegro's media to the international news sections. All major electronic and print media carried the first official statement of a Montenegrin official on the topic. PM Djukanovic said American diplomats were doing their job and nothing can spoil the US-Montenegran relationship. There was wire coverage of the Interpol warrant and Secretary Clinton at the OSCE.

Portugal
Calling it "an Invaluable Service to Democracy, a columnist for Público condemns "the orders that American diplomats received to collect personal information from high-ranking international officials, and in particular, Ban Ki-Moon's." He concludes that "The future of freedom is linked to the security and integrity of our personal data – and I do not know that the U.S., after having lost 250,000 of its secret documents, is in any condition to guarantee either one of them."

Switzerland:
Swiss press reports feature extensive coverage; however, very little new information. Items reported included preparations for a Clinton meeting with Foreign Minister Micheline Calmy-Rey in 2009; the Swiss - Libya affair; FBI-Swiss Federal Police liaison in 2006; Papers also reported that Julian Assange has contacts in Switzerland and that a Swiss citizen from Basel is allegedly in charge of processing donations for Wikileaks. According to the press, Assange met representatives of the Swiss Pirate Party in Geneva. Finally, Swiss papers took up the story that Wikileaks might be targeting Bank of America, writing that the bank is trying to calm down the stock markets. The NZZ published two opinion pieces. Both critical of the leaks for the harm they do to diplomacy.

WHA:

Brazil
Brazilian media today featured extensive coverage. Folha de Sao Paulo dedicated six pages, including an op-ed by Ambassador Shannon outlining the U.S. viewpoint. Folha's editorial said the information released is relevant but neither surprising nor dangerous, while another outlet praised efforts by certain papers to filter the information and adding that Wikileaks is on the whole valuable to society. A commentator in Folha wrote that President Lula should not so quickly dismiss the U.S. observations about the GoB (which he claimed are likely accurate), and another used the documents' description of President Medvedev and Prime Minister Putin to analyze the possible role of Lula in the Rousseff Administration.

Cuba
Cuban media coverage continues at levels similar to yesterday's. Online Cubadebate and Juventudrebelde.cu publish wide-ranging articles, many of them culled from news wires, covering USG reaction, third country reaction (Canada), and Wikileaks reaction (Julian Assange's "insurance" against prosecution and accusations that Amazon violated the First Amendment). In commentary, Granma's Manuel E. Yepe, a Cuban lawyer, economist, journalist and former Cuban ambassador to Romania, suggests that Wikileaks "yielded to pressure from the USG and the media in managing how and when information was released, and insinuates that right wing elements in the U.S. are behind the disclosure of the documents.

Eastern Caribbean:
Reporting continues to be general, with the exception of one radio report on StarCom's LOVE FM 104.1 that WikiLeaks may soon release cables about the Caribbean, and mentioning that the U.S. Embassy in Port of Spain released a statement that WikiLeaks' actions jeopardize the U.S. national security.

Ecuador

Discussion continues to dominate the front pages of major newspapers as well as the editorial pages--with an increase in the number of opinion articles. Press continues to report and opine on the invitation to Ecuador offered by Deputy Foreign Minister Kintto Lucas to Assange and the subsequent disclaimer and withdrawal of the invitation by President Correa. Most articles criticized Lucas for his error. A tongue-in-cheek editorial in El Universo "The Coming of Julian" expressed regrets that Assange would not be coming to Ecuador as he might have revealed the secrets of the GOE and then would have faced the same or worse treatment that Ecuadorian investigative journalists receive.

El Salvador

A columnist for El Diario de Hoy asked "What is the big deal?" He said the cables about Honduras "tell us ...that the American diplomats were lost and did not understand what was happening" during the coup there. Any Ambassador who is not reporting on the mental state of people like Hugo Chávez, Daniel Ortega, Evo Morales and Cristina Kirchner, is not doing his job ... This is all so routine that it cannot greatly affect American diplomacy ..." Salvadoran media reporting continues to rely almost exclusively on wire stories. Locally produced articles and TV/radio reports have focused on reaction from Foreign Minister Martinez and Ambassador Aponte, both of whom have repeatedly explained the nature of diplomatic correspondence and have underscored the strength of the US-Salvadoran bilateral relationship.

Honduras

The buzz around the WikiLeaks scandal is slowly taking a backseat – for now -- to Honduran issues such as taxes and security issues. Conservative Tribuna had a positive editorial arguing countries maintain relations with each other based on national interest. It suggested "the importance of the U.S. on the global stage will ensure that other countries will continue to work closely with Washington in the pursuit of those interests." An op-ed in liberal daily Tiempo titled "In defense of Ambassador Hugo Llorens," stressed that diplomats must provide honest advice to their government. Tiempo's op-ed claims that "the documents divulged so far havebeen, in their majority, frivolities without importance, however highly sensitive and dangerous issues could pop up in them...[d]iplomacy is a prolonged example of hypocrisy and cynicism."

Mexico

El Universal in its editorial questions the wholesale, unfiltered dumping of classified information; "the fact that a government hides something does not make it damnable. It's normal...for diplomats to prepare reports about the countries and leaders where they are posted." The paper asserts that "it may be interesting to know that U.S. officials had questions about the mental health of the president of Argentina, but the benefit to citizens of such a revelation is marginal in proportion to the potential damage to relations between the two countries." An op-ed writer for El Universal, claims that the "released documents show U.S. diplomats rummaging through personal lives and privately mocking the same leaders whom they publicly treat as friends." Another daily La Jornada's in its editorial concludes that "the main factor of diplomatic tension and greatest security risk to world peace is not Wikileaks but Washington's belligerent, unilateral and imperialist warmongering, aggravated now by its defense of opacity."

Peru

Peru media are focusing on the first alleged cable to come from Peru, on US concern about Iran's interest in Peru's uranium, as well as regional "revelations" in regards neighboring Chile, Venezuela and Argentina. TV, radio and internet reflect similar slants.

Venezuela

Articles on Interpol's "Red Notice" for Julian Assange appeared in most dailies. El Nacional cites assessments by the Embassy's Economic Counselor about the development of nuclear energy in Venezuela. El Mundo reports alleged comments by then Ambassador Duddy describing the Venezuelan bank interventions in November 2009. A columnist in government owned Correo de Orinoco says accuses the U.S. of diplomatic 'excesses,' torture in occupied territories, hiring contractors that fire on crowds, using lies to justify wars in Iraq, Afghanistan, and Yemen. Taking a different tack, an Op-Ed in El Universal remarks sarcastically, "the U.S. does not have friends, only interests. Bold discovery! Only the ignorant, the naïve, or the crazy – or a combination of those three – can say that this constitutes an international declassification." An article in the online edition of La Verdad of Maracaibo speculates the State Department is using Wikileaks to put out information it does not want to release directly.

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, June 19, 2010 10:00 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Quartet

Can you pls call me thru ops?

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Jun 19 09:44:53 2010
Subject: Quartet

Dan will stay through Monday to work [redacted] B5

[redacted]

The next step would be to work [redacted]

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 2, 2010 8:17 PM
To: H
Subject: FW: QDDR

Email from Eric

Background for you

---

From: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Thursday, December 02, 2010 7:52 PM
To: Goosby, Eric
Cc: 'Dana Hyde'
Subject: RE: QDDR

My comments in text below – need to talk to you – if you get this and can talk – call me through ops – I am still in office.

cdm

---

From: Goosby, Eric
Sent: Thursday, December 02, 2010 8:40 AM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Cc: 'Dana Hyde'
Subject: QDDR

Cheryl:

I know you are busy but I wanted to close the loop with you on the ED position (Lois Quam), the chair position for Operations Committee, and the need to ensure that there is specific language in the QDDR that keeps PEPFAR in the State Department (one or two sentences). I believe it is in all our interests to do this. [AGREE] I also wanted to discuss with you the process to determine the benchmarks. [I WISH WE COULD GET THEM IN QDDR SO THERE IS FIRMNESS AND CLARITY – WORRIED IF WE DO IT LATER IT WILL BE A NEGOTIATION AND SQUISHY]; Raj is hesitant to concretize , plus I know he is very busy. We are going to deliver to him today a version that has been agreed on by CDC and OGAC. I will propose a process that would include a public vetting of the benchmarks but do not think the benchmarks need to be specifically defined in the QDDR. [FINE BUT SEE ABOVE – CAN I SEE DRAFT AS IS?] The reference to the Operations Committee and the Secretary as the trigger for movement into USAID is enough.

I have been made aware of a growing discussion on the Hill around GHI as an attempt by the Administration to diminish the PEPFAR program contributions because of its association with President Bush. Last night's prime time FOX news piece (>10 minutes) on PEPFAR was well done. President Bush was clear about why he started PEPFAR and why he feels it is still the right thing to do and to continue (Humanitarian/Security both addressed). He also spoke directly to the bipartisan nature of the program (from inception) and the need to continue bipartisan support. It was a missed opportunity not to have had President Obama on the FOX piece to make the point that "GHI is building on PEPFAR..." and to begin a bipartisan dialogue. (WH declined as I understand it) [WE SHOULD MAKE THIS POINT – S ALWAYS CREDITS BUSH ON THIS B/C HE EARNED IT – WE HAVE TO MAKE SURE IT'S PART OF OUR NARRATIVE – I BELIEVE IT CAN BE DROPPED IN QDDR DRAFT TO THAT EFFECT – CAN YOU WORK WITH DANA TO MAKE SURE THAT LANGUAGE GETS IN BY SUNDAY?]

Global Fund

I am here through Saturday, then off to Bulgaria to lay in the reform efforts at the Global Fund retreat followed by the GF Board meeting in Geneva (I won't stay for the whole meeting, just the first day). John Monahan and I have been aggressive in insisting on Board Chair (BC)and Vice Chair (VC) coordination of the reform effort. This has been reflected in a letter from BC and VC with ED support that the retreat directly address and coordinate the reform effort, establish a level for round 10 and address the Maternal and Child Health GF expansion (GWI supports). I feel we will establish targets and timelines in this meeting with a reporting structure directly to the Board. In addition, there will be politicking on the election of a new Board Chair (Tedros' term ends in April). It is critical the new chair be fully aligned with the reform efforts. [GOT IT – FLAGGING FOR S TOO]

Eric

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, December 3, 2010 12:58 AM
To: H
Subject: Netanyahu

Jake suggesting we do a condolence call to netanyahu and offer assistance. Ok?

Israel rescuers: forest fire leaves about 40 dead JERUSALEM (AP) - Israel's national rescue service said about 40 people died in the wake of a massive forest fire in northern Israel. The blaze, which has torched some 1,600 acres, remains out of control.

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, December 3, 2010 1:04 AM
To: H
Subject: Speech

We'll come see you at 945.

We'll keep working it.

B5

We can make the Iran fix.

On the overall wordiness, etc., Megan has known that it needs smoothing/streamlining/sharpening and intended to spend the day doing that.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, December 3, 2010 6:35 AM
To: H
Subject: FW: Cables

-----Original Message-----
From: Mull, Stephen D
Sent: Friday, December 03, 2010 6:33 AM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: FW: Cables

fyi

-----Original Message-----
From: Sanderson, Janet A
Sent: Friday, December 03, 2010 06:25 AM
To: Mull, Stephen D
Cc: Schlicher, Ronald L
Subject: Cables

Steve, I briefly talked to Jeff when he got up in Bahrain. He is reluctant to turn over cables and is worried about precedent. He'll discuss it with S in prebrief today for the ABZ mtg. If we hear anything more, I'll let you know.

Janet

Janet A. Sanderson
Deputy Assistant Secretary
Bureau of Near East Affairs
Department of State
202-647-7166

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, June 20, 2010 9:56 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Lavrov

Can you run the traps [redacted] B5

[redacted]

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H; Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sun Jun 20 09:27:19 2010
Subject: Lavrov

[redacted] B5

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: sbwhoeop[redacted] B6
Sent: Friday, December 3, 2010 9:55 AM
To: H
Subject: H: Roger Cohen in NYT: "American Diplomacy Revealed — as Good"

http://www.nytimes.com/2010/12/03/opinion/03iht-edcohen.html?hp

December 2, 2010

American Diplomacy Revealed — as Good

By ROGER COHEN

NEW YORK — Let's hear it for the men and women of the U.S. Foreign Service!

They are, to judge from the WikiLeaks dump of a quarter-million of their private or secret cables, thoughtful, well-informed and dedicated servants of the American interest who write clear, declarative English sentences.

I've not heard much in the torrent of Wiki-chatter about these admirable career diplomats whose diplomacy is now condemned to be unquiet. Yet it is they whose lives have been upturned. Every journalist knows that if their correspondence over several years was suddenly made public, they would lose most of their sources. That should give every journalist pause.

So it will be on the front line of U.S. diplomacy. Contacts will self-censor. They will go quiet, particularly in the more conspiratorial parts of the world which also tend to be the most unstable, like the Middle East. Layers of secrecy will be added.

Julian Assange, the thin-skinned founder of WikiLeaks, has hurt U.S. interests across a broad but probably shallow spectrum. That will satisfy him in that he's a self-styled foe of the United States. The guy makes me queasy.

Perhaps the most shocking thing about the Assange treasure trove — beyond the "shock" of venal Gulf Arab Sunni leaders looking for war on the cheap against Shiite Iran so long as it doesn't disrupt their U.S.-armed fiefdoms; or the "shock" of Pakistani double-dealing and nuclear procrastination; or the "shock" of yet more premature Israeli predictions on when Iran will have a nuclear weapon; or the "shock" of continued Saudi funding of Al Qaeda; or the "shock" of the Chinese Politburo hacking into Google; or the "shock" of Muammar el-Qaddafi's taste for voluptuous Slavic women and Silvio Berlusconi's taste for all women — perhaps the biggest shock of all is just how professional, sober and short on embarrassment all these cables are and just how much they conform with the world as we already knew it, right down to the familiar adjectives evoking French President Nicolas Sarkozy: "hyperactive," "mercurial," "authoritarian," "erratic," "monarch-like."

I swear, if they hadn't become diplomats a lot of these State Department people could have become good hacks.

Overall, my longstanding admiration for America's conscientious diplomats has been redoubled, not least for this underreported nugget on the turbulent Iranian election of 2009, contained in a cable of Jan. 12, 2010, from Dubai: "While we don't know nor might not ever know the real June 12 vote count, it is clear that the turnout was at record high levels and that there was systematic vote count fraud (if in fact the votes were even counted) to ensure that Ahmadinejad 'won big' in the first round."

It is good to know that this is the innermost conviction of American diplomacy: the fraud was evident to anyone in Tehran during the election and its violent aftermath.

A couple more observations on Iran: The first is that the Sunni autocrats of the Gulf are as exercised as they are about Tehran in part because they know that any U.S.-Iranian breakthrough might make them more dispensable to the United States. Their vested interest in the prevailing Middle Eastern strategic equation is strong; nothing would redraw the Middle East more than overcoming the U.S.-Iranian psychosis.

The second is that President Barack Obama's approach to Iran has been much more conventional than his initial outreach suggested. Old habits of attempted coercion trumped originality. Very quickly he fell back on Dennis Ross's tired thinking about balancing "appetizing carrots" with "sharp sticks" in tackling Iran's nuclear program.

The cables reveal that as early as March 2009, a senior U.S. diplomat was talking "dual track," telling Europeans that "engagement alone is unlikely to succeed" and calling for added "pressure." Perhaps Iranian skepticism could never have been overcome; certainly this approach guaranteed longstanding Iranian grievances would fester.

Assange himself clearly understands nothing of Iran or the Middle East or diplomacy. In an interview with Time, he expressed approval for Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu "coming out with a very interesting statement that leaders should speak in public like they do in private whenever they can" and bought into Netanyahu's view that this, in Assange's words, would "lead to some kind of increase in the peace process in the Middle East and particularly in relation to Iran."

Huh? Netanyahu was referring to Arab leaders' now-documented private calls for a U.S.-led war against Iran, an option he also favors. And that, for Assange, is a step forward to peace! He's all over the place.

What should we make of this brainy naïf who told my colleague John Burns that America is a threat to democracy? He's a loose canon; let him be. My impression is he's self-armed with a spade and he's digging.

And what of the messenger's message? The cables are intriguing, offering plenty of voyeuristic titillation but no gasp of discovery. They provide texture but break little new ground. Yet their publication has done significant damage to the courageous work of America's diplomats and may endanger lives. That's a tradeoff that I find troubling and unpersuasive.

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, June 20, 2010 10:53 AM
To: 'vermarr@state.gov'
Subject: Re: consular fees

B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri Jun 18 17:24:20 2010
Subject: consular fees

We sent the paper on consular fees to Tanner today, and his staff confirmed that he has received it. Assuming Tanner continues to be supportive, we need him to let Hoyer know he supports our effort.

Additionally, Jack thinks it is important for you to talk to Pelosi. Berman mentioned that as well. I can send a call sheet just in case you have a chance to connect with her.

Thanks again for stopping by the AIPAC meeting. It really helped close out some important issues.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, June 20, 2010 1:13 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Statement

Ok but be sure it's proofread

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Jun 20 13:07:04 2010
Subject: Statement

This is what we propose to put out, with Rs putting out similar:

Today, Secretary Clinton spoke by telephone with Russian Foreign Minister Lavrov. They discussed preparations for the upcoming June 24 summit between President Obama and President Medvedev. Secretary Clinton and Foreign Minister Lavrov reveiwed developments in Kyrgyzstan and stressed their shared concern over the recent violence and continuing interethnic tensions. The ministers agreed that the issue of the upcoming referendum us the sovereign decision of Kyrgyzstan to make and agreed to encourage the authorities of Kyrgyzstan to conduct it according to international standards with the monitoring support of OSCE and others. The ministers also discussed coordination of U.S. and Russian humanitarian assistance and other support to Kyrgyzstan to help its authorities restore security, stability, and reconciliation among all citizens of Kyrgyzstan.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, December 3, 2010 1:48 PM
To: H
Subject: Question Posed

From: Breeden, Phllip X
Sent: Friday, December 03, 2010 12:25 PM
To: Smith, Dana S
Cc: Hammer, Michael A; 'Chang, Benjamin'; Harris, Jennifer D; Ratney, Michael A; Boland, Matthew H; Crowley, Philip J
Subject: excerpt from Julian Assange live online Q and A with the Guardian today

Julian.
I am a former British diplomat. In the course of my former duties I helped to coordinate multilateral action against a brutal regime in the Balkans, impose sanctions on a renegade state threatening ethnic cleansing, and negotiate a debt relief programme for an impoverished nation. None of this would have been possible without the security and secrecy of diplomatic correspondence, and the protection of that correspondence from publication under the laws of the UK and many other liberal and democratic states. An embassy which cannot securely offer advice or pass messages back to London is an embassy which cannot operate. Diplomacy cannot operate without discretion and the protection of sources. This applies to the UK and the UN as much as the US.

In publishing this massive volume of correspondence, Wikileaks is not highlighting specific cases of wrongdoing but undermining the entire process of diplomacy. If you can publish US cables then you can publish UK telegrams and UN emails.

My question to you is: why should we not hold you personally responsible when next an international crisis goes unresolved because diplomats cannot function.

Julian Assange:
If you trim the vast editorial letter to the singular question actually asked, I would be happy to give it my attention.

**********
Philip Breeden
Press Counselor, US Embassy London
Tel: 44-(0) 20-7894-0672
Fax: 44-(0) 20-7491-2485
Cell: [redacted] B6
Email: breedenpx@state.gov
Web: http://london.usembassy.gov/
See the New US Embassy Design: http://go.usa.gov/c1M
**********

This Email is Unclassified

This email is UNCLASSIFIED.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, June 20, 2010 10:02 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Am up and availabe until 1030pm

What # should I call?

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sun Jun 20 22:01:09 2010
Subject: Am up and availabe until 1030pm

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, June 21, 2010 8:02 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Quartet statement

Better than we could have expected so good to go.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Mon Jun 21 07:32:51 2010
Subject: Quartet statement

Below is the final text of the Quartet statement, which Lavrov, Ban, and Ashton have now agreed to release without a call. Sounds like your discussion with Lavrov did the trick:

The Quartet re-affirms that the current situation in Gaza, including the humanitarian and human rights situation of the civilian population, is unsustainable, unacceptable, and not in the interests of any of those concerned. The Quartet reiterates its call for a solution that addresses Israel's legitimate security concerns, including an end to weapons smuggling into Gaza; promotes Palestinian unity based on the Palestine Liberation Organization commitments and the reunification of Gaza and the West Bank under the legitimate Palestinian Authority; and ensures the unimpeded flow of humanitarian aid, commercial goods and persons to and from Gaza, consistent with United Nations Security Council resolution 1860 (2009). The Quartet declares its readiness to work closely with Israel, the Palestinian Government and international donors in order to achieve sustainable economic development on the basis of the full implementation of the Agreement on Access and Movement of 2005 and in the broader perspective of the two-state solution.

Consistent with these objectives, the Quartet and the Quartet Representative have worked with Israel, as well as consulting the Palestinian Authority, Egypt, and other concerned parties, to effect a fundamental change in policy in Gaza. The new policy towards Gaza just announced by the Government of Israel is a welcome development. The Quartet notes that the elaboration of further details and modalities of implementation will be important in ensuring the effectiveness of the new policy. Full and effective implementation will comprise a significant shift in strategy towards meeting the needs of Gaza's population for humanitarian and commercial goods, civilian reconstruction and infrastructure, and legitimate economic activity as well as the security needs of Israel. The Quartet will continue to work with Israel, the Palestinian Authority, and other concerned parties to ensure these arrangements are implemented as quickly as possible. The Quartet affirms that much work remains to achieve fully the solution stated above, and, in consultation with the concerned parties, it will monitor closely the implementation of the policy in all its aspects. It will actively explore additional ways to improve the situation in Gaza, encourage involvement of the PA at the crossings and promote greater commerce between the West Bank and Gaza.

The Quartet stresses the importance of United Nations and other international interventions, as well as the work of local non-governmental organizations, to be expanded in Gaza to meet urgent civilian needs, and calls on all parties to fully enable this work.

The Quartet recognizes that Israel has legitimate security concerns that must continue to be safeguarded, and believes efforts to maintain security while enabling movement and access for Palestinian people and goods are critical. The Quartet commits to work with Israel and the international community to prevent the illicit trafficking of arms and ammunition into Gaza. It urges all those wishing to deliver goods to do so through established channels so that their cargo can be inspected and transferred via land crossings into Gaza. The Quartet emphasizes that there is no need for unnecessary confrontations and calls on all parties to act responsibly in meeting the needs of the people of Gaza.

The Quartet also calls for an end to the deplorable detention of Gilad Shalit in advance of the fourth anniversary of his capture on June 25; it further condemns the violation of Hamas' international obligation to provide him access by the International Committee of the Red Cross and demands that Hamas immediately remedy the situation.

The Quartet also reiterates its support for proximity talks toward the resumption, without pre-conditions, of direct bilateral negotiations that resolve all final status issues as previously agreed by the parties. The Quartet believes these negotiations should lead to a settlement, negotiated between the parties within 24 months, that ends the occupation which began in 1967 and results in the emergence of an independent, democratic, and viable Palestinian state in the West Bank and Gaza, living side by side in peace and security with Israel and its other neighbours.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: sbwhoeop
Sent: Saturday, December 4, 2010 8:51 AM
To: H
Subject: Re: H: Roger Cohen in NYT: "American Diploma cy Revealed — as Good"

Good luck out there. Talk sometime

Sent via DROID on Verizon Wireless

-----Original message-----

From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: "'sbwhoeop
Sent: Sat, Dec 4, 2010 13:44:25 GMT+00:00
Subject: Re: H: Roger Cohen in NYT: "American Diploma cy Revealed — as Good"

Not bad--thx.

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop
To: H
Sent: Fri Dec 03 09:54:38 2010
Subject: H: Roger Cohen in NYT: "American Diplomacy Revealed — as Good"

B6

The New York Times <

---

December 2, 2010

American Diplomacy Revealed — as Good

By ROGER COHEN

NEW YORK — Let's hear it for the men and women of the U.S. Foreign Service!
They are, to judge from the WikiLeaks dump of a quarter-million of their private or secret cables, thoughtful, well-informed and dedicated servants of the American interest who write clear, declarative English sentences.
I've not heard much in the torrent of Wiki-chatter about these admirable career diplomats whose diplomacy is now condemned to be unquiet. Yet it is they whose lives have been upturned. Every journalist knows that if their correspondence over several years was suddenly made public, they would lose most of their sources. That should give every journalist pause.
So it will be on the front line of U.S. diplomacy. Contacts will self-censor. They will go quiet, particularly in the more conspiratorial parts of the world which also tend to be the most unstable, like the Middle East. Layers of secrecy will be added.

Julian Assange, the thin-skinned founder of WikiLeaks, has hurt U.S. interests across a broad but probably shallow spectrum. That will satisfy him in that he's a self-styled foe of the United States. The guy makes me queasy.

Perhaps the most shocking thing about the Assange treasure trove — beyond the "shock" of venal Gulf Arab Sunni leaders looking for war on the cheap against Shiite Iran so long as it doesn't disrupt their U.S.-armed fiefdoms; or the "shock" of Pakistani double-dealing and nuclear procrastination; or the "shock" of yet more premature Israeli predictions on when Iran will have a nuclear weapon; or the "shock" of continued Saudi funding of Al Qaeda; or the "shock" of the Chinese Politburo hacking into Google; or the "shock" of Muammar el-Qaddafi's taste for voluptuous Slavic women and Silvio Berlusconi's taste for all women — perhaps the biggest shock of all is just how professional, sober and short on embarrassment all these cables are and just how much they conform with the world as we already knew it, right down to the familiar adjectives evoking French President Nicolas Sarkozy: "hyperactive," "mercurial," "authoritarian," "erratic," "monarch-like."

I swear, if they hadn't become diplomats a lot of these State Department people could have become good hacks.

Overall, my longstanding admiration for America's conscientious diplomats has been redoubled, not least for this underreported nugget on the turbulent Iranian election of 2009, contained in a cable of Jan. 12, 2010, from Dubai: "While we don't know nor might not ever know the real June 12 vote count, it is clear that the turnout was at record high levels and that there was systematic vote count fraud (if in fact the votes were even counted) to ensure that Ahmadinejad 'won big' in the first round."

It is good to know that this is the innermost conviction of American diplomacy: the fraud was evident to anyone in Tehran during the election and its violent aftermath.

A couple more observations on Iran: The first is that the Sunni autocrats of the Gulf are as exercised as they are about Tehran in part because they know that any U.S.-Iranian breakthrough might make them more dispensable to the United States. Their vested interest in the prevailing Middle Eastern strategic equation is strong; nothing would redraw the Middle East more than overcoming the U.S.-Iranian psychosis.

The second is that President Barack Obama's approach to Iran has been much more conventional than his initial outreach suggested. Old habits of attempted coercion trumped originality. Very quickly he fell back on Dennis Ross's tired thinking about balancing "appetizing carrots" with "sharp sticks" in tackling Iran's nuclear program.

The cables reveal that as early as March 2009, a senior U.S. diplomat was talking "dual track," telling Europeans that "engagement alone is unlikely to succeed" and calling for added "pressure." Perhaps Iranian skepticism could never have been overcome; certainly this approach guaranteed longstanding Iranian grievances would fester.

Assange himself clearly understands nothing of Iran or the Middle East or diplomacy. In an interview with Time, he expressed approval for Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu "coming out with a very interesting statement that leaders should speak in public like they do in private whenever they can" and bought into Netanyahu's view that this, in Assange's words, would "lead to some kind of increase in the peace process in the Middle East and particularly in relation to Iran."

Huh? Netanyahu was referring to Arab leaders' now-documented private calls for a U.S.-led war against Iran, an option he also favors. And that, for Assange, is a step forward to peace! He's all over the place.

What should we make of this brainy naïf who told my colleague John Burns that America is a threat to democracy? He's a loose canon; let him be. My impression is he's self-armed with a spade and he's digging.

And what of the messenger's message? The cables are intriguing, offering plenty of voyeuristic titillation but no gasp of discovery. They provide texture but break little new ground. Yet their publication has done significant damage to the courageous work of America's diplomats and may endanger lives. That's a tradeoff that I find troubling and unpersuasive.

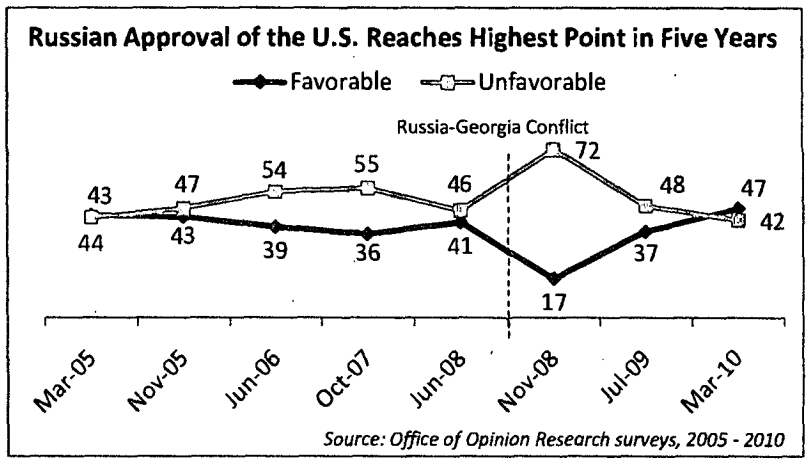
UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05776989 Date: 08/31/2015

RELEASE IN FULL



OFFICE OF OPINION RESEARCH

Public Opinion in Perspective: Russia

FAVORABLE VIEWS OF U.S. ON THE RISE

Public views of the United States have risen steadily since their low point just after the 2008 Georgia war:

- 47% have a favorable opinion of the United States, up from 17% in November 2008.
- 71% describe the relationship between Russia and the United States as "friendly" and 79% say it is important for Russia to maintain good relations with the United States.

These views are bolstered by favorable views of the new START agreement and the desire for greater cooperation between Russia and the United States:

- 66% say it is in Russia's interest to work closely with the United States and Western powers.
- 60% think the previous START agreement benefitted both the United States and Russia equally, and 72% feel that the new START agreement is important.
- A majority would welcome U.S.-Russian cooperation on combating terrorism (87%), stopping the spread of WMDs (86%), stopping climate change (81%), and halting the flow of drugs through Central Asia (76%).

But Russians are wary of the international mission in Afghanistan and sanctions against Iran:

- 78% oppose their country providing troops to military operations in Afghanistan, and 63% oppose the transit of international troops through Russian territory or air space. However, pluralities would support taking a larger role in development assistance (43%) and the transit of aid (45%) to Afghanistan.
- 48% are unaware of Iran's nuclear program. Among those who have heard of the program, 42% see it as a minor threat to global stability, while 21% see it as no threat at all.
- 45% of those who have heard of the program would support economic sanctions to discourage Iran from continuing its nuclear program. Only 8% would support military action.

RUSSIANS SEE COMPETITION FOR WORLD LEADERSHIP

Russians feel their country should be a leader on the world stage and appear open to greater integration with the world economy:

- 87% say it is desirable for Russia to exert leadership in global affairs.
- 63% favor closer economic ties with other countries.

This global outlook is coupled with wariness about the intentions of other countries, and suggests that improved bilateral cooperation has not erased skepticism about the United States:

- 52% say that the West is trying to impoverish Russia.
- Though increasingly "friendly" toward the United States, 58% still see the U.S. more as a competitor than a partner, and 79% say it is not in Russia's interest for the United States to play a leadership role in global affairs.

RUSSIANS DON'T WANT COOPERATION IN THEIR SPHERE OF INFLUENCE

In one arena of international affairs Russian views are especially clear:

- 81% feel that Russia will always have a privileged interest in the CIS countries.
- A majority oppose U.S.-Russian cooperation on resolving the conflicts in South Ossetia (67%), Transnistria (63%), or Nagorno-Karabakh (60%).

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05776989 Date: 08/31/2015

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, June 21, 2010 7:02 PM
To: 'preines [redacted] Huma Abedin B6
Subject: Rolling Stone

Can you get me copy of article about McChrystal that is coming out?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, June 21, 2010 11:16 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Rolling Stone

can you talk now?

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Jun 21 22:34:49 2010
Subject: Rolling Stone

Talked to Ben. Much to report.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, June 22, 2010 7:02 AM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Rolling Stone

Can you call me thru ops.

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Jun 21 23:57:30 2010
Subject: Re: Rolling Stone

Oh darn it - sorry I missed your message - I was engrossed in the PSD script.

If you're still up please call.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Mon Jun 21 23:16:02 2010
Subject: Re: Rolling Stone

can you talk now?

----- Original Message -----
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Jun 21 22:34:49 2010
Subject: Rolling Stone

Talked to Ben. Much to report.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, June 22, 2010 7:40 PM
To: 'hanleymr@state.gov'
Subject: Are you still at office?

I'm on the way back.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, June 23, 2010 7:30 AM
To: 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Call

GW is dodging me so ask that letter be drafted that I could send him asap making case.

----- Original Message -----
From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Wed Jun 23 07:04:00 2010
Subject: Call

Westewelle cannot do call at 7:30.
Holbrooke says he needs to talk to you

RELEASE IN PART
B6

---

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, June 23, 2010 11:27 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw:

B6

Pls add Jill Iscol and Melanne to call list for [redacted] tomorrow.
------Original Message------
From: Hillary Clinton
To: Hillary Clinton
Subject:
Sent: Jun 11, 2010 9:55 PM

[redacted]--Jill and Melanne[redacted]

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, June 23, 2010 11:29 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Assessing our progress to date and proposing possible ways to create more leverage

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>; Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Wed May 26 09:04:23 2010
Subject: Assessing our progress to date and proposing possible ways to create more leverage

For your reading pleasure on the way home, S/P has been working on a project that I discussed with Jake a while back -- aimed at figuring out where we could do better and above all create more leverage to achieve our goals. The papers are blunter than anything you would see from the bureaus -- they should not necessarily be read as policy blueprints but rather as illustrations of alternative strategies. We have made sure that the special assistants have them on the plane. I will also share the individual papers with the relevant assistant secretaries. We will then be happy to take the project further if you approve.

You will be happy to know that rain has stopped at the Expo!
AM

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, June 23, 2010 11:30 AM
To: 'Russorv@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Dear Madam Secretary, Thank you

Pls do letter of congrats, ty etc.

----- Original Message -----
From: David Helfenbein <[redacted]> B6
To: H
Sent: Tue Jun 15 10:29:11 2010
Subject: Dear Madam Secretary, Thank you

Madam Secretary:

If you don't know my personal news yet (and I assume that you might through either Huma or Philippe), then here it is: I [redacted]

Let me say first and foremost: I hope you don't see this as me leaving you or your team. I have asked the question many times to Philippe and Huma about how you would take this news and the answer has always been the same - that you would be happy for me - and I truly do hope that this is the case. The truth is that I applied while working in PA/PL and was eventually wait listed and usually when wait listed you are not given the option to defer. That is neither here nor there, but Philippe and Huma have both been incredible mentors to me throughout this entire decision-making process, and for this, I am most grateful to them both.

The decision was not an easy one. First, Madam Secretary, you know when we first met: Believe it or not, it has been over ten years now, [redacted] You have not only been a role model and a mentor for me throughout the years, but I have watched you behind closed doors; out in public; and quite frankly, I have watched you both win and lose. And whether winning or losing, you are courageous: no matter what, you are determined and inspirational.

I have seen many people join your team, leave your team, some work for a few years, others for many - and everyone says they will still be "part of the family." Some seem to remain in touch; others don't. I see myself as a little different; maybe you don't. Both you and President Clinton have watched me grow since I was young. More than anything, I truly hope to remain a "part of the family."

Sometimes people ask me why I have been dedicated to working for you for so many years. It is not for fame or glory. The truth is, I have worked for you [redacted] because I have always believed in you. You are one of a kind - there is no other one like you, and there never will be. I truly believe that the world needs you in whatever capacity that you are in. And more than anything, I am most appreciative and thankful for all that you have offered me: Not only the mentorship and guidance but the continuous opportunities to learn. On my own path of public service, I can truly say that I was able to learn time and time again from the very best.

Parting from your team is thus not an easy task for me, especially leaving Philippe's direct team, where I really enjoy what I am doing. But I also feel that I want to take another next step forward/a different one in my own life. And I am hopeful that this is not a permanent goodbye in any way. I hope that you and I can remain in touch via email, and I promise not to email too often, as I know how busy you are.

But I must reiterate one comment that I made: I have worked for you for so long for a reason: Not for my resume. Not for myself, But because of you. I am confident enough to say that I know you well enough to tell others that I have worked for the most brilliant mind and strongest leader I will ever see in my lifetime. And I am incredibly proud of that.

With eternal thanks and appreciation, of which cannot be summed up in words, let alone in an email,

My best, always,
David H.

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, June 23, 2010 1:09 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: jackson/vanik

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri Jun 18 06:21:31 2010
Subject: FW: jackson/vanik

FYI – on Jackon/Vanik re: Russia. Will send more information as we get it.

From: Hormats, Robert D
Sent: Friday, June 18, 2010 12:14 AM
To: Verma, Richard R
Subject: Re:

Hi Rich,
This is not quite the case....the russians certainly do want it lifted. [redacted] B5

[redacted]

Levin wants two votes: one to lift it with provisions that the russians would be committed to meet and then another vote to determine if they have been met. [redacted]

[redacted]

I will send her a more detailed memo when I get back.
Thanks,
Bob

---

From: Verma, Richard R
To: Hormats, Robert D
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Thu Jun 17 18:23:28 2010
Subject:

Hi Bob –

The Secretary had a conversation with Senator Levin today about Jackson/Vanik – Levin told her that the Administration has been opposed to his efforts to lift the Jackson Vanik restrictions pertaining to Russia. He said that Administration officials have been telling him that the Russians don't want them lifted. This didn't make a whole lot of sense to me, but she asked me to follow-up with you to find out our current posture on Jackson Vanik and Russia. She'd like to get back to Senator Levin soon. I leave it up to you how you want to get the info to her, but I did want to pass along her request.

Thanks, and hope all else is well.

Rich

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Jiloty, Lauren C <JilotyLC@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, December 4, 2010 8:55 AM
To: H; monica.hanley
Cc: Huma Abedin
Subject: Re: Followup

Ok

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Jiloty, Lauren C; 'monica.hanley <monica.hanley B6
Cc: Huma Abedin <Huma@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sat Dec 04 08:40:36 2010
Subject: Followup

Pls get me two hard copies of Foreign Policy's Top 100 Global Thinkers

Pls see if the library has a copy of Claire Parkinson: Coming Climate Crisis? Consider the past, Beware the Big Fix

Pls see if library has copy of Mary Gardiner Jones, Tearing down Walls

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, December 4, 2010 9:12 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Reuters) Cote d'Ivoire PM says plans to resign over election row

From: Moore, Anna W
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_Shift-II; SES-O_OS
Sent: Sat Dec 04 09:11:11 2010
Subject: (Reuters) Cote d'Ivoire PM says plans to resign over election row

ABIDJAN (Reuters) – Cote d'Ivoire Prime Minister Guillaume Soro said he believes Alassane Ouattara won the country's presidential election, not incumbent Laurent Gbagbo, and will resign after Gbagbo is sworn in. "We recognize that Alassane Ouattara is the winner of this election. I have decided I will hand in the resignation of my government and my resignation as prime minister," he said in a statement obtained by Reuters.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, December 4, 2010 10:52 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Reuters) Netanyahu, Abbas hold rare phone chat over fires

From: Moore, Anna W
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_Shift-II
Sent: Sat Dec 04 10:24:20 2010
Subject: (Reuters) Netanyahu, Abbas hold rare phone chat over fires

JERUSALEM (Reuters) - Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas expressed condolences in a rare telephone call with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu December 4 over the deadly fires raging in northern Israel, Israeli officials said. The two leaders were not believed to have spoken since they last met in September when U.S.-backed peace talks stalled in a spat over Jewish settlement construction. A statement from Netanyahu's office said Abbas "expressed his condolences to the people of Israel on those who died in the fire and said he would be happy to provide any necessary help."

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, June 23, 2010 1:12 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Toni and Martin Sosnoff's information

Pls add to call list.

----- Original Message -----
From: Jill Iscol <
To: H
Sent: Sun Jun 20 20:06:30 2010
Subject: Toni and Martin Sosnoff's information

B6

Office:
Toni's cell:
NYC apt.
Rhinebeck:
The sooner the better! Thanks a zillion.
Love,
Jill

B6

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, June 23, 2010 5:32 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; 'preines [redacted] B6
Cc: 'hanleymr@state.gov'
Subject: Tonight

[redacted]

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, June 23, 2010 7:36 PM
To: 'hanleymr@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Concert

I'm on the way.

----- Original Message -----
From: Hanley, Monica R <HanleyMR@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Valmoro, Lona J <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>
Sent: Wed Jun 23 19:14:35 2010
Subject: Concert

Bagley and Tauscher are all set with their tickets.

Mikulski will get here close to your arrival time so you might walk in with her - pls let me know if that's a problem. Pelosi is coming separately and is seated close to you.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, June 23, 2010 10:41 PM
To: 'hanleymr@state.gov'
Subject:

B6

Did you reach her?

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, June 23, 2010 10:41 PM
To: 'hanleymr@state.gov'
Subject: Re: [redacted] B6

Thx.

----- Original Message -----
From: Hanley, Monica R <HanleyMR@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Huma Abedin
Sent: Wed Jun 23 22:40:32 2010
Subject: [redacted]

She unfortunately can't come this week - she's away until Tuesday. Will see if Tuesday night or Wednesday morning works with your schedule.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Friday, June 25, 2010 1:30 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: With deep gratitude

Is there a backstory?

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Fri Jun 25 11:27:27 2010
Subject: FW: With deep gratitude

fyi

From: Stanton, Katie
Sent: Friday, June 25, 2010 10:31 AM
Subject: With deep gratitude

Dear friends,

I'm so grateful to have had the pleasure of working with you over the past 18 months. Public service is an honor and I feel so lucky to have had the opportunity to serve our country in both the White House and the State Department. I'm deeply impressed by the important work you do and will leave Washington, DC knowing that our country's best days are ahead of us thanks to your commitment, hard work, and passion.

My last day at the State Department will be July 9th. [redacted] I would love to see you before I go – please save the date of July 8th for a cupcakes and champagne party in DC. B6

My personal email is [redacted] Please visit me in [redacted] J

Best,

Katie

Katie Jacobs Stanton

Office of the Secretary of State

e: stantonk@state.gov || t: 202-647-0419 || c: [redacted]

twitter: @StateDept @KatieS

B6

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, June 26, 2010 7:24 AM
To: 'preines
Subject: Re: hPad

B6

That is exciting news--do you think you can teach me to use it on the flight to Kyev next week?

----- Original Message -----
From: PIR <preines
To: H
Cc: Huma Abedin
Sent: Fri Jun 25 20:23:28 2010
Subject: hPad

your iPad has arrived!

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Saturday, June 26, 2010 8:17 AM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Af/Pak trip

I think I should spend the night of the 19th in Kabul before the conference there.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, June 27, 2010 7:21 AM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Tomorrow

Katie Stanton is leaving to go back to California. Will you ask her to come by to say goodbye to me? Thx.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, June 27, 2010 8:56 AM
To: 'Russorv@state.gov'
Subject: Notes format

Pls come see me tomorrow about redesigning and updating the format. Thx.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, June 27, 2010 6:47 PM
To: 'sbwhoeop[redacted] B6
Subject: Re: H: memo on UK politics/budget/economy Sid

Very interesting. Thanks. Speaking of Australia, I was sorry about Kevin Rudd.

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop[redacted] <sbwhoeop[redacted]
To: H
Sent: Sun Jun 27 10:35:18 2010
Subject: H: memo on UK politics/budget/economy Sid

CONFIDENTIAL

June 27, 2010

For: HRC
From: Sid
Re: UK politics/economy

1. UK polls show support for the Lib-Dems after the launch of the draconian Cameron government budget cratering. LD support is down to 16 percent, half what it was at its peak during the election and half of LD members now express a desire to defect from their party. They feel deceived by LD ministers' participation in a Tory budget opposed to their own beliefs. In Parliament, a secret caucus of LDs is meeting with Labour about opposing the budget. Meanwhile, short term support for Cameron is static and for the government slightly up, but only translated to the Tories. Both the Tories and Labour are up, profiting from the LD quandary. The scenario is potentially portentous for the LD Party: There was once an influential Australian Liberal Democratic Party, holding 11 percent of the vote and the balance of power in the Australian Senate. Upon reaching its zenith in 1996 the ALDP supported a Liberal (that is to say, a conservative) government's budget and suffered collapse. Today the ALDP holds 1 percent of the seats in the lower House. The political effect of the conservative budget will almost certainly lead to an implosion of the Tory-LD coalition. In the short run it's possible the Tories will emerge having the greatest plurality of support. But if their budget does not produce prosperity they will pay the price, too. See Stiglitz's analysis below on the Tory budget with cold analysis of the US predicament.
2. The implications for US-UK cooperation are apparent. While there are spheres that remain, they are contingent, including the Afghanistan War, opposed by 75 percent of UK public and about which Cameron felt compelled this week to declare UK engagement would end in five years (that is, before the next UK election). On economic policy, the UK is no partner and no bridge to Europe, where the Merkel government has entered a fugue state of vertigo (another subject). At no other time since World War II have the US and UK governments been at such odds over international economics. With JFK and Macmillan, Macmillan accepted the postwar Keynesian consensus. Reagan and Thatcher, of course, were of one mind ideologically, and the international economy was buoyed by Reagan's hyper-Keynesianism masked as Thatcherism. Unfortunately, Obama did not reach out to Brown, who sought to reestablish the special relationship around international economic recovery. Speaking of laissez faire, Cameron must be let alone to receive the consequences (within 18 months) of his ideologically driven economics. Can he be engaged on international development? Or does his budget rule that out too? There's not much there.

3. The Labour Party leadership contest is heating up. David Miliband has an article out today on how the Cameron budget will foster "a lost generation." More on that soon...

http://www.independent.co.uk/news/uk/politics/osbornes-first-budget-its-wrong-wrong-wrong-2011501.html

Osborne's first Budget? It's wrong, wrong, wrong!

Joseph Stiglitz, the Nobel prizewinner who predicted the global crisis, delivers his verdict on the Chancellor's first Budget and tells Paul Vallely it will take the UK deeper into recession and hit millions – the poorest – badly Sunday, 27 June 2010

George Osborne will probably not be very bothered that there is a man who thinks he got last week's emergency Budget almost entirely wrong. But he should be. Because that man is a former chief economist at the World Bank who won the Nobel Prize for Economics for his work on why markets do not produce the outcomes which, in theory, they ought to.

Professor Joseph Stiglitz, who has been described as the biggest brain in economics, is distinctly unimpressed by George Osborne's strategy. This, he predicts, will make Britain's recovery from recession longer, slower and harder than it needs to be. The rise in VAT could even tip us into a double-dip recession.

Stiglitz, who was once Bill Clinton's senior economic adviser, is now professor of economics and finance at Columbia Business School. He was in the UK this week at the University of Manchester, where he chairs the Brooks World Poverty Institute, but he lifted his head from the detail of international development to scrutinise the economic strategy of the Conservative Chancellor whose Liberal Democrat partners recently reversed their judgement that massive public spending cuts now would endanger the economy and joined in the Tory slash-and-burn strategy. They were deeply wrong to do so, he believes.

It would be a mistake to ignore Stiglitz on this. He has a track record of getting his predictions right. He was one of the few economists who predicted the global financial meltdown long before it occurred.

"What happened was very much in accord with what I expected," he tells me when we meet for a coffee outside the Blackwell bookshop in the centre of the university. "The data was pretty clear about that." And the scale of the crash? "That wasn't a surprise," he adds, in a matter-of-fact manner. "The bigger the bubble, the bigger the burst.

"The thing most economists did not fully grasp was the extent to which the banks engaged in murky risk-taking activities. They were taking a risk with our money, their shareholders' money, the bond-holders' money," he says. Banks were demanding up to 40 per cent of the corporate profits, saying their innovative financing was adding value. But "all this talk about innovation was a sham" because it did not relate to any real increase in the economy's productivity, he says.

"There was a prima facie case of something screwy going on [with all the] perverse incentives that would lead them to take excessive risk. But there was no way anyone could know or believe that the banks were [conducting themselves] at that level of stupidity. I predicted that there was going to be a collapse because of the information asymmetry problems that were being created." His Nobel prize was given for exactly that – showing how markets fail because different people in them hold different levels of information.

Yet there is no hint of I-told-you-so about Stiglitz's tone as he asks the waiter for coffee. He orders decaffeinated, but suggests the British economy needs the opposite: a stiff stimulant rather than the "fiscal consolidation" which is George Osborne's economic euphemism for cuts.

Fiscal stimulus is out of fashion now. World leaders embarked on that strategy – injecting money to re-energise the economy – after the banking crash three years ago. It was widely perceived not to have worked because the money governments pumped into the banks was not passed on to ailing businesses or individuals in trouble with their mortgages.

"The problem was that, in the US, the stimulus wasn't big enough," he says. "Too much of it was in tax cuts. And when they gave money to the banks they gave it to the wrong banks and, as a result, credit has not been restored – we can expect a couple of million or more homes to be repossessed this year than last year – and the economy has not been restarted." Instead of producing a consensus that the government should have done more, it has created disillusion that the government can do anything, Stiglitz says.

The result is that, following the attacks by the financial markets on Greece and then Spain, everybody is now in a mood of retrenchment. "It's not just pre-Keynesian, it's Hooverite," he says. By which he means governments are not just refusing to stimulate, they are making cuts, as Herbert Hoover did in the US in 1929 – when he turned the Wall Street Crash into the Great Depression. "Hoover had this idea that, whenever you go into recession, deficits grow, so he decided to go for cuts – which is what the foolish financial markets that got us into this trouble in the first place now want."

It has become the new received wisdom throughout Europe. But it is the classic error made by those who confuse a household's economics with those of a national economy.

"If you have a household that can't pay its debts, you tell it to cut back on spending to free up the cash to pay the debts. But in a national economy, if you cut back on your spending, then economic activity goes down, nobody invests, the amount of tax you take goes down, the amount you pay out in unemployment benefits goes up – and you don't have enough money to pay your debts.

"The old story is still true: you cut expenditures and the economy goes down. We have lots of experiments which show this, thanks to Herbert Hoover and the IMF," he adds. The IMF imposed that mistaken policy in Korea, Thailand, Indonesia, Argentina and hosts of other developing countries in the 1980s and 1990s. "So we know what will happen: economies will get weaker, investment will get stymied and it's a downward vicious spiral. How far down we don't know – it could be a Japanese malaise. Japan did an experiment just like this in 1997; just as it was recovering, it raised VAT and went into another recession."

Then why have we not learned from all that? Because politicians like George Osborne are driven by ideology; the national deficit is an excuse to shrink the state because that is what he wanted anyway. Because the financial market only cares about one thing – getting repaid. And because other European governments are panicking because of the market's wild attack on Greece and Spain, and they don't want to be next.

"But cutbacks in Germany, Britain and France will mean all of Europe will suffer. The cuts will all feed back negatively. And if everyone follows this policy, their budget deficits will get worse, so they will have to make more cuts and raise taxes more. It's a vicious downward spiral. We're now looking at a long, hard, slow recovery with the possibility of a double dip if everybody cuts back at the same time. The best scenario is long and hard ... and the worst is much worse. If any one of these countries is forced into default, the banking system is so highly leveraged that it could cause real problems. This is really risky, really scary."

So what should we be doing? "The lesson is not that you cut back spending, but that you redirect it. You cut out the war in Afghanistan. You cut a couple of hundred billion dollars of wasteful military expenditure. You cut out oil subsidies. There's a long list of things we can cut. But you increase spending in other areas, such as research and development, infrastructure, education" – areas where government can get a good return on the investment of public money. "I haven't done the calculation for Britain, but, for the US, all you need is a return on government investment of 5 to 6 per cent and the long-term deficit debt is lowered."

Taxes also need to be restructured. Osborne has increased capital gains tax for high earners from 18 to 28 per cent. "There's absolutely no reason why you couldn't tax speculative gains [from rising house or land prices] by 40 per cent. There's no social return on it and land is going to be there whether people have speculated or not. But you lower the tax on investment in things like R&D."

Stiglitz has one more practical solution to offer. Governments should set up their own banks to restart lending to businesses and save struggling homeowners from repossession. "If the banks aren't lending, let's create a new lending facility to do that job," he says. "In the US, we gave $700bn to the banks; if we had used a fraction of that to create a new bank, we could have financed all the lending that was needed."

Indeed, it could be done for far less. "Take $100bn, lever that at 10 to 1 [by attracting funds from the private sector] and that's a trillion-dollar new lending capacity – more than the real economy needs."

Such a move would help ordinary people more than all Osborne's rhetoric about being tough but fair. Stiglitz is sceptical, too, about the moral underpinning of a Budget which claims that "we are all in this together", but then hits the poorest hardest.

Analysis by the Institute for Fiscal Studies has suggested that the Chancellor's Budget will cost the poor 2.5 per cent of their income, while the rich will lose just 1 per cent. "I've not made an independent study on that point, but cuts in public services will have a disproportionate effect on the poor," Stiglitz says. Osborne's Budget "may be well-intentioned, but it takes an enormous amount of work to make sure that a package of public spending cuts of that magnitude doesn't hit the poor disproportionately".

His big fear is that overseas aid, which has been protected in this first round of cuts, will not escape a second. "Developing countries have redirected themselves towards Asia, and China in particular, in recent years, so growth in Africa will be more robust than one might have expected, given the severity of the downturn," he says.

Even so, aid remains vital to poor countries. "If aid is cut back, growth will be badly affected," he says. "China is providing aid, but its aid is all in infrastructure, whereas aid from the US and Europe is mainly in education and health – areas in which ordinary people will suffer most if there are cuts."

Joseph Stiglitz has come full circle. What the world needs now – developing and developed – is not retrenchment but greater economic stimulus. It is not a message many are in the mood to hear. But they didn't listen to him last time, either. And he turned out to be right, and they were wrong – and at what a cost to us all.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, June 27, 2010 6:48 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Subject: Call list

Pls add the following:

Paul Charron about Haiti

Mickey and Heidi Kantor

John Kao

Do letter of thanks to

Gen Kean who was commander in Haiti

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Sunday, June 27, 2010 6:49 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'; Huma Abedin
Cc: H
Subject: Schedule

Pls reach out to Dianne Feinstein for a dinner which will be very hard for me in July but if I have to be back for a few days in early August, might work then. Just so she knows we are trying.

Also, I want to see Jack Keane for a drink.

FM Lieberman wants to see me in July--let's discuss

Also FM Zebari of Iraq will be in US in July. Pls find out when he is coming

Have you heard from Carlos Slim about a date for a mtg?

Don't forget:

the Skoll mtg,

the Arctic Council in Greenland,

Harlan Dalton's visit,

Carol Evans' request for an interview,

the Vital Voices Summit 9/14-17,

the request for a mtg or call w Dellums

the AGOA conf in DC which I was told is 8/3-4

The Putin conf about tigers in Vladivostock 9/11-19

What happened w the Baucus mtg?

Also, I'd like a working lunch w Ron Kirk and a mtg about Latin America w Chris Dodd

Pls schedule Hannah Rosenthal to see me

David Rockefeller Sr has asked to see me. I'd like to do when I'm in NY or if there is a State Dept award we could give him for his citizen diplomacy esp in Latin America--could you run traps on that idea?

During UNGA, I have to do bilat w Cathy Ashton

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, June 28, 2010 7:48 PM
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: Dave Stone

Pls add his burial ceremony at Arlington on July 14 as option for me. Thx.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, June 28, 2010 10:09 PM
To: 'millscd@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Ae you still up?

Yes--call me.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Jun 28 22:03:53 2010
Subject: Ae you still up?

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, June 29, 2010 12:42 AM
To: 'hanleymr@state.gov'
Cc: Huma Abedin
Subject: Re: [redacted] B6

Let's do Tues evening. Do you know when I can see Maryann?

----- Original Message -----
From: Hanley, Monica R <HanleyMR@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Wed Jun 23 22:41:18 2010
Subject: Re: [redacted]

Yes she's in Hawaii until Tuesday morning. She can do Tuesday evening ot Wednesday if that works for you

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Hanley, Monica R
Sent: Wed Jun 23 22:40:38 2010
Subject: [redacted]

Did you reach her?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, June 29, 2010 12:44 AM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: Schedule

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: H
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov' <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>; Huma Abedin
Cc: H
Sent: Sun Jun 27 18:49:01 2010
Subject: Schedule

Pls reach out to Dianne Feinstein for a dinner which will be very hard for me in July but if I have to be back for a few days in early August, might work then. Just so she knows we are trying.

Also, I want to see Jack Keane for a drink.

FM Lieberman wants to see me in July--let's discuss

Also FM Zebari of Iraq will be in US in July. Pls find out when he is coming

Have you heard from Carlos Slim about a date for a mtg?

Don't forget:

the Skoll mtg,

the Arctic Council in Greenland,

Harlan Dalton's visit,

Carol Evans' request for an interview,

the Vital Voices Summit 9/14-17,

the request for a mtg or call w Dellums

the AGOA conf in DC which I was told is 8/3-4

The Putin conf about tigers in Vladivostock 9/11-19

What happened w the Baucus mtg?

Also, I'd like a working lunch w Ron Kirk and a mtg about Latin America w Chris Dodd

Pls schedule Hannah Rosenthal to see me

David Rockefeller Sr has asked to see me. I'd like to do when I'm in NY or if there is a State Dept award we could give him for his citizen diplomacy esp in Latin America--could you run traps on that idea?

During UNGA, I have to do bilat w Cathy Ashton

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, June 29, 2010 7:46 AM
To: Huma Abedin; 'hanleymr@state.gov'
Subject: Re: [redacted] B6

Could we move [redacted] to 8:30?

----- Original Message -----
From: Huma Abedin
To: 'hanleymr@state.gov' <hanleymr@state.gov>; H
Sent: Tue Jun 29 06:00:45 2010
Subject: Re: [redacted]

Monica - [redacted] is already is locked for tonite. I am seeing her right before actually.

----- Original Message -----
From: Hanley, Monica R <HanleyMR@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Huma Abedin
Sent: Tue Jun 29 05:51:47 2010
Subject: Re: [redacted]

Will lock [redacted] in for tonight.
We spoke to Marianne about coming in on the 8th.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Hanley, Monica R
Cc: Huma Abedin <Huma@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tue Jun 29 00:42:02 2010
Subject: Re: [redacted]

Let's do Tues evening. Do you know when I can see Maryann?

----- Original Message -----
From: Hanley, Monica R <HanleyMR@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Wed Jun 23 22:41:18 2010
Subject: Re: [redacted]

Yes she's in Hawaii until Tuesday morning. She can do Tuesday evening ot Wednesday if that works for you

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Hanley, Monica R
Sent: Wed Jun 23 22:40:38 2010
Subject: [redacted]

Did you reach her?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, June 29, 2010 7:18 PM
To: 'sullivanjj@state.gov'
Subject: RCH

Did you and/or PIR talk to him today? Do I need to see him tomorrow?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, June 29, 2010 7:21 PM
To: 'JilotyLC@state.gov'; 'Russorv@state.gov'
Subject: Ginzburg letter

Pls prepare condolence letter to Justice RBG for loss of her husband, Martin.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, June 30, 2010 12:00 PM
To: 'hanleymr@state.gov'
Subject: Fw: confidential

Fyi

----- Original Message -----
From: Cherie Blair <cb
To: H
Cc: dband
Sent: Wed Jun 30 09:00:41 2010
Subject: RE: confidential

B6

Hilary can you give me a telephone number the Qatar Crown Prince can ring you on and he will get in touch. Alternatively I can get his personal phone number for you. What is the best for you?

Cherie Blair

-----Original Message-----
From: H [mailto:HDR22@clintonemail.com]
Sent: 15 June 2010 02:35
To: Cherie Blair
Subject: Re: confidential

I would be happy to meet w him. How should I follow up to arrange a mutually agreeable time? All the best to you.

----- Original Message -----
From: Cherie Blair <cb
To: H
Sent: Mon Jun 07 09:56:45 2010
Subject: confidential

As you know I have good links to the Qataris. Sheikha Mosah's son is the 31/32 year old Crown Prince and she is keen that he starts to build a wider international profile. He has been appointed head of the Qatar National Food Security Programme which is designed to deal with Qatar's food security issues its a $30 billion programme. He is aware that food security is an issue you are majoring on and would love to meet with you in person to discuss this and to explore potential partnership areas between US and Qatar including possible participation in the US/World Bank Food Security Fund. He is also keen to talk more generally about US/Qatari cooperation and even suggested they could help out with the Oil spill problem. There is apparently a Arab Food Security Summit in October 2010 and he would like to discuss Us participation in that too.

IS a meeting possible he is more flexible on place and times than his mother! Or maybe we could set up an initial phone call.

Can you let me know if this appeals to you at all?

Cherie Blair

This message has been scanned by MailController - www.MailController.altohiway.com

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: sbwhoeop [redacted] B6
Sent: Saturday, December 4, 2010 1:58 PM
To: H
Subject: Re: H: Roger Cohen in NYT: "American Diploma cy Revealed — as Good"

I'm at home now. [redacted] or on cell [redacted]

-----Original Message-----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: 'sbwhoeop [redacted] B6
Sent: Sat, Dec 4, 2010 11:42 am
Subject: Re: H: Roger Cohen in NYT: "American Diploma cy Revealed — as Good"

Tried calling your home and cell so let me know when you can talk and what #.

----- Original Message -----

From: sbwhoeop [redacted]

To: H

Sent: Sat Dec 04 08:51:11 2010

Subject: Re: H: Roger Cohen in NYT: "American Diploma cy Revealed — as Good"

Good luck out there. Talk sometime

Sent via DROID on Verizon Wireless

-----Original message-----

From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>

To: "'sbwhoeop [redacted] B6

Sent: Sat, Dec 4, 2010 13:44:25 GMT+00:00

Subject: Re: H: Roger Cohen in NYT: "American Diploma cy Revealed — as Good"

Not bad--thx.

----- Original Message -----

From: sbwhoe p [redacted]

To: H

Sent: Fri Dec 03 09:54:38 2010

Subject: H: Roger Cohen in NYT: "American Diplomacy Revealed — as Good"

http://www.nytimes.com 2010/12/03/opinion/03iht-edcohen.html?hp

The New York Times <http://www.nytimes.com/>

December 2, 2010

American Diplomacy Revealed — as Good

By ROGER COHEN

NEW YORK — Let's hear it for the men and women of the U.S. Foreign Service!

They are, to judge from the WikiLeaks dump of a quarter-million of their private or secret cables, thoughtful, well-informed and dedicated servants of the American interest who write clear, declarative English sentences.

I've not heard much in the torrent of Wiki-chatter about these admirable career diplomats whose diplomacy is now condemned to be unquiet. Yet it is they whose lives have been upturned. Every journalist knows that if their correspondence over several years was suddenly made public, they would lose most of their sources. That should give every journalist pause.

So it will be on the front line of U.S. diplomacy. Contacts will self-censor. They will go quiet, particularly in the more conspiratorial parts of the world which also tend to be the most unstable, like the Middle East.

Layers of secrecy will be added.

Julian Assange, the thin-skinned founder of WikiLeaks, has hurt U.S. interests across a broad but probably shallow spectrum. That will satisfy him in that he's a self-styled foe of the United States. The guy makes me queasy.

Perhaps the most shocking thing about the Assange treasure trove – beyond the "shock" of venal Gulf Arab Sunni leaders looking for war on the cheap against Shiite Iran so long as it doesn't disrupt their U.S.-armed fiefdoms; or the "shock" of Pakistani double-dealing and nuclear procrastination; or the "shock" of yet more premature Israeli predictions on when Iran will have a nuclear weapon; or the "shock" of continued Saudi funding of Al Qaeda; or the "shock" of the Chinese Politburo hacking into Google; or the "shock" of Muammar el-Qaddafi's taste for voluptuous Slavic women and Silvio Berlusconi's taste for all women – perhaps the biggest shock of all is just how professional, sober and short on embarrassment all these cables are and just how much they conform with the world as we already knew it, right down to the familiar adjectives evoking French President Nicolas Sarkozy: "hyperactive," "mercurial," "authoritarian," "erratic," "monarch-like."

I swear, if they hadn't become diplomats a lot of these State Department people could have become good hacks.

Overall, my longstanding admiration for America's conscientious diplomats has been redoubled, not least for this underreported nugget on the turbulent

Iranian election of 2009, contained in a cable of Jan. 12, 2010, from Dubai: "While we don't know nor might not ever know the real June 12 vote count, it is clear that the turnout was at record high levels and that there was systematic vote count fraud (if in fact the votes were even counted) to ensure that Ahmadinejad 'won big' in the first round."

It is good to know that this is the innermost conviction of American diplomacy: the fraud was evident to anyone in Tehran during the election and its violent aftermath.

A couple more observations on Iran: The first is that the Sunni autocrats of the Gulf are as exercised as they are about Tehran in part because they know that any U.S.-Iranian breakthrough might make them more dispensable to the United States. Their vested interest in the prevailing Middle Eastern strategic equation is strong; nothing would redraw the Middle East more than overcoming the U.S.-Iranian psychosis.

The second is that President Barack Obama's approach to Iran has been much more conventional than his initial outreach suggested. Old habits of attempted coercion trumped originality. Very quickly he fell back on Dennis Ross's tired thinking about balancing "appetizing carrots" with "sharp sticks" in tackling Iran's nuclear program.

The cables reveal that as early as March 2009, a senior U.S. diplomat was talking "dual track," telling Europeans that "engagement alone is unlikely to succeed" and calling for added "pressure." Perhaps Iranian skepticism could never have been overcome; certainly this approach guaranteed longstanding Iranian grievances would fester.

Assange himself clearly understands nothing of Iran or the Middle East or diplomacy. In an interview with Time, he expressed approval for Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu "coming out with a very interesting statement that leaders should speak in public like they do in private whenever they can" and bought into Netanyahu's view that this, in Assange's words, would "lead to some kind of increase in the peace process in the Middle East and particularly in relation to Iran."

Huh? Netanyahu was referring to Arab leaders' now-documented private calls for a U.S.-led war against Iran, an option he also favors. And that, for Assange, is a step forward to peace! He's all over the place.

What should we make of this brainy naïf who told my colleague John Burns that America is a threat to democracy? He's a loose canon; let him be. My impression is he's self-armed with a spade and he's digging.

And what of the messenger's message? The cables are intriguing, offering plenty of voyeuristic titillation but no gasp of discovery. They provide texture but break little new ground. Yet their publication has done significant damage to the courageous work of America's diplomats and may endanger lives. That's a tradeoff that I find troubling and unpersuasive.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Feltman, Jeffrey D <FeltmanJD@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, December 4, 2010 1:53 PM
To: H
Subject: Out of Office AutoReply: T/C w [redacted] B6

I am on official travel and should be back in the office on Monday, December 6. I will check this system intermittently.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, December 4, 2010 1:59 PM
To: H
Subject: Re: T/C w Musa Kusa

I've told ops to hold any further dissemination until you have talked with these guys about how to execute the call back.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Burns, William J; Feltman, Jeffrey D; Kennedy, Patrick F
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Sat Dec 04 13:53:21 2010
Subject: T/C w Musa Kusa

You will read in the memcon that Musa Kusa asked me that Bill come to Tripoli to discuss the US-Libya relationship and that Pat come to discuss embassy issues. I also, as per Jeff's suggestion, said I was asking Amb Cretz to come back to DC for consultations. Let's discuss how we follow up Monday.

RELEASE IN PART B6

B6

From: sbwhoeop[redacted]
Sent: Saturday, December 4, 2010 7:08 PM
To: H
Subject: H: Kathleen on Palin on JFK. Sid

Sarah Palin is wrong about John F. Kennedy, religion and politics

By Kathleen Kennedy Townsend
Friday, December 3, 2010; 6:00 PM

Sarah Palin has found a new opponent to debate: John F. Kennedy.

In her new book, "America by Heart," Palin objects to my uncle's famous 1960 speech to the Greater Houston Ministerial Association, in which he challenged the ministers - and the country - to judge him, a Catholic presidential candidate, by his views rather than his faith. "Contrary to common newspaper usage, I am not the Catholic candidate for president," Kennedy said. "I am the Democratic Party's candidate for president who happens also to be a Catholic."

Palin writes that when she was growing up, she was taught that Kennedy's speech had "succeeded in the best possible way: It reconciled public service and religion without compromising either." Now, however, she says she has revisited the speech and changed her mind. She finds it "defensive . . . in tone and content" and is upset that Kennedy, rather than presenting a reconciliation of his private faith and his public role, had instead offered an "unequivocal divorce of the two."

Palin's argument seems to challenge a great American tradition, enshrined in the Constitution, stipulating that there be no religious test for public office. A careful reading of her book leads me to conclude that Palin wishes for precisely such a test. And she seems to think that she, and those who think like her, are qualified to judge who would pass and who would not.

If there is no religious test, then there is no need for a candidate's religious affiliation to be "reconciled." My uncle urged that religion be private, removed from politics, because he feared that making faith an arena for public contention would lead American politics into ill-disguised religious warfare, with candidates tempted to use faith to manipulate voters and demean their opponents.

Kennedy cited Thomas Jefferson to argue that. as part of the American tradition, it was essential to keep any semblance of a religious test out of the political realm. Best to judge candidates on their public records, their positions on war and peace, jobs, poverty, and health care. No one, Kennedy pointed out, asked those who died at the Alamo which church they belonged to.

But Palin insists on evaluating and acting as an authority on candidates' faith. She faults Kennedy for not "telling the country how his faith had enriched him." With that line, she proceeds down a path fraught with danger - precisely the path my uncle warned against when he said that a president's religious views should be "neither imposed by him upon the nation or imposed by the nation upon him as a condition to holding that office."

After all, a candidate's faith will matter most to those who believe that they have the right to serve as arbiters of that faith. Is it worthy? Is it deep? Is it reflected in a certain ideology?

Palin further criticizes Kennedy because, "rather than spelling out how faith groups had provided life-changing services and education to millions of Americans, he repeatedly objected to any government assistance to religious schools." She does not seem to appreciate that Kennedy was courageous in arguing that government funds should not be used in parochial schools, despite the temptation to please his constituents. Many Catholics would have liked the money. But he wisely thought that the use of public dollars in places where nuns explicitly proselytized would be unconstitutional. Tax money should not be used to persuade someone to join a religion.

As a contrast to Kennedy's speech, Palin cites former Massachusetts governor Mitt Romney's remarks during the 2008 Republican primary campaign, in which he spoke publicly of "how my own faith would inform my presidency, if I were elected." After paying lip service to the separation of church and state, Romney condemned unnamed enemies "intent on establishing a new religion in America - the religion of secularism."

"There is one fundamental question about which I am often asked," Romney said. "What do I believe about Jesus Christ?" Romney, of course, is a Mormon. He answered the question, proclaiming that "Jesus Christ is the son of God."

Palin praises Romney for delivering a "thoughtful speech that eloquently and correctly described the role of faith in American public life." But if there should be no religious test in politics, then why should a candidate feel compelled to respond to misplaced questions about his belief in Jesus?

When George Romney, Mitt Romney's father, was a presidential candidate in 1968, he felt no such compulsion. Respect for the Constitution and the founders' belief in the separation of church and state suggests that those kinds of questions should not play a role in political campaigns.

Palin contends that Kennedy sought to "run away from religion." The truth is that my uncle knew quite well that what made America so special was its revolutionary assertion of freedom of religion. No nation on Earth had ever framed in law that faith should be of no interest to government officials. For centuries, European authorities had murdered and tortured those whose religious beliefs differed from their own.

To demand that citizens display their religious beliefs attacks the very foundation of our nation and undermines the precise reason that America is exceptional.

Palin's book makes clear just how dangerous her proposed path can be. Not only does she want people to reveal their beliefs, but she wants to sit in judgment of them if their views don't match her own. For instance, she criticizes Rep. Nancy Pelosi (Calif.), a Democrat and a faithful Catholic, for "talking the (God) talk but not walking the walk."

Who is Palin to say what God's "walk" is? Who anointed her our grand inquisitor?

This is a woman who also praises Abraham Lincoln's Second Inaugural, even though Lincoln explicitly declared, "But let us judge not that we not be judged." The problem for those setting up a free-floating tribunal to evaluate faith is that, contrary to Lincoln, they are installing themselves as judges who can look into others' souls and assess their worthiness. Kennedy did not and would not do that, but not because he was indifferent to faith. In fact, unlike Romney or Palin, in fealty to both his faith and the Constitution, he promised on that day in Houston that he would resign if his religion ever interfered with his duty as president.

My uncle was a man who had his faith tested. His brother and brother-in-law were killed in World War II, and his sister died in a plane crash soon after the war. He suffered from painful injuries inflicted during his Navy service when his PT boat was cut in two by a Japanese destroyer. His God did not make life easy but did require a commitment to justice.

America's first and only Catholic president referred to God three times in his inaugural address and invoked the Bible's command to care for poor and the sick. Later in his presidency, he said, unequivocally, about civil rights: "We are confronted primarily with a moral issue. It is as old as the Scriptures and is as clear as the American Constitution."

Faith runs as a deep current through my family. Faith inspired my uncles' and my father's dedication to justice. My father, Robert F. Kennedy, on returning from apartheid-era South Africa in 1966, wrote a magazine article titled "Suppose God Is Black." And my uncle Teddy fought for health care for all Americans, even if in her book Palin presumes to judge that he took positions "directly at odds with his Catholic faith."

Teddy Kennedy believed that his stands were at one with his faith. He did disagree with the Roman Catholic hierarchy at times. But as we have seen, the hierarchy's positions can change, and in our church, we have an obligation to help bring about those changes. That may not be Palin's theology, but the glory of America is its support for those who would disagree - even on the most difficult and personal matters, such as religion.

John F. Kennedy knew that tearing down the wall separating church and state would tempt us toward self-righteousness and contempt for others. That is one reason he delivered his Houston speech.

Palin, for her part, argues that "morality itself cannot be sustained without the support of religious beliefs." That statement amounts to a wholesale attack on countless Americans, and no study or reasonable argument I have seen or heard would support such a blanket condemnation. For a person who claims to admire Lincoln, Palin curiously ignores his injunction that Americans, even those engaged in a Civil War, show "malice toward none, with charity for all."

Palin fails to understand the genius of our nation. The United States is one of the most vibrant religious countries on Earth precisely because of its religious freedom. When power and faith are entwined, faith loses. Power tends to obfuscate, corrupt and focus on temporal rather than eternal purposes.

Somehow Palin misses this. Perhaps she didn't read the full Houston speech; she certainly doesn't know it by heart. Or she may be appealing to a religious right that really seeks secular power. I don't know.

I am certain, however, that no American political leader should cavalierly - or out of political calculation - dismiss the hard-won ideal of religious freedom that is among our country's greatest gifts to the world. As John F. Kennedy said in Houston, that is the "kind of America I believe in."

Kathleen Kennedy Townsend is a former lieutenant governor of Maryland and the author of "Failing America's Faithful: How Today's Churches Are Mixing God With Politics and Losing Their Way." She will be online on Monday, Dec. 6 at 11 a.m. EST to chat. Submit your questions before or during the discussion.

© 2010 The Washington Post Company

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, December 5, 2010 11:10 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (AP) Mediators try to intervene in Ivory Coast chaos

From: Larkins, Neal B
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_Shift-II
Sent: Sun Dec 05 10:55:54 2010
Subject: (AP) Mediators try to intervene in Ivory Coast chaos

ABIDJAN (AP) - International mediators tried to intervene in Ivory Coast's growing political crisis after both candidates in the disputed election said they were now president, raising fears the country could again be divided along the lines established during its 2002-2003 civil war. In the northern opposition stronghold of Bouake, several hundred people marched down a main boulevard, calling for incumbent Laurent Gbagbo to stand down. Villagers wielding machetes also created their own checkpoint in protest along one major road in the region.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, December 5, 2010 1:40 PM
To: H
Subject: Holbrooke

One thing I forgot - Holbrooke called me this morning. He urged again that you see Lambah (Tom is seeing him; Bill Burns has provided guidance on points you could make if you do). He also inquired aggressively about Karl's future. And he wants to come see you about Frank's last trip.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Jiloty, Lauren C <JilotyLC@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, December 5, 2010 7:15 PM
To: H
Subject: Re: H: Les Gelb makes the points. Sid

K

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Jiloty, Lauren C; 'Laurenjiloty [redacted] B6
Sent: Sun Dec 05 19:12:10 2010
Subject: Fw: H: Les Gelb makes the points. Sid

Pls point.

----- Original Message -----
From: sbwhoeop [redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Wed Dec 01 09:20:19 2010
Subject: H: Les Gelb makes the points. Sid

H:
Les Gelb, who oversaw the writing of the Pentagon Papers, makes the points that Wikileaks show US today trying to solve difficult international problems, telling the truth and diplomats acting professionally.

<http://www.tdbimg.com//image/print_blogs_header.gif?v=7.79.12>
WikiLeaks Accidentally Helps U.S.
by Leslie H. Gelb
November 30, 2010 | 10:42pm
Julian Assange clearly intended the State Dept. cable leaks to smear the U.S. as evil and selfish. Leslie H. Gelb on how he inadvertently proved the opposite.
The Wikileakers dumped a vast pile of secrets <http://www.thedailybeast.com/blogs-and-stories/2010-11-28/wikileaks-documents-chinas-google-hack-un-spying-more-secrets/> to prove that the United States was selfish, stupid and wicked–but their revelations proved just the opposite. When you remove the gossip and obvious trivia that mesmerized the press, you clearly see what the Wikileakers never expected: A United States seriously and professionally trying to solve the most dangerous problems in a frighteningly complicated world, yet lacking the power to dictate solutions. U.S. policymakers and diplomats are shown, quite accurately, doing what they are supposed to do: ferreting out critical information from foreign leaders, searching for paths to common action, and struggling with the right amount of pressure to apply on allies and adversaries. And in most cases, the villain is not Washington, but foreign leaders escaping common action with cowardice and hypocrisy.
Don't think for a New York minute that Julian Assange, the Wikileaker, unloaded this trove to save humankind. Why did he toss in those cables about Italy's leader being a rake and Germany's chancellor being a cautious fuddy-duddy, and President Hamid Karzai of Afghanistan being "paranoid"? To save the world? Not a chance. He did it to get attention, and he got attention from a drooling press, which then went on to call the very material they were highlighting trivial. Did Assange leak critical conversations with Chinese or Arab leaders to help solve the problems in Korea and Iran? Not by the hair on your chinny chin chin. He did it to show that he could do it–and for the attention. Anyone who is not a hopeless left-wing ideologue knows that such leaks will crush future serious conversations with those leaders for some time to come. Just think: if you told someone a serious and critical confidence about someone else, and your confidant went out and told others, would you soon repeat that mistake? Assange did not leak these cables to help solve world problems. These leaks were absolutely gratuitous and served only the purpose of making him a media marvel.

When you actually read the cables, here's what you see: American leaders and American diplomats trying to solve crucial world In explaining his deed publicly, Assange suggests that what he's doing is uncovering American misdeeds and lies. His aim, he says, is to inform citizens of democracies and peoples around the world about what their leaders are really doing. Assange also insists he did this for transparency's sake. Yet when he got to look inside, he didn't see what was plain: that our diplomats were doing a good job. Indeed, when you turn off his nonsense and stop listening to the strange commentary on cable news and even on the front pages of great newspapers, when you actually read the cables, here's what you see: American leaders and American diplomats trying to solve crucial world problems.

But when you turn off his nonsense and stop listening to the strange commentary on cable news and even on the front pages of great newspapers, when you actually read the cables, here's what you see: American leaders and American diplomats trying to solve crucial world problems.

–Washington needs China's help in bolstering sanctions against Iran, and China balks for fear of jeopardizing its oil and gas flow from that country. The Obama team arranges for Saudi Arabia to guarantee any loss in supply to China. If the world wants to slow or even prevent Iran's march to nuclear weaponry, this is a key path to doing so.

–The U.S. discovers that North Korea has manufactured new medium-range missiles and is trying to deliver them to Iran through China. The Obama team discovers this, informs Beijing, and asks Beijing to stop the transfer. Beijing declines. Really creepy.

–Yemen's leader takes public responsibility for American missile attacks against Al Qaeda in Yemen. He wants to diminish the power of these terrorists, as do Americans and most others in the world. The "lie" by the Yemeni president is a harmless way to get a critical job done–that is, the job of fighting international terrorism. Wikileaks tears away the political cover of Yemen's leaders.

–No country has anywhere near as much influence over nutty North Korea as China. So, U.S. diplomats are searching desperately to figure out Chinese thinking about North Korea in order to compose a plan for avoiding war on the Korean Peninsula. So, the Wikileakers expose some Chinese leaders who are actually trying to give us some insight into Chinese thinking about North Korean craziness. They won't do that again soon.

Time and again, as one actually reads these cables, one has to be heartened by the professionalism and the insights of U.S. diplomats. What are they doing? They are not lying, and U.S. leaders are not lying. They are actually, believe it or not, trying to solve problems. That seriousness of purpose and the professionalism to execute it is what jumps out at you in these materials.

So, the naïve say, it's good to show the effectiveness of our diplomats. Give me a break. Ask any American diplomat to choose between looking intelligent in leaked cables and making progress toward avoiding war.

None of this is to say that there should not be leaks, or that the press should not pursue classified information that is necessary or very helpful to a sensible public debate on policy. If a U.S. administration is lying, or distorting the facts, or telling one story to the public and another to itself, then by all means, let's have it out in public. If the U.S. government is concocting intelligence in order to justify wars, let's hope an enterprising reporter finds it out for the rest of us.

But the Wikileaks dump is not about providing essential information to Americans or to others–information they need for serious policy discussion. This massive trashing by Wikileaks of a legitimate effort by the U.S. government to preserve confidentiality is the very least a shame and at the most, a crime.

Leslie H. Gelb, a former New York Times columnist and senior government official, is author of Power Rules: How Common Sense Can Rescue American Foreign Policy <http://www.amazon.com/exec/obidos/ASIN/0061714542/thedaibea-20> (HarperCollins 2009), a book that shows how to think about and use power in the 21st century. He is president emeritus of the Council on Foreign Relations.

Like The Daily Beast on Facebook <http://www.facebook.com/thedailybeast> and follow us on Twitter <http://www.thedailybeast.com/blogs-and-stories/2010-11-30/wikileaks-helps-america-how-julian-assange-proved-us-working-hard-on-policy-problems/p/follow> for updates all day long.

For inquiries, please contact The Daily Beast at editorial@thedailybeast.com <http://www.thedailybeast.com/blogs-and-stories/2010-11-30/wikileaks-helps-america-how-julian-assange-proved-us-working-hard-on-policy-problems/p/editorial@thedailybeast.commailto:editorial@thedailybeast.com> .

<http://www.tdbimg.com//image/print_footer.gif?v=7.79.12>

URL: http://www.thedailybeast.com/blogs-and-stories/2010-11-30/wikileaks-helps-america-how-julian-assange-proved-us-working-hard-on-policy-problems/p/
<http://b.scorecardresearch.com/b?c1=2&c2=6433482&c3=&c4=&c5=&c6=&c15=&cv=1.3&cj=1>

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, December 5, 2010 9:52 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Amb. Khalilzad on This Week with Christiane Amanpour

Fyi

---

From: Zhu, Ningchuan
To: Ruggiero, Frank J; Feldman, Daniel F; Singh, Vikram J; Pauli, Rosemarie; Bommer, Ashley F; Sullivan, Jacob J; S_SpecialAssistants; SSRAP StaffAssistants
Cc: LaVine, Christopher M
Sent: Sun Dec 05 12:24:41 2010
Subject: Amb. Khalilzad on This Week with Christiane Amanpour

From today's roundtable on Afghanistan with Amb. Khalilzad, George Will, and Zbigniew Brzezinski:

ZB: … We haven't had a better alternative than Karzai, and yet some of our officials have made a sport of maligning him. This business of corruption doesn't take into account cultural differences. And last but not least, who are we here in Washington to be moaning and groaning about corruption?

CA: Let me ask you then, should Ambassador Eikenberry leave? I mean, has he done a good job, do you think, for the diplomacy, George?

GW: Well he has a hopeless job to do, so it's hard to say whether he's done it well. If he should leave because of what was said in the -

CA: What he has written in the cables?

GW: Well, who's going to be left in the government, starting with the Secretary of State?

ZK: I think he has been damaged very badly by the leaks that have taken place here in Washington, before WikiLeaks and afterwards. And a trusting relationship, if that is the objective, and I believe it ought to be, would require I think changes to the personnel that are responsible on a day-to-day basis in dealing with President Karzai.

… [exchange about corruption and about Iran]

CA: Do you think, I asked George, Ambassador Eikenberry is doing a good job and should he stay in his position?
ZK: Well I think he's doing a good job, but I think he's no longer an effective interlocutor due to the leaks.

CA: Which means?

ZK: Which means that if we want to deal with the issue of partnership with the government of Afghanistan, if we want to deal with the issue of domestic politics effectively, catalyzing cooperation, we would need to have a new team to be able to do that.

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 12/07/2025

RELEASE IN PART B1,1.4(D)

From: Verveer, Melanne S <VerveerMS@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, December 6, 2010 3:02 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: [redacted] 1.4(D) B1

Just when we thought thing had calmed down....

----- Original Message ----- 1.4(D)
From [redacted] B1
To: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Mon Dec 06 02:20:02 2010
Subject: [redacted]

Dear Melanne

[redacted] 1.4(D) B1

**********

The allegation against Nobel laureate Muhammad Yunus of 'diverting foreign aid from Grameen Bank to another company' should be investigated, the prime minister has said.
"Bangladesh has set many examples. Deceiving people by siphoning off their money is another such example. This is nothing but sucking out money from the people after giving them loans," she said replying to questions from journalists on Sunday.
"There has been no improvement in the lifestyle of the poor so far. They were just used as pawns to get more aids," Hasina added.
She was speaking at a press conference at her office on Sunday following her three-nation tour of Russia, Belgium and Japan.
"The people of Bangladesh have been made guinea pigs. I have never supported that. And now I protest," Hasina told journalists.
Naimul Islam Khan, editor of Amader Shomoy, said, "Initially, the government had 60 percent share of the Grameen Bank which now has shrunk to 25 percent. It seems Mr Yunus wanted to empty the government exchequer, if he could. The government, however, didn't let that happen."
He also asked whether the government would investigate the allegation raised against Yunus and his Grameen Bank.
Responding to the query, the prime minister said, "Grameen Bank had been grabbed in such a manner as if it's a personal property. This should also be investigated. The poor people are becoming paupers. They have been tricked by sweet talks. Finally, things are getting out."
Hasina compared Khaleda Zia's 'affection' for her cantonment house with Yunus' 'affection' for his Grameen Bank and said, "Grameen Bank is a public property. But it's being privatised out of 'love'. Yunus Sahib has fallen in love with Grameen Bank.

"One can't but get caught if play with the money of the poor," she added.
Norway's national TV NRK aired a documentary on November 30 titled "Fanget i Mikrogjeld" or "Caught in Micro debt", based on which bdnews24.com ran a report on December 1.

According to the documentary, Yunus transferred the money to Grameen Kalyan, which was in no way involved with microcredit operations.

Responding to the allegations, Grameen Bank claimed there was no wrongdoing in the agreement between the bank and Grameen Kalyan under which it received Tk 3,917 million from the bank.
"Decisions were taken by the Grameen Bank Board, with due deliberation, good faith, and with good intentions to benefit the poor," the Grameen Bank rejoinder said.

Sent wirelessly via BlackBerry

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 12/07/2025

RELEASE IN PART B1,1.4(D)

From: Verveer, Melanne S <VerveerMS@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, December 6, 2010 6:01 AM
To: H
Subject: More [redacted]

1.4(D)
B1

----- Original Message -----
From: [redacted]
To: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Mon Dec 06 05:31:39 2010
Subject: Re [redacted]

1.4(D)
B1

Thank you for getting back to me.

[redacted]

1.4(D)
B1

Sent wirelessly via BlackBerry

-----Original Message-----
From: "Verveer, Melanne S" <VerveerMS@state.gov>
Date: Mon, 6 Dec 2010 04:41:49
To:
Subject:

1.4(D)
B1

----- Original Message -----
From:

1.4(D)
B1

To: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Mon Dec 06 02:20:02 2010
Subject:

1.4(D)
B1

Dear Melanne

**********

The allegation against Nobel laureate Muhammad Yunus of 'diverting foreign aid from Grameen Bank to another company' should be investigated, the prime minister has said.
"Bangladesh has set many examples. Deceiving people by siphoning off their money is another such example. This is nothing but sucking out money from the people after giving them loans," she said replying to questions from journalists on Sunday.
"There has been no improvement in the lifestyle of the poor so far. They were just used as pawns to get more aids," Hasina added.
She was speaking at a press conference at her office on Sunday following her three-nation tour of Russia, Belgium and Japan.
"The people of Bangladesh have been made guinea pigs. I have never supported that. And now I protest," Hasina told journalists.
Naimul Islam Khan, editor of Amader Shomoy, said, "Initially, the government had 60 percent share of the Grameen Bank which now has shrunk to 25 percent. It seems Mr Yunus wanted to empty the government exchequer, if he could. The government, however, didn't let that happen."
He also asked whether the government would investigate the allegation raised against Yunus and his Grameen Bank.
Responding to the query, the prime minister said, "Grameen Bank had been grabbed in such a manner as if it's a personal property. This should also be investigated. The poor people are becoming paupers. They have been tricked by sweet talks. Finally, things are getting out."
Hasina compared Khaleda Zia's 'affection' for her cantonment house with Yunus' 'affection' for his Grameen Bank and said, "Grameen Bank is a public property. But it's being privatised out of 'love'. Yunus Sahib has fallen in love with Grameen Bank.
"One can't but get caught if play with the money of the poor," she added.
Norway's national TV NRK aired a documentary on November 30 titled "Fanget i Mikrogjeld" or "Caught in Micro debt", based on which bdnews24.com ran a report on December 1.

According to the documentary, Yunus transferred the money to Grameen Kalyan, which was in no way involved with microcredit operations.

Responding to the allegations, Grameen Bank claimed there was no wrongdoing in the agreement between the bank and Grameen Kalyan under which it received Tk 3,917 million from the bank.
"Decisions were taken by the Grameen Bank Board, with due deliberation, good faith, and with good intentions to benefit the poor," the Grameen Bank rejoinder said.

Sent wirelessly via BlackBerry

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Jiloty, Lauren C <JilotyLC@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, December 6, 2010 7:37 AM
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma
Subject: Mini Schedule 12/6/10 Monday

8:15 am DEPART Private Residence
En route State Department

8:25 am ARRIVE State Department

8:25 am PRESIDENTIAL DAILY BRIEFING
8:30 am Secretary's Office

8:45 am DAILY SENIOR STAFF MEETING
9:15 am Secretary's Conference Room

9:15 am MONDAY MEETING w/ASSISTANT SECRETARIES
10:00 am HST 7516, Principals Conference Room

10:00 am OFFICE TIME
11:15 am Secretary's Office

11:15 am MEETING w/SOUTH KOREAN FOREIGN MINISTER KIM SUNG-HWAN
11:45 am Secretary's Conference Room *Camera spray at top in Treaty Room.

11:45 am OFFICE TIME
12:15 pm Secretary's Office

12:15 pm MEETING w/JAPANESE FOREIGN MINISTER SEIJI MAEHARA
12:45 pm Deputy Secretary's Conference Room *Camera spray at top in Treaty Room.

1:00 pm MEETING w/JAPANESE FOREIGN MINISTER SEIJI MAEHARA AND
3:00 pm SOUTH KOREAN FOREIGN MINISTER KIM SUNG-HWAN
Franklin Room, 8th Floor *Open press at top.

3:00 pm PRESS PREP/PULL-ASIDE TIME
3:15 pm Madison Room, 8th Floor

3:30 pm PRESS AVAILABILITY w/JAPANESE FOREIGN MINISTER SEIJI
4:00 pm MAEHARA AND SOUTH KOREAN FOREIGN MINISTER KIM SUNG-HWAN
Franklin Room, 8th Floor

4:00 pm OFFICE TIME
4:30 pm Secretary's Office

4:30 pm MEETING w/SENATOR RUSS FEINGOLD
5:00 pm Secretary's Outer Office

Tbd pm DEPART State Department
En route Private Residence

Tbd pm ARRIVE Private Residence

###

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 12/07/2025

RELEASE IN PART B1,1.4(D)

From: Verveer, Melanne S <VerveerMS@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, December 6, 2010 8:18 AM
To: H
Subject: Re: More [redacted] 1.4(D) B1

I just left DC last night and got to Brussels this morning.They have me on a treadmill but I will get to Bob. I already emailed our ambassador to Bangladesh who was pulled into this several months ago.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Mon Dec 06 07:09:55 2010
Subject: Re: More [redacted]

Are you back yet? Let's discuss w Bob Blake asap.

----- Original Message -----
From: Verveer, Melanne S <VerveerMS@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Dec 06 06:01:07 2010
Subject: More [redacted]

----- Original Message -----
From [redacted] 1.4(D) B1
To: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Mon Dec 06 05:31:39 2010
Subject: Re: [redacted]

1.4(D) B1

Thank you for getting back to me.

1.4(D)
B1

Sent wirelessly via BlackBerry

-----Original Message-----
From: "Verveer, Melanne S" <VerveerMS@state.gov>
Date: Mon, 6 Dec 2010 04:41:49
To:
Subject: Re:

1.4(D)
B1

?

----- Original Message -----
From:
To: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Mon Dec 06 02:20:02 2010

1.4(D)
B1

Subject:

1.4(D)
B1

Dear Melanne

**********

The allegation against Nobel laureate Muhammad Yunus of 'diverting foreign aid from Grameen Bank to another company' should be investigated, the prime minister has said.
"Bangladesh has set many examples. Deceiving people by siphoning off their money is another such example. This is nothing but sucking out money from the people after giving them loans," she said replying to questions from journalists on Sunday.
"There has been no improvement in the lifestyle of the poor so far. They were just used as pawns to get more aids," Hasina added.
She was speaking at a press conference at her office on Sunday following her three-nation tour of Russia, Belgium and Japan.
"The people of Bangladesh have been made guinea pigs. I have never supported that. And now I protest," Hasina told journalists.
Naimul Islam Khan, editor of Amader Shomoy, said, "Initially, the government had 60 percent share of the Grameen Bank which now has shrunk to 25 percent. It seems Mr Yunus wanted to empty the government exchequer, if he could. The government, however, didn't let that happen."
He also asked whether the government would investigate the allegation raised against Yunus and his Grameen Bank.
Responding to the query, the prime minister said, "Grameen Bank had been grabbed in such a manner as if it's a personal property. This should also be investigated. The poor people are becoming paupers. They have been tricked by sweet talks. Finally, things are getting out."
Hasina compared Khaleda Zia's 'affection' for her cantonment house with Yunus' 'affection' for his Grameen Bank and said, "Grameen Bank is a public property. But it's being privatised out of 'love'. Yunus Sahib has fallen in love with Grameen Bank.
"One can't but get caught if play with the money of the poor," she added.
Norway's national TV NRK aired a documentary on November 30 titled "Fanget i Mikrogjeld" or "Caught in Micro debt", based on which bdnews24.com ran a report on December 1.

According to the documentary, Yunus transferred the money to Grameen Kalyan, which was in no way involved with microcredit operations.

Responding to the allegations, Grameen Bank claimed there was no wrongdoing in the agreement between the bank and Grameen Kalyan under which it received Tk 3,917 million from the bank.
"Decisions were taken by the Grameen Bank Board, with due deliberation, good faith, and with good intentions to benefit the poor," the Grameen Bank rejoinder said.

Sent wirelessly via BlackBerry

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 12/07/2025

RELEASE IN PART B1,1.4(D)

From: Fuchs, Michael H <FuchsMH@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, December 6, 2010 8:27 AM
To: H
Subject: Re:

Will do

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Fuchs, Michael H
Sent: Mon Dec 06 04:39:48 2010
Subject: Fw:

1.4(D)
B1

Mike--pls look into this for me. I'd like to know what really is going on. Thx.

----- Original Message -----
From: Verveer, Melanne S <VerveerMS@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Mon Dec 06 03:02:28 2010
Subject: Fw

Just when we thought thing had calmed down....

----- Original Message -----
From:
To: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Mon Dec 06 02:20:02 2010
Subject:

1.4(D)
B1

Dear Melanne

**********

The allegation against Nobel laureate Muhammad Yunus of 'diverting foreign aid from Grameen Bank to another company' should be investigated, the prime minister has said.

"Bangladesh has set many examples. Deceiving people by siphoning off their money is another such example. This is nothing but sucking out money from the people after giving them loans," she said replying to questions from journalists on Sunday.
"There has been no improvement in the lifestyle of the poor so far. They were just used as pawns to get more aids," Hasina added.
She was speaking at a press conference at her office on Sunday following her three-nation tour of Russia, Belgium and Japan.
"The people of Bangladesh have been made guinea pigs. I have never supported that. And now I protest," Hasina told journalists.
Naimul Islam Khan, editor of Amader Shomoy, said, "Initially, the government had 60 percent share of the Grameen Bank which now has shrunk to 25 percent. It seems Mr Yunus wanted to empty the government exchequer, if he could. The government, however, didn't let that happen."
He also asked whether the government would investigate the allegation raised against Yunus and his Grameen Bank.
Responding to the query, the prime minister said, "Grameen Bank had been grabbed in such a manner as if it's a personal property. This should also be investigated. The poor people are becoming paupers. They have been tricked by sweet talks. Finally, things are getting out."
Hasina compared Khaleda Zia's 'affection' for her cantonment house with Yunus' 'affection' for his Grameen Bank and said, "Grameen Bank is a public property. But it's being privatised out of 'love'. Yunus Sahib has fallen in love with Grameen Bank.
"One can't but get caught if play with the money of the poor," she added.
Norway's national TV NRK aired a documentary on November 30 titled "Fanget i Mikrogjeld" or "Caught in Micro debt", based on which bdnews24.com ran a report on December 1.

According to the documentary, Yunus transferred the money to Grameen Kalyan, which was in no way involved with microcredit operations.

Responding to the allegations, Grameen Bank claimed there was no wrongdoing in the agreement between the bank and Grameen Kalyan under which it received Tk 3,917 million from the bank.
"Decisions were taken by the Grameen Bank Board, with due deliberation, good faith, and with good intentions to benefit the poor," the Grameen Bank rejoinder said.

Sent wirelessly via BlackBerry

RELEASE IN PART
B6

B6

From: sbwhoeop
Sent: Monday, December 6, 2010 9:03 AM
To: H

U.S. Orders Diplomats to Stop Telling Truth

http://www.truthdig.com/report/item/us_orders_diplomats_to_stop_telling_truth_20101205/

Posted on Dec 5, 2010

Fake news by Andy Borowitz

WASHINGTON—In the first major policy fallout from the WikiLeaks disclosures, the State Department has ordered all U.S. diplomats to "cease and desist telling the truth until further notice."

"We are working overtime to try to make sure that leaks like these don't happen again," Secretary of State Hillary Clinton told reporters. "But until we've got the leaks plugged, it's incumbent on all our diplomats to put on their lying caps."

Clinton noted that since many U.S. diplomats are major political donors with long careers in the business world, "this shouldn't be a reach for them." But for those career diplomats who came up through the Foreign Service, the State Department will be holding a series of "truth avoidance seminars," led by executives of Goldman Sachs.

Additionally, Clinton said, the State Department would install on all diplomats' computers new software called CandorShield™, which automatically translates truthful language into a less embarrassing truth-free version. For example, she explained, the software would translate the phrase "two-faced weasels" into "trusted Pakistani allies" and would delete all references to French President Nicolas Sarkozy as "Monsieur Shorty Pants."

Elsewhere, Interpol issued this statement about its pursuit of WikiLeaks founder Julian Assange: "We will find Julian Assange, and then we will hire him."

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Tauscher, Ellen O <TauscherEO@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, December 6, 2010 5:51 PM
To: H
Subject: Re: Onward, my friend.

Dear Hillary,

I hear from Dianne and my staff that New Start is in play in the final CR/tax extension deal so I'm hopeful although I find the process disturbing.

B6

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Tauscher, Ellen O
Sent: Sun Dec 05 18:59:57 2010
Subject: Onward, my friend.

Dear Ellen,

We're making progress on New START

B6

Hillary

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, December 6, 2010 8:17 PM
To: H
Cc: Jake Sullivan
Subject: Lavrov

Turns out the French got through to him today on Cote d'Ivoire – would you be up for calling him tomorrow?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, December 6, 2010 8:37 PM
To: H
Subject: FW: Tomorrow's meeting with human rights ngos

For your viz.

From: Posner, Michael H
Sent: Monday, December 06, 2010 3:33 PM
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Tomorrow's meeting with human rights ngos

I tried to get them to switch the agenda to include Egypt instead of China – they are determined to raise China but we agreed that it will come last – so right now there will be a quick mention of Egypt at the top by Elisa Massimino from Human Rights First (who will open the meeting and serve as traffic cop). Then Karen Ryan from the Carter Center will raise DRC, followed by Ken Roth of Human Rights Watch who will raise Af/Pak issues, then David Kramer (former A/S in DRL now at Freedom House) raising China issues. The goal is to allow 15 minutes at the end for S (along with Dan Friend and Harold ) to raise Gitmo issues and ask for their support. We now have 45 minutes for the meeting

Michael H. Posner
Assistant Secretary
Bureau of Democracy, Human Rights and Labor
U.S. Department of State
Room 7802
(202) 647-2126 office
(202) 647-5283 fax
PosnerMH@state.gov
http://www.state.gov/g/drl

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Verveer, Melanne S <VerveerMS@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, December 7, 2010 3:39 AM
To: H
Subject: Today

I won't be there for some of your meetings today;however, wanted you to know that Norwegians agreed to match our contribution to facilitate high crime cases and forensics work in DRC. They have been consistently excellent partners and are very happy about your announcement to do a national plan on 1325, where they have also led. At NATO yesterday, I learned about their recently adopted action plan on 1325, which the Dep SG said will have application in Afgh.

For the OECD meeting today, know that their leadership has been very supportive of our efforts to get OECD to collect better data on women and economy as this is important to accelerating economic growth by addressing existing barriers to women's economic participation.

I had very good mtgs at EU on potential development partnerships and sharing of successful models for gender mainstreaming. Many greetings extended to you from all your friends.

Heading to Ukraine in the snow!

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 12/07/2025

RELEASE IN PART
B1,B5,1.4(D),B6

From: Verveer, Melanne S <VerveerMS@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, December 7, 2010 3:41 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Norwegians to Issue Statement on [redacted]

Also appropriate for today. Scroll down from top email to first in chain.

1.4(D)
B1

----- Original Message -----
From: Moriarty, James F
To: Verveer, Melanne S
Cc: Blake, Robert O; Heg, James T.; Dean, Nicholas J
Sent: Tue Dec 07 03:31:23 2010
Subject: Norwegians to Issue Statement

B6

Melanne,
I got through to my Norwegian counterpart here [redacted] and she told me that the Norwegian Foreign Ministry is working on the text of a statement that Oslo hopes to issue today. She was very worried that Norway had somehow end up catalyzing unjustified attacks on [redacted] and thought it important that Oslo set the record straight. She believed the statement would be short and concise. She encouraged us to raise the issue also in Oslo. The phone connection was a little shaky, but I think she mentioned that her Minister would be in Washington over the next couple of days.

1.4(D)
B1

Aloha,
Jim

SBU
This email is UNCLASSIFIED

-----Original Message-----
From: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Tuesday, December 07, 2010 10:24 AM
To: Moriarty, James F
Subject: Re [redacted] troubles

1.4(D)
B1

I hope you can get through to your counterpart We have excellent relations with N Maybe EUR can help.

----- Original Message -----
From: Moriarty, James F
To: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Mon Dec 06 22:49:19 2010
Subject: RE: [redacted] troubles

1.4(D)
B1

I hope the Norwegians prove helpful. So far, however, the lower levels wouldn't tell us anything of importance, and I'm having a little difficulty getting through to my counterpart.
Aloha
-----Original Message-----
From: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Tuesday, December 07, 2010 9:46 AM
To: Moriarty, James F
Subject: Re: [redacted] troubles

1.4(D)
B1

Very interesting, Jim. First of all, my apologies for not linking up by phone. I'm at the Eu and there was no way in the midst of events here to take a call.
It was far too late to call when I was freed up.

[redacted] B5

The pain he is feeling is palpable.

----- Original Message -----
From: Moriarty, James F
To: Verveer, Melanne S
Cc: Blake, Robert O
Sent: Mon Dec 06 22:39:28 2010
Subject: [redacted] troubles

1.4(D)
B1

Melanne,

[redacted] 1.4(D) B1

Aloha,
Jim

SBU
This email is UNCLASSIFIED

SBU
This email is UNCLASSIFIED

-----Original Message-----
From: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Monday, December 06, 2010 5:04 PM
To: Moriarty, James F
Subject:

[redacted] B5

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, December 7, 2010 7:05 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (Reuters) WikiLeaks founder Assange arrested in Britain

---

From: Virgil, Lynn C
To: NEWS-Mahogany; NEWS-EUR; NEWS-WikiLeaks
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_Shift-I
Sent: Tue Dec 07 05:26:33 2010
Subject: (Reuters) WikiLeaks founder Assange arrested in Britain

LONDON (Reuters) - WikiLeaks founder Julian Assange has been arrested by British police on a European warrant issued by Sweden, London's Metropolitan Police said on Tuesday.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, December 7, 2010 7:20 AM
To: H; Burns, William J
Subject: FW: Rice: New Start: Ratify, With Caveats

OPINION DECEMBER 7, 2010
New Start: Ratify, With Caveats
The treaty helpfully reinstates on-site verification of Russian nuclear forces, but senators should make it clear to Moscow that they don't see it as limiting U.S. missile defenses.

By CONDOLEEZZA RICE

When U.S. President Bush and Russian President Putin signed the Moscow Treaty in 2002, they addressed the nuclear threat by reducing offensive weapons, as their predecessors had. But the Moscow Treaty was different. It came in the wake of America's 2001 withdrawal from the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty of 1972, and for the first time the United States and Russia reduced their offensive nuclear weapons with no agreement in place that constrained missile defenses.

Breaking the link between offensive force reductions and limits on defense marked a key moment in the establishment of a new nuclear agenda no longer focused on the Cold War face-off between the Warsaw Pact and NATO. The real threat was that the world's most dangerous weapons could end up in the hands of the world's most dangerous regimes—or of terrorists who would launch attacks more devastating than 9/11. And since those very rogue states also pursued ballistic missiles, defenses would (alongside offensive weapons) be integral to the security of the United States and our allies.

It is in this context that we should consider the potential contribution of the New Start treaty to U.S. national security. The treaty is modest, reducing offensive nuclear weapons to 1,550 on each side—more than enough for deterrence. While the treaty puts limits on launchers, U.S. military commanders have testified that we will be able to maintain a triad of bombers, submarine-based delivery vehicles and land-based delivery vehicles. Moreover, the treaty helpfully reinstates on-site verification of Russian nuclear forces, which lapsed with the expiration of the original Start treaty last year.
Meaningful verification was a significant achievement of Presidents Reagan and George H.W. Bush, and its reinstatement is crucial.

Still, there are legitimate concerns about New Start that must and can be addressed in the ratification process and, if the treaty is ratified, in future monitoring of the Obama administration's commitments.

First, smaller forces make the modernization of our nuclear infrastructure even more urgent. Sen. Jon Kyl of Arizona has led a valiant effort in this regard. Thanks to his efforts, roughly $84 billion is being allocated to the Department of Energy's nuclear weapons complex. Ratifying the treaty will help cement these commitments, and Congress should fully fund the president's program.
Congress should also support the Defense Department in modernizing our launchers as suggested in the recent defense strategy study coauthored by former Secretary of Defense Bill Perry and former National Security Adviser Stephen Hadley.

Second, the Senate must make absolutely clear that in ratifying this treaty, the U.S. is not re-establishing the Cold War link between offensive forces and missile defenses. New Start's preamble is worrying in this regard, as it recognizes the "interrelationship" of the two. Administration officials have testified that there is no link, and that the treaty will not limit U.S. missile defenses. But Congress should ensure that future Defense Department budgets reflect this.

Moscow contends that only current U.S. missile-defense plans are acceptable under the treaty. But the U.S. must remain fully free to explore and then deploy the best defenses—not just those imagined today. That includes pursuing both potential qualitative breakthroughs and quantitative increases.

I have personally witnessed Moscow's tendency to interpret every utterance as a binding commitment. The Russians need to understand that the U.S. will use the full-range of American technology and talent to improve our ability to intercept and destroy the ballistic missiles of hostile countries.

Russia should be reassured by the fact that its nuclear arsenal is far too sophisticated and large to be degraded by our missile defenses. In addition, the welcome agreements on missile-defense cooperation reached in Lisbon recently between NATO and Russia can improve transparency and allow Moscow and Washington to work together in this field. After all, a North Korean or Iranian missile is not a threat only to the United States, but to international stability broadly.

Ratification of the treaty also should not be sold as a way to buy Moscow's cooperation on other issues. The men in the Kremlin know that loose nukes in the hands of terrorists—some who operate in Russia's unstable south—are dangerous. That alone should give our governments a reason to work together beyond New Start and address the threat from tactical nuclear weapons, which are smaller and more dispersed, and therefore harder to monitor and control. Russia knows too that a nuclear Iran in the volatile Middle East or the further development of North Korea's arsenal is not in its interest. Russia lives in those neighborhoods. That helps explain Moscow's toughening stance toward Tehran and its longstanding concern about Pyongyang.

The issue before the Senate is the place of New Start in America's future security. Nuclear weapons will be with us for a long time.
After this treaty, our focus must be on stopping dangerous proliferators—not on further reductions in the U.S. and Russian strategic arsenals, which are really no threat to each other or to international stability.

A modern but smaller nuclear arsenal and increasingly sophisticated defenses are the right bases for U.S. nuclear security (and that of our allies) going forward. With the right commitments and understandings, ratification of the New Start treaty can contribute to this goal. If the Senate enters those commitments and understandings into the record of ratification, New Start deserves bipartisan support, whether in the lame-duck session or next year.

Ms. Rice, a professor of political economy at the Stanford Graduate School of Business and a senior fellow at Stanford's Hoover Institution, was U.S. national security adviser from 2001 to 2005 and U.S. secretary of state from 2005 to 2009.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, December 7, 2010 12:04 PM
To: H
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D; Sullivan, Jacob J; Abedin, Huma
Subject: your legacy

I just want to say that as I brief the QDDR (20 times and counting), one of the points that makes the strongest impression, and that I frankly think is an enormous part of your intellectual and practical legacy, is putting together all the bureaus that focus on protecting individuals – protecting them from insurgent or criminal violence (CCO and INL), protecting their rights through law (DRL, GTIP, S/WCI), or meeting their basic needs in humanitarian emergencies (PRM). It is a major statement about the direction that the world is going and we must follow. This was really your idea, and it is a powerful one. I know your decision today and applaud it. AM

Anne-Marie Slaughter
Director of Policy Planning
U.S. Department of State
(202) 647-2972

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(B), 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 12/07/2025

RELEASE IN PART 1.4(B),B1,B5,1.4(D),B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, December 7, 2010 1:28 PM
To: Laszczych, Joanne
Cc: H
Subject: Fw: Draft Embassy Statement

Print this traffic for HRC

---

From: Mills, Cheryl D
To: Adams, Thomas C; Merten, Kenneth H; Lindwall, David E
Cc: Mcdonald, Kara C; Laszczych, Joanne; Reynoso, Julissa; Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Tue Dec 07 13:24:21 2010
Subject: Re: Draft Embassy Statement

Can we do a call at 4pm

---

From: Adams, Thomas C
To: Merten, Kenneth H; Mills, Cheryl D; Lindwall, David E
Cc: Mcdonald, Kara C
Sent: Tue Dec 07 13:20:13 2010
Subject: FW: Draft Embassy Statement

B5

1.4(B)
Dan should be back from the oval office credentialing ceremony around 2 or so and it would be good to do a confer 1.4(D)
call then on all of this. B1

–that the observation in the tabulation center did not show that to be possible.

On tabulation process,

[redacted] B1 1.4(B) 1.4(D)

We are reaching out to Luis Vassy at the French Embassy here, who is their man on Haiti matters, to get his help connecting with senior officials in Paris. They have not answered any of our direct messages.

That's it for now.

Tom

SBU
This email is UNCLASSIFIED.

From: Adams, Thomas C
Sent: Tuesday, December 07, 2010 12:39 PM
To: Dan Restrepo
Cc: [redacted] B6
Subject: Draft Embassy Statement

[redacted] B5

SBU
This email is UNCLASSIFIED.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

B6

From: PIR <preines[redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, December 7, 2010 1:57 PM
To: H
Cc: Huma Abedin; CEA
Subject: The Advocate

A reporter named Kerry Elleveld of The Advocate is doing a possible cover story on your LBGT efforts at State. Caroline has put her through the ringer of Cheryl, GLIFFA leaders and members, gay ambassadors, Pat Kennedy, etc etc. Would love to put you on the phone with her in the next day or two. Should be super positive.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

---

From: PIR <preines [redacted] B6
Sent: Tuesday, December 7, 2010 2:24 PM
To: H
Cc: Huma Abedin
Subject: Re: The Advocate

Of course

------Original Message------
From: Evergreen
To: PIR
Subject: Re: The Advocate
Sent: Dec 7, 2010 2:22 PM

Ok as long as I have tps.

----- Original Message -----
From: PIR <preines [redacted] B6
To: H
Cc: Huma Abedin; CEA <caroline.adler [redacted]
Sent: Tue Dec 07 13:57:16 2010
Subject: The Advocate

A reporter named Kerry Elleveld of The Advocate is doing a possible cover story on your LBGT efforts at State. Caroline has put her through the ringer of Cheryl, GLIFFA leaders and members, gay ambassadors, Pat Kennedy, etc etc. Would love to put you on the phone with her in the next day or two. Should be super positive.

RELEASE IN PART B1 1.4(D)

From: Verveer, Melanne S <VerveerMS@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, December 7, 2010 4:52 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: latest

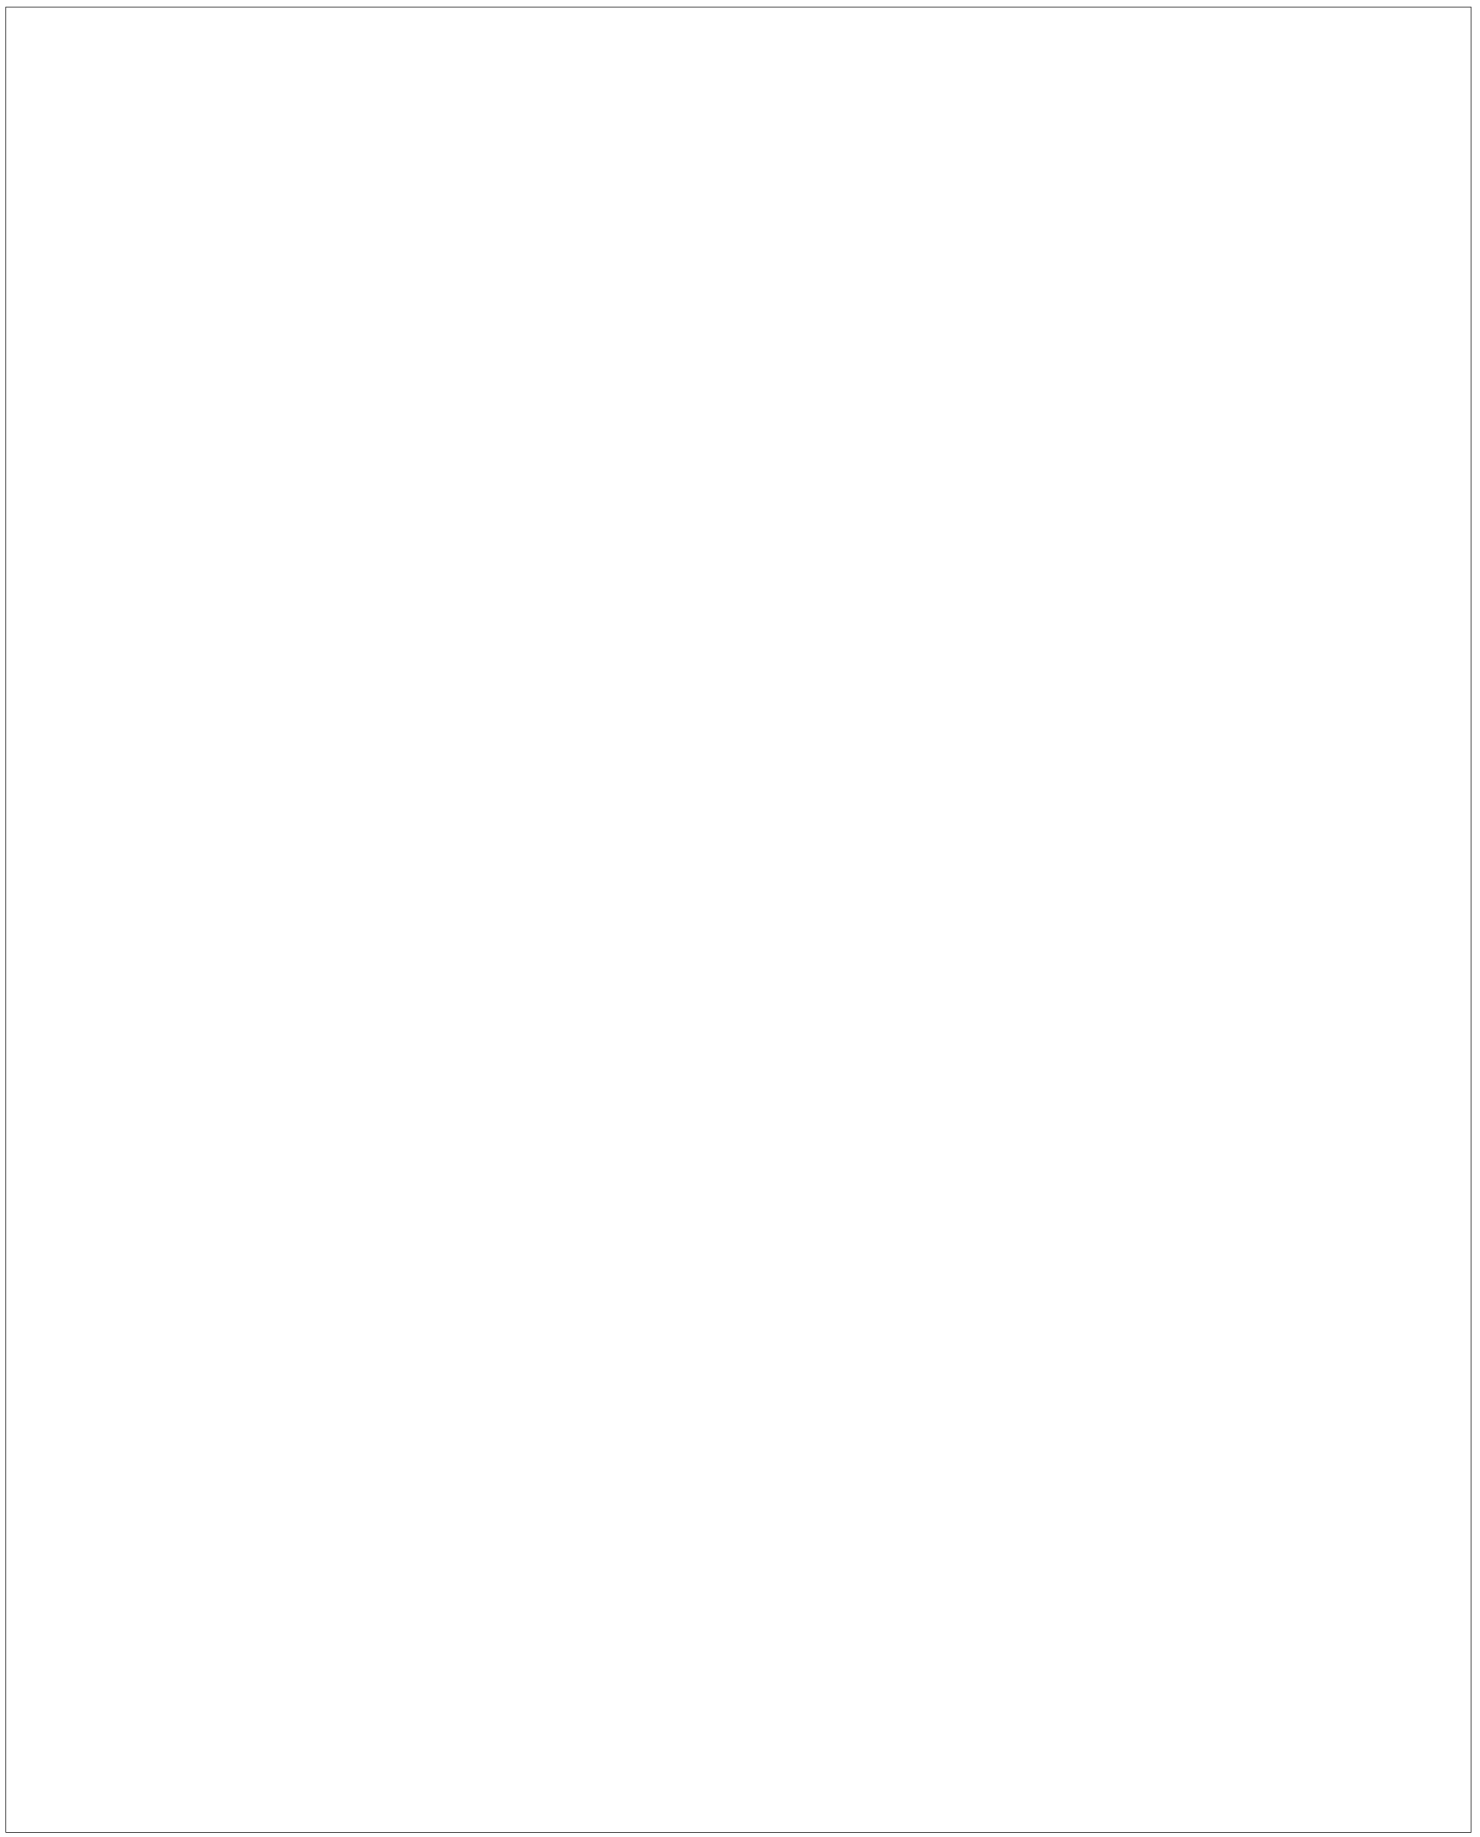
B1
1.4(D)

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 12/06/2025



----- Original Message -----
From:
To: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Tue Dec 07 13:15:18 2010
Subject: Re:

Sent wirelessly via BlackBerry

-----Original Message-----
From: "Verveer, Melanne S" <VerveerMS@state.gov>
Date: Tue, 7 Dec 2010 08:06:47
To:
Subject: Re:

We understand that the Norwegians may be putting out a statement.

----- Original Message -----
From:
To: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Mon Dec 06 05:31:39 2010
Subject: Re

Sent wirelessly via BlackBerry

-----Original Message-----
From: "Verveer, Melanne S" <VerveerMS@state.gov>
Date: Mon, 6 Dec 2010 04:41:49
To:
Subject: Re:

1.4(D)
B1

----- Original Message -----
From:
To: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Mon Dec 06 02:20:02 2010
Subject:

Dear Melanne

**********

The allegation against Nobel laureate Muhammad Yunus of 'diverting foreign aid from Grameen Bank to another company' should be investigated, the prime minister has said.
"Bangladesh has set many examples. Deceiving people by siphoning off their money is another such example. This is nothing but sucking out money from the people after giving them loans," she said replying to questions from journalists on Sunday.
"There has been no improvement in the lifestyle of the poor so far. They were just used as pawns to get more aids," Hasina added.
She was speaking at a press conference at her office on Sunday following her three-nation tour of Russia, Belgium and Japan.
"The people of Bangladesh have been made guinea pigs. I have never supported that. And now I protest," Hasina told journalists.
Naimul Islam Khan, editor of Amader Shomoy, said, "Initially, the government had 60 percent share of the Grameen Bank which now has shrunk to 25 percent. It seems Mr Yunus wanted to empty the government exchequer, if he could. The government, however, didn't let that happen."
He also asked whether the government would investigate the allegation raised against Yunus and his Grameen Bank.
Responding to the query, the prime minister said, "Grameen Bank had been grabbed in such a manner as if it's a personal property. This should also be investigated. The poor people are becoming paupers. They have been tricked by sweet talks. Finally, things are getting out."
Hasina compared Khaleda Zia's 'affection' for her cantonment house with Yunus' 'affection' for his Grameen Bank and said, "Grameen Bank is a public property. But it's being privatised out of 'love'. Yunus Sahib has fallen in love with Grameen Bank.
"One can't but get caught if play with the money of the poor," she added.

Norway's national TV NRK aired a documentary on November 30 titled "Fanget i Mikrogjeld" or "Caught in Micro debt", based on which bdnews24.com ran a report on December 1.

According to the documentary, Yunus transferred the money to Grameen Kalyan, which was in no way involved with microcredit operations.

Responding to the allegations, Grameen Bank claimed there was no wrongdoing in the agreement between the bank and Grameen Kalyan under which it received Tk 3,917 million from the bank.
"Decisions were taken by the Grameen Bank Board, with due deliberation, good faith, and with good intentions to benefit the poor," the Grameen Bank rejoinder said.

Sent wirelessly via BlackBerry

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, December 7, 2010 7:51 PM
To: H
Subject: FW: Wed. China PC: Recommend S [redacted] B5

FYI.

From: Engle, Thomas S
Sent: Tuesday, December 07, 2010 6:50 PM
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Cc: McCarthy, Deborah A; Verville, Elizabeth G; Kelley, John C; Meale, David; Rosenberger, Laura M; Harrell, Peter E
Subject: Wed. China PC: Recommend S [redacted] B5

Hi Jake,

I understand S will participate in the PC tomorrow on the Hu visit. We've just learned Commerce Sec'y Locke plans to propose [redacted] B5

[redacted]

Thanks very much.

Cheers,
Tom

Tom Engle
Director, Monetary Affairs
U.S. Department of State
2201 C Street, N.W.
Washington, DC 20520
202-647-5935
englets@state.gov

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 8, 2010 5:52 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Overnight Brief 12/08/I (SBU)

From: OpsAlert
Sent: Wed Dec 08 05:26:31 2010
Subject: Overnight Brief 12/08/I (SBU)

SENSITIVE BUT UNCLASSIFIED

EXECUTIVE SECRETARIAT
Operations Center

Overnight Brief

Wednesday, December 08, 2010
0530 EST

VIOLENCE IN HAITI AS MANIGAT, CELESTIN ADVANCE TO RUNOFF

(SBU) Announced results conflicted with the EU-backed National Observation Council's preliminary reports that Michel Martelly led government-backed candidate Jude Celestin in the vote, media report. Embassy Port-au-Prince reports civil society representatives took care in announcing early findings, but the information was reported locally as hard fact. Post notes gunfire could be heard throughout Port-au-Prince after results were announced late December 7.
(Ops/Embassy Port-au-Prince e-mail, Port-au-Prince 1590, CNN)

MBEKI MEETS WITH SUDANESE LEADERS TO DISCUSS ABYEI

(SBU) Thabo Mbeki, head of the African Union Panel on Sudan, described the meeting with President Bashir and First Vice President Kiir as positive, according to press. The Office of the Special Envoy for Sudan comments the meeting was held to discuss an African Union paper outlining options for resolving the Abyei issue. Bashir and Kiir committed to meet one-on-one to develop a solution and said they would keep Mbeki informed as their discussions progress.
(Ops/Office of the Special Envoy for Sudan e-mail, Sudan Tribune)

DPRK CONDUCTS ARTILLERY DRILL NEAR MARITIME BORDER

(SBU) The drill, heard in the Republic of Korea, was contained within Democratic People's Republic of Korea territory, according to press. Embassy Seoul comments the action was a defiant gesture in the face of international pressure to show restraint and likely connected to Admiral Mullen's visit to the ROK. (Ops/Embassy Seoul e-mail, AP)

Please see our classified website at http://ses.state.sgov.gov

Drafted: KMSimmons/MKBunt
Approved: CTCrosby
Dist: State (all bureaus), NSS, OSD, NMCC, JCS, CIA, OSC, NCTC, DHS, DNI

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05777692 Date: 08/31/2015

UNCLASSIFIED U.S. Department of State Case No. F-2014-20439 Doc No. C05777692 Date: 08/31/2015

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 8, 2010 5:52 AM
To: H
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: Fw: Embassy Statement

This is the statement we released late last night.

Election results order Manigault, Celestin, Martielly.

May be good to have Tom Adams give you a quick update today.

Cdm

---

From: Adams, Thomas C
To: 'Restrepo, Daniel A.' < [redacted] Mills, Cheryl D; Lindwall, David E; Merten, Kenneth H; Reynoso, Julissa; Gray, Eugene < [redacted] B6
Cc: Laszczych, Joanne; Mcdonald, Kara C
Sent: Tue Dec 07 17:46:05 2010
Subject: Embassy Statement

As Haiti enters the period of electoral contestation, it is essential that all political actors remain calm and encourage their supporters to do the same. The United States, together with Haiti's international community partners, stands ready to support efforts to thoroughly review irregularities in support of electoral results that are consistent with the will of the Haitian people expressed in their votes.

Like others, the Government of the United States is concerned by the Provisional Electoral Council's announcement of results from the November 28 national elections that are inconsistent with the published results of the National Election Observation Council (CNO), which had more than 5,500 observers and observed the vote count in 1,600 voting centers nationwide, election-day observations by official U.S. observers accredited by the CEP, and vote counts observed around the country by numerous domestic and international observers.

Haiti's transition to democracy over the past 24 years has seen many successes, overcoming major challenges. The 2010 elections represent a critical test of whether the Haitian people will determine their destiny through their vote. The United States is committed to the consolidation of democracy in Haiti and calls on the Government of Haiti, the CEP and all political forces to ensure that the will of the people is fully reflected in the outcome of this election.

SBU
This email is UNCLASSIFIED.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 8, 2010 7:52 AM
To: H
Subject: FW: New START Treaty -- Judd Gregg

Good public movement on START by Judd Gregg.

G.O.P. Support for Arms Treaty

By

PETER BAKER

Another Republican senator signaled Tuesday that he may vote for the new arms control treaty with Russia if it comes up for a vote before the Senate adjourns for the year later this month.

Senator Judd Gregg of New Hampshire, who did not run for re-election, said he hopes that the Senate will get a chance to vote on the treaty, known as New Start, right after a deal on tax cuts and a spending resolution to keep the government operating.

"Start is an important issue. It should be fully debated. I am leaning towards supporting it," he told Andrea Mitchell on MSNBC. "I haven't made a final decision," he added, noting that Senator Jon Kyl of Arizona, the lead Republican negotiator on the treaty, still has concerns. "He has some reservations, but I believe many of those reservations are being addressed," Mr. Gregg said.

President Obama has made passing the treaty his top foreign policy priority for the lame-duck session. Under the Constitution, approving a treaty requires a two-thirds super-majority, or 67 votes, meaning that Mr. Obama needs nine Republicans assuming all 58 Democrats stick with him.

At this point, more than that many Republicans have offered positive-sounding statements like that made on Tuesday

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Crowley, Philip J <CrowleyPJ@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 8, 2010 11:18 AM
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma; Sullivan, Jacob J; Mills, Cheryl D; Reines, Philippe I
Subject: FW: WikiLeaks cartoon
Attachments: 67704578-hillary-the-plumber.jpg

Madame Secretary, thought you might appreciate this.

PJ

This email is UNCLASSIFIED.

From: Barnes, Jennifer L [mailto:BarnesJL2@state.gov]
Sent: Wednesday, December 08, 2010 5:11 AM
To: Crowley, Philip J; Ratney, Michael A; Smith, Dana S; Chitre, Nanda S
Subject: WikiLeaks cartoon

from Olle Johansson, Sweden

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 8, 2010 12:17 PM
To: H
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: START

Senate may move to START tonight....after failed cloture votes....and before fy 11 budget and tax issues.

RELEASE IN PART B5

From: McHale, Judith A <McHaleJA@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 8, 2010 2:00 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: LA Times/Laura King - Afghan TV police drama delivers message with zest

Interesting approach towards influencing popular attitudes. We are [redacted] B5

I'm speaking at the Democracy conference in Bali today and then heading home tomorrow. Had a great trip to Indonesia. Was also in Malaysia and met with Paul Jones on the educational initiative.

See you next week.

Jm

---

From: Sreebny, Daniel
To: McHale, Judith A; DiMartino, Kitty; Cormack, Maureen E; Schwartz, Larry R/PPR; Whitaker, Elizabeth A; Cedar, Andrew N
Cc: Sreebny, Daniel; Hensman, Chris D; Namba, Nicholas; Kenna, Corley; Guimond, Gabrielle; Moore, James R
Sent: Wed Dec 08 09:30:55 2010
Subject: LA Times/Laura King - Afghan TV police drama delivers message with zest

latimes.com/news/nationworld/world/la-fg-afghan-cop-show-20101208,0,6019051.story

latimes.com

Afghan TV police drama delivers message with zest

Partially funded by the U.S. and aided by Australian TV veterans, the series 'Eagle Four' follows an elite Afghan police squad. It has a political agenda but gets points for being entertaining.

By Laura King, Los Angeles Times

6:20 PM PST, December 7, 2010

Reporting from Kabul, Afghanistan

Advertisement

A suicide bomber is loose in the city, and the clock is ticking. But an elite squad of Afghan cops is on the case, working street sources and mining databases, equally at ease with witty one-liners and fully loaded assault rifles, looking cool and soulful all the while.

In real life, the Afghan police are better known for illiteracy, drug abuse and shaking down citizens than for daring exploits worthy of the big screen — or the small one. But on the popular new TV series "Eagle Four," the squad's resourcefulness, heroism and teamwork never fail to carry the day.

The show, which has slick production values and a noir-ish soundtrack, is midway through its initial run of 13 episodes, and has already garnered a large, loyal following on Tolo TV, the country's most-watched station.

With the show shot entirely in Kabul, the Afghan capital, open-air takes were sometimes ruined by eager onlookers — from ragged street urchins to cellphone-toting businessmen — trying to get close to the cast and crew.

But overly enthusiastic fans were a happy diversion from challenges such as placating an angry mullah who tried to raise a mob to halt the production or dealing with Taliban death threats against several cast members.

"We didn't know at first what the response was going to be," said Faramjan Abrahim, who plays the cocky, hotheaded rookie Baktash. "But then actual policemen started to come up and call me 'brother' and congratulate me for doing a good job solving the case."

Most viewers are probably unaware that the series is financed at least in part by the public diplomacy arm of the U.S. Embassy, which acknowledged its monetary support while declining to disclose a dollar amount. A team of Australian TV veterans was brought in to mentor the Afghans working on the show.

Boosting public respect for the Afghan security forces and drawing higher-quality recruits are crucial to U.S. hopes that the police and army will be ready to assume responsibility for the country's security in three years — a goal some consider way too optimistic.

"We see this as an opportunity not only to help support the Afghan media sector, but hopefully also encourage a dialogue among Afghans about the role of police in society, and their growing capabilities," said embassy spokeswoman Caitlin Hayden. Another U.S.-funded effort is planned for next year: a reality show that will seek to impart a frisson of glamour to joining the Afghan army.

If it's entertainment with a political agenda, "Eagle Four" gets points for being, well, entertaining. It's got all the requisite cop-show elements: rapid-fire action; a gritty, cinema verite feel; and engrossing interplay among the four squad members and their hard-edged but beloved leader, Chief Amin (who is tormented by a dark secret; more on that later).

The show's Afghan and Australian creators said "Eagle Four" was inspired by the hit U.S. drama "24." The mood and pacing are similar, but the resemblance doesn't extend to American Jack Bauer's propensity for torturing suspects until they crack.

Baktash occasionally gets carried away and roughs someone up, but he is reprimanded by his older, more-seasoned partner, Kamran, who shows him that finesse works better than brute force.

"My character is basically a good guy, but he's sort of undisciplined, and he has a lot to learn," Abrahim said. A recurring theme is that when Baktash disregards Kamran's counsel, he usually gets injured within the next few scenes. "He disobeys, he gets hurt," Abrahim said, laughing.

The show's producers take plenty of dramatic license, including the presence of two women on the four-member team, a mingling of the sexes unlikely to be found in any police squad room in this tradition-bound, male-dominated Islamic society. The show's makers see gender equality as an ideal worth reinforcing, even if there's little real-life evidence of it in Afghanistan.

Finding actresses to play the female leads was extremely difficult. Men outnumbered women more than 10 to 1 at auditions. One actress dropped out of the production because of family pressure; writers had to kill off her character. At one point, executive producer Trudi-Ann Tierney, one of the Australians brought in to bolster Afghan-owned production company Kaboora, stepped in and donned a burka to play a suspect's silent wife and a woman's bloodied corpse.

The female characters mainly stay in the office, mirroring the reality that Afghan women are relatively little seen in public. But one of them, Ludmilla, is a computer whiz who relentlessly chases suspects through cyberspace. The script calls for periodic crisp pronouncements from her such as "I've got a fix on the location" or "Looks like the bomber is a decoy."

Somewhat daringly, there's even a love story, albeit a chaste one, between Ludmilla, who manages to make her black head scarf and loose-fitting clothing look Hollywood sultry, and the impetuous Baktash. The two of them bicker their way through much of the season, in classic romantic-comedy tradition.

She eventually softens toward him after he shows sensitivity and understanding about her feelings of guilt over having inadvertently contributed to someone's death. In the final episode of the season — spoiler alert! — they make plans for him to meet her father.

"The whole time, they don't even lock eyes," Tierney said. "But everyone can see they have feelings for each other."

Even if the show's popularity doesn't translate into heightened respect for the Afghan police, the principals believe it does justice to many aspects of Afghan life. One plot line has the seemingly incorruptible Chief Amin submitting to blackmail and deliberately compromising a case after his son is kidnapped.

"It's all part of our social reality: drug-smuggling, suicide bombs, insurgents, graft, abductions," director Ghafar Azad said. "That's all in the show. So in a lot of ways, it's telling the truth."

laura.king@latimes.com

Copyright © 2010, Los Angeles Times

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 8, 2010 2:09 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: QDDR Breakfast

Fyi

---

From: Hyde, Dana
To: Mills, Cheryl D; Sullivan, Jacob J; Slaughter, Anne-Marie; Chollet, Derek H; Verma, Richard R
Sent: Wed Dec 08 14:08:19 2010
Subject: FW: QDDR Breakfast

I spoke to Liz this morning and explained where we are in terms of the interagency and green lighting invitations (i.e., very close, but not there yet). She said that at this point we will probably not be able to attract the number and level of corporate leaders we originally envisioned for next Tuesday. Liz certainly could pull together something with USGLC board members and some military leadership, but if she is to only get one bite of the apple with HRC her recommendation is to "do it right" and move this to January (either the week of the 10th or 24th). The idea in January would be to include members of congress and frame the event as the QDDR making the case for State/USAID's mission and resources in the new environment. We could take the event in a number of directions (Liz would LOVE to get Gates together with Clinton) but the idea to launch the QDDR in January with USGLC as the blueprint for supporting international affairs and the 150 account.

Thoughts? -D

From: Liz Schrayer [mailto[redacted]] B6
Sent: Wednesday, December 08, 2010 11:17 AM
To: Hyde, Dana
Subject:

I am sure you are all scrambling to release this next week – I assume we are off for next Tuesday -- Please confirm

Liz Schrayer | President
[redacted] B6

Schrayer & Associates, Inc.
1129 20th Street NW, Suite 600
Washington, DC 20036
www.schrayer.com

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Crowley, Philip J <CrowleyPJ@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 8, 2010 4:17 PM
To: H
Subject: RE: WikiLeaks cartoon

I can think of several folks for you to toss that wrench at!

This email is UNCLASSIFIED

-----Original Message-----
From: H [mailto:HDR22@clintonemail.com]
Sent: Wednesday, December 08, 2010 2:27 PM
To: Crowley, Philip J
Subject: Re: WikiLeaks cartoon

It certainly hits the mark! Can you hand me a wrench?

----- Original Message -----
From: Crowley, Philip J <CrowleyPJ@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>; Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>; Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>; Reines, Philippe I <reinesp@state.gov>
Sent: Wed Dec 08 11:18:08 2010
Subject: FW: WikiLeaks cartoon

Madame Secretary, thought you might appreciate this.

PJ

This email is UNCLASSIFIED.

From: Barnes, Jennifer L [mailto:BarnesJL2@state.gov]
Sent: Wednesday, December 08, 2010 5:11 AM
To: Crowley, Philip J; Ratney, Michael A; Smith, Dana S; Chitre, Nanda S
Subject: WikiLeaks cartoon

from Olle Johansson, Sweden

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 8, 2010 7:23 PM
To: H
Subject: FW: Quote about Mitch McConnell

FYI

From: Djerassi, Alexander M
Sent: Wednesday, December 08, 2010 7:22 PM
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Quote about Mitch McConnell

Hey Jake,

Jeff asked me to let you and S know the source of the quote he shared earlier regarding Netanyahu and McConnell – it was [redacted] I know the quote, it's not uplifting. B6

Alex

Alexander M. Djerassi
Bureau of Near Eastern Affairs
U.S. Department of State
T: (202) 647-8769
E: djerassiam@state.gov

SBU
This email is UNCLASSIFIED.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 8, 2010 7:39 PM
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma
Subject: Molho mtg

You have the points for the Molho meeting (what Sen Mitchell handed you today). Not sure if you got the non-paper – it is being faxed to your house tonight.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 8, 2010 8:10 PM
To: Sullivan, Jacob J; H
Subject: Re: Molho mtg

When is it coming?

---

From: Sullivan, Jacob J
To: 'hdr22@clintonemail.com' <hdr22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Wed Dec 08 19:39:17 2010
Subject: Molho mtg

You have the points for the Molho meeting (what Sen Mitchell handed you today). Not sure if you got the non-paper – it is being faxed to your house tonight.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 8, 2010 8:10 PM
To: Abedin, Huma; H
Subject: RE: Molho mtg

Dan should've sent it.

---

From: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Wednesday, December 08, 2010 8:10 PM
To: Sullivan, Jacob J; 'hdr22@clintonemail.com'
Subject: Re: Molho mtg

When is it coming?

---

From: Sullivan, Jacob J
To: 'hdr22@clintonemail.com' <hdr22@clintonemail.com>
Cc: Abedin, Huma
Sent: Wed Dec 08 19:39:17 2010
Subject: Molho mtg

You have the points for the Molho meeting (what Sen Mitchell handed you today). Not sure if you got the non-paper – it is being faxed to your house tonight.

RELEASE IN PART
B5,B6

---

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 8, 2010 9:43 PM
To: H
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: Fw: Ellen's views on proposed QDDR change

See traffic b/l

I think this is [redacted] - I think this may be [redacted] B5

That said, you can have a longer process on this for folks to feel heard.

But in name of intellectual honesty, [redacted]

See b/l - from bottom up.

Cdm

---

From: Mills, Cheryl D
To: Tauscher, Ellen O
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J; Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Wed Dec 08 21:26:55 2010
Subject: Re: Ellen's views on proposed QDDR change

Ellen -

Give me a call - I would support this:

[redacted] B5

Cdm

---

From: Sullivan, Jacob J
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Wed Dec 08 20:34:52 2010
Subject: Fw: Ellen's views on proposed QDDR change

Fyi

---

From: Kirshner, Josh H
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Cc: Boese, Wade; Limage, Simon G
Sent: Wed Dec 08 20:20:22 2010
Subject: Ellen's views on proposed QDDR change

Jake – We just got off the phone with Ellen [redacted] She's asked that we send up a note to S with her views, which we'll write up now and bootleg to you tonight. She may call Cheryl in the AM. B6

In a nutshell, she's concerned [redacted] B5

[redacted]

However, I assume you wouldn't want something like this in the system, correct?

Wade and I will be here for a while, so we're happy to swing by if you'd like.

Josh Kirshner
Special Assistant
Office of the Under Secretary for
Arms Control and International Security
(202) 647-0071

RELEASE IN PART B6

B6

From: Huma Abedin [redacted]
Sent: Thursday, December 9, 2010 6:10 AM
To: H; 'abedinh@state.gov'; 'woodardew@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Anne Mulcahy

Ok

----- Original Message -----
From: H
To: 'abedinh@state.gov' <abedinh@state.gov>; Huma Abedin; 'WoodardEW@state.gov' <WoodardEW@state.gov>
Sent: Thu Dec 09 06:07:52 2010
Subject: Anne Mulcahy

After (or before) I see her she should see the right people from NEA, Melanne's staff and AID to discuss Iraq. So could they be gathered in the D conf room or the Marshall room and I could intro her or drop into the mtg?

RELEASE IN PART
B5,B6

---

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 9, 2010 6:20 AM
To: H
Subject: Re: Ellen's views on proposed QDDR change

Can I call you

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Thu Dec 09 05:38:42 2010
Subject: Re: Ellen's views on proposed QDDR change

Also, I thought we were [redacted] B5

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Wed Dec 08 21:43:05 2010
Subject: Fw: Ellen's views on proposed QDDR change

See traffic b/l

I think this is [redacted] - I think this may be [redacted] B5

That said, you can have a longer process on this for folks to feel heard.

But in name of intellectual honesty, [redacted]

See b/l - from bottom up.

Cdm

---

From: Mills, Cheryl D
To: Tauscher, Ellen O
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J; Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Wed Dec 08 21:26:55 2010
Subject: Re: Ellen's views on proposed QDDR change

Ellen -

Give me a call - I would support this:

[redacted] B5

Cdm

---

From: Sullivan, Jacob J
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Wed Dec 08 20:34:52 2010
Subject: Fw: Ellen's views on proposed QDDR change

Fyi

---

From: Kirshner, Josh H
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Cc: Boese, Wade; Limage, Simon G
Sent: Wed Dec 08 20:20:22 2010
Subject: Ellen's views on proposed QDDR change

Jake – We just got off the phone with Ellen [redacted] She's asked that we send up a note to S with her views, which we'll write up now and bootleg to you tonight. She may call Cheryl in the AM. B6

In a nutshell, she's concerned [redacted] B5

However, I assume you wouldn't want something like this in the system, correct?

Wade and I will be here for a while, so we're happy to swing by if you'd like.

Josh Kirshner

Special Assistant

Office of the Under Secretary for

Arms Control and International Security

(202) 647-0071

RELEASE IN PART
B5,B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 9, 2010 6:25 AM
To: H
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: Re: Ellen's views on proposed QDDR change

You have agreed [redacted] B5

Ellen is making last argument [redacted]

I want you to know that is coming in case you want to do that.

Cdm

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Thu Dec 09 05:38:09 2010
Subject: Re: Ellen's views on proposed QDDR change

I thought I had told Jake [redacted]

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Wed Dec 08 21:43:05 2010
Subject: Fw: Ellen's views on proposed QDDR change

See traffic b/l

I think this is [redacted] - I think this may be [redacted]

That said, you can have a longer process on this for folks to feel heard.

But in name of intellectual honesty [redacted]

See b/l - from bottom up.

Cdm

From: Mills, Cheryl D
To: Tauscher, Ellen O
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J; Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Wed Dec 08 21:26:55 2010
Subject: Re: Ellen's views on proposed QDDR change

Ellen -

Give me a call - I would support this:

[redacted] B5

Cdm

---

From: Sullivan, Jacob J
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Wed Dec 08 20:34:52 2010
Subject: Fw: Ellen's views on proposed QDDR change

Fyi

---

From: Kirshner, Josh H
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Cc: Boese, Wade; Limage, Simon G
Sent: Wed Dec 08 20:20:22 2010
Subject: Ellen's views on proposed QDDR change

Jake – We just got off the phone with Ellen [redacted] She's asked that we send up a note to S with her views, which we'll write up now and bootleg to you tonight. She may call Cheryl in the AM. B6

In a nutshell, she's concerned [redacted] B5

[redacted]

However, I assume you wouldn't want something like this in the system, correct?

Wade and I will be here for a while, so we're happy to swing by if you'd like.

Josh Kirshner

Special Assistant

Office of the Under Secretary for

Arms Control and International Security

(202) 647-0071

RELEASE IN PART
B5,B6

---

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 9, 2010 6:27 AM
To: H
Subject: Re: Ellen's views on proposed QDDR change

We have that two, but again [redacted] B5

Jake was talking to [redacted]

Cdm

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Thu Dec 09 05:38:42 2010
Subject: Re: Ellen's views on proposed QDDR change

Also, I thought we were [redacted]

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Wed Dec 08 21:43:05 2010
Subject: Fw: Ellen's views on proposed QDDR change

See traffic b/l

I think this is [redacted] I think this may be [redacted]

That said, you can have a longer process on this for folks to feel heard.

But in name of intellectual honesty, [redacted]

See b/l - from bottom up.

Cdm

---

From: Mills, Cheryl D
To: Tauscher, Ellen O
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J; Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Wed Dec 08 21:26:55 2010
Subject: Re: Ellen's views on proposed QDDR change

Ellen -

Give me a call - I would support this:

[redacted] B5

Cdm

---

From: Sullivan, Jacob J
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Wed Dec 08 20:34:52 2010
Subject: Fw: Ellen's views on proposed QDDR change

Fyi

---

From: Kirshner, Josh H
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Cc: Boese, Wade; Limage, Simon G
Sent: Wed Dec 08 20:20:22 2010
Subject: Ellen's views on proposed QDDR change

Jake – We just got off the phone with Ellen [redacted] She's asked that we send up a note to S with her views, which we'll write up now and bootleg to you tonight. She may call Cheryl in the AM. B6

In a nutshell, she's concerned [redacted] B5

[redacted] B5

However, I assume you wouldn't want something like this in the system, correct?

Wade and I will be here for a while, so we're happy to swing by if you'd like.

Josh Kirshner

Special Assistant

Office of the Under Secretary for

Arms Control and International Security

(202) 647-0071

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Jiloty, Lauren C <JilotyLC@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 9, 2010 8:00 AM
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma
Subject: Mini Schedule 12/9/10 Thursday

8:15 am DEPART Private Residence *En route State Department

8:25 am ARRIVE State Department

8:25 am PRESIDENTIAL DAILY BRIEFING
8:30 am Secretary's Office

8:45 am DAILY SENIOR STAFF MEETING
9:00 am Secretary's Conference Room

9:00 am MEETING w/ISRAELI CHIEF NEGOTIATOR YITZHAK MOLHO
10:00 am Secretary's Outer Office

10:00 am WEEKLY MEETING w/REGIONAL BUREAU ASSISTANT SECRETARIES
10:30 am Deputy Secretary's Conference Room

10:30 am MEETING w/SAVE THE CHILDREN BOARD CHAIR ANNE MULCAHY
10:55 am Secretary's Outer Office *Official photo.

10:55 am PRE-BRIEF w/TOM COUNTRYMAN
11:00 am Secretary's Office

11:00 am MEETING w/ALBANIAN FOREIGN MINISTER EDMOND HAXHINASTO
11:30 am Secretary's Conference Room *Camera spray at top in Treaty Room.

11:30 am OFFICE TIME
1:00 pm Secretary's Office

1:00 pm MEETING w/NIGERIAN FOREIGN MINISTER HENRY ODEIN AJUMOGOBIA
1:30 pm Secretary's Conference Room *Official photo at top in East Hall.

1:30 pm PRESS PRE-BRIEF
1:35 pm Secretary's Office

1:35 pm JOINT PRESS AVAILABILITY w/NIGERIAN FOREIGN MINISTER
1:55 pm HENRY ODEIN AJUMOGOBIA Treaty Room

2:20 pm MEETING w/U.S. AMBASSADOR TO CHINA JON HUNTSMAN
2:50 pm Secretary's Office

3:00 pm DROP-BY THE FULBRIGHT FOREIGN LANGUAGE TEACHING
3:10 pm ASSISTANT MID-YEAR CONFERENCE Dean Acheson Auditorium

3:15 pm OFFICE TIME
4:15 pm Secretary's Office

4:30 pm MEETING ON ENTREPRENEURSHIP
5:00 pm Secretary's Outer Office

5:00 pm MEETING w/STATE DEPARTMENT AFFINITY GROUPS
6:00 pm D Conference Room *Official photo.

7:20 pm DEPART State Department *En route 1789

7:30 pm ARRIVE 1789

7:30 pm PRIVATE DINNER
9:00 pm 1789

9:00 pm DEPART 1789 *En route Private Residence

9:10 pm ARRIVE Private Residence

FYI:
6:30 pm BLAIR HOUSE HOLIDAY RECEPTION
8:30 pm Blair House *Note: Reception runs from 6:30 pm to 8:00 pm

###

RELEASE IN PART
B1,B5,1.4(D)

From: Verveer, Melanne S <VerveerMS@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 9, 2010 10:13 AM
To: H
Subject: Re: latest [redacted] B1 1.4(D)

I would love [redacted]

I've made it to Luxor for Mrs. Mubatak's conference on trafficking. She has gathered all the key stakeholders for this. If you have a minute, you might [redacted] I'm now on my way with the Minister on Families to a renunciation of FGM ceremony by a conservative village. Mrs M has been responsible for so much social progress. 40 clerics have been arrested for registering child marriages in so-called temporary marriages of children to old Gulf men who pay off their poor parents. B5

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 12/08/2025

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Thu Dec 09 05:53:19 2010
Subject: Re: latest [redacted] B1 1.4(D)

[redacted]

----- Original Message -----
From: Verveer, Melanne S <VerveerMS@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Tue Dec 07 16:51:53 2010
Subject: Fw: latest [redacted]

----- Original Message -----
From: [redacted]
To: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Tue Dec 07 13:15:18 2010
Subject: Re: [redacted]

[redacted]

B1
1.4(D)

Sent wirelessly via BlackBerry

-----Original Message-----
From: "Verveer, Melanne S" <VerveerMS@state.gov>
Date: Tue, 7 Dec 2010 08:06:47
To:
Subject: Re:

We understand that the Norwegians may be putting out a statement.

----- Original Message -----
From:
To: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Mon Dec 06 05:31:39 2010
Subject: Re:

B1
1.4(D)

Sent wirelessly via BlackBerry

-----Original Message-----
From: "Verveer, Melanne S" <VerveerMS@state.gov>
Date: Mon, 6 Dec 2010 04:41:49
To:
Subject: Re:

----- Original Message -----
From:
To: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Mon Dec 06 02:20:02 2010
Subject:

Dear Melanne

**********

The allegation against Nobel laureate Muhammad Yunus of 'diverting foreign aid from Grameen Bank to another company' should be investigated, the prime minister has said.
"Bangladesh has set many examples. Deceiving people by siphoning off their money is another such example. This is nothing but sucking out money from the people after giving them loans," she said replying to questions from journalists on Sunday.
"There has been no improvement in the lifestyle of the poor so far. They were just used as pawns to get more aids," Hasina added.
She was speaking at a press conference at her office on Sunday following her three-nation tour of Russia, Belgium and Japan.
"The people of Bangladesh have been made guinea pigs. I have never supported that. And now I protest," Hasina told journalists.
Naimul Islam Khan, editor of Amader Shomoy, said, "Initially, the government had 60 percent share of the Grameen Bank which now has shrunk to 25 percent. It seems Mr Yunus wanted to empty the government exchequer, if he could. The government, however, didn't let that happen."
He also asked whether the government would investigate the allegation raised against Yunus and his Grameen Bank.
Responding to the query, the prime minister said, "Grameen Bank had been grabbed in such a manner as if it's a personal property. This should also be investigated. The poor people are becoming paupers. They have been tricked by sweet talks. Finally, things are getting out."
Hasina compared Khaleda Zia's 'affection' for her cantonment house with Yunus' 'affection' for his Grameen Bank and said, "Grameen Bank is a public property. But it's being privatised out of 'love'. Yunus Sahib has fallen in love with Grameen Bank.
"One can't but get caught if play with the money of the poor," she added.
Norway's national TV NRK aired a documentary on November 30 titled "Fanget i Mikrogjeld" or "Caught in Micro debt", based on which bdnews24.com ran a report on December 1.

According to the documentary, Yunus transferred the money to Grameen Kalyan, which was in no way involved with microcredit operations.

Responding to the allegations, Grameen Bank claimed there was no wrongdoing in the agreement between the bank and Grameen Kalyan under which it received Tk 3,917 million from the bank.
"Decisions were taken by the Grameen Bank Board, with due deliberation, good faith, and with good intentions to benefit the poor," the Grameen Bank rejoinder said.

Sent wirelessly via BlackBerry

RELEASE IN PART
B6

B6

From: sbwhoeop
Sent: Thursday, December 9, 2010 1:22 PM
Subject: excerpts

http://www.nybooks.com/articles/archives/2010/dec/23/bitter-new-washington/
The New York Review of Books

In the Bitter New Washington

December 23, 2010

Elizabeth Drew

....

Of course Obama should have gotten out of Washington more and listened to people, not just talked at them; and, as Walter Mondale said recently, he should have gotten rid of "those idiot boards"—the TelePrompters on which the great orator has been strangely dependent and which divide him from his audiences. Last year, a friend of mine was invited to a Hanukkah party that the Obamas gave for prominent Jews (a group with whom there had been tensions), and after the Obamas descended the grand stairway, they stood in the foyer briefly, the President made a few remarks and shook a few hands, and back up the stairs they went. No mingling.

In their first two years, the Obamas have seemed a bit tone-deaf: there were too many vacations while people were hurting, especially Michelle's extravagant trip to Spain. (I'm as interested in Michelle's clothes as the next woman but at the same time think she and her staff are too focused on her looking smashing, which she does. Her wardrobe seems quite extensive for these troubled times.)

Barack Obama's personality has been much mulled over in the past two years, but it seems inescapable that his high self-esteem often slides over the thin line to arrogance, which trickles down (with some exceptions) to much of his staff, some of whom are downright rude to all but a chosen few. Obama has seemed uninterested in anyone but his immediate group, and three of the four members of his immediate circle—Jarrett, Robert Gibbs, David Axelrod—had had no experience in governing. The fourth, Rahm Emanuel, expressed himself with such flippancy, arrogance, and overuse of the F-word that he offended not just members of Congress but also would-be allies of the President.

Vice President Joe Biden, who is liked on Capitol Hill, was virtually shut out of the dealings with people in Congress in the first two years—"I can handle them," Obama told Biden—but Biden is now expected to be given a larger role as part of the White House's new determination to "reach out." (A few months ago highly placed members of the staff also swore they would "reach out," but that seemed to last for just a few days.) One of the oddest aspects of Obama's persona is that someone who seems so confident has insisted thus far in having people around him with whom he is said to be "comfortable."

For example, Tom Donilon, his recently appointed national security adviser (a promotion from his role as deputy), is by all accounts a capable man but is no one's idea of a serious strategic thinker. The explanation I was given for Donilon's being given his new position was that "the President is comfortable with him." Just as Obama is described as pleased with himself, he has been treated with hero worship by much of his staff. After all, he had taken on the formidable Clintons, and, against the expectation of almost all the pundits and the experts, he had beaten them. Why should he listen to those who had doubted him? A common complaint about the Obama White House in the first two years has been that there were no "grown-ups" around, people who knew more about governing and who would tell Obama that he was wrong. When people tried to suggest someone who should be brought in, that person was rejected as "not one of ours." Joe Biden is said to argue with Obama on issues, such as Afghanistan, but not to get into the management of the White House....

Those who supported Obama in 2008 expected him to be able to move public opinion, to get people to follow him. The fact that the Obama White House has been so poor at "messaging" baffles even his strongest supporters. In fact, he had no overall message. As Winston Churchill put it, there was no theme to his pudding. When I asked a White House aide about this, he pointed to what had been billed as a "major speech on the economy," at Georgetown University in April 2009. But the speech was utterly forgettable—and forgotten. One ally attributes this problem to the inexperience of both Obama and his top staff. An ally says, "You can't leave a message if you don't have a strategy and you don't know where you're going." Another says, "They had something that worked in the campaign but didn't work in the White House."

Thus, Obama didn't see the need to explain what he was doing. His 2010 campaign themes seemed to wander all over the place: Stanley Greenberg, a pollster and former aide to Bill Clinton, said that Obama's oft-used theme, that we shouldn't go back to the Bush days, actually tested negatively, because people didn't believe that the country was making economic progress.

So Obama's biggest failure was not to be the leader that so many expected him to be. The jubilation that surrounded his swearing-in may have gone to his head, while the celebrants overlooked that there were plenty of people out there who were not overjoyed at the advent of a black president, or even a Democrat. Obama was, apparently in his own estimation, so smart and so adored that he seems to have felt no need to explain—and explain again—to the country what he was doing and to take the country along with him. This failure to put his programs across came up a few times in the 2010 campaign....

More than once, people in town hall meetings told him that they were behind him but were having great trouble trying to defend or explain his agenda. In a backyard gathering on October 21 he made the most awkward reply of those I heard: "Our attitude was that we just had to get the policies right and we didn't always think about making sure we got the advertising properly about what was going on." Advertising. (When I mentioned this to a Democratic senator who was generally supportive of Obama, this ordinarily polite man responded, "Bullocks! What policies?")

The risk-averse Obama had left it to Congress to write the big bills such as on the economic stimulus and health care (with strong participation by White House aides). But he kept up this line of defense all the way through to his pathetic press conference on the day after the election. In these comments, Obama gave away the devastating fact that he didn't really understand the role of the president as leader. A friend of the Obama administration said to me, "Their definition of governing is passing bills." Someone else relatively close to the White House explained that since Obama had been so criticized for being "arrogant" and "aloof," he had to eat large portions of humble pie. ("And I take responsibility for that," Obama said again and again.)

RELEASE IN PART B5,B6

From: McHale, Judith A <McHaleJA@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 9, 2010 8:11 PM
To: H
Subject: RE: LA Times/Laura King - Afghan TV police drama delivers message with zest

In Singapore now heading back this afternoon. Bali Forum interesting although some of the speeches (Iran) were predictably tedious. No wiki mentions anywhere. Remind me to tell you about the Timor slamming of MCC. [redacted] B6 [redacted] The joys of foreign travel.

See you Monday.

jm
-----Original Message-----
From: H [mailto:HDR22@clintonemail.com]
Sent: Thursday, December 09, 2010 5:41 AM
To: McHale, Judith A
Subject: Re: LA Times/Laura King - Afghan TV police drama delivers message with zest

Can't wait to see you and catch upand hear about Bali! Thx for all you're doing and everywhere you're carrying the message.

----- Original Message -----
From: McHale, Judith A <McHaleJA@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Wed Dec 08 14:00:19 2010
Subject: Fw: LA Times/Laura King - Afghan TV police drama delivers message with zest

Interesting approach towards influencing popular attitudes. [redacted] B5 [redacted]

I'm speaking at the Democracy conference in Bali today and then heading home tomorrow. Had a great trip to Indonesia. Was also in Malaysia and met with Paul Jones on the educational initiative.

See you next week.

Jm

---

From: Sreebny, Daniel
To: McHale, Judith A; DiMartino, Kitty; Cormack, Maureen E; Schwartz, Larry R/PPR; Whitaker, Elizabeth A; Cedar, Andrew N
Cc: Sreebny, Daniel; Hensman, Chris D; Namba, Nicholas; Kenna, Corley; Guimond, Gabrielle; Moore, James R
Sent: Wed Dec 08 09:30:55 2010
Subject: LA Times/Laura King - Afghan TV police drama delivers message with zest

latimes.com/news/nationworld/world/la-fg-afghan-cop-show-20101208,0,6019051.story

latimes.com

Afghan TV police drama delivers message with zest

Partially funded by the U.S. and aided by Australian TV veterans, the series 'Eagle Four' follows an elite Afghan police squad. It has a political agenda but gets points for being entertaining.

By Laura King, Los Angeles Times

6:20 PM PST, December 7, 2010

Reporting from Kabul, Afghanistan

Advertisement

A suicide bomber is loose in the city, and the clock is ticking. But an elite squad of Afghan cops is on the case, working street sources and mining databases, equally at ease with witty one-liners and fully loaded assault rifles, looking cool and soulful all the while.

In real life, the Afghan police are better known for illiteracy, drug abuse and shaking down citizens than for daring exploits worthy of the big screen — or the small one. But on the popular new TV series "Eagle Four," the squad's resourcefulness, heroism and teamwork never fail to carry the day.

The show, which has slick production values and a noir-ish soundtrack, is midway through its initial run of 13 episodes, and has already garnered a large, loyal following on Tolo TV, the country's most-watched station.

With the show shot entirely in Kabul, the Afghan capital, open-air takes were sometimes ruined by eager onlookers — from ragged street urchins to cellphone-toting businessmen — trying to get close to the cast and crew.

But overly enthusiastic fans were a happy diversion from challenges such as placating an angry mullah who tried to raise a mob to halt the production or dealing with Taliban death threats against several cast members.

"We didn't know at first what the response was going to be," said Faramjan Abrahim, who plays the cocky, hotheaded rookie Baktash. "But then actual policemen started to come up and call me 'brother' and congratulate me for doing a good job solving the case."

Most viewers are probably unaware that the series is financed at least in part by the public diplomacy arm of the U.S. Embassy, which acknowledged its monetary support while declining to disclose a dollar amount. A team of Australian TV veterans was brought in to mentor the Afghans working on the show.

Boosting public respect for the Afghan security forces and drawing higher-quality recruits are crucial to U.S. hopes that the police and army will be ready to assume responsibility for the country's security in three years — a goal some consider way too optimistic.

"We see this as an opportunity not only to help support the Afghan media sector, but hopefully also encourage a dialogue among Afghans about the role of police in society, and their growing capabilities," said embassy spokeswoman Caitlin Hayden. Another U.S.-funded effort is planned for next year: a reality show that will seek to impart a frisson of glamour to joining the Afghan army.

If it's entertainment with a political agenda, "Eagle Four" gets points for being, well, entertaining. It's got all the requisite cop-show elements: rapid-fire action; a gritty, cinema verite feel; and engrossing interplay among the four squad members and their hard-edged but beloved leader, Chief Amin (who is tormented by a dark secret; more on that later).

The show's Afghan and Australian creators said "Eagle Four" was inspired by the hit U.S. drama "24." The mood and pacing are similar, but the resemblance doesn't extend to American Jack Bauer's propensity for torturing suspects until they crack.

Baktash occasionally gets carried away and roughs someone up, but he is reprimanded by his older, more-seasoned partner, Kamran, who shows him that finesse works better than brute force.

"My character is basically a good guy, but he's sort of undisciplined, and he has a lot to learn," Abrahim said. A recurring theme is that when Baktash disregards Kamran's counsel, he usually gets injured within the next few scenes. "He disobeys, he gets hurt," Abrahim said, laughing.

The show's producers take plenty of dramatic license, including the presence of two women on the four-member team, a mingling of the sexes unlikely to be found in any police squad room in this tradition-bound, male-dominated Islamic society. The show's makers see gender equality as an ideal worth reinforcing, even if there's little real-life evidence of it in Afghanistan.

Finding actresses to play the female leads was extremely difficult. Men outnumbered women more than 10 to 1 at auditions. One actress dropped out of the production because of family pressure; writers had to kill off her character. At one point, executive producer Trudi-Ann Tierney, one of the Australians brought in to bolster Afghan-owned production company Kaboora, stepped in and donned a burka to play a suspect's silent wife and a woman's bloodied corpse.

The female characters mainly stay in the office, mirroring the reality that Afghan women are relatively little seen in public. But one of them, Ludmilla, is a computer whiz who relentlessly chases suspects through cyberspace. The script calls for periodic crisp pronouncements from her such as "I've got a fix on the location" or "Looks like the bomber is a decoy."

Somewhat daringly, there's even a love story, albeit a chaste one, between Ludmilla, who manages to make her black head scarf and loose-fitting clothing look Hollywood sultry, and the impetuous Baktash. The two of them bicker their way through much of the season, in classic romantic-comedy tradition.

She eventually softens toward him after he shows sensitivity and understanding about her feelings of guilt over having inadvertently contributed to someone's death. In the final episode of the season — spoiler alert! — they make plans for him to meet her father.

"The whole time, they don't even lock eyes," Tierney said. "But everyone can see they have feelings for each other."

Even if the show's popularity doesn't translate into heightened respect for the Afghan police, the principals believe it does justice to many aspects of Afghan life. One plot line has the seemingly incorruptible Chief Amin submitting to blackmail and deliberately compromising a case after his son is kidnapped.

"It's all part of our social reality: drug-smuggling, suicide bombs, insurgents, graft, abductions," director Ghafar Azad said. "That's all in the show. So in a lot of ways, it's telling the truth."

laura.king@latimes.com

Copyright © 2010, Los Angeles Times <http://www.latimes.com/>

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Jiloty, Lauren C <JilotyLC@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 9, 2010 9:25 PM
To: H

I forgot to tell you- I fixed [redacted] in your blackberry today. You had an outdated address for her. B6

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 9, 2010 9:49 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (AP) Palin to visit Haiti for humanitarian effort

---

From: Casteel, Ezra A
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_Shift-III; SES-O_OS
Sent: Thu Dec 09 20:24:08 2010
Subject: (AP) Palin to visit Haiti for humanitarian effort

JUNEAU (AP) - Sarah Palin plans to visit Haiti this weekend to aid in humanitarian efforts in the Caribbean country. A Palin staffer confirmed the former Alaska governor and 2008 vice presidential nominee would travel to Haiti with the Rev. Franklin Graham as part of the outreach of his Samaritan's Purse relief organization. Palin staffer Rebecca Mansour says Palin is expected to stop at a cholera clinic. She says Palin's husband, Todd, will join her and she believes daughter Bristol will, as well.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: McHale, Judith A <McHaleJA@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 9, 2010 10:14 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Jakarta Globe - State-of-the-Art Statesmanship for US, Indonesia

Fyi, 21st century engagement. Still a work in progress but off to a good start. Enjoy!

Jm

---

From: Kenna, Corley
To: McHale, Judith A
Sent: Thu Dec 09 09:26:19 2010
Subject: Fw: Jakarta Globe - State-of-the-Art Statesmanship for US, Indonesia

---

From: Sreebny, Daniel
To: Guimond, Gabrielle; Kenna, Corley
Cc: Sreebny, Daniel; DiMartino, Kitty; Schwartz, Larry R/PPR; Cormack, Maureen E; Brown, Jessica A; Cedar, Andrew N; Jacobs, Morris E; Lee, Michelle A; Ludington, Rob; Matin, Seema W; Noor Ali, Sehreen I; Rabens, Andrew C; Schinnerer, Karen P; Schwartz, Larry R/PPR; Shakir, Deena S; Starr, Katherine L; Ussak, Amanda E; Whitaker, Elizabeth A; Witters, Joseph B
Sent: Thu Dec 09 09:23:48 2010
Subject: Jakarta Globe - State-of-the-Art Statesmanship for US, Indonesia

JakartaGlobe
Great Stories. Global News.

http://www.thejakartaglobe.com/lifeandtimes/state-of-the-art-statesmanship-for-us-indonesia/410813

State-of-the-Art Statesmanship for US, Indonesia

Lisa Siregar | December 09, 2010

@America center gives visitors a window into modern America and its accomplishments. Tech firms such as Google and Cisco have donated the latest in communications technology. (JG Photos/Lisa Siregar)

During his November visit, US President Barack Obama said the United States and Indonesia "are forging an even stronger relationship and deepening partnerships." A new, high-tech cultural center is the latest example of the growing partnership between the countries.

Last week, the US Embassy officially opened @America, its first cultural center in Jakarta. The center is located on the third floor of the Pacific Place Mall in Central Jakarta.

The ribbon-cutting ceremony on Dec. 2 was attended by Alfitra Salam, the Indonesian deputy minister for youth empowerment, and the US under secretary for public diplomacy, Judith McHale.

Equipped with what has been called Jakarta's fastest Wi-Fi, all the high-tech features in @America are available to use for free.

McHale said she hoped the facility would make it easier for Indonesians and Americans to communicate.

Adrian Arie, head of the center, said they were working with large American technology companies like Google, Microsoft and Cisco.

For example, Microsoft contributed several of its newly released Kinect motion gaming devices for the opening celebration on Wednesday night.

And Cisco's TelePresence technology has been incorporated into the center to facilitate video conferencing.

Entering the state-of the-art facility, valued at some $2 million, is quite an experience.

From the outside, visitors can see three big screens displaying videos related to the cultural center's bi-monthly theme.

On opening night the screens were displaying images from the Sant Ocean Hall of the Smithsonian National Museum of Natural History to go with the center's first theme, Ocean and Marine Environments.

The changing themes will be the unifying concept behind all of the activities the center puts on during those two months.

After passing through a security scan, lockers made of transparent glass are provided for guests to store their bags. You are only allowed to bring handheld items into the center.

Once inside, you will see screens wherever you go.

Turn right, and you will immediately see Google's Liquid Galaxy.

Equipped with seven wide-screen TVs, Liquid Galaxy is used to display Google Earth. You can view and manipulate maps of the earth, the moon and Mars in spectacular high-definition.

There is a touch-screen keyboard that lets you pick popular locations and a joystick to zoom in and rotate the images.

A few cities, such as New York, are already available in 3-D, which means you can virtually walk along Fifth Avenue in Manhattan and look around in every direction.

There are other features at the center that are definitely worth checking out.

There are touch-screen computers in the corner where visitors can play games or get quizzed on their knowledge of America.

A digital photo booth is available next to the information center and there is a small auditorium that can fit about 200 people.

During presentations or panel discussions, real-time video of the event will be displayed around the venue and on the center's Web site, atamerica.or.id.

For gadget lovers, there are also 16 iPads available for use inside the center.

And for those who have never had the chance to use an iPad before, the staff will happily provide a quick tutorial.

Even though it has only been open for about a week, @America has already hosted two presentations.

Last weekend it had a presentation on the discoveries of the Okeanos Explorer, a marine research vessel, and a two-day event, held in conjunction with EducationUSA, to provide students with information about studying in the United States.

The center has also invited a group of prominent bloggers for a discussion about social media. Adrian said the center was planning movie screenings and music shows in upcoming weeks.

He welcomed program ideas, which can be submitted through the center's Web site.

@America is open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. every day, and will be open throughout the holiday season.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, December 10, 2010 6:31 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Sujay

Sigh

Fyi

---

From: Rodriguez, Miguel E
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Cc: Verma, Richard R
Sent: Fri Dec 10 06:27:36 2010
Subject: Re: Sujay

Senator DeMint is insisting that he and Sujay sit down to personally review her post-hearing QFR answers. This is highly unusual. We offered Sujay up right away, but DeMint's staff insisted that the Senator was only available to meet on December 16 (the Senate target adjournment date is December 17). This effectively scuttles any chance Sujay has of getting confirmed this Congress.

Unfortunately, we don't have much recourse. Sujay's nomination will remain on Tuesday's business meeting agenda, but given his request, DeMint will exercise his prerogative and ask that she be held over. With no other business meetings scheduled this year, she'll remain stuck in Committee.

There's another factor at play here too. We learned yesterday afternoon that Sujay has taken it upon herself to reach out to different Senator's offices. I don't know what exactly she's been saying, but the leg officer (a State Department fellow) handling Sujay's nomination got an email from Hatch's office. He has been supportive of her and we have a good working relationship with them. I don't know what Sujay said, but the message back from Hatch's person is that "while we do support her, this really makes us question her common sense and judgment." We obviously told her to stop her outreach campaign.

Finally, Hatch's office also informed us that Brownback is rumored to be considering a hold on Sujay's nomination if DeMint for any reason relents.

---

From: Mills, Cheryl D
To: Rodriguez, Miguel E
Cc: Verma, Richard R
Sent: Fri Dec 10 04:20:48 2010
Subject: Fw: Sujay

What is the state of play?

---

From: Posner, Michael H
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Thu Dec 09 23:00:42 2010
Subject: Sujay

Cheryl

I assume that someone is keeping you up to date on Sujay's confirmation process. Here Is the latest. I am worried that the Rs simply will run out the clock so that we need start from scratch in early next year.

Not sure if there is anything I can do , but if there is please let me know–

mp

---

From: Magarian, Sharyn
Sent: Thursday, December 09, 2010 4:04 PM
To: Fitzpatrick, Kathleen M; Alvarado, Victoria A; Johnstone, Kari A (DRL)
Cc: Posner, Michael H
Subject: DeMint-Sujay mtg scheduled for next Thursday

Scheduled for next Thursday at 1:45pm. It is a staff-only meeting.

FYI – We've also heard that Brownback might cause trouble too.

Sharyn

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Huma Abedin [redacted] B6
Sent: Friday, December 10, 2010 7:06 AM
To: H; 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Saeb mtg/Bibi call will move saeb

Bibi confirmed 12:30. Does that give u enough time?

----- Original Message -----
From: H
To: Huma Abedin; 'abedinh@state.gov' <abedinh@state.gov>
Cc: H
Sent: Fri Dec 10 04:05:48 2010
Subject: Saeb mtg/Bibi call

I'd like to start Saeb mtg early--at 10:30.

I'm worried that since Bibi call is on schedule for sometime btw 12:15 and 1:00 it could come right when I'm supposed to see Livni at 1. That would be a problem.

Can you find out 1)if Bibi could do at 12:15 and, if not, tell them I won't have enough time if it can't be until 1 so 2)could we do late tonight--at midnight my time or early Sat at 6am or noon?

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, December 10, 2010 9:33 AM
To: H; Sullivan, Jacob J; Abedin, Huma
Subject: FW: Snowe to back START

Snowe Supports Senate Ratification of New START Treaty

December 10, 2010

WASHINGTON, D.C. – U.S. Senator Olympia J. Snowe (R-Maine) released the following statement in support of Senate ratification of the New START Treaty:

"The New Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty, known as New START, was signed by the United States and Russia on April 8th and transmitted for the advice and consent of the Senate on May 13th of this year. Since then, the U.S. Senate has held 18 hearings and as a member of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, I have worked with my colleagues to scrutinize this agreement and ensure any classified matters are properly vetted. Much has changed since the original START was first negotiated in 1991, and as a result I have supported efforts to make certain that questions regarding our ability to verify Russian compliance with the Treaty's limits, to develop and deploy effective missile defenses, and to modernize our nuclear weapons complex, have been satisfactorily resolved.

"I am confident that New START will provide predictability in our relationship with Russia and thus enhance global stability, and most importantly, our national security. Therefore, if the Majority moves to consider New START under a framework that allows for sufficient debate and amendments, I intend to support the Resolution of Advice and Consent."

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, December 11, 2010 9:00 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Human Rights Day

----- Original Message -----
From: Posner, Michael H
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Cc: Otero, Maria
Sent: Sat Dec 11 08:59:12 2010
Subject: RE: Human Rights Day

Thanks! -- Secretary Clinton was terrific yesterday -- both in presenting the Eleanor Roosevelt awards and at the town hall -- please convey our appreciation. People in DRL were really energized by the whole day

mp

-----Original Message-----
From: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Saturday, December 11, 2010 7:10 AM
To: Otero, Maria; Posner, Michael H
Cc: Richardson, Eric N; Waxman, Sharon L
Subject: Re: Human Rights Day

Here here!

----- Original Message -----
From: Otero, Maria
To: Posner, Michael H
Cc: Richardson, Eric N; Waxman, Sharon L; Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Fri Dec 10 15:33:18 2010
Subject: Human Rights Day

Mike and all DRL staff:

Just a word to acknowledge you and express appreciation for all your dedicated work to improve the practice of human rights around the world. Your contribution is very important, and I recognize each of you on this Human Rights Day.

Best,
U/S Maria Otero

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, December 11, 2010 12:08 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

[redacted] B6

Traffic b/l explains

---

From: Rieser, Tim (Appropriations) <Tim_Rieser@appro.senate.gov>
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Sat Dec 11 08:53:54 2010
Subject: Re: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

Got it thanks

---
Sent from my BlackBerry Wireless Handheld

From: Mills, Cheryl D [mailto:MillsCD@state.gov]
Sent: Saturday, December 11, 2010 08:53 AM
To: Rieser, Tim (Appropriations)
Subject: Re: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

[redacted] B6

---

From: Rieser, Tim (Appropriations) <Tim_Rieser@appro.senate.gov>
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Sat Dec 11 08:35:18 2010
Subject: Re: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

[redacted] B6

Ok, he's pretty pissed about Crowley's response so it would be good if she can call at some point.

---
Sent from my BlackBerry Wireless Handheld

From: Mills, Cheryl D [mailto:MillsCD@state.gov]
Sent: Saturday, December 11, 2010 06:58 AM
To: Rieser, Tim (Appropriations)
Subject: Re: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's

Leaders

Sorry - [redacted] B6

---

From: Rieser, Tim (Appropriations) <Tim_Rieser@appro.senate.gov>
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Fri Dec 10 16:55:07 2010
Subject: RE: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

If she can, his number in [redacted] B6

---

From: Mills, Cheryl D [mailto:MillsCD@state.gov]
Sent: Friday, December 10, 2010 4:51 PM
To: Rieser, Tim (Appropriations)
Subject: Re: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

What was PJ's reaction?

Will check - am traveling so not on top of her sked

---

From: Rieser, Tim (Appropriations) <Tim_Rieser@appro.senate.gov>
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Fri Dec 10 16:16:09 2010
Subject: Re: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

Any chance the Secretary could call Leahy to thank him this evening? The State Dept spokesman's reaction to Leahy's statement didn't help.

---
Sent from my BlackBerry Wireless Handheld

---

From: Mills, Cheryl D [mailto:MillsCD@state.gov]
Sent: Friday, December 10, 2010 04:10 PM
To: Rieser, Tim (Appropriations)
Subject: Re: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

Thank you

---

From: Rieser, Tim (Appropriations) <Tim_Rieser@appro.senate.gov>
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Fri Dec 10 12:57:58 2010
Subject: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

Leahy Calls For Freeze

Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders Who Are 'Trying To Subvert The Will Of The People'

[(FRIDAY, Dec. 10) -- U.S. Senator Patrick Leahy (D-Vt.) Friday said he has urged the Obama Administration to withhold funding to the central government of Haiti, and to suspend visas for travel to the United States by senior Haitian Government officials and their immediate family members, until necessary steps are taken to ensure a fair and democratic outcome to the elections held on November 28, 2010. Leahy chairs the Senate Appropriations Committee's Subcommittee on The State Department and Foreign Operations, which handles the Senate's work in funding foreign assistance, including aid to Haiti, and the State Department's budget. Leahy also chairs the Senate Judiciary Committee, which handles immigration policy issues. Leahy released the following statement:]

"As if Haiti did not have enough problems, now, once again, those in power there are trying to subvert the will of the people. The United States must come down squarely in support of the Haitian people's right to choose their leaders freely and fairly. By suspending direct aid to the central government and visas for top officials and their immediate family members, the United States would be sending that message. This process needs to bring about a legitimate government respected by the Haitian people and recognized by the international community."

#####

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, December 11, 2010 12:20 PM
To: H
Subject: Out of Office AutoReply: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

I am currently out of the office and unavailable before 6:00pm EST today, December 10. If you need immediate assistance, please contact Nora Toiv, toivnf@state.gov, or Joanne Laszczych, laszczychj@state.gov, at 202-647-5548.

If this is an emergency, please call the Operations Center and have them reach out to me.

thank you.

cdm

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, December 11, 2010 12:50 PM
To: H
Subject: What kati asked pj to put out

STATEMENT BY PHILIP J. CROWLEY
ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF STATE FOR PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Update on Ambassador Richard Holbrooke

Ambassador Richard Holbrooke was admitted to George Washington University Hospital yesterday. This morning, doctors completed surgery to repair a tear in his aorta. He is in critical condition and has been joined by his family.

# #

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, December 11, 2010 1:18 PM
To: H
Subject: Cancun statement for your sign off

STATEMENT BY SECRETARY CLINTON

The Cancun Agreements

Over the last year, the United States has worked with our international partners to build on the progress achieved at the climate change conference in Copenhagen. We have pressed for substantive steps that would advance the vision of the Copenhagen Accord. This month we joined the nations of the world in Cancun for a new round of talks aimed at mobilizing common action to meet the shared global challenge of climate change.

Today I am pleased to announce that we secured the Cancun Agreements, a set of balanced international decisions under the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCC) which represent meaningful progress in our global response to climate change.

These agreements advance each of the core elements of the Copenhagen Accord: They anchor the Accord's mitigation pledges; build on a system of transparency with substantial detail and content of International Consultations and Analysis which will provide confidence that a country's pledges are being carried out; launch a new Green Climate Fund; create a framework to reduce deforestation in developing countries; establish a technology mechanism; and Setup a framework and committee to will promote international cooperation and action on adaptation.

The Cancun Agreements represent a balanced and significant step forward. In the days and months ahead, the United States will work with our friends and partners to keep the world focused on this urgent challenge and to continue building on this progress.

###

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, December 11, 2010 1:20 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (AP) Sarah Palin arrives in Haiti with mercy mission

From: Deyo, Justin A
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_OS; Tomlinson, Christina
Sent: Sat Dec 11 13:18:20 2010
Subject: (AP) Sarah Palin arrives in Haiti with mercy mission

PORT-AU-PRINCE (AP) - Former Alaska Gov. Sarah Palin has arrived in Haiti. Palin arrived with the Rev. Franklin Graham as part of a humanitarian mission by his Samaritan's Purse relief organization. Group spokeswoman Roseann Denny says details about Palin's itinerary are not being released for security reasons. The potential U.S. presidential candidate is expected to visit the Haitian capital and stop by cholera-treatment centers and other projects of Graham's charity group.

Justin Deyo
U.S. Department of State
Operations Center (S/ES-O)
202-647-1512

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, December 11, 2010 1:36 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: S is calling Leahy today - thx for all the help; advise if a diff no for him today

See b/l

----- Original Message -----
From: Rieser, Tim (Appropriations) <Tim_Rieser@appro.senate.gov>
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Sat Dec 11 12:49:29 2010
Subject: Re: S is calling Leahy today - thx for all the help; advise if a diff no for him today

They spoke and it was good. He's on board. Thanks.

---
Sent from my BlackBerry Wireless Handheld

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D [mailto:MillsCD@state.gov]
Sent: Saturday, December 11, 2010 12:06 PM
To: Rieser, Tim (Appropriations)
Subject: S is calling Leahy today - thx for all the help; advise if a diff no for him today

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, December 11, 2010 1:38 PM
To: H
Subject: Re: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

Interesting

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Sat Dec 11 12:19:38 2010
Subject: Re: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

I just spoke to him and he was fine--not sure he even knew about problem.

----- Original Message -----
From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Dec 11 12:08:20 2010
Subject: Fw: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

B6

Traffic b/l explains

---

From: Rieser, Tim (Appropriations) <Tim_Rieser@appro.senate.gov>
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Sat Dec 11 08:53:54 2010
Subject: Re: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

Got it thanks

---
Sent from my BlackBerry Wireless Handheld

From: Mills, Cheryl D [mailto:MillsCD@state.gov]
Sent: Saturday, December 11, 2010 08:53 AM
To: Rieser, Tim (Appropriations)
Subject: Re: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

[redacted] B6

---

From: Rieser, Tim (Appropriations) <Tim_Rieser@appro.senate.gov>
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Sat Dec 11 08:35:18 2010
Subject: Re: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

[redacted] B6

Ok, he's pretty pissed about Crowley's response so it would be good if she can call at some point.

---
Sent from my BlackBerry Wireless Handheld

From: Mills, Cheryl D [mailto:MillsCD@state.gov]
Sent: Saturday, December 11, 2010 06:58 AM
To: Rieser, Tim (Appropriations)
Subject: Re: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

Sorry - [redacted] B6

---

From: Rieser, Tim (Appropriations) <Tim_Rieser@appro.senate.gov>
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Fri Dec 10 16:55:07 2010
Subject: RE: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

If she can, his number in [redacted] B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D [mailto:MillsCD@state.gov]
Sent: Friday, December 10, 2010 4:51 PM
To: Rieser, Tim (Appropriations)
Subject: Re: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

What was PJ's reaction?

Will check - am traveling so not on top of her sked

---

From: Rieser, Tim (Appropriations) <Tim_Rieser@appro.senate.gov>
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Fri Dec 10 16:16:09 2010
Subject: Re: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

Any chance the Secretary could call Leahy to thank him this evening? The State Dept spokesman's reaction to Leahy's statement didn't help.

---
Sent from my BlackBerry Wireless Handheld

From: Mills, Cheryl D [mailto:MillsCD@state.gov]
Sent: Friday, December 10, 2010 04:10 PM
To: Rieser, Tim (Appropriations)
Subject: Re: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

Thank you

---

From: Rieser, Tim (Appropriations) <Tim_Rieser@appro.senate.gov>
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Fri Dec 10 12:57:58 2010
Subject: LEAHY Calls For Freeze Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

Leahy Calls For Freeze

Of Funds To Haiti's Central Government

And Of Travel Visas For The Government's Leaders

Who Are 'Trying To Subvert The Will Of The People'

[(FRIDAY, Dec. 10) -- U.S. Senator Patrick Leahy (D-Vt.) Friday said he has urged the Obama Administration to withhold funding to the central government of Haiti, and to suspend visas for travel to the United States by senior Haitian Government officials and their immediate family members, until necessary steps are taken to ensure a fair and democratic outcome to the elections held on November 28, 2010. Leahy chairs the Senate Appropriations Committee's Subcommittee on The State Department and Foreign Operations, which handles the Senate's work in funding foreign assistance, including aid to Haiti, and the State Department's budget. Leahy also chairs the Senate Judiciary Committee, which handles immigration policy issues. Leahy released the following statement:]

"As if Haiti did not have enough problems, now, once again, those in power there are trying to subvert the will of the people. The United States must come down squarely in support of the Haitian people's right to choose their leaders freely and fairly. By suspending direct aid to the central government and visas for top officials and their immediate family members, the United States would be sending that message. This process needs to bring about a legitimate government respected by the Haitian people and recognized by the international community."

#####

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, December 11, 2010 1:51 PM
To: H

B6

One START update: new START remains in the mix for next week, but when it will be fit into the schedule is not firmly decided. On Monday at 3.00 pm, the Senate will vote on cloture on the tax bill. They expect to obtain cloture. If the opponents require the use of all 30 hours, post-cloture, they will finish the tax bill on Tuesday evening. It is possible that new START will then be the next order of business. But that hasn't been decided yet. They could turn to the omnibus or back to don't ask don't tell as a stand alone measure. but we are still in the mix, and will have to keep pushing with Reid, Durbin, Schumer etc.

RELEASE IN PART
B5,B6

From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
Sent: Saturday, December 11, 2010 2:45 PM
To: H
Subject: Re:

B5

On the first, we have shared with them all of our intel on likely Republican votes. I think they know we are now well north of 67 votes. On the second, we have confirmed with the parliamentarian that we can move from the treaty to the appropriations bill by consent or with a simple majority vote. So if we begin start on tuesday night there is a way to get both measures done by the weekend. We will keep working it with Reid staff and floor staff over the weekend. If you have any reason to speak with Durbin (he's on sunday shows) or schumer, I'm sure that would help too.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Verma, Richard R
Sent: Sat Dec 11 14:24:37 2010
Subject: Re:

B6

What's the best way to make sure it comes up next?

----- Original Message -----
From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
To: H
Sent: Sat Dec 11 13:50:47 2010
Subject:

B6

One START update: new START remains in the mix for next week, but when it will be fit into the schedule is not firmly decided. On Monday at 3.00 pm, the Senate will vote on cloture on the tax bill. They expect to obtain cloture. If the opponents require the use of all 30 hours, post-cloture, they will finish the tax bill on Tuesday evening. It is possible that new START will then be the next order of business. But that hasn't been decided yet. They could turn to the omnibus or back to don't ask don't tell as a stand alone measure. but we are still in the mix, and will have to keep pushing with Reid, Durbin, Schumer etc.

RELEASE IN PART B5,B6

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, December 12, 2010 11:07 AM
To: H
Cc: jake.sullivan [redacted] B6
Subject: [redacted] B5

Jim is seeking your guidance on whether [redacted] B5
[redacted] Just wanted to confirm.

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: Daniel, Joshua J <DanielJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, December 12, 2010 12:08 PM
To: H
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D; Sullivan, Jacob J; Slaughter, Anne-Marie
Subject: Draft of your QDDR letter
Attachments: QDDR - S cover letter v2.docx

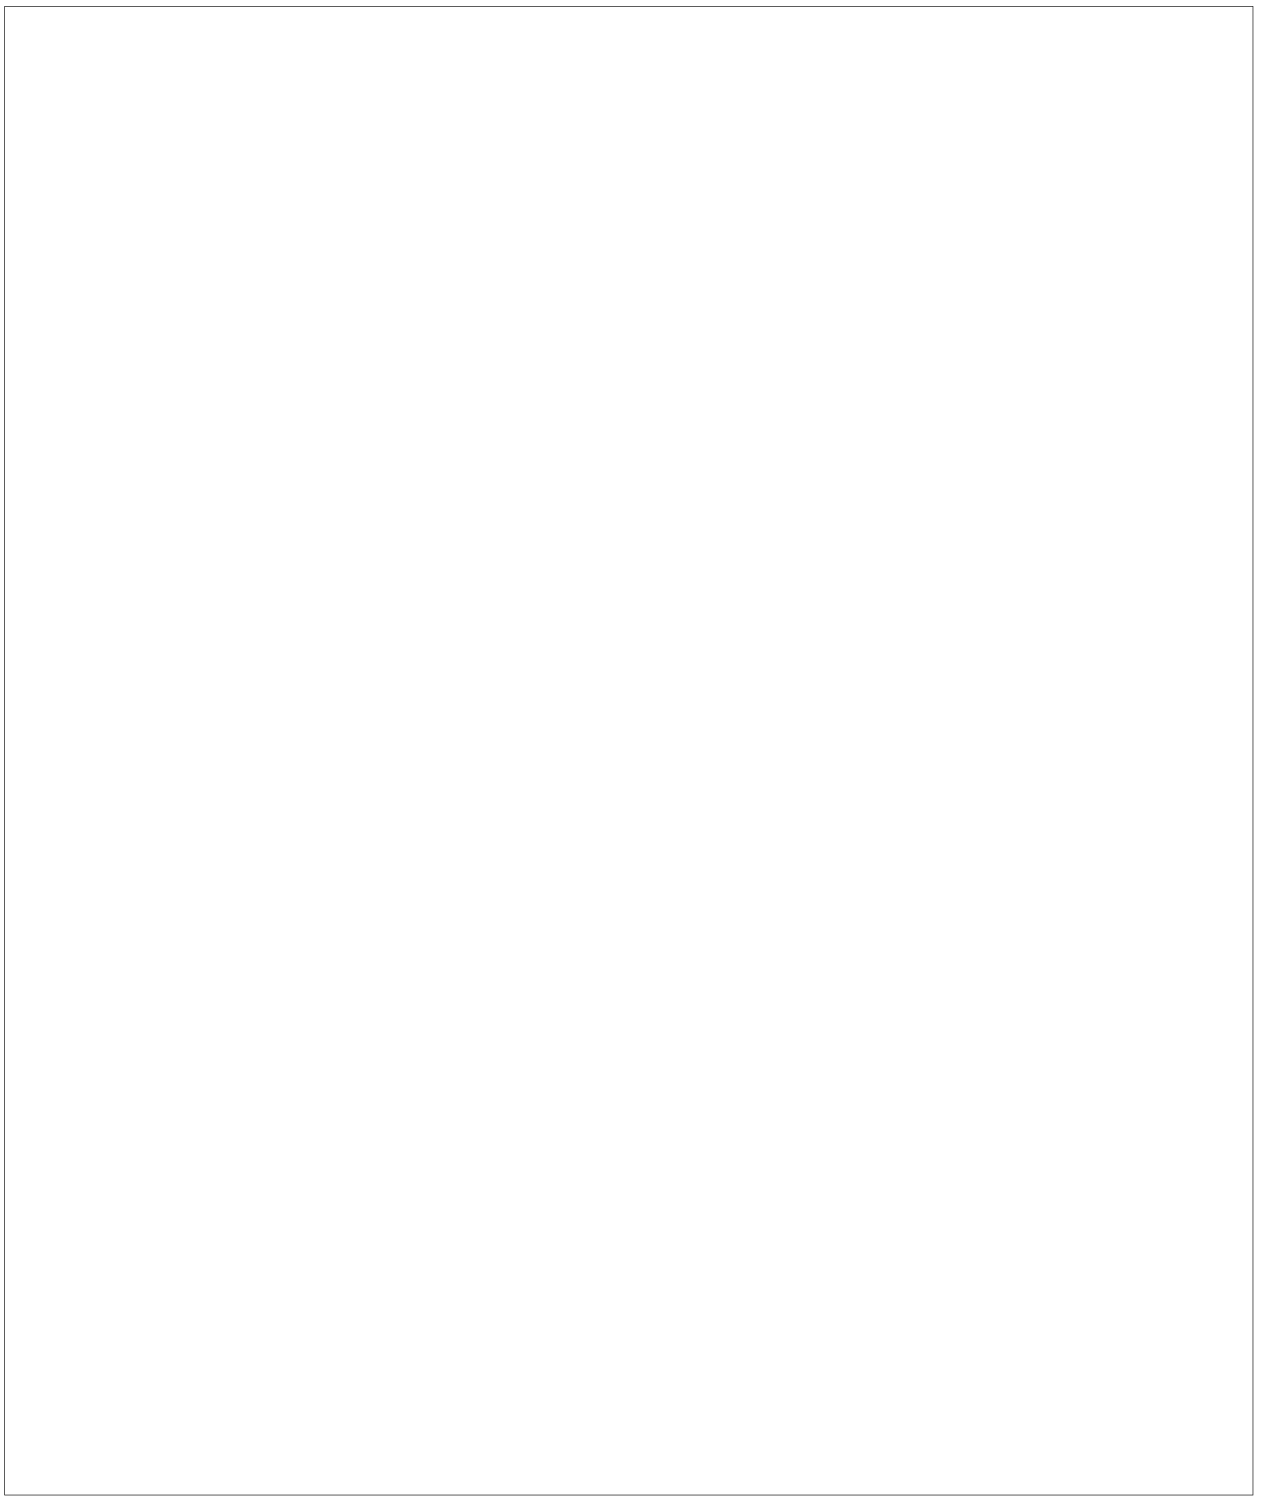
Here's a draft of your introductory letter for the QDDR. Jake and Anne-Marie have weighed in.

One question that's been raised is whether [redacted] B5

Thanks,
Josh



RELEASE IN PART B5

QDDR cover letter from S
12/12/2009 12 pm
Daniel 679-5606

How can we do better?

B5

QDDR cover letter from S
12/12/2009 12 pm
Daniel 679-5606

B5

QDDR cover letter from S
12/12/2009 12 pm
Daniel 679-5606

Hillary Rodham Clinton

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, December 12, 2010 10:38 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (CNN) Fayyad: Peace talks may need stronger U.S. mediation role

From: Withers, Anne M
To: NEWS-Mahogany; NEWS-NEA
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_Shift-III
Sent: Sun Dec 12 21:22:29 2010
Subject: (CNN) Fayyad: Peace talks may need stronger U.S. mediation role

Washington (CNN) -- The United States may have to expand its role from Middle East peace talks facilitator to become a broker on specific core issues, Palestinian Prime Minister Salam Fayyad said on December 12. Appearing on the ABC program "This Week," Fayyad indicated that progress toward a peace settlement could occur in the short-term despite Israel's refusal to halt construction of new settlements in the West Bank and East Jerusalem. However, Israel must provide specifics about its position on core issues such as what a Palestinian state would entail, the status of Jerusalem and the return of refugees, Fayyad said, adding that the lack of a new settlement freeze erodes trust in the process.

Asked if the United States would need to offer so-called "bridging" proposals on specific issues to try to stimulate negotiations, Fayyad said that "may be necessary." "It may be unavoidable, actually, for the United States, acting as a broker at some point, to come in with bridging proposals so we make this happen," he said. The interview, which included Israeli opposition leader and former Foreign Minister Tzipi Livni, took place two days after U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton outlined a direction for the peace process after giving up on trying to persuade Israel to again freeze settlement construction as a condition for the direct talks to resume.

http://edition.cnn.com/2010/US/12/12/mideast.talks/

RELEASE IN PART
B5

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Sunday, December 12, 2010 11:29 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Mexican FM Espinosa

----- Original Message -----
From: Stern, Todd D (S/SECC)
To: Sullivan, Jacob J; Abedin, Huma
Sent: Sun Dec 12 23:23:55 2010
Subject: Mexican FM Espinosa

Patricia Espinosa -- who was the President of the just-completed 16th Conference of the Parties (COP) on climate change in Cancun -- mentioned to me a couple days ago that she'd be seeing HRC in NY tomorrow.

Assuming that's accurate, just wanted to make sure you know that HRC should [redacted] B5

[redacted]

So HRC should [redacted]

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Verveer, Melanne S <VerveerMS@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, December 13, 2010 3:05 AM
To: H

I'm so devastated [redacted] B6

Mrs Mubarak has done a magnificent job with the conference. She asked me to go to a couple of the schools she has renovated in the poorest neighborhoods of Luxor as part of her schools' program. They are state of the art and become magnets for redevelopment. She sends her best. You have been mentioned with great affection repeatedly here by so many. I also went to a huge community renunciation of FGM in a rural area -- some 2000 villagers with men speaking eloquently about why this practice would be no more. This is another great effort they are making here to end FGM through community education. So amidst bad news, there is also the good. We also managed to dodge the latest wikileaks story here. Heading back tomw.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

B6

From: PIR <preines[redacted]
Sent: Monday, December 13, 2010 6:14 AM
To: H
Cc: Huma Abedin; CEA
Subject: Press

Two notes on reporters who'll be in our small package today:

1) Laura Brown, Australian citizen who writes for Harpars Bazaar - she's embarking on a piece on you

2) Indira Lakshaman of Bloomberg is back to work after [redacted]

RELEASE IN PART
B1,1.4(D)

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, December 13, 2010 7:09 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Wiki/Ranneberger

Fyi

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 12/12/2035

From: Carson, Johnnie
To: Mills, Cheryl D; Burns, William J; Kennedy, Patrick F; Mull, Stephen D
Cc: Goldberg, Philip S; Crowley, Philip J; Driano, Susan J; Pasi, Geeta; Wharton, David B; Yamamoto, Donald Y; Paradiso, Dante X
Sent: Mon Dec 13 06:31:05 2010
Subject: RE: Wiki/Ranneberger

B1
1.4(D)

Cheryl: I spoke to Ranneberger several times yesterday, and I have a call in to Prime Minister Odinga to talk about this and other issues. [redacted] I am following this closely. And we will have some press guidance for PJ this morning. Regards, Johnnie

From: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Monday, December 13, 2010 6:11 AM
To: Burns, William J; Kennedy, Patrick F; Mull, Stephen D; Carson, Johnnie
Cc: Goldberg, Philip S; Crowley, Philip J
Subject: Wiki/Ranneberger

KENYA

President Kibaki and Prime Minister Odinga warned Ambassador Ranneberger they would not tolerate his activities in the country. The statements come after reports Ranneberger has been funding youth groups to influence Kenya's political direction and described in leaked cables the Kenyan leadership as steeped in corruption.

(Daily Nation)

From: OpsAlert
Sent: Mon Dec 13 05:00:05 2010
Subject: Morning Press Highlights 12/13/I (U)

EXECUTIVE SECRETARIAT
Operations Center

S/ES-O Morning Press Highlights

Monday, December 13, 2010
0500 EST

WESTERN HEMISPHERE

COSTA RICA/NICARAGUA

Nicaraguan President Ortega said he is willing to meet with Costa Rican President Chinchilla to discuss the border dispute in the presence of "friendly" nations, but without the presence of Organization of American States officials. Ortega suggested Cuba, Venezuela, and Mexico, and said the dialogue must be free of conditions. (Inside Costa Rica)

HAITI/NEPAL

Nepal's army denied Nepalese soldiers introduced cholera into Haiti. Army spokesperson Chettri said three independent studies demonstrated no Nepalese soldier carried the disease into Haiti, disputing a report by a French physician. (Latin American Herald Tribune)

EUROPE

UNITED KINGDOM/SWEDEN

British police searched a property near London in connection with the bombing in Stockholm. Scotland Yard said there were no arrests and no hazardous materials were found at the property, but the search is expected to resume later. (BBC)

UNITED KINGDOM

The government is considering whether to ban controversial American preacher Terry Jones from entering the United Kingdom. Jones was invited to speak at a rally in February organized by the English Defense League. Interior Minister Theresa May said she is actively looking into the case. (Al Jazeera)

AFRICA

KENYA

President Kibaki and Prime Minister Odinga warned Ambassador Ranneberger they would not tolerate his activities in the country. The statements come after reports Ranneberger has been funding youth groups to influence Kenya's political direction and described in leaked cables the Kenyan leadership as steeped in corruption. (Daily Nation)

SUDAN

Minni Minnawi declared dead the Darfur Peace Agreement he signed in 2006 with the Sudanese government, and disclosed talks with Abdel Wahid Al-Nur about the reunification of the Sudan Liberation Movement. (Sudan Tribune)

SOUTH AND CENTRAL ASIA

BANGLADESH

Grameen Bank chief Muhammad Yunus said he will not file any cases against the media over reports he diverted foreign aid even though he had been hurt by such reports. (bdnews24)

PAKISTAN

The Sui Northern Gas Pipelines suspended supply to industry in Punjab to meet domestic heating demands. (Dawn)

MIDDLE EAST

IRAN

Asia's first aid convoy for Gaza arrived in Tehran. The Asian People's Solidarity for Palestine consists of 150 members from Japan, India, Malaysia, Thailand, and Bangladesh. The convoy will stop next in Turkey. (Iran Daily)

UNITED ARAB EMIRATES

Economists said the Government of Dubai will be able to meet its obligations on $18 billion of debt next year. (Gulf News)

EAST ASIA AND PACIFIC

THE REPUBLIC OF KOREA

A ROK fishing vessel sank off Antarctica, leaving at least five crew members dead and 17 missing. A nearby ROK vessel rescued 20 crew members. The ROK asked New Zealand for help in rescue operations. (Korea Herald)

PHILIPPINES

The government is considering a general amnesty for all political prisoners as proposed by former Speaker Venecia. President Aquino dropped charges on a group of health workers arrested in February on suspicion of being communist rebels. The Communist Party of the Philippines said about 400 political prisoners are still being held. (Inquirer)

Drafted: EACasteel Approved: PMValdez

* Morning Press Highlights alerts senior Department officials to breaking news items and is a synopsis of select media stories from around the world. It solely reflects the gist of the stories as presented in their original publications and does not contain analysis or commentary by Department sources. ****

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, December 13, 2010 8:14 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: S-Lambah call
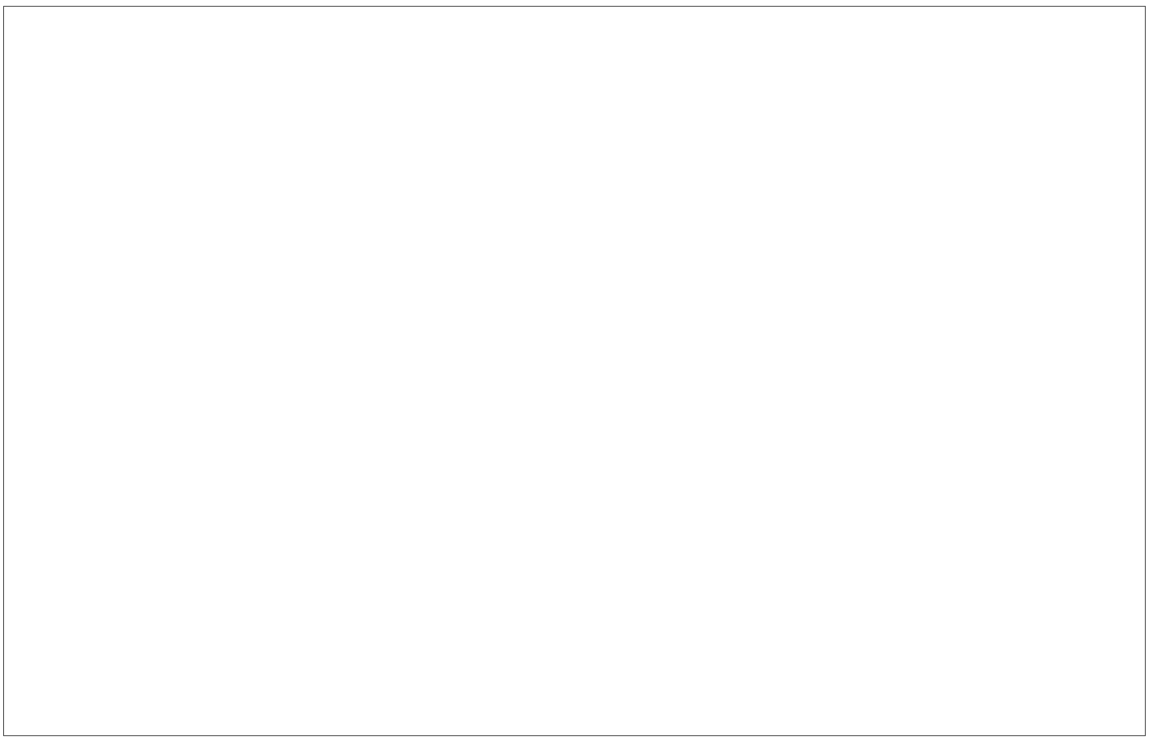
Attachments: Talking Points for Secretary Call to Lambah.docx

Can we discuss?

----- Original Message -----
From: Vali Nasr [redacted] B6
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Mon Dec 13 06:35:14 2010
Subject: S-Lambah call

Hi Jake



Attached are a few talking points for S call to Lambah. I talked to [redacted] about his conversation with S and his thoughts as well. I believe the recommendation was that the call would happen today to be most effective.

Best
Vali Nasr

RELEASE IN PART
B5

Talking Points for Secretary Call to Lambah

B5

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, December 13, 2010 8:50 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Iran Daily Special Report: FM Mottaki Removed

Fyi

---

From: Lucas, Laura D
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Cc: S_SpecialAssistants
Sent: Mon Dec 13 08:48:02 2010
Subject: Iran Daily Special Report: FM Mottaki Removed

FYI

---

From: Eyre, Alan E
Sent: Monday, December 13, 2010 8:45 AM
Cc: SES-O_Shift-I; SES-O_Shift-II
Subject: IDB Special Report: FM Mottaki Removed

Semi-official Mehr News Service is reporting that President Ahmadinejad has removed Manucher Mottaki as Foreign Minister, and appointed Ali Akbar Salehi as the acting Foreign Minister (Details to follow).

Alan Eyre
Director - Iran Reporting Office
Consulate General of the U.S.
Dubai, UAE

SBU
This email is UNCLASSIFIED.

RELEASE IN FULL

Israeli-Palestinian negotiations must be grounded in international law and human rights – define borders and address security issues first.

13 December 2010
FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

For nearly two decades, there have been peace processes in the Middle East but no peace. In our recent visits to four countries across the region and the occupied Palestinian territory, we heard a consistent message: people want peace, but are skeptical about the process and have little faith in the international community to deliver.

There is now an opportunity to reassess the entire approach to the negotiations. The flawed U.S. effort to secure from Israel another partial freeze on settlement-building, in exchange for generous inducements, as a way of resuming direct talks between Israeli and Palestinian leaders has failed.

We now urge a renewed effort, firmly based on international law and respect for human rights, aimed at defining boundaries between Israel and a new Palestinian state and addressing security issues, without neglecting the other issues at the core of the conflict. Without such focus, we may see the possibility of a two-state solution slipping even further away.

Our primary purpose is to help bring peace and security to Israel and its neighbors.

We therefore call on governments and citizens around the world to insist that future negotiations are based on the following:

1. Universal human rights and respect for international humanitarian law must apply equally to all.

2. The occupation must end, and the aim of negotiations should be to define the boundaries of a future Palestinian state based on 1967 borders, including its capital in East Jerusalem. Such an accord could entail, if agreed, a one-to-one land swap to allow for minor adjustments. Initial negotiations should also aim at security arrangements in which both Israelis and Palestinians have confidence.

3. The remaining final status issues can be addressed more effectively once there is an agreement on borders and security.

4. Israeli settlements are illegal and all settlement activity must halt throughout the occupied Palestinian territory including in East Jerusalem.

5. Israel must lift its illegal and inhumane blockade of Gaza and stop the demolition and seizure of Palestinian homes in East Jerusalem and the West Bank.

6. Palestinian authorities in the West Bank and Gaza must end all human rights violations against political critics and rivals.

7. Israel's right to exist must not be denied. Incitement and calls for the destruction of

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Huma Abedin [redacted] B6
Sent: Monday, December 13, 2010 2:46 PM
To: H; hanleymr@state.gov
Subject: mitch mconnell just called for you. flagging for rich right now unless you are expecting this

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, December 13, 2010 4:36 PM
To: H
Subject: FW: And I don't know whether you've seen this yet...

ummmmm

From: Hyde, Dana
Sent: Monday, December 13, 2010 3:38 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D; Smith, Jeannemarie E; Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: FW: And I don't know whether you've seen this yet...

OMG

http://blogs.cgdev.org/mca-monitor/2010/12/twas-the-night-before-the-qddr.php

Twas the Night Before the QDDR

December 13, 2010

By Connie Veillette in Rethinking U.S. Foreign Assistance Tags: QDDR

Twas two weeks before Christmas, when all through the town
Breaths were held expectantly, in the midst of a countdown.
With their keyboards ready, the bloggers abandoned all care,
Hoping that Secretary Clinton soon would be there.

The NGOs were nestled all snug in their beds,
Knowing the QDDR soon would be read.
And the Senate and House, with a sharp rap,
Had just left town for a long winter's nap.

When out on the Mall there arose such a clatter,
Aid analysts sprang from their cubicles to see what was the matter.
Away to their Inboxes they flew like a flash,
Tore open their emails and emptied the cache.

The moon on the breast of the soon-to-fall snow
Gave the lustre of mid-day to the stalled traffic below.
When, what to their wondering eyes should appear,
But an armored car, and eight men in full gear.

With a diplomatic wit, married to Bill,
They knew in a moment it must be St Hill.
More rapid than eagles her people, they came,
And she whistled, and shouted, and called them by name!

"Now Slaughter! Now, Radelet! Now, Geithner and Shah!
On, Nides! On, Steinberg! On Yohannes, hurrah!
To the top of the White House! To the top of the Hill!
Now dash away! Dash away! Get us good will!"

And then, in a flash, her people took to the phone
Spreading the word about what few had known.
As the developmentistas gathered to find common ground,
Behind the podium St Hillary came with a bound.

Her eyes-how they twinkled! Her hair how flaxen!
Her cheeks were like roses, the cameras were flashin'!
Her smart red suit was adorned with a bow,
The perfect "development diplomat" from head to toe.

She addressed the crowd on integration and elevation,
And gave USAID some special designation!
A wink of her eye and a twist of her head,
Soon let them dream that they had fewer things to dread.

She spoke many words, and expressed her complete vision,
While her colleagues set about implementing the QDDR's decision.
And laying her finger aside of her nose,
And giving a nod, she departed, nothing else to disclose!

She sprang to her car, to her team gave a whistle,
And away they all flew like the down of a thistle.
But they heard her exclaim, 'ere she drove out of sight,
"Just trust me on this, it will all be alright!"

May all your dreams come true, from your friends at the Rethinking U.S. Foreign Assistance initiative – Connie, Sarah Jane, and Casey – and with many thanks for the creative talents of Casey Dunning and Julie Walz.

From: Gavaghan, Ann
Sent: Monday, December 13, 2010 3:27 PM

To: Hyde, Dana
Subject: And I don't know whether you've seen this yet...

http://blogs.cgdev.org/mca-monitor/2010/12/twas-the-night-before-the-qddr.php

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Verveer, Melanne S <VerveerMS@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, December 13, 2010 9:15 PM
To: H
Subject: Holbrooke

He was larger than life in everything he did -- from AfPak, the UN job, the Balkans - even to planning his annual Xmas party for you. It will be hard to imagine not having him in our midst.

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, December 13, 2010 9:41 PM
To: H; Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: FW: Secretary Clinton's Statement regarding Ambassador Holbrooke

OMG – I just opened this!

From: Tomlinson, Christina
Sent: Monday, December 13, 2010 9:13 PM
To: NEWS-Mahogany; SSRAP_StaffAssistants
Cc: [redacted] SWO B6
Subject: Secretary Clinton's Statement regarding Ambassador Holbrooke

Please find following the statement released this evening.

Christina Tomlinson
Senior Watch Officer
Department of State Operations Center
(202) 647-1512

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF STATE
Office of the Spokesman

For Immediate Release
December 13, 2010
2010/1811

Ambassador Richard C. Holbrooke passed away this evening, surrounded by his wife, Kati, his sons David and Anthony, his step-children Elizabeth and Chris Jennings, his daughter-in-law Sarah, and the rest of their family.

Secretary Clinton released the following statement on his passing:

STATEMENT BY SECRETARY CLINTON

Passing of Richard Holbrooke

Tonight America has lost one of its fiercest champions and most dedicated public servants. Richard Holbrooke served the country he loved for nearly half a century, representing the United States in far-flung war-zones and high-level peace talks, always with distinctive brilliance and unmatched determination. He was one of a kind -- a true statesman -- and that makes his passing all the more painful.

From his early days in Vietnam to his historic role bringing peace to the Balkans to his last mission in Afghanistan and Pakistan, Richard helped shape our history, manage our perilous present, and secure our future. He was the consummate diplomat, able to stare down dictators and stand up for America's interests and values even under the most difficult circumstances. He served at every level of the Foreign Service and beyond, helping mentor generations of talented officers and future ambassadors. Few people have ever left a larger mark on the State Department or our country. From Southeast Asia to post-Cold War Europe and around the globe, people have a better chance of a peaceful future because of Richard's lifetime of service.

I had the privilege to know Richard for many years and to call him a friend, colleague and confidante. As Secretary of State, I have counted on his advice and relied on his leadership. This is a sad day for me, for the State Department and for the United States of America.

True to form, Richard was a fighter to the end. His doctors marveled at his strength and his willpower, but to his friends, that was just Richard being Richard. I am grateful for the tireless efforts of all the medical staff, and to everyone who sat by his side or wished him well in these final days.

Tonight my thoughts and prayers are with Richard's beloved wife Kati, his sons David and Anthony, his step-children Elizabeth and Chris Jennings, his daughter-in-law Sarah, and all of his countless friends and colleagues.

###

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Huma Abedin <Huma@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Monday, December 13, 2010 10:27 PM
To: H; 'abedinh@state.gov'
Subject: Re: [redacted] want to stop [redacted] B6

He [redacted]

[redacted]

----- Original Message -----
From: H
To: 'abedinh@state.gov' <abedinh@state.gov>; Huma Abedin
Sent: Mon Dec 13 22:24:55 2010
Subject: [redacted] want to stop [redacted]

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Monday, December 13, 2010 11:57 PM
To: H
Subject: People

Are still here and so appreciative for all you did tonight and over the last several days.

You gave many the ability to push through.

XO
Cdm

RELEASE IN PART
B6

From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, December 14, 2010 6:27 AM
To: H
Subject: update

According to the Reid staff, they will tentatively start the Treaty on Wednesday and stay on it through COB Thursday. Then File cloture on the CR. It takes consent to stay on START while we wait for the CR cloture petition to ripen, which would be Saturday w/o consent. So at least two days on the Treaty, at a minimum, and possibly more. But, the good news, is that it appears that we are starting the Treaty, and will go back to it after the FY11 funding issues are resolved.

[redacted] B6

[redacted] We will re-double our efforts to support the SRAP team and do whatever you need in the coming days on Af/Pak and beyond.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, December 14, 2010 6:50 AM
To: H
Subject: Headed to Andrews

My flight takes off at 8 so call before if you have a minute.

CDM

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, December 14, 2010 7:26 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Last Night

----- Original Message -----
From: Nossel, Suzanne F
To: Abedin, Huma; Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Tue Dec 14 06:56:07 2010
Subject: Last Night

Dear Huma and Jake:

If there is an appropriate way to do so, I wondered if you might convey to Secretary Clinton how much it meant to me personally and to so many of us that she led us last night for cathartic story-telling and laughter. It was such a terrible evening, but she managed to ignite warmth at a moment when everything felt frozen still. Her ability to lift us all up after a trip to Canada, hosting a huge reception, and on top of her own loss, was itself a rallying cry to soldier on the way Holbrooke would have insisted we do. She helped fill the tremendous sense of void with funny memories and an appreciation of how deeply he touched so many of us. I felt better by the time I left, and still do.

Many thanks,

Suzanne

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Daniel, Joshua J <DanielJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, December 14, 2010 7:53 AM
To: H
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Re: Letter

That's right; we mean 09. We'll fix it. Thanks.
Sent via Blackberry.

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Daniel, Joshua J
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Tue Dec 14 07:38:38 2010
Subject: Letter

I think it is ready to go w one question: when you say in the 4th para, "last July", do you mean 09 or 10? I thought we started in 09.

RELEASE
IN PART B6

From: sbwhoeop [redacted] B6
Sent: Tuesday, December 14, 2010 9:35 AM
To: H
Subject: can't say how sad I am about Holbrooke; fitful last night. xo Sid

RELEASE
IN PART B6

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, December 14, 2010 12:26 PM
To: H
Subject: FW: Remarks of the Spokesman of the Islamic Emirate of Afghanistan about the Sudden Death of Holbrooke//. دهالبروک دناڅاپي مرينې په اړه داسلامی امارت دویاند ځرګندونې /

See below (keep scrolling down to the English).

From: Rina Amiri [mailto B6
Sent: Tuesday, December 14, 2010 12:23 PM
To: Barnett Rubin; Ruggiero, Frank J; Feldman, Daniel F; Singh, Vikram J; Sullivan, Jacob J; Bommer, Ashley F; SSRAP_StaffAssistants; DeHart, James P
Subject: Fw: Remarks of the Spokesman of the Islamic Emirate of Afghanistan about the Sudden Death of Holbrooke//. دهالبروک دناڅاپي مرينې په اړه داسلامی امارت دویاند ځرګندونې /

A comic moment

From: Dr Tariq ghazniwal < B6
Date: Tue, 14 Dec 2010 16:49:09 +0500
To: alemarah1< B6
Subject: Remarks of the Spokesman of the Islamic Emirate of A fghanistan about the Sudden Death of Holbrooke//. دهالبروک دناڅاپي مرينې په اړه داسلامی امارت دویاند ځرګندونې /

دهالبروک دناڅاپي مرينې په اړه داسلامی امارت دویاند ځرګندونې

دنړۍ دمعتبرو خبري اژانسونو دراپور له مخې دافغانستان او پاکستان لپاره د امریکایي ولسمشر بارک اوباما خانګړی استازی ، ریچارډ هالبروک ، چې له څه مودې راهیسې ورته دزړه رنځ پیدا شوی وه ، د۶۹ کلونو په عمر دامریکا دجورج واشنګټن پوهنتون په روغتون کې ساه ورکړه ، ریچارډ هالبروک چې د۲۰۰۹ کال دجنورۍ له ۲۲ مې داوباما له خوا ذافغانستان دقضیې پالنه او ځارنه ورلغارې شوې وه ، څه موده وړاندې یې رسنیو ته په ډاګه ویلې وه ، چې دژوند ترټولو له سخت او فشارواردوونکي حالت څخه تیریږي ، نومورۍ له همدې اعترافاتو څو ورځې وروسته ( تیره جمعه ) دافغانستان او سیمې دچارو په اړه دخپل کار په خانګړي دفتر کې بې سده شو، او په بیره روغتون ته ورسول شو ، چې بالاخره یې پرون خپل ستومانه ژوند ته دپای تکی کیښود .

دموضوع حساسیت ته په پام سره تراوسه امریکایي چارواکو دنومورۍ دناڅاپي رنځ دعللو په اړه ډیر څه نه دي ویلي ، خوداسې اوازې له وخته وې ، چې دامریکایي سیاست او دیپلوماسۍ دغه نومیالي ته له هغه وروسته دزړه رنځ پیدا شو کله چې یې دافغانستان له سخت او ناکام ماموریت سره پخوانی نوم او ګټلی اعتبار له ګوابښ سره مخ شو ، دغه راز دافغانستان اوږدیدونکي جګړه او دامریکایي ښکیلتیا مخ په خورې حالت ،هغه څه وه چې دلوړپورې مسؤل په توګه یې هالبروک تردایمي فشار او ذهني پریشانۍ لاندې ساته .

دافغانستان له قضایاوو څخه داسې ناولده پایلې راتو کیدل اوس کومه تراتکل پورته خبره نه حسابیږي ، دپخواني شوروي اتحاد دیرغل په مهال هم کله چې بحران اوج ته ورسید ترمیخایل ګورباچوف وړاندې دشوروي اتحاد دریو مشرانو( برژنف ،کنستانتین چرنینکو اوولادیمیراندرو پوف ) په ډیر کم زماني واټن کې پله پسې سکتې وکړې او له خپل سخت ماموریت څخه یې دهالبروک غوندې په مرګ اوږې سپکې کړې ، وروستۍ علامې داسې ځرګندوی لکه اوس چې په امریکایي سیاسي او پوځي کړیو هم هو به هو همدا رنځ لګیدلی وي ، ځومیاشتې وړاندې امریکایي ځلورستوریز جنرال ډیویډ پیټرایوس هغه مهال دامریکایي سناتورانو په وړاندې بې هوښه شو کله چې دافغانستان دقضیې په اړه تري پوښتنې وشوې ، دغه راز دهالبروک وروستي انجام ،دجنرال مک کرسټل برخلیک او ددفاع وزیر رابرټ ګیټس داستعفا ګوابښ ته په کتو داپه ځرګنده معلومیږي چې دافغانستان جګړه نور په امریکایي سیاسي او پوځی مشرانو تروروستی کچې غمبدلې ده نوځکه څوک په مرګ او څوک په ژوند تري خانونه وزګاروي .

دامریکایي لوړپورې سیاستوال هالبروک داناڅاپي مرینه داسې مهال رامنځته کیږي چې داوباما په مشرۍ امریکایي تصمیم نیونکي له څو ورځو راهیسې دافغانستان دقضیې له سره جاج اخلي اوکیدای شي چې په څو راتلونکو ورځو کې به خپله تګلاره له سره اعلان کړي ، زمونږ په اند لوړه پیښه دامریکایي پالیسي جوړونکو لپاره دیوه مهم او درس آموز رویداد حیثیت لري ، چې ډیر په موقع رامنځ ته شوي او دنوي ستراتیژۍ په تاکلو کې ډیر څه تري زده کیدلای شي .

په افغانستان کي دامريکايي بوختيا لا ويجاړيدونکي وضعيت ته په پام سره دافغانستان اسلامي امارت يوخل بيا په امريکايي مقاماتو غږ کوي ، چي نور دي په دي هيواد دخپلي پوخي او استعماري سلطي خيال له ذهنه وباسي ، دوی دنويو پوخی ستراتيژيو په تاکلو سره کله هم نه شي توانيدلی خپل دناکامی په پوله ولاړ يرغل په بري واروي ،که دوی په دي حالت لاهم تينګار کوي پرته له دي چي دامول نااتکل کړي جنجالونه ورپيښ شي دغه رازيي سياسي اوپوخی حلقي له همیشني بحران او نامطلوب حالت سره مخ شي نور به هيڅ هم ترلاسه نه کړي .

دافغانستان داسلامي امارت ويانډ قاري محمد يوسف احمدي

8-1-1432

14-12-2010

Remarks of the Spokesman of the Islamic Emirate of Afghanistan about the Sudden Death of Holbrooke.

According to credible news agencies of the world, the American president's Special Envoy for Afghanistan and Pakistan, Richard Holbrooke, died in George Washington's University hospital at the age of 69. He had been suffering from a heart's disease for the past days.

Appointed on 22nd January 2009, as special envoy for Afghanistan/ Pakistan, Holbrooke was keeping an eye on the Afghan issue. Some times ago, he told reporters that he had been passing through a difficult phase of his life, exerting crippling and sapping pressure on him.

He passed out in his exclusive office for Afghanistan and regional affairs on Friday last, following his above-mentioned reveals and his life of toils and fatigues ended after admission into a hospital where he breathed his last yesterday.

The American rulers have not made any remarks about the cause of his sudden death in view of the sensitivity of the issue but rumors have it that this giant of the American politics and diplomacy became ill with a heart disease when his previous fame and credibility came under question after the unremitting failures of the mission of Afghanistan and his facing the difficult task. The protracted Afghan war and the descending trajectory of the Americans' handling of the warfare in the country had had a lethal dent on Holbrook's health as a high-ranking American official. He was grappling with a constant psychological stress.

Emergence of this untoward phenomenon as an off-shoot of the Afghan issue is not now a strange thing. The same was the case with the former Soviet Union as the crisis touched its climax. Former Soviet leaders Brezhnev, Konstantin Cherninkove and Vladimir Andropov had heart attacks in a short time distance before the coming to scene of Michael Gorbachove. They relieved themselves of the hard task of the Afghan mission by retreating into the lap of death .

The recent symptoms are indicating that an outbreak of the same epidemic diseases has started in the political and military echelons of America.

A few months ago, an American four stars general, , general David Peteraeus, fainted during a senate hearing when he faced tough questions as regards the issue of Afghanistan. The end of Holbrooke, the fate of general Mc Crystal and the defense Secretary Robert Gate's warning to step down show that the war of Afghanistan is heavily weighing down on the psyche of the American military and political high-ups. Some of them lighten their burden by simply going to the other world and others, while being still alive, choose to avoid shouldering the mission.

The sudden death of a high-ranking American diplomat happens in a time that American strategists under the chair of Obama have been reviewing the issue of Afghanistan for the past few days. They will expectedly announce their decision soon.

We believe Holbrooke's timely death could have a didactic effect on the American strategists, teaching them many things to learn. In view of the American entanglement in the aggravating swamp of Afghanistan, the Islamic Emirate of Afghanistan calls on the American powers-that-be to abandon their dream of military domination and colonial sway in Afghanistan. Their formulation of new military strategies will never change the imminent defeat into a victory in the country. Still if they are bent on continuing with the status quo, they will face many unexpected events and imbroglios. Their political and military circles will have to grapple with constant crisis and untoward situations. Nothing more than that, they will achieve.

Qari Yousaf Ahamadi

Spokesman of the Islamic Emirate of Afghanistan.

يږک اوي تخليـــهګواکونوخپلـــــي 7 قـرارخ کـــايي ىهلمنـد:امر

احمدي يوســف/قـاري 14 December 2010 05:51 ,شـــنبه سه

کلاپـــه ىدموس ولايـــت ىدد ىدوکـبراو پـه شـــپي ري ىدت ىچ ورکـوي خـبر مجاهدين امارت داسـلامي خه خ هلمنـــدولايت لـه نـه مي ىس لـه تم دچورلکوپـــه عســـکريي اوميشـــت يږک تخليـــه وي امکـقـرار اوه واکونوخپلـــــي خ کـــايي ىامر يک ىولســـوال . دي تيـــدلي ښت

تـهءولسـوال يـنګسـن ې چ ې ک سـيمه پـه دشـابانءولسـوال ې دد مرکزونـه واکونوخپـلـ خ کـايي ءامر وايـي مجاهدين مي ءدس
. دي ولـيـ خسـو يـي سـامانونه پراتـه بنـي اوپـک بمونوالوزولـي پـه، ده پرتـه مرغا اودهلمنددرودپـه ې دنـژ

يـي امله لـه ې چ وچاوديـدل ماينونـه دوه مهال پـه تـي بنـدتـي ې بـج دولـس شـپه عسـکروتيره پـه من بنـدد خبرزيـاتوي
. دي پـاتي ې ک ءاخ پـه بنـي دپـي سهارهم اوس يـي ءاودريـش ي بنـغو ې چ شـول مرم ءاخ پـه ءاخ عسـکر امريکـايي لورتنـه خ

American invaders flee from 7 bases in Helmand

HELMAND, Dec. 14 – Reports from Musa Kala district say that American invaders fled from 7 of their bases by helicopters last night.

Mujahideen say that the invaders bombed their bases, destroying everything inside. The bases were located in the districts Shaban area which is on close proximity to Sangin district.

Reports add that 2 mines exploded on the Americans while they were fleeing as a result 4 were killed. Their limbs and uniforms are still scattered around the blast scene.

Dr Tariq

www.alemarah.biz
www.alemarah-iea.net
www.shahamat.info

Email: B6
-- - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - -

Qari Yousuf Ahmadi
Phone #:0093705186939
Email: B6
-- - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - -

Zabihullah Mujahid

Phone # : 0093705464754
Email: B6

--
Dr Tariq Ghazniwal
www.alemarah.info
www.shahamat1.org
www.alsomod.org

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Rodriguez, Miguel E <RodriguezME@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, December 14, 2010 2:49 PM
To: H
Subject: Nides

----- Original Message -----
From: Rodriguez, Miguel E
To: Abedin, Huma; Campbell, Piper; Sullivan, Jacob J; Kennedy, Patrick F; Mills, Cheryl D
Cc: Verma, Richard R
Sent: Tue Dec 14 14:43:25 2010
Subject: Nides

Was just voted out of Committee by voice vote (unanimous).

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, December 14, 2010 4:10 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw:

----- Original Message -----
From: Howard Paster <HPaster@wpp.com>
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Tue Dec 14 15:41:07 2010
Subject: Re:

Thanks. Had surgery a week ago for infection on brain. Now tethered to 24/7 antibiotic infusion pump. A big bother, but don't feel ill. Sorry to miss Thursday dinner. All good wishes.

----- Original Message -----
From: "Mills, Cheryl D" [MillsCD@state.gov]
Sent: 12/14/2010 03:31 PM
To: <hpaster@wpp.com>;"U.S. Dept of State Protocol" <CeremonialsRSVP@state.gov>
Cc: "Marshall, Capricia P" <MarshallCP@state.gov>
Subject: Re:

XO

Are you doing okay?

Cdm

----- Original Message -----
From: Howard Paster <HPaster@wpp.com>
To: U.S. Dept of State Protocol
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D; Marshall, Capricia P
Sent: Tue Dec 14 14:32:53 2010
Subject:

I very much regret I must decline the Secretary's invitation to dinner December 16 because of recent surgery and would be grateful to be included in subsequent discussions. Thank you.

Howard Paster

Privileged/Confidential Information may be contained in this message. If you are not the addressee indicated in this message (or responsible for delivery of the message to such person), you may not copy or deliver this message to anyone. In such case, you should destroy this message and kindly notify the sender by reply email.

Please advise immediately if you or your employer does not consent to email for messages of this kind. Opinions, conclusions and other information in this message that do not relate to the official business of the WPP 2005 Ltd shall be understood as neither given nor endorsed by it.

Privileged/Confidential Information may be contained in this message. If you are not the addressee indicated in this message (or responsible for delivery of the message to such person), you may not copy or deliver this message to anyone. In such case, you should destroy this message and kindly notify the sender by reply email.
Please advise immediately if you or your employer does not consent to email for messages of this kind. Opinions, conclusions and other information in this message that do not relate to the official business of the WPP 2005 Ltd shall be understood as neither given nor endorsed by it.

RELEASE IN PART
B1,1.4(D),B6

From: Verveer, Melanne S <VerveerMS@state.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, December 14, 2010 9:29 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Norwegian Agency for Development Cooperation (NORAD) published its statement

Classified by DAS, A/GIS, DoS on 08/27/2015 ~ Class: CONFIDENTIAL ~ Reason: 1.4(D) ~ Declassify on: 12/13/2025

From [redacted]
To: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Tue Dec 14 21:21:04 2010
Subject: Re: Norwegian Agency for Development Cooperation (NORAD) published its statement

B1
1.4(D)

Dear Melanne:

[redacted]

B1
1.4(D)

B1
1.4(D)

Sent wirelessly via BlackBerry

---

From: "Verveer, Melanne S" <VerveerMS@state.gov>
Date: Tue, 14 Dec 2010 19:09:47 -0500
To:
Subject: Re: Norwegian Agency for Development Cooperation (NORAD) published itsstatement

Where do things stand at the moment?

---

From:
To: Verveer, Melanne S
Sent: Tue Dec 07 13:22:35 2010
Subject: Fw: Norwegian Agency for Development Cooperation (NORAD) published itsstatement

Sent wirelessly via BlackBerry

---

From: "Amiaud, Camille"
Date: Tue, 7 Dec 2010 10:48:52 -0500
To:
Subject: Norwegian Agency for Development Cooperation (NORAD) published its statement

B6

B1
1.4(D)

Dear all,

The Norwegian Agency for Development Cooperation (NORAD - directorate under the Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs) just published a new statement:

> Report on Norwegian assistance to Grameen Bank
> Norad submitted its report today on Norwegian support to Grameen Bank in Bangladesh in the 1980s and 1990s.
>
> Minister of the Environment and International Development Erik Solheim requested Norad to prepare the report after the Norwegian television series "Brennpunkt" raised the question of where the Norwegian aid money had gone.
>
> Norad's report shows that Grameen Bank transferred a total of NOK 608.5 million to its sister company Grameen Kalyan in 1996. Norway's share of this amount is estimated to be approximately NOK 170 million. The Norwegian Embassy in Dhaka reacted immediately when it discovered the transfer in 1997. In the embassy's view, the transfer was not in accordance with the agreement. The matter was raised with Grameen Bank. Following negotiations, it was agreed in May 1998 that NOK 170 million was to be transferred back from Grameen Kalyan to Grameen Bank.

"According to the report, there is no indication that Norwegian funds have been used for unintended purposes, or that Grameen Bank has engaged in corrupt practices or embezzled funds. The matter was concluded when the agreement concerning reimbursement of the funds was entered into in May 1998 under the government in office at the time," said Mr Solheim.

The report will be made available in English at mfa.no as soon as possible.

Press contact: Christian Grotnes Halvorsen, mobile tel.: +47 48 153 748

Source: Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs official website.

Please do not hesitate to contact us for any further information,

Best regards,

Camille Amiaud
Burson-Marsteller
6 rue Escudier - 92772 Boulogne-Billancourt
Office: +33 1 41 86 76 64
Standard: +33 1 41 86 76 76

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Huma Abedin <Huma@clintonemail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, December 14, 2010 10:04 PM
To: H; 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov'
Subject: Re: Friday

That was what Iona had when she went in to talk to u.
But that's changed now obviously.

----- Original Message -----
From: H
To: 'ValmoroLJ@state.gov' <ValmoroLJ@state.gov>; Huma Abedin
Sent: Tue Dec 14 22:03:09 2010
Subject: Friday

I just saw the line schedule which said I was taking the 3pm shuttle, but I thought I was taking the 2?

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 15, 2010 12:06 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: #1 Social Media campaign of 2010

Fyi

----- Original Message -----
From: Alec Ross [redacted] B6
To: Mills, Cheryl D; Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Tue Dec 14 22:15:25 2010
Subject: #1 Social Media campaign of 2010

That would be ours ... http://adage.com/bookoftens2010/article?article_id=147616

And let the record reflect, when they say "mobile effort-backed by TV and spread across Twitter and Facebook..." was a little something developed and made viral by less than a half dozen people ... all of whom had "State Department" on the upper left-hand corner of their checks

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Schwerin, Daniel B <SchwerinDB@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 15, 2010 7:42 AM
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma; Sullivan, Jacob J; Daniel, Joshua J
Subject: A new draft of the town hall speech
Attachments: QDDR TownHall v7.docx

Madame Secretary, I wanted to flag for you that we have just sent Huma a new draft of your town hall speech that reflects considerable changes over night from Anne-Marie and others. We are continuing to polish it but wanted you to have a chance to see its new direction.
Dan

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Daniel, Joshua J <DanielJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 15, 2010 8:18 AM
To: H; Schwerin, Daniel B
Cc: Abedin, Huma; Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: RE: A new draft of the town hall speech

It's at the bottom of page 1:

...Ambassador Richard Holbrooke. This is a huge loss for our Department and our country, and we are dedicating this first QDDR to his memory. Because every day, I see many of the qualities that made Richard great ...

-----Original Message-----
From: H [mailto:HDR22@clintonemail.com]
Sent: Wednesday, December 15, 2010 8:15 AM
To: Schwerin, Daniel B
Cc: Abedin, Huma; Sullivan, Jacob J; Daniel, Joshua J
Subject: Re: A new draft of the town hall speech

Just got draft. Is there a reason we don't mention the dedication to Holbrooke?

----- Original Message -----
From: Schwerin, Daniel B <SchwerinDB@state.gov>
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>; Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>; Daniel, Joshua J <DanielJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Wed Dec 15 07:42:11 2010
Subject: A new draft of the town hall speech

Madame Secretary, I wanted to flag for you that we have just sent Huma a new draft of your town hall speech that reflects considerable changes over night from Anne-Marie and others. We are continuing to polish it but wanted you to have a chance to see its new direction.
Dan

RELEASE
IN FULL

From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie <SlaughterA@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 15, 2010 7:43 AM
To: H
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D; Sullivan, Jacob J; Abedin, Huma
Subject: Speech this morning

I will be at a USGLC breakfast doing qddr so won't be at morning meeting. You will see speech, which is very hard to write given magnitude of report coupled w/ own hall setting. We have aimed it really at press, to try to focus them as precisely as possible in what we want their stories to be, so it's important to get those key message out. But I would just urge you also to speak from the heart -- you know what this is reallly about better than anyone and if your passion for making this happen and commitment to getting it done come through, it will frame the entire exercise. This is your only chance to speak to the press about 14 months of work until we relaunch in january. There is too much going on to make headlines, but we want there to be positive press saying you are ahead of the curve (and the new Congress) in making govt work better. AM

RELEASE
IN FULL

From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 15, 2010 1:22 PM
To: H
Subject: tax bill

Passed the Senate 81 to 19. START vote on motion to proceed should be at 2:15.

RELEASE
IN PART B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 15, 2010 1:47 PM
To: H
Subject: FW: Matt Lee's piece with write-through

From: Klevorick, Caitlin B
Sent: Wednesday, December 15, 2010 12:43 PM
To: Slaughter, Anne-Marie; Mills, Cheryl D; Reines, Philippe I; Crowley, Philip J; Hyde, Dana; Kennedy, Patrick F; Verma, Richard R; Burke-White, William; Hanrahan, Karen J; McAuliffe, Marisa S; Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Matt Lee's piece with write-through

December 15, 2010

Clinton Seeks to Revamp Diplomacy, Development

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Filed at 11:26 a.m. EST

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton on Wednesday will unveil plans to restore civilian diplomacy and development to its former role as the leading edge of American foreign policy.

Clinton is scheduled to present the results of a wide-ranging review of the operations of the State Department and U.S. Agency for International Development, conducted with the aim of better responding to global threats and emergencies. The proposed changes will "give our military the partner it needs and deserves," according to an advance copy of the document obtained by The Associated Press.

The plan calls for hiring 5,500 new personnel, creating new positions and the consolidating others under a revamped and streamlined leadership structure.

The plan also outlines a strategy to reduce the government's reliance on private contractors, which has rapidly expanded over the past decade, particularly in Iraq and Afghanistan.

"We will work to break down walls between agencies," Clinton wrote in an introduction. "We will eliminate overlap, set priorities, and fund only the work that supports those priorities. We will empower our people to make decisions and hold them accountable for the results."

No price tag is associated with the changes, which are being presented as a new Congress prepares to be seated next month. Many Republicans, who are now the majority in the House, have called for deep spending cuts in the State Department and foreign operations budgets. Moreover, one of Clinton's most powerful allies in efforts to boost civilian operations — Defense Secretary Robert Gates — plans to leave his post sometime in the coming year.

In her introduction, Clinton said the goal is to ensure that the taxpayer dollar is spent wisely. "It's an important exercise even in the best economic times. In tough times, it's critical," she wrote.

The plan would set up bureaus for international energy affairs and crisis and conflict operations at State, as well as offices for policy planning and science and technology at USAID. It would also add a special State Department cyber security coordinator and expand the department's counterterrorism office.

More broadly, the review calls for giving greater authority to ambassadors and other senior diplomats abroad, making them the top managers for implementing policy across all U.S. government agencies that have offices in their respective embassies or consulates.

"It sounds basic, but it's the kind of change that will help us tap the full potential of our civilian power," Clinton wrote.

The proposals grow out of the findings of a Quadrennial Diplomacy and Development Review that Clinton ordered when she became secretary of state, and reflects the Obama administration's "smart power" approach to foreign policy stressing civilian over military operations.

The review is dedicated to the late Richard Holbrooke, the veteran diplomat who died Monday.

"He represented the best of our nation's civilian power," it says. "He understood that we cannot project our leadership unless we also promote our values."

The plan proposes expanding the existing undersecretary of state for democracy and global affairs position to include civilian security and human rights. The new crisis and conflict operations bureau would report to this official and coordinate civilian responses to humanitarian emergencies with USAID.

At USAID, the proposal calls for tripling the hiring of midlevel workers from 30 to 95 per year to reduce reliance on outside contractors. This aims to reverse the 38 percent decline in the agency's work force between 1990 and 2007.

Caitlin Klevorick
Office of the Counselor
Department of State
KlevorickCB@state.gov
202.647.6115
[redacted] (blackberry)

B6

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 15, 2010 1:48 PM
To: H
Subject: FW: she is simply a rock star

Traffic below from bottom up

From: Mills, Cheryl D
Sent: Wednesday, December 15, 2010 1:45 PM
To: Hyde, Dana; Smith, Jeannemarie E; Slaughter, Anne-Marie
Subject: RE: she is simply a rock star

[redacted] B6

cdm

From: Hyde, Dana
Sent: Wednesday, December 15, 2010 12:50 PM
To: Smith, Jeannemarie E; Slaughter, Anne-Marie
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: RE: she is simply a rock star

Jeanne said it all.

[redacted] Xxooo B6

From: Smith, Jeannemarie E
Sent: Wednesday, December 15, 2010 12:46 PM
To: Slaughter, Anne-Marie
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D; Hyde, Dana
Subject: RE: she is simply a rock star

And without your drive, patience and resilience we would not have made it to today.
It was wonderful to see you beaming.
I think we all had a little joy.

Jeanne Smith
Senior Advisor
Office of Deputy Secretary Lew
Room 7240
202-647-0009
[redacted] (mobile) B6

From: Slaughter, Anne-Marie
Sent: Wednesday, December 15, 2010 12:44 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D; Hyde, Dana; Smith, Jeannemarie E
Subject: she is simply a rock star

I do NOT know how she does it, but listening to her speak about the issues that we all care about so much, with such passion and depth of knowledge, made it all worthwhile many times over, and I honestly did not think I could ever say that. That is why we do what we do. I looked over and saw the three of you standing there – I'm sure I must have looked like a proud parent – and was very proud to be part of the team. We did something really important.

AM

Anne-Marie Slaughter
Director of Policy Planning
U.S. Department of State
(202) 647-2972

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Jake Sullivan < [redacted] B6
Sent: Wednesday, December 15, 2010 4:25 PM
To: H; Sullivan, Jacob J
Subject: Fwd: Re BB

fyi

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: aclb < [redacted] B6
Date: Wed, Dec 15, 2010 at 2:17 PM
Subject: Re BB
To: "jake.sullivan [redacted] <jake.sullivan [redacted] B6

Spoke to him. He agreed to the approach of a 2 stage package of CBMs. Secretary said she would follow up and back it . He's waiting for her call. If that's positive I will go out and get him signed up.

DISCLAIMER

WARNING – This email is only intended for the person to whom or entity to which it is addressed and, together with any files transmitted with it, is confidential and may also be privileged. If you are not the intended recipient, you must not copy, forward, use or rely on any part of it or disclose its contents to any person. If you have received it in error, please notify our system manager on +44 20 7647 7782 and delete all copies immediately.

Except where this email is sent in the usual course of our business, the views expressed in this email are those of the sender and not those of The Office of Tony Blair.

The Office of Tony Blair accepts no responsibility for software viruses and you should check for viruses before opening any attachments. Internet communications are not secure and therefore The Office of Tony Blair does not provide any guarantee or warranty that this email or any attachments shall remain confidential.

The Office of Tony Blair is a trading name of Windrush Ventures Limited and Windrush Ventures No.3 LP. Windrush Ventures Limited is a limited company registered in England and Wales with registered number 06397276. Its registered office is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL.

Windrush Ventures No. 3 LP is a limited partnership registered in England and Wales with registered number LP012665. Its registered office is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL. The members of Windrush Ventures No.3 LP are BDBCO No.819 Limited and Windrush Ventures No.2 LLP and the address at which each of these can be served is 50 Broadway, London SW1H 0BL.

This email may relate to or be sent from other members of the Windrush group.

This email has been scanned by the MessageLabs Email Security System.

For more information please visit http://www.messagelabs.com/email

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 15, 2010 8:19 PM
To: H
Subject: FW: Bill Burke White

Agree – he did all the writing and integrating in the first instance and stayed up over the last 48 hours to integrate everything.

From: Sullivan, Jacob J
Sent: Wednesday, December 15, 2010 7:24 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D; Abedin, Huma
Subject: Bill Burke White

He should get some kind of love from S for his work on the QDDR. It was pretty incredible what he did toiling behind the scenes.

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 15, 2010 8:36 PM
To: H
Subject: FW: thanks again

Nice

Forgot to tell you about our harrowing circling and attempted landings last night . . .

From: McGovern[redacted] B6
Sent: Wednesday, December 15, 2010 6:21 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: thanks again

Hi Cheryl,

Thank you once again for the lift to Santo Domingo and for your support and friendship.

[redacted] B6

After our adventure last night, I had a delayed reaction to my good news. At the risk of sounding corny, I work up this morning feeling glad to be alive, thankful for the privilege of working with smart, dedicated and passionate people like you, and fortunate to live in a country with clean water, electricity, education, and healthcare.

I hope that you, David and your kids have a happy, safe and healthy holiday season.

Warmly,

Gail

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 15, 2010 8:49 PM
To: H
Subject: FW: EU Stopped EURO 47 Million

From: Merten, Kenneth H
Sent: Wednesday, December 15, 2010 3:59 PM
To: Mills, Cheryl D; Adams, Thomas C; Mcdonald, Kara C; 'Restrepo, Daniel A.'; Reynoso, Julissa
Cc: Lindwall, David E
Subject: EU Stopped EURO 47 Million

Lut tells me EU stopped EURO 47 Million disbursement of direct budget support until the crisis is resolved and there is a verifiably democratically elected govt in place.

Kenneth Merten
Ambassador
U.S. Embassy Port-au-Prince, Haiti
Tel: 509-2-229-8000

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Wednesday, December 15, 2010 10:49 PM
To: H
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D
Subject: Fw: more wikithink

Worth a read.

From: Baer, Daniel B
To: Sullivan, Jacob J
Cc: Mills, Cheryl D; Klevorick, Caitlin B; Ross, Alec J
Sent: Wed Dec 15 22:28:21 2010
Subject: more wikithink

Jake
I am up in the middle of the night in Brussels and took a quick stab at stringing together some of the pieces of the "moral argument". I am not sure how coherent it all is, (caveat lector) and don't want to confuse efforts to pull together talkers for S, but thought I'd share.

This could be boiled down further into key points (and the below is meant to stand on its own as an argument but not be exclusive of others—re internet freedom and wikileaks, for example)

But I think it gets at some of what I think is missing...esp the bit at the end about the alternative---
D

1) Clear thinking demands avoiding simple analogies, or false syllogisms. Some have called WL whistleblowing. Some have lauded it for contributing to transparency. But the comparison and inferences don't hold up. Whistleblowing is when someone reveals an act of official wrongdoing, and because it is official wrongdoing we assume that it's in the public interest to know about this and hold the culprits accountable. Instead what WL is exposing, by and large, is a vast number of official acts of rightdoing—diplomats engaged often with partners from other governments or civil society, in solving the kind of practical problems that arise in a world made up of nearly two hundred nations. Many of the legitimate objectives of these officials—whether securing dangerous materials or negotiating agreements that will advance good governance and human rights—cannot be accomplished in a single conversation or interaction. Instead they are long-term ongoing projects that require trust, tactical sequencing of interactions, and above all, confidence. It's not the ultimate objectives that are confidential—indeed, they are quite public and leaders routinely outline them in speeches, world peace, security, prosperity, etc. Rather it's simply the case that accomplishing good objectives demands the kind of cooperative engagement that confidential relations permit, and so, while we can and should maintain a general commitment to transparency, we also can and should recognize that a responsible government that that is to be held accountable for delivering benefits for its people, will sometimes need to work in confidence in order to do so. Whistleblowing exposes misconduct that runs counter to the interests of citizens. Wikileaks undermines good conduct on behalf of citizens.

2) Absent a world government, it is the relations between states and peoples, whether through formal institutions or everyday conversations and connections, that provides global governance. The formal relations between states, made up of so many constellations of individual interactions, weave the fabric of a blanket of peace and stability, one which creates a permissive environment in which states can live up to their responsibility to provide for and protect people's rights. The Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the ICCPR and other documents international and domestic lay out the standards, but it is the quality of governance at both the domestic and international levels that determines whether or not people enjoy those rights in their everyday lives.

3) Some of those who are cheering Assange mistakenly believe that his action constitutes a speech act in a debate about good governance—that his action constitutes a kind of critique, a demand for a particular kind of better behavior. But it doesn't constitute a critique or a demand—this is not an exchange with another interlocutor about a particular position or action. The exposure of 250,000 cables isn't a critique of any one of them; it's an attempt to harm the medium itself—confidential communication among governments—rather than a rejection of the messages. This isn't part of a particular debate, it's an action that undermines a key pillar of the system of governance in which all debates can safely take place, in which individuals can, if they're lucky enough to live in the kind of places that Assange has spent his life, make specific criticisms of the government, march, speak out, protest, and do so with the protection of the rule of law.

4) In this specific case it is the communications of the United States that have been compromised. We regret the embarrassment this has caused with some of our partners. We deplore the risk it has imposed on innocent people on the frontlines of struggles against corruption or rights abuses around the world. But we are taking steps to manage the consequences, address them, and to make future incidents less likely. But the attack on legitimate confidential relations between governments is not an attack on the particular government in question, it's an attack on the constellation of relationships and interactions referenced above, the informal agreements, debates, discussions, etc through which governments around the world manage—imperfectly to be sure—to work out their differences and find common ground and common cause; to maintain global order and stability on which the security of their citizens and the citizens of other nations depends; to support and sustain the commercial networks that can augment global prosperity; to do, in short, what citizens count on their governments to do.

5) If wikileaks seeks to undermine this mode of international politics, it's not clear what it seeks to replace it with. A world in which every step of climate negotiations were exposed in real time would not be more prepared to confront the threat of climate change. A world in which every discussion among finance ministers were immediately publicized would not have fewer financial crises. A world in which every discussion of how to counter plots of terrorists or secure dangerous nuclear materials were on the front pages of the world's newspapers would not be more safe.

RELEASE
IN PART B6

B6

From: sbwhoeop
Sent: Wednesday, December 15, 2010 11:01 PM
To: H
Subject: H: Jamie Rubin finally lands. Sid

The unsigned editorials will appear in all of Bloomberg's online and print media properties — including Bloomberg Businessweek, Bloomberg.com and the nearly 300,000 financial data terminals leased to Wall Street traders and businesses around the world. It will be run by two distinguished voices: James P. Rubin, a former assistant secretary of state under Bill Clinton, and David Shipley, editor of The New York Times Op-Ed page.

December 15, 2010

Bloomberg to Publish Editorials

By JEREMY W. PETERS

Being mayor of New York City would be a large enough platform for just about anyone. But apparently not for Michael R. Bloomberg.

The mayor's company, Bloomberg L.P., said on Wednesday that it would begin publishing editorials across its vast media enterprise in an effort to broaden the company's influence on national affairs. And though Mr. Bloomberg has an agreement with the city to have no involvement in the "day-to-day operations" of his company, the endeavor, called Bloomberg View, is intended to channel his personal philosophy and worldview.

"I think it's very important that everyone understands that our editorial page is going to be, for sure, consistent with the values and beliefs of the founder — even if he happens to be mayor of New York City," said Matthew Winkler, the editor in chief of Bloomberg News. "I fully expect us in our Bloomberg View always to reflect those values. In fact, I want people to come away from reading the Bloomberg View infused with those beliefs and values."

The effort presents a host of conflict-of-interest questions for the mayor. The new venture provides the mayor with yet another potent communications apparatus — one that carries his name and imprimatur — to sound off on issues that collide with his job as mayor, his corporate interests and his expanding philanthropic empire.

Bloomberg L.P. executives said they would not shy away from publishing editorials on issues in which Mr. Bloomberg has a direct interest as mayor, like education, public health and environmental policy. Mr. Winkler said the editorials would not avoid such issues but would disclose the mayor's involvement when warranted.

Though Mr. Bloomberg will not have a hand in conceiving and writing the editorials, he is likely to offer feedback from time to time before they are published, Mr. Winkler said.

"I think that there's a very good chance that's going to happen," he said, referring to Mr. Bloomberg's occasional involvement. It is unclear whether that level of involvement is permitted under his agreement with the city to remain at arm's length from the company.

A spokesman for the mayor, Stu Loeser, said the mayor was allowed limited involvement in his agreement with the city. "Weighing in from time to time is consistent with his being the majority shareholder of the company he founded," he said.

As someone whose presidential ambitions are the source of endless speculation, acquiring the platform of an editorial page is certain to draw more attention to Mr. Bloomberg's plans. (On Sunday, Mr. Bloomberg ruled out a run for president.)

The unsigned editorials will appear in all of Bloomberg's online and print media properties — including Bloomberg Businessweek, Bloomberg.com and the nearly 300,000 financial data terminals leased to Wall Street traders and businesses around the world. It will be run by two distinguished voices: James P. Rubin, a former assistant secretary of state under Bill Clinton, and David Shipley, editor of The New York Times Op-Ed page.

Opinion and commentary have not typically been areas of focus for Bloomberg, with its just-the-facts approach. In fact, the mayor has complained about the corrosive effect of the 24-hour news cycle and overheated political commentary in the blogosphere.

But company leaders, including Mr. Bloomberg, who has been aware of the project since it was conceived more than two years ago, saw an opportunity to extend their influence.

For a firm that has made no secret of its ambitions to become the most influential media company in the world, starting an editorial operation is the latest effort to propel it beyond its core mission as a financial news service.

The notion of media barons using editorials to shape public opinion and policy according to their personal views is an old one in American journalism. William Randolph Hearst, for example, often wrote front-page editorials for his newspapers. Mr. Bloomberg, it would seem, is casting himself in that mold, though there are no plans for him to begin writing signed editorials. For now, he is content letting his trusted deputies speak for him.

"He's accepting and embracing the privilege of a media mogul," said David Nasaw, a professor of history at the City University of New York Graduate Center, who wrote a biography of Hearst. "This is what we all do. We try to persuade the rest of the world we are right. Of course we don't have the vehicles to do so. The rich have the vehicles to do so."

Mr. Winkler said: "There's a huge opportunity here for Bloomberg L.P. and Bloomberg News to seize the day, literally seize the day by bringing wisdom to events as they unfold. And one can't always do that with the best result with reporting."

"That certainly is a benefit to the founder of the company, the man. But it is also a huge opportunity for Bloomberg, the company, that it should take advantage of," Mr. Winkler added.

Bloomberg L.P. acquired BusinessWeek last year, giving the 29-year-old company a print product with a long legacy of accomplishment.

Bloomberg is in the midst of an expansion in Washington. With a service called Bloomberg Government, an operation that will eventually employ 300 journalists and analysts, the company will sell, for $5,700 a year, information about government services and contracts to lobbyists and others with business interests in the nation's capital.

RELEASE
IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 16, 2010 7:08 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (AP) Germany: pullout from Afghanistan to start in 2011

From: Withers, Anne M
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_Shift-I
Sent: Thu Dec 16 06:02:08 2010
Subject: (AP) Germany: pullout from Afghanistan to start in 2011

BERLIN (AP) - Germany's foreign minister is playing down the country's expectations for Afghanistan's future while reiterating that German troops will start their withdrawal by the end of next year as planned. Guido Westerwelle told parliament December 16 that after nearly a decade in Afghanistan, Germany has "more realistic expectations" for the country, saying that Berlin is no longer expecting good governance but the more achievable goal of "good-enough governance." Westerwelle says German troops will start withdrawing as planned in late 2011 and start handing over the responsibility to Afghan authorities by the middle of next year. He says the last of Germany's current 4,600 troops are to leave by 2014, saying the withdrawal must not endanger allied troops or leave the country in the hands of the Taliban.

RELEASE
IN FULL

From: Abedin, Huma <AbedinH@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 16, 2010 7:08 AM
To: H
Subject: Fw: (AP) Palestinians seek state recognition in Europe

From: Withers, Anne M
To: NEWS-Mahogany
Cc: SES-O_OS; SES-O_Shift-I
Sent: Thu Dec 16 06:02:26 2010
Subject: (AP) Palestinians seek state recognition in Europe

RAMALLAH (AP) - Palestinian negotiators are for the first time asking European countries to recognize a Palestinian state in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, even without a peace deal with Israel. The move is part of growing Palestinian campaign to pursue statehood outside of peace talks with Israel, which have been deadlocked since September. Palestinian officials say they asked the consuls general of France, Britain, Sweden and Denmark as well as the European Union envoy to the peace process to recognize the 1967 borders between Israel and "Palestine." The EU says it will recognize a Palestinian state "when appropriate," but that negotiations are the only way to peace.

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 16, 2010 9:28 AM
To: H
Subject: FW: From Pakistan

From: Kati Marton [redacted] B6
Sent: Thursday, December 16, 2010 9:16 AM
To: Kati Marton
Subject: From Pakistan

------ Forwarded Message
From: ahmed rashid [redacted] B6
Date: Wed, 15 Dec 2010 12:38:53 +0000
To: Kati Marton [redacted] B6
Subject: ahmed

Richard Holbrooke, Pakistan's hero: He had a vision for our future

New York Daily News.

By Ahmed Rashid <http://www.nydailynews.com/authors/Ahmed%20Rashid> Wednesday, December 15th 2010, 4:00 AM

No American has tried as hard to ease the fears, apprehensions, doubts, conspiracy theories and ill-informed views of Pakistanis toward the U.S. <http://www.nydailynews.com/topics/United+States> as has Richard Holbrooke <http://www.nydailynews.com/topics/Richard+Holbrooke> . His death is a tragedy for American diplomacy - but much more so for Pakistan <http://www.nydailynews.com/topics/Pakistan> , because whether you liked him or disliked him, there is no denying that in the last two years, he constantly battled for Pakistan.

The image of Holbrooke wading through floodwater, distributing relief goods to this year's 20 million flood victims - not once but repeatedly at the ripe age of 69 - is an indelible one, that our own much younger leaders barely ever replicated. He pushed for U.S. helicopters to be deployed in Pakistan for the flood victims. He pushed for more aid money for Pakistan from a reluctant Congress.

He helped start a dialogue on a dozen different issues - which will be his lasting legacy - and he pushed Pakistan, especially its army, to change its ways. Under the proverbial cover of national interest, we Pakistanis never made life easier for him or for ourselves by confronting the new realities of terrorism, our lack of political leadership or our collapsing economy.

But Holbrooke soldiered on.

At times he may have been aggressive and pushy, loud and boisterous, too quintessentially American, too bluntly New York <http://www.nydailynews.com/topics/New+York> .

But ultimately none of that mattered, because he bought to the table for the first time - after the preferred ignorance of the Bush administration and its lackadaisical love affair with Gen. Pervez Musharraf <http://www.nydailynews.com/topics/Pervez+Musharraf> - a strategic vision to the U.S.-Pakistan relationship.

What was this vision? That America would remain committed to Pakistan's progress over the long term, even after the Afghanistan <http://www.nydailynews.com/topics/Afghanistan> war was over, and that it would help improve Pakistani relations with India <http://www.nydailynews.com/topics/India> .

This was crucial: Unlike many who came before him and will come after, Holbrooke thought Pakistan was important for its own sake, not just because America wanted to defeat the Taliban <http://www.nydailynews.com/topics/The+Taliban> in Afghanistan or solidify trade relationships with India.

He recognized the deep feelings of mistrust and ambivalence that still exist in Pakistan toward the U. S. He knew better than anyone in the U.S. administration that diplomacy makes a difference when diplomats deal with the realities on the ground - and not a preconceived image of what should be.

We should remember that all this time, Holbrooke battled the odds back in Washington <http://www.nydailynews.com/topics/Washington%2c+DC> . The Obama administration <http://www.nydailynews.com/topics/Barack+Obama> was and is heavily divided between the Obama-controlled White House <http://www.nydailynews.com/topics/The+White+House> , the Hillary Clinton <http://www.nydailynews.com/topics/Hillary+Clinton> -controlled State Department <http://www.nydailynews.com/topics/U.S.+Department+of+State> - in which he was her key adviser on global issues - and the all-powerful Pentagon. Not to speak of a Congress that, even when Democratic-controlled, kept trying to put awkward strings on aid to Pakistan, which Holbrooke opposed.

Holbrooke was a pain in the rear end for many of these power centers. At times he was ignored by the White House or by the Pentagon <http://www.nydailynews.com/topics/The+Pentagon> . At other times he was castigated by Congress. But Holbrooke, a strong-willed man, stuck to his convictions.

Whoever comes after him will be far less likely to have that strength of character - call it pigheadedness, if you like - and that will be a great loss.

It is especially problematic as Pakistan's future continues to teeter. The military still gives sanctuary to the Taliban. Extremism is still spreading. The international community still raises fears about the safety of its nuclear weapons. As the end game in Afghanistan approaches, some in Pakistan are pressuring against a final settlement of hostilities there.

Some in America will be happy to have a thorn removed from their sides. But many Pakistanis will remember Richard Holbrooke fondly: He was tirelessly fighting for a more stable future for our country. We have lost a friend, and whoever replaces him will never quite measure up.

Rashid is author of "Taliban: Militant Islam, Oil and Fundamentalism in Central Asia <http://www.nydailynews.com/topics/Central+Asia> ."

------ End of Forwarded Message

RELEASE
IN PART B6

From: Mills, Cheryl D <MillsCD@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 16, 2010 9:30 AM
To: H
Subject: FW: The Envoy

THE NEW YORKER
December 14, 2010

The Envoy

Posted by Hendrik Hertzberg

Last night, as I was unlocking my bike on a windswept Greenwich Village sidewalk after leaving a holiday party, a friend approached, cell phone in hand. A few minutes earlier, she and I had been inside, chatting happily amid the buzz and warmth of a holiday party. Now she had tears in her eyes. "Richard Holbrooke died," she said.

Notwithstanding the hospital bulletins since he fell ill on Saturday—critical condition, damaged aorta, emergency surgery—this sudden, awful ending was a shock, because Richard Holbrooke was such an astounding volcano of vitality. Everything about him was large: his physical size, including the ultimate "in your face" face, a face like a Times Square billboard; his buzz-saw voice, a highly expressive instrument, equally adept at piano (a side-of-the-mouth, gossipy wisecrack, often pleasingly nasty) and forte (a high-decibel outburst of anger or indignation, almost always calculated for effect); his appetites (for experience, for danger, for praise, for power, for fun); and his ambitions (for himself, for his beliefs, for the United States, for the world). He was no doe-eyed peacenik, but as a diplomat he labored long and hard to seek alternatives to war and ways to end particular wars. He was sentimental about his own unsentimentality, romantic about his own tough-guy realism.

Unlike my tearful informant, who had known Holbrooke as a family friend since she was a little girl, I was acquainted with him in the casual way of many journalists and editors. He was a peer as well as a "source," a prolific and forceful writer whose favorite venues, The New Republic and The New Yorker, happened to be the places where I've spent my working life. He was gregarious and fond of big, splashy black-tie evenings. The last time I saw him was six weeks ago, on November 1st, at the New York Public Library's "Literary Lions" celebration. At the pre-dinner reception, where he would normally have been on his feet, looming large, he repaired to a folding chair behind a little table and let his wife, Kati Marton, bring the party to him. At sixty-nine he was tired—that much was obvious—but he was as sharp and voluble as ever. He still had plenty to do.

Not long after Holbrooke achieved his greatest diplomatic triumph by negotiating the 1995 end to the Balkan wars, I asked him if he liked Warren Zevon's wonderful song "The Envoy." He said he'd never heard of it. The next day I sent him a CD. After that, he mentioned it every single time I've seen him, up to and including that NYPL gala, saying he puts it on, loud, when he needs a lift. And no wonder: his life was a drama, and he liked it that way.

If the Supreme Court had allowed the votes to be counted in 2000, then the Envoy, almost certainly, would have become the Secretary of State, and the next decade would have unfolded very differently. As it is, Holbrooke has left a stronger, more positive, more creative mark on history than all but a few of those who have held that post. He certainly did not die of a broken heart—Kati Marton saw to that—but it was surely the ghastly, impossible demands of his last, impossible assignment that brought on the rending of his aorta. He died for his country as surely as any soldier. And his deathbed words may turn out to be the most important he ever spoke.

Photograph: Marco Di Lauro/Getty Images

Read more
http://www.newyorker.com/online/blogs/hendrikhertzberg/2010/12/holbrooke.html?printable=true#ixzz18HjNL4kn

From: Kati Marton [mailto:
Sent: Thursday, December 16, 2010 9:15 AM
To: Kati Marton
Subject: The Envoy

B6

http://www.newyorker.com/online/blogs/hendrikhertzberg/2010/12/holbrooke.html

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Stern, Todd D (S/SECC) <SternTD@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 16, 2010 10:08 AM
To: H
Subject: update

Hi. Sorry I haven't had a chance to see you, but I did want you to hear directly from me that it was a great result in Cancun. Way beyond any expectations. Many challenges ahead, but a very good day for us and a great day for Mexico. Have a very happy holiday if I don't see you before. Best, Todd

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Jake Sullivan [redacted] B6
Sent: Thursday, December 16, 2010 7:06 PM
To: H
Subject: Fwd: FW: Richard (TNR)

I assume you saw this by now -- if not, it's worth a read.

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Date: Wed, Dec 15, 2010 at 1:21 PM
Subject: FW: Richard (TNR)
To: [redacted] B6

[redacted]

Published on The New Republic (http://www.tnr.com)

Richard

- Leon Wieseltier
- December 14, 2010 | 3:16 pm

[redacted]

Richard Holbrooke was a piece of work. He was a paradoxical man: a remarkably subtle thinker capable of the most egregious lack of subtlety, a brilliant diplomat with one of the least diplomatic temperaments anybody ever encountered. He was always cunning but never malevolent. Mentally, he was sleepless, relentlessly pondering the meanings of even the most trivial events and experiences. (An example: Decades ago Holbrooke was strolling down Madison Avenue with a friend. A man passed them and said "Hi, Dick". Holbrooke stopped in his tracks, turned to his friend, and said: "I wonder what he meant by that." Sleepless.) His powers of observation were extraordinary, the cognitive advantage of his utter extroversion; and they were matched by his massive powers of analysis, which never shut down. He was a disorderly man with an ordered mind; there was rigorous reflection at the heart of the whirlwind. He was, almost preposterously, in constant motion, a stranger to calm, a bull in search of a china shop; but in his thinking, and in his commitment to his country, he was one of the steadiest men on earth.

The legend of his career, and the flamboyance of his person, has obscured a proper recognition of his commitments. Holbrooke was not only a student of power; he was also a creature of beliefs. What he believed in most of all, I think, was in the ability, and the duty, of the United States, by a variety of means, to better the world. He was, in his cast of mind, a realist, but his cast of mind was not his philosophy: this realist—the Democrats' most accomplished Machiavellian—was always returning to first principles, to moral considerations, to the alleviation of human suffering and the spread of political liberty as goals of American statecraft. He came away from his early years in Vietnam with lessons but without a syndrome. He was unanguished about the use of American force, when it was morally justified and intelligently applied—which is to say, he was the last of the postwar liberals. Even in his most virulent criticism of what he regarded as America's military mistakes abroad, there was not a trace of the temptation to surrender a high sense of America's role in history. Isolationism disgusted him. He had a natural understanding, it was almost an attribute of his character, of the relationship between diplomacy and force. He had no illusions about the harshness of the world, and therefore about the toughness that is required for the creation of a world less harsh. His last assignment, the increasingly Sisyphean attempt to bring Afghanistan into the community of open and decent societies, was a bet on this sober and unsentimental optimism. He cared famously about what worked, and he could be brazen in his pragmatism, but Holbrooke's professional life was animated by goals and concepts that no mere pragmatist could share. American interventionism, for him, was not just a policy; it was a way of existing responsibly in the world, the measure of a national (and personal) ideal, the real greatness of a great power.

It was this rare package of means and ends, of ideas and instruments, that made possible Holbrooke's triumph at Dayton. He negotiated a peace with a villain whom he deeply despised, and thereby ended a genocide in which we, the United States, and an administration from his own party, had outrageously acquiesced. In this way he helped to restore the honor of his country after a period of disgrace. On the day that Holbrooke suffered the cataclysmic collapse from which he never recovered, The New York Times reported that Henry Kissinger—the Republicans' most accomplished Machiavellian—remarked in 1973 that "if they put Jews into gas chambers in the Soviet Union, it is not an American concern. Maybe a humanitarian concern." Such unforgettably filthy words would never have crossed Richard Holbrooke's lips. In government and out, not least in his groundbreaking work at Refugees International, his career was a loud and effective refutation of that chilling "maybe."

He was also an intellectual. He edited, he wrote (for my pages, too), he read. He raised a lasting institution of intellectuality in the American Academy in Berlin. His renowned attraction to journalists was not just a more or less charming campaign of spin; in his unslakable desire for the latest news and the immediate interpretation of it, he was one of their company. There was so much about which this genuinely cosmopolitan man did not need to be briefed. He had an appetite for complexity, though it never crippled him in his practice. It was Holbrooke, more than anybody else, who focused American planning upon the most disturbing contemporary complexity of all: the grim fact that the pursuit of our national security in Central Asia depends as much, if not more, upon Pakistan than upon Afghanistan. And after he edited and wrote and read, and before, and during, he talked. Holbrooke's talk was a kind of rolling chronicle of his times, a rush of concepts and gossip, brash, probing, impatient, occasionally outrageous, with a fine feeling for absurdity in the mix—the richest display of his prodigious vitality. He was faster on his feet than anybody I have ever known. It was a joy, and an amusement, to behold.

We were friends for almost three decades. He was a constant source of fascination—I had never before encountered such a union of intrigue and idealism; but mostly he inspired admiration and affection. Now the unstoppable man has been stopped, and the man who was everywhere is nowhere. If only he could have gotten the angel of death around a table....

Leon Wieseltier is the literary editor of The New Republic.

Source URL: http://www.tnr.com/article/79956/richard-holbrooke-wieseltier-obituary

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 16, 2010 7:41 PM
To: H
Subject: Fw: Wyden

From: Terrell, Louisa
To: McKeon, Brian P. ; Verma, Richard R; Turk, David M
Sent: Thu Dec 16 17:42:46 2010
Subject: FW: Wyden

B6
B6

- Sen. Ron Wyden Has Early Stage Prostate Cancer, Will Miss Votes

Posted Thursday, December 16, 2010 5:06 PM | By David Weigel

Here is the statement -- Wyden caught the cancer early, but will have to miss votes tomorrow and next week.

> After my annual physical in late November, I was diagnosed with early stage prostate cancer. After reviewing all the options with multiple physicians, I decided to take a proactive approach and have surgery, which will be performed December 20 at Johns Hopkins Hospital by Dr. Alan Partin.
>
> Thanks to routine screening, this was diagnosed very early and I expect a full and speedy recovery.
>
> I scheduled the surgery for the Monday before Christmas anticipating that the Senate would have recessed by that time and that there would be no disruption to my work in Oregon or Washington. However, it now appears that I will be missing votes tomorrow and possibly next week while I prepare and undergo this procedure. I expect to be back to work full-time when the Senate reconvenes in January.
>
> If anything is taken away from my experience, I hope it is the importance of getting routine physicals. One in six men will be diagnosed with prostate cancer during their lifetimes. Early detection is critical to catching this disease when treatment is most effective.

Wyden's vote is one Democrats are counting on for tough votes; he's needed to pass the START treaty, the omnibus, and possibly the DREAM Act. According to current vote counts, it would be possible for the Senate to repeal DADT without Wyden's vote -- with the support of key Republicans, vote counters say they're at 61 or 62.

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Verma, Richard R <VermaRR@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 16, 2010 8:09 PM
To: H
Cc: Sullivan, Jacob J; Mills, Cheryl D; Abedin, Huma
Subject: Senate

Big change of plans in the Senate. Senator Reid just announced that he was no longer going to move forward with the omnibus appropriations bill. Instead, he filed cloture motions on the repeal of Don't Ask, Don't Tell and the DREAM Act.

Those petitions will ripen on Saturday. So it looks like the Senate will be again considering the new START Treaty tomorrow. We should know the starting time shortly.

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: Jiloty, Lauren C <JilotyLC@state.gov>
Sent: Thursday, December 16, 2010 10:52 PM
To: H
Subject: Re: Fwd: FW: Richard (TNR)

K

----- Original Message -----
From: H <HDR22@clintonemail.com>
To: Jiloty, Lauren C
Sent: Thu Dec 16 22:47:26 2010
Subject: Fw: Fwd: FW: Richard (TNR)

Pls print.

----- Original Message -----
From: Jake Sullivan [redacted] B6
To: H
Sent: Thu Dec 16 19:05:54 2010
Subject: Fwd: FW: Richard (TNR)

I assume you saw this by now -- if not, it's worth a read.

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Date: Wed, Dec 15, 2010 at 1:21 PM
Subject: FW: Richard (TNR)
To: jake.sullivar [redacted] B6

http://www.tnr.com/sites/default/themes/tnr/images/tnr_sm.gif
<https://mail.google.com/mail/?ui=2&ik=a030c007cd&view=att&th=12ceb44d4b083506&attid=0.1&disp=emb&zw>

Published on The New Republic (http://www.tnr.com <http://www.tnr.com/> )

---

Richard

* Leon Wieseltier
* December 14, 2010 | 3:16 pm

http://www.tnr.com/sites/default/files/imagecache/detail_page/holbrooke1.JPG
<https://mail.google.com/mail/?ui=2&ik=a030c007cd&view=att&th=12ceb44d4b083506&attid=0.2&disp=emb&zw>

Richard Holbrooke was a piece of work. He was a paradoxical man: a remarkably subtle thinker capable of the most egregious lack of subtlety, a brilliant diplomat with one of the least diplomatic temperaments anybody ever encountered. He was always cunning but never malevolent. Mentally, he was sleepless, relentlessly pondering the meanings of even the most trivial events and experiences. (An example: Decades ago Holbrooke was strolling down Madison Avenue with a friend. A man passed them and said "Hi, Dick". Holbrooke stopped in his tracks, turned to his friend, and said: "I wonder what he meant by that." Sleepless.) His powers of observation were extraordinary, the cognitive advantage of his utter extroversion; and they were matched by his massive powers of analysis, which never shut down. He was a disorderly man with an ordered mind; there was rigorous reflection at the heart of the whirlwind. He was, almost preposterously, in constant motion, a stranger to calm, a bull in search of a china shop; but in his thinking, and in his commitment to his country, he was one of the steadiest men on earth.

The legend of his career, and the flamboyance of his person, has obscured a proper recognition of his commitments. Holbrooke was not only a student of power; he was also a creature of beliefs. What he believed in most of all, I think, was in the ability, and the duty, of the United States, by a variety of means, to better the world. He was, in his cast of mind, a realist, but his cast of mind was not his philosophy: this realist—the Democrats' most accomplished Machiavellian—was always returning to first principles, to moral considerations, to the alleviation of human suffering and the spread of political liberty as goals of American statecraft. He came away from his early years in Vietnam with lessons but without a syndrome. He was unanguished about the use of American force, when it was morally justified and intelligently applied—which is to say, he was the last of the postwar liberals. Even in his most virulent criticism of what he regarded as America's military mistakes abroad, there was not a trace of the temptation to surrender a high sense of America's role in history. Isolationism disgusted him. He had a natural understanding, it was almost an attribute of his character, of the relationship between diplomacy and force. He had no illusions about the harshness of the world, and therefore about the toughness that is required for the creation of a world less harsh. His last assignment, the increasingly Sisyphean attempt to bring Afghanistan into the community of open and decent societies, was a bet on this sober and unsentimental optimism. He cared famously about what worked, and he could be brazen in his pragmatism, but Holbrooke's professional life was animated by goals and concepts that no mere pragmatist could share. American interventionism, for him, was not just a policy; it was a way of existing responsibly in the world, the measure of a national (and personal) ideal, the real greatness of a great power.

It was this rare package of means and ends, of ideas and instruments, that made possible Holbrooke's triumph at Dayton. He negotiated a peace with a villain whom he deeply despised, and thereby ended a genocide in which we, the United States, and an administration from his own party, had outrageously acquiesced. In this way he helped to restore the honor of his country after a period of disgrace. On the day that Holbrooke suffered the cataclysmic collapse from which he never recovered, The New York Times reported that Henry Kissinger—the Republicans' most accomplished Machiavellian—remarked in 1973 that "if they put Jews into gas chambers in the Soviet Union, it is not an American concern. Maybe a humanitarian concern." Such unforgettably filthy words would never have crossed Richard Holbrooke's lips. In government and out, not least in his groundbreaking work at Refugees International, his career was a loud and effective refutation of that chilling "maybe."

He was also an intellectual. He edited, he wrote (for my pages, too), he read. He raised a lasting institution of intellectuality in the American Academy in Berlin. His renowned attraction to journalists was not just a more or less charming campaign of spin; in his unslakable desire for the latest news and the immediate interpretation of it, he was one of their company. There was so much about which this genuinely cosmopolitan man did not need to be briefed. He had an appetite for complexity, though it never crippled him in his practice. It was Holbrooke, more than anybody else, who focused American planning upon the most disturbing contemporary complexity of all: the grim fact that the pursuit of our national security in Central Asia depends as much, if not more, upon Pakistan than upon Afghanistan. And after he edited and wrote and read, and before, and during, he talked. Holbrooke's talk was a kind of rolling chronicle of his times, a rush of concepts and gossip, brash, probing, impatient, occasionally outrageous, with a fine feeling for absurdity in the mix—the richest display of his prodigious vitality. He was faster on his feet than anybody I have ever known. It was a joy, and an amusement, to behold.

We were friends for almost three decades. He was a constant source of fascination—I had never before encountered such a union of intrigue and idealism; but mostly he inspired admiration and affection. Now the unstoppable man has been stopped, and the man who was everywhere is nowhere. If only he could have gotten the angel of death around a table....

Leon Wieseltier is the literary editor of The New Republic.

---

Source URL: http://www.tnr.com/article/79956/richard-holbrooke-wieseltier-obituary <http://www.tnr.com/article/79956/richard-holbrooke-wieseltier-obituary?id=AIlaL+2b9QW/QyDvsbaL2+xVmvhwM2QAS3ksLiFFDAEka20kZa7mV10mPqP50juO>

RELEASE IN PART B6

From: PVerveer [redacted] B6
Sent: Friday, December 17, 2010 12:12 AM
To: H
Subject: From [redacted] B6

From: [redacted] B6
To: PVerveer [redacted] B6
CC: alyseneIson [redacted] B6
Sent: 12/14/2010 4:04:15 P.M. Eastern Standard Time
Subj: Hello

Hi dear Melanne and Alyse,
Hope this email reaches you at good time. [redacted] B6
[redacted] B6

[redacted] Please B6
let me know if I can be of any help to your department and will happy to do and please thank Mrs. Hillary Clinton on behalf of me [redacted] and B6 supporting Afghan women.

Thank you,

[redacted] B6

RELEASE IN FULL

From: Sullivan, Jacob J <SullivanJJ@state.gov>
Sent: Friday, December 17, 2010 10:42 AM
To: H
Cc: Abedin, Huma
Subject: FW: Note for Secretary Clinton
Attachments: President Karzai.jpg

See below.

From: Eikenberry, Karl W
Sent: Friday, December 17, 2010 10:11 AM
To: Mills, Cheryl D; Ruggiero, Frank J; Sullivan, Jacob J
Cc: Wayne, E Anthony
Subject: Note for Secretary Clinton

Madam Secretary,

The outpouring of condolences from the international community and the Afghans for Richard's passing has been extraordinary. We have had a steady flow of visitors from the NATO and diplomatic community and, most importantly, Afghans of every walk of life for several days who have come to sign the condolence book.

Today, during my weekly meeting with President Karzai, I took along the condolence book to be signed at the Palace. President Karzai signed and wrote a nice tribute to Richard and graciously allowed us to bring an Embassy photographer to memorialize the occasion. A photograph is attached. We will separately arrange for a copy to be signed by President Karzai for Kati.

Separately, I would ask that you thank Mike Mullen for permitting the USO show with which he is traveling to stage an unprecedented performance at the U.S. Embassy today. Allowing Embassy Kabul to be the site of a USO show in Afghanistan was very gracious of Mike as normally USO shows are only held at military bases. We had an extraordinary turnout of our civilian and military team from all over Kabul gathered today to see Robin Williams and other entertainers. Mike remains a real champion of our civil-military cooperation and teamwork.

Respectfully,

Karl

SBU
This email is UNCLASSIFIED.